But, speaking with knowledge after investigation and observation, that money is in the main being hoarded—in banks in the proverbial stocking—all because its holders, and their name is legion, are afraid Yes, they are obsessed by the spectre FEAR, fear of losing their possessions, fearful of spending as their means would allow, even for only such moderate comforts as their circumstances justify. Evidently these people do not realize that until this money is put to work and again circulating in all walks of life no recovery from depression is possible. On the contrary, there will be a grave danger of chaotic conditions in which money has no value, and all, irrespective of class health or money wealth, must start anew in a titanic war for existence.

Now the object of this contribution is to encourage, by example, people of assured incomes to throw off the cursed demon Fear, loosen up their purse strings, and face the future unafraid, realizing exactly what effect sending the dollar on its travels from one hand to another has on economic and industrial life. And here is the example, an incident of recent happening in this city. The principals are referred to as Merchant and Mr. D.

A prosperous looking man entered one of Peterborough's most popular furniture stores, saying he was in the market for a dining-room suite. "Ours is rather ancient, and my wife wants a new one." Whereupon the merchant showed his visitor low and medium priced suites when here's what followed:

Mr. D.—"But here's a beauty! what's it worth?"

Merchant—"That's one of our best; the price is $275."

Mr. D.—"Well, it's good value at that, and I am going to have that suite or none at all. But I'll have to consult my wife first."

Mr. D. here left the store and returning said, "I am awfully sorry but my wife has changed her mind. A depression is on, and she is now AFRAID of investing money in anything new. And, by jingo, so am I."

Merchant—"Well, Mr. D., I do not know your financial circumstances, but you were evidently in a position to buy what you both wanted a dining suite. Perhaps you'll let me explain what the purchase of that suite would have meant to the depression you are so afraid of. I should have immediately ordered another suite to replace it. The factory would have given a cabinet-maker and upholsterer work making it or finishing the frame of one in stock, but not finished, the shipper would have a job shipping that suite; railway or truck men work in transporting it here, and finally there'd be the employment entailed in caring for and selling the suite replacing the one so'd to you. And that," continued the merchant, "illustrates in one sale the potential effect on one industrial cycle were the hundreds of thousands of Canadians similarly situated as yourself to loosen up their purse strings and buy what furniture they fancy and can afford. Unemployed would find work, sad homes be converted into happy ones, and a contented people with money to spend on their needs would contribute in turn their share to opening the doors of industry to thousands of jobless. This example," concluded the merchant, "applied to all economies, is the only highway to returning prosperity."

Mr. D.—"My word, I never thought of the question from that angle. Wait till I explain those views to my wife."

Mr. D. returned to the store next day and exclaimed: "Both Mrs. D and myself agree that you are right Mr. Merchant."

He then purchased the $275 dining-room suite, and added a $65 rug and $15 worth of pictures for good company.

God hasten the day when others who can afford it follow Mr. D's example — when the hundreds of thousands of Canadians with money to spare hurl from their shoulders that pernicious demon Old Man Fear, and unafraid, divert their hoarded money into channels of trade and commerce for the greatest good of the greater number.

FINANCES IN AYLMER MAY STIR COURT ACTION

AYLMER, Que., Dec. 21 (C.P.).—Aylmer's tangled finances may lead to court action, it was intimated last night by Oscar Morin, Quebec Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs. In a letter to the Town Council he said the Quebec Municipal Commission would file suit in Superior Court to declare the town in default. The action may be heard in Hull, December 27.

Two delegations will leave here to-night for Quebec to confer with Provincial officials. One delegation will seek further direct relief grants, the other assistance in paying school teachers' salaries, some of them months in arrears.

Thomas Ritchie has been appointed temporarily as secretary-treasurer of the town, replacing E. J. Whittet, who was suspended a week ago.

NO EMERGENCY COURTS.

BERLIN, December 20 (C.P.). — Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher today made public a political decree abolishing emergency courts easing press restrictions, and tending generally to give the German people an opportunity to show they can behave without police vigilance.

PLENTY OF FOWL IS OFFERED ON LOCAL MARKET

Geese Brought 12 to 15 Cents Per Pound, Turkeys 17 to 22.

EGGS 32 TO 38.

There must have been several tons of fowl at the market this morning. In the basket section, every available inch of space was covered with turkeys, geese, ducks, and chickens. They all appeared to be of excellent quality. The scrubby small birds that are sometimes in evidence were not visible to any extent this week. They were noble, full-fed, succulent examples of the barnyard that graced the market tables this morning and overflowed into the open section below, where the supply of fowl was much larger than usual.

Geese were offered at 12 to 15 cents a pound; turkeys at 17 to 22 cents; chickens from 14 to 20 cents a pound, and ducks from 14 to 16 cents. The general price for the lord of the farmyard, the noble turkey, was 18 cents, with 20 cents quotations for hen birds. One man tacked a Government blood-test certificate onto his selling talk, saying that every bird in his stock had passed that exacting test. They were fine-looking fowl.

Eggs were selling from 32 to 38 cents a dozen and butter was 20 cents a pound.

In the open market, turkeys were 16 to 20 cents a pound; geese, 14 to 15 cents, and chickens, 12 to 15 cents.

Pork was 6 to 8 cents a pound; beef was the same price, and potatoes were 65 cents a bag.

In the basket section, the recently-tinted walls, in a soft green, added a finer touch than usual to the vending of goods.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Up by an Examiner Reporter.

The Central Charity Board has expressed its thanks to the Ladies' Lawn Bowling club for a donation of $17.55 to the furtherance of relief work in the city.

Minor outbreak of fire in a cellar at property situated at 244 Wolfe street gave the Fire Brigade a run shortly before seven o'clock last evening. No damage was caused. Early in the afternoon the brigade attended a chimney fire at 5 Park street south.

CHRISTMAS BOX

For the use of The Examiner Relief Fund, we received today a large box from the Union Sunday School of Stewart Hall. It contains many nice things for Christmas, in cookies, cake, candies, toys and books for children. The parcels are daintily wrapped in colored paper and tied with Christmas ribbons. They will bring much pleasure to many homes, and The Examiner is very grateful to this Sunday School for their kind and pretty gifts.

FAMILY UNITED AFTER 3 YEARS

Immigration Officials Allow Mrs. Spence and Children to Enter Canada.

RE-UNION IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, December 21 (C.P.)—Separated for nearly three years, Herbert Spence and his family today were united and preparing for a Christmas celebration.

Six months' effort on the part of Spence to bring his family here from Cleveland, Ohio, culminated last night, and Mrs. Spence, who was in Niagara Falls, N.Y., hurried across the bridge with her family to the land of her husband's birth.

Spence was married in Cleveland. His wife was born in England. The couple lived in Ohio until three years ago, when Spence was injured in an automobile accident. As a result of the accident, he suffered a lapse of memory and wandered from home.

When he recovered his memory he was working in Toronto. He was not making enough money to bring his family over. Six months ago he tried to get his family to this country, but immigration laws intervened.

Months of negotiations ended last night when the Immigration Department permitted Mrs. Spence and the children to enter Canada.

Miss Hilda McKinley Knocked Down By Car

Struck by a car as she was crossing George Street last evening, Miss Hilda McKinley, 29 Ware Street, suffered minor cuts about the face and a bruised knee. She cut across the street in front of Grafton's Store, walking, according to police, from behind a parked car into the path of a car driven north by Charles Dainton, 181 Simcoe Street.

Dainton applied his brakes but the car slewed. Miss McKinley's head came in contact with the window of the right front door, breaking the glass. The flying glass cut her forehead. She was taken to a doctor for first aid.

FIRE CHIEF ASKS LOAN OF TRUCKS

Amazing Array of Toys Awaits Distribution Christmas Eve.

PUBLIC INVITED TO CALL.

An amazing array of toys is piled in the south apparatus room at the City Fire Hall awaiting distribution on Christmas Eve to homes throughout the city, where childish faith in Santa Claus still remains unshaken, despite the adverse times through which many 'mummies and daddies' are passing, through no fault of their own.

The toys, literally hundreds of them, were donated by kind-hearted citizens in response to the firefighters' annual appeal on behalf of needy families, and in proportion to the need the response has been a noble one.

It is a pleasing experience to have seen the old, broken and dilapidated toys as they were first received at the Fire Hall, and again to see them after renovation by the firemen. Only by such a means can anyone realize the amount of time and skill that has been willingly given to bring happiness and joy to the heart of many children, who would otherwise probably have been overlooked by Old St. Nicholas.

The problem of mending and repairing toys having now been practically disposed of by the members of the Fire Department, the next big question that presents itself for solution is one of distribution. All the toys have to be delivered on Saturday next, and to anyone who has taken advantage of the opportunity of seeing the huge pile of toys to be sent out, it will be realized that that in itself is no mean task.

Fire Chief George Gimblett is therefore appealing for the loan of five motor trucks for use all day on Saturday. Drivers will be supplied by the Fire Department, and the assurance is given that the trucks will be carefully driven.

Any individual or firm is asked to notify the Department without delay if they are willing to loan a motor truck. Offers will be greatly appreciated.

The Chief also extends a hearty invitation to anyone who wishes to call at the Fire Hall to view the toys before they are sent out on Saturday. Already visitors at the Fire Hall have been numerous, and have included the Hon. Mr. Justice Raney, who presided at the recently concluded non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario here.

Weddings

HAYWARD—NORTHEY

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Tatham, Lakefield, on Saturday, Dec. 17th at 3 p.m. when Mrs. Victoria Northey became the bride of Mr. Daniel Hayward of Peterborough. The bride, who was unattended was gowned in mauve and grey. Following the ceremony, which was performed by Mr. C. Ernest Tatham, son-in-law of Mrs. Northey a buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayward will reside in Peterborough.

Trans-Canada Hikers Delayed By Mishap

ENGLEHEART, Ont., Dec. 21. (CP)—George von Dochlerman, Saskatoon, Sask., and Billie "Burton" Cooke, Halifax, trans-Canada hikers, are temporarily "on their uppers" here as the result of a mishaps while pushing north from New Liskeard. A box of matches stacked away in one of the packs ignited by friction due to the motion of a tobaggan they are lugging. The blaze was under way two or three minutes before noticed. The web of a pair of snowshoes, some clothing, photo films, rubber sheeting and some tobacco were destroyed and their toboggan scorched. They are renewing and repairing the damage with the expectation of pushing on in a day or so. They left North Bay on Dec. 14.

HELD FOR ASSAULT

KINGSTON.—(CP). Peter Davis, canteen-keeper at the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery barracks, assaulted in an attempted robbery, died early to-day in hospital here. Allen "Nig" Eisen Leads Cage Scorers

TORONTO, Dec. 21. (CP). Allen "Nig" Eisen, diminutive Lizzie forward to-day leads the "Big Five" Basketball League scorers as a result of his 10-point scoring orgy against St. Michael's last Friday night.

Joe Connelly, St. Michael's guard is tied with Eisen, but has participated in one more game than the Lizzie Star. Connelly and his partner, Hugh Marks, lead all the defense men of the league by a wide margin. Both Connelly and Eisen have garnered 27 points, 6 more than Alfie Pearson, Grads; Orrin Hanna and Max Pearse St. Catharines.

Westover St. Catharines, with a 75 per cent average, leads in the foul-shooting department while Marks leads in personal fouls, with 12 in three games, having been banished from each game he has played on that account.

PICCARD PLANS BALLOON TRIPS

Will Ascend in Belgium Next Year and Northern Canada in 1934.

WILL VISIT U.S.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 21. — (AP) — Plans for balloon ascensions in Belgium next summer and in Northern Canada in 1934 have been announced by Prof. Auguste Piccard, who has made the farthest trip from the earth on record.

It was not certain whether he himself would participate in the flights. Max Cosyns, his assistants on the world record baloon ascension of more than 10 miles over the Swiss-Italian frontier last August, has become a pliot and will make next summer's flight.

Prof. Piccard planned to sail January 4 on the Steamship Champlain for the United States where he will study possibilities of an ascension in the vicinity of the north magnetic pole in Northern Canada.

The proposed Canadian ascension will depend on the success of this visit in the United States, the professor said. His plan was to make the ascension with a balloon secured in United States with an American physicist aboard.

A new ascension, Prof. Piccard said, was necessary to clear up the question of whether cosmic rays originate from stars or galactic nuclei.

17 Japanese Slain Trapped By Chinese

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 21.—(A.P.) — Seventeen Japanese are dead, two are missing and four lie seriously wounded to-day after a battle with Chinese forces 30 miles east of Tashih-Kiao (a Mukden-Dairen railway station about 100 miles south-west of here).

A Japanese platoon of 10 soldiers was surrounded two days by greatly superior Chinese guerilla forces until the survivors cut their way to safety, Japanese military reports said. The conflict occurred in the course of wide, sweeping operations by the Japanese army in a triangle bounded by the Mukden-Dairen and Mukden-Waantung railway to the sea.

At the enjoyable social evening held under the auspices of the Men's Club of St. John's Church, prize-winners were Mrs. G. Pakenham and Mr. B. Graham, while Mr. T. Walker won the lucky draw prize. The entertainment was conducted under supervision of Mr. A. Kelsey, bowling and carols being the scheduled program. Refreshments were served by Mr. C. Coleman, after which dancing was enjoyed, with Mr. Jack Marshall at the piano. The report of the social evening was presented on Monday night by Mr. T. Williams, chairman of the Social Committee, at the regular meeting of the organization, at which it was decided to hold the next meeting on Monday, January 9, when the entertainment will take the form of a Ladies' Night, the men to bring their lady friends, with a special invitation extended to members of the Women's Friendly Bible Class. At the conclusion of the brief business session, Mr. H. Lewis gave a versatile entertainment, commencing wit ha short talk on present-day conditions, followed by lightning sketches of well-known people and ending with a demonstration of ventriloquism. The entertainment was much enjoyed and an expression of the deep appreciation of the club was extended to Mr. Lewis by Mr. H. A. Lemmings. Refreshments were then served, in charge of Mr. A Kelsey, and the evening concluded with a program of bowling and cards.

A SNOWBALL PARTY is a jolly form of Christmas celebration.

It can be used on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day instead of the usual Santa Claus impersonation for the distribution of gifts.

* * * * * * *

Or it can form a holiday party of novelty for a Christmas vacation.

* * * * * * *

When the Snowball Party is on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day, there should be a tree. Suspend on the branches as many presents as can be wrapped and rolled in cotton to form balls light enough to hang on the tree.

* * * * * * *

Or the balls can be of white tissue paper, but with enough crumpled about the gift to permit of its being thrown without injury to the contents.

* * * * * * *

Gifts too large to be hung on the tree or too delicate to hazard in a fall, are wrapped in round ball packages of cotton or tissue. These are piled around the base of the tree and are handed to persons whose names are written on attached cards.

* * * * * * *

When the ball is extremely big, it can be rolled to the right person and not even lifted from the floor, which, by the way, should be strewn with Christmas snow around the tree.

* * * * * * *

If the snowballs on the tree are thrown in quite rapid sequence to the company it keeps persons alert to catch them.

* * * * * * *

After the fun of opening the gifts or favors, whichever the snowballs may conceal, is over, the entertainment continues to include snowballs in other guises.

* * * * * * *

For dances and supper partners, snowballs piled in heaps have stars glued to them, two of which are alike in color. Matching the colored stars secures the partners. When so secured, the balls are again put in piles for future use in finding partners.

CONVENT PUPILS GIVE PROGRAM IN THE LYCEUM

Delightful Program is Presented by Pupils of St. Mary's Convent.

BEAUTIFUL PLAY.

(By Jeanette)

"Olden golden days, days of happy youth" came again for the adults who watched with much interest the program which was presented by pupils of St. Mary's Convent last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. It was an artistic and very interesting entertainment that did credit to the children who took part and to the Sisters of St. Joseph, who trained them.

The hall was well filled with an appreciative throng that watched the unfolding of a brief Christmas drama, "There was no Room in the Inn," saw the pretty drills in which the white-clad girls took part, and enjoyed the pleasing music of the orchestra of St. Peter's High School.

The little play was in five short scenes that pictured an unknown phase of the drama of Christmas and the birth of the Christ Child.

It tells the story of Miriam, little daughter of a blind artisan, Misael, who, having met the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph on their entry into Bethlehem, "Royal David's City," is strangely attracted to Mary. When St. Joseph and his holy spouse seek shelter at the artisan's home, Sara, the mother, is deaf to the entreaties of her child, and turns them from the door. The father on his return consoles Miriam by promising to go in search of them. This charitable design is rewarded by Misael's restoration to sight.

Jessie Glover, as the Blessed Virgin, was beautiful. Her sweet, clear voice was heard to perfection and her lovely mantle of soft blue, with a misty cloud of white over her dark hair, made a picture in itself. She suited admirably the part of the lovely, meek lady and her acting added much to the picturesque quality of the little drama.

Patricia Duffus had the part of St. Joseph, made up in accordance with Bibical tradition, and enacted very well, as were the roles of Sara, the mother, by Ella Meagher, and the four children of the house: Rachel (Margaret McFadden), Marta (Marcelle O'Donnell), Esther (Marjorie Plumpton) and Miriam. This last part of Miriam was an exacting one that was also done perfectly by Adele McMurray, whose apearance, demeanor and aspect seemed to be just made for the part of the faithful and humble little maiden of Judea who loved the Blessed Lady at sight and followed her to the cave of Bethlehem. A great deal of memorizing was required in this somewhat exacting role.

To Nora Corkery fell the enacting of Misael, the blind man, father of the family, and this also was an outstanding part, with a quality of sincere naturalness that set it above the average acting of youth. The painting of the atcions of the blind man were very real, and the general makeup was ideal.

Guardian Angels, resplendent in flowing robes and with spreading white wings, were Vivian Sullivan and Marie Grainger. Lesser angels also had a part in the scenes and shepherds were G. Hutchinson, Marcella Pearson, Marion Meyer and Helen Peel.

The scenes in the cave at Bethlehem were especially well portrayed and very effective.

Additional Numbers

Several choruses were very prettily done by little girls dressed in white, singing their dainty songs with tuneful zest. These were the opening chorus, "Merry Christmas Bells," "Santa Claus is Coming," with a bell refrain and shoulder knots of flying red and green ribbons, the Christmas colors; and "Twinkling Stars."

The drills were also splendidly done. In white frocks and silver head-bands, carrying silver strands that wound themselves about the standard of a huge central silver star, the young girls sang in unaccompanied fashion, "The First Nowell." "Rays of the Christmas Star," and a similar for the "Star Drill" came later.

"Sunbonnet Babies" was a gay pantomimic drill with the girls in gingham gowns and sunbonnets of pink and blue.

The loveliest of these interludes in the dramatic program was the pantomime, "The Holy City" with Geraldine Collins singing the theme song off stage, to organ accompaniment. The girls wore beautiful Grecian costumes of rose pink, with flowing angel sleeves, star-spangled, with gilt cinctures and slippers and tinsel fillets in their hair.

An entertaining bit of elocutionary ability was demonstrated by little Jean Thomas, who "gave "Prompting the Hen" with much vim and cleverness.

The orchestra of St. Peter's High School assisted materially in the success of the entertainment, playing with tuneful and melodic skill several bright selections that included some Christmas carol music.

The performance concluded with a tableau, "When Glory Lit the Midnight Air," in which the Blessed Lady, in her lovely white and blue, held the Babe in her arms, with the Jewish family of the little play, "There is no Room in the Inn," and angels and shepherds forming a picturesque setting.

Accompanists of the evening were Bernice Flynn, Marion Best, Alma Duffy, Teresa Perdue, Doris Strickland and Jean DeMaio.

SAILOR DESIGNS SPRING HATS

Fairly Narrow Brims in Vogue With Wider Ones Promised Later.

SIMPLE AND GAY.

PARIS (A.P.)—Trim flat-crowned sailors stamped with the mark of chic are being exhibited in the smartest modistes' salons here as the first word in 1933 Spring headgear.

Lines of the new hats, which predict a return of the vogue for brims, are sleek and unmarred by extraneous quirks. Brims are fairly narrow, although wider ones are promised for later wear, and crowns are as flat as they can be to accommodate the new close coiffures now in vogue.

Trims generally appear in front or back rather than on the side. They are simple and gay, with colorful fantasies of straw, string, transparent tissue, suede, nickel and galalith more often used than flowers.

Colors include brisk bright greens, as leaf and apple, beige, honey yellow, bright reds, dark blues and blacks, while the straws may be either rough and rustic, or fine and smooth.

A new straw called "Yedda" made in a variety of rough weaves is an outstanding material, while bengals, and linen straws are also seen.

An apple green yedda straw designed with a flat crushed crown is trimmed with nothing but a ribbon band in a darker shade of green. A red sailor of rustic straw has a little galalith knick-knack in front, while a black straw sailor turns up in the back and is studded in front with a little ornament of red, yellow and black string.

Veils are a matter of importance in these earlier showings. Afternoon and evening hats are shown with provocative floating veils ending at the tip of the nose.

GOOD BIDDING AND PLAYING

Both Y and Z displayed expert use of the informatory double on the hand shown, and Z played the hands with exceptional skill to go game, that not one player in fifty will achieve.

Z dealt and passed. A made an opening bid of 1-Heart. With little more than bare strength to do so, Y made an informatory double. B passed. Having sufficient strength to have made a forced bid without his partner's double, Z bid 2-Spades, to show game expectations. A passed. Y ended contracting with 4-Spades.

The opening lead was the K of hearts. As soon as dummy was boarded it was evident to the declarer that A must hold both black K's to have anything like sound bidding strength. If A could be induced to lead a club game could be made, by winning five spade tricks, one heart trick, two diamond tricks, and two club tricks. Unless A could be induced to lead a club, the only chance to go game against sound defensive strategy was to force an opposing lead of diamonds. A poor player might think that the declarer can force A to lead a club, by laying down the Ace and K of diamonds and throwing A in with Q of diamonds on the third round of that suit. Such strategy would never work against as good a player as A happened to be. He would see the trap, and he would throw his Q under the second high lead of diamonds, making his partner's J good for the third trick. Then B would lead the J of clubs, through declarer's Q, causing Y-Z to lose four tricks (one heart, two clubs and one diamond), thus defeating the game contract. Shady strategy is always as apparent to one side as to the other.

To go game the declarer saw that one of two things must happen. Either the missing K of clubs must be held by B, or A-B must be given one heart trick and two club tricks, and then A or B must be forced to lead diamonds. The play that followed obliged A and B to play as the declarer wished.

Z's Ace of hearts won the first trick. He led his Q of spades through A. The latter covered the Q with his K. Dummy's Ace won the trick, and the J of spades pulled down the last two opposing trumps. The declaring hands had to be stripped of hearts, or A-B never could be forced to lead diamonds. The 6 of hearts was led from dummy, and Z's 9 forced A's 10 to win the trick. Of course A led back his Q of hearts. The declarer ruffed. The 4 of clubs was led. A played low. Dummy's Ace won the trick. The 8 of clubs was led from dummy. B's 9 covered and Z's Q went on the trick, which A won with his K. A could not lead another heart without having the declaring side ruff in one hand and discard a club from the other hand, which would have made easy sailing for that side. A led back a club. B's 10 won the trick. B had only a thirteenth club or a diamond that he could lead.

If B led the club, one hand would ruff and the other hand would discard a losing diamond. B had to lead his lowest diamond. The declarer played low. A had to put up his Q or let dummy's 10 win the trick. When dummy's Ace won the trick, a low diamond was led back. As long as B held the J it made no difference which way he played his cards, the declarer could not fail to win both diamond tricks and go game.

Forward Passing Rule Shows Possibilities of More Open Play.

CLEAN CHECKING AFFAIR.

Campbellford Crew Go Better at Combination—Small Crowd Sees Game.

Making their bow to local fans in an exhibition game at the Brock last night, the Peterborough intermediate O.H.A. squad pulled out a 5-4 victory over Campbellford in a hard, fast contest. A small crowd was on hand to see the season ushered in, and it was a worthy opener. Both teams fairly burned up the ice, playing evenly and showing fine hockey for the start of the winter.

The tussle was marked with hard checking, though clean most of the way, just two penalties being handed out, both in the third period. The forward-passing rule received a good trial, and shows possibilities of more open play, and with decidedly less ringing of the bell. The Campbellford outfit looked better at combination, but otherwise there was little or nothing to choose between the opponents.

Tied In Third

The count was 1-1 at the end of the first, 3-all going into the third, and the final stanza was more than half over before the winning goal was chalked up. The fans were electrified numerous times at the hard and speedy action, interspersed with little flare-ups that cropped up in the heat of battle.

Both Hopping and Owens turned in some good hetwork for the classy visiting team. The Ingram brothers, Whitton and Hendy were the most effective players, while Davis, Bolte and Mackay flashed smart hockey at time. The teams clicked nicely together, their passing being a feature, besides fast skating and good checking.

Miller, Foley and Gillespie minded goal for the Petes a period each in that order, and it was impossible to state which went best. They all turned aside some tough shots while they were on. The local defence trio, LeBarr, Howe and Weir looked good, Howe working hard defensively. Both Weir and LeBarr turned in some neat rushes, Ted's lone sortie to score the winning marker being a stellar effort. The first line of Ellis, Dundas and Dallin shaded the others, but they all looked good throughout, rushing fast, backchecking furiously and boring in all the time, without letting up till the end.

Take Early Offensive

The Petes took the offensive early, rushing and shooting. The Ingrams and Hendy did a lot of threatening for a space, but the Blue and Whites had most of the play. Creighton scored first after five minutes, recovering the puck near Campbellford's blue line to break through alone and net it. Miller saved by coming out on Hendy's rush. Whitton tied the score, when he recovered the rubber after it hit a local player inside the defence, his high shot from the side getting by the Petes' goalie. Whitton and H. Ingram tore in fast again but Miller blocked fast. Play was hard and about even at the bell.

The Maroons threatened to start the middle canto, but Foley hopped around in the cage and kept them out. Then Dundas raced in to grab Ellis' pass at defence and flip it by Hopping. Again the count was balanced within two minutes, Fred Ingram coasting around defence alone to blaze in a fast one. They tore back and forth, checking like demons and laying on the gad, both goalies stopping a fistful. Then Copperthwaite got a loose puck in close after Foley had come out to make a fine stop, and shoved it in to put the visitors ahead. It was tied up once more shortly, Ellis getting an easy one when he poke-checked the rubber away from Davis as the latter came around his own net, the puck sliding in. The fans were up and yelling the rest of the way as the boys set a terrific pace and roughed it up plenty as well.

Play Good In Goal

They opened the third fast and even, both Gillespie and Owens, now in goal, having several hard thrusts break on them without a count. They checked hard around centre, and dumped each other in the defending zones. Dallin drew the first penalty, going off for tripping. The Petes were bottled up for a space, Campbellford buzzing around the net and doing everything but scoring. Gillespie had a half dozen hard saves. As the Petes went back to full strength, they in turn bored in hard, but couldn't seem to click around the goal. Owens also was hard to beat.

The out-of-towners took the lead again after ten minutes, Harry Ingram galloping down the left boards, skirting the defence and fooling Gillespie with a hard angle shot. It was balanced within a minute, Dundas, Ellis and LeBarr, scoring from a standing combination outside the blue line, the former's shot getting by Owens. Then, Ted LeBarr pulled off a beautiful bit of stickhandling, going all the way down alone to score. Whitton threatened, and Weir went off for slashing just before the last bell.

NATE LEWIS SPONSORS DINNER FOR FIGHTERS

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—(AP)— The Chicago Stadium Corporation will buy the Christmas dinners of the fighters appearing on its December 29 card, but there's a catch in the generous arrangement.

None of the athletes wishes to come to Chicago before Christmas Day, preferring to spend the holiday at home. Matchmaker Nate Lewis, however, wants them here well in advance of the show, and inserted the free dinner clause in each contract.

The catch is that Lewis will be the official host at the dinner and will see that no one gets any miseries from overeating.

Joe Cronin Sought Advice From Mack

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21. — (C.P.).—Just how successful Joe Cronin will be as the new skipper of the Washington Senators remains to be seen, but he certainly knows at whose feet to sit in seeking managerial knowledge.

Connie Mack, who was managing the Philadelphia Athletics before Cronin was born, reveals that on many of his visits to Washington during the last several seasons, the young shortstop unobtrusively sought him out in hotel lobbies and other gathering places and quietly plied him with questions.

ATTACK OF INFLUENZA STARTED BOTTOMLEY TRADE WITH WEIL

Cincinnati Club President Nursed Rickey Through Illness on Way to New York.

BIG TRADE OF WINTER.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 21.—(CP) — Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, nursed Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, through an attack of influenza. And that, says Weil, is how the Cincinnati Reds got "Sunny Jim" Bottomley from the Cards, in exchange for Pitcher Owen Carroll and Outfielder Estil Crabtree.

The illness brought them close together and the Reds' second big trade of the winter followed.

For weeks Weil pleaded for Bottomley. First Rickey wouldn't listen. Then he suggested that the Cards take Si Johnson and Leo Durocher, and it was Weil's turn to suffer deafness.

With the impasse, Rickey started for the major league meeting in New York, with Weil and Donnie Bush passengers on the same train. Rickey fell ill, Weil said, and he took command, shooing him into his berth.

"You keep quiet from now on," he ordered. "I'm your nurse. Don't say a word about baseball— or anythings else."

By the time they reached New York, Weil added, Rickey was much better. A few days later he was talking baseball again, but he said not a word about Bottomley until the last day of the sessions of the major leaguers. Then he proposed that Weil stay in New York a while. Starting Friday, they dickered throught the night. In the early morning Rickey gave in. The Cardinals got Carrol and Crabtree. The Reds got Bottomley.

who, it is said, is one of the strongest promoters behind the new proposed professional football league to encompass Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. It is rumored that there will be two teams in Montreal, one each in Toronto and Montreal. The Toronto promoters are said to be Mike Rodden and Lionel Conacher, while Tommy Gorman is behind the Ottawa team, if any. This is only another sport for Leo Dandurand who is mixed up in nearly every other branch.

GAINS' PRESTIGE SUFFERS THROUGH RECENT SETBACK

Little Chance Now That Torontonian Will Get Big Shot at Gardens.

HAS GONE BACK

NEW YORK.—The New York promoters, meaning the Madison Square Garden Corporation, are not so anxious now to bring Larry Gains, the colored Canadian champion and British Empire title-holder, over here for the purpose of putting him against one of the outstanding heavies.

A few months ago Gains looked about the best bet the promoters had for a big Garden shot, especiall after his defeat of Primo Carnera in London and other wins to his credit. Then Larry, and his manager must have become a bit careless in selecting opponents, as they were induced to accept a young German named Walter Neusel as a warm-up angel which would lead to something big.

Surprise Defeat.

Instead of scoring a quick win over the German lad, as they expected, Gains found him anything but easy; in fact, the decision was given to Neusel at the end of the ten rounds.

It was certainly surprising after the brilliant manner in which Gains won from Carnera in London. This would indicate that Larry has seen his best days as a heavyweight fighter of first rank. To lose the way he did to a fighter with much less knowledge of the game than himself is proof that the colored star has struck the other side of the ladder and is on the downgrade now. Of course, it may have been one of those "off nights" for Gains, but even then it would appear that a lot of his class was gone to permit a near novice to take a decision from him in that manner.

LARRY GAINS

The Two Maxies.

The chances are now that Jimmy Johnston will pass up the colored man and confine his efforts to bringing the two Maxies together—Schmeling and Baer—although he will have strong opposition from the Stadium, Chicago, Johnston would also like to match Baer with Young Stribling at Miami the coming spring, which will be about the time the "Georgia Peach" arrives back from South Africa, where he plans to go from Australia.

CHABOT AGAIN STARS.

Bruins Defeat Senators 2-1 While Red Wings Drub Rangers 4 to 1.

TORONTO, December 21 (C.P.).—Jack Adams, who has been wearing a southpaw smile all these years in which his Detroit hockeyists have been taking it and doing very little also, broadened his grin a couple of inches to-day and confided the Red Wings are on the way "somewhere."

Boston Bruins came away from the Border City on Sunday night after taking a beating and handing out and receiving body blows in a free-for-all. They knew the Wings were getting hot.

Lester Patrick and his Rangers received similar notice last night. The Wings gave the group-leading Blueshirts their first home defeat, winning 4-1 in the greatest upset of the National League season.

The Adams experimental system may have had something to do with it, old George Hay making his first major league appearance in two seasons, but Gotham fans considered a young forward coupe from the Canadian West, Herble Lewis of Calgary and Eddie Wiseman of Regina, deserved some mention.

Wiseman scored one goal and helped Lewis get his. Other Wing tallies were made by Happy Emms, rapidly getting the range in fast company, and Larry Aurie, who has been potting goals for several seasons, Bill Cook got a stinging shot past John Ross Roach in the second period to save Rangers from a shut-out. It would have been their first in 60 games.

Toronto's Leafs bow'ed over Canadien hopes of getting to the top without undue delay by staging a sensational third period rally that netted two goals and victory by 2-1. Before a cheering Habitant crowd at home the Flying Frenchmen played spectacular hockey for two periods and part of the third, then succumbed to goals by King Clancy and Harvey Jackson.

As Howie Morenz and his fleet company ran wild, peppering shots at Lorne Chabot from in and outside the Leaf defence, Toronto's rearguard stood up amazingly. Wildor Larochelle scored on a pass from Armand Mondou in the first period, but the Canucks couldn't get in for another. Jackson got the winning tally with less than a minute of the game remaining.

Senators Lose Chance.

Maroons were idle and the win sent the Stanley Cup champs a game and a half ahead of the second-place holders in the Canadian Division.

Ottawa Senators could have passed Maroons with a win last night over Boston, but the Bruins carried just enough punch to eke out a 2-1 decision. Obs Heximer, former Niagara Falls speedster, who ranks with Wiseman, Ken Doraty of the Leafs, Gus Forslund of the Senators, Paul Haynes of Maroons, and Andy Aitkenhead, the Ranger goalie, as an outstanding "find" this season, figured in both Bruin goas.

Heximer scored the first Boston goal, bouncing a shot off Bill Beveridge's back into the cage. He shot from back of net. Wally Kilrea tied the count with a second-period goal on His Milks' feed and Heximer started the winning play early in the third.

Obs passed to Art Chapman, who broke away down middle and dumped the puck to Joe Lamb. All the former Ottawa player had to do was smash his way through the Senator defence and shoot a goal with Harold Starr and Allan Shields still hanging on him.

Gordon Fraser Scores Only Goal of Close Struggle on Windsor Ice.

HERBIE STUART STARS.

TORONTO, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—Stellar net-minding by Goalie Herbie Stuart has assisted London Tecumsehs materially in its rush to the top of the International Hockey League. When the Tecs whitewashed Windsor Bulldogs, 1-0, on Windsor ice last night, it marked the third straight game Stuart has held opposing teams scoreless.

Lanky Gord Fraser, who relieves on the Tecs' defense, scored the only goal of the game in the first period, while Windsor were two men short. Tory Gregg captured a passout from the corner, which he slid across to Fraser in centre ice. With Goalie Normie Smith surrounded by his teammates, Fraser hammered the puck into an unguarded section of the net, from 25 feet out.

An indication of the strenuous nature of the play is the 23 penalties handed out by Referee Guy Smith, 13 of them going to the winners. Referee Smith also disallowed two goals, one in the second and one in the third period. Carrigan had scored for London in the middle session, but interference with Goalie Smith nullified it. In the next frame, Cormier scored on a pass from Stan Brown, but the referee overruled the goal umpire, declaring the puck had not entered the net.

JOE SIMPSON STARTS REVAMPING AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (C.P.) — Making good his threat to start reorganizing the squad, Joe Simpson, coach of the New York Americans yesterday recalled "Red" Jackson, sharpshooting forward from the Amerk farm team, New Haven, of the Canadian-American League.

"Bullet" Joe has been somewhat dissatisfied with the recent showing of the A's but scarcity of good material in pro or minor ranks prevents him from completely revamping the squad, he said.

In exchange for Jackson, Simpson will send back to New Haven Eddie Convey, centre from Toronto, and Jackie Keating, forward, who hails from Saint John, N.B.

Jackson will be in the lineup when the A's face the Toronto Maple Leafs here Thursday night.

TIGERS DEFEAT NIAGARA FALLS FOR 4-1 COUNT

Hamilton Advances in O.H.A. Senior "A" Race by Reason of Victory.

KITCHENER WINS 4-2.

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener Empires, after being bogged down in second-to-last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series for more than a month to-day had advanced into fifth position following their 4-2 victory over University of Toronto last night. The four points derived from the win enabled the Kitchenerites to exchange places with Toronto Nationals in the standing.

Hamilton Tigers also gained ground, drawing up into a tie for second place with Niagara Falls Cataracts, whom they defeated 4-1 with a last period onslaught which netted them three goals.

Kitchener's win came in the last 60 seconds. Varsity who had held an edge in the play for a goal which would break a 2-2 tie and give them their first win of the season. Harlock shifty Kitchener winger, broke clear and easily beat Shipp for the deciding marker. Fifty seconds later this same player, combined with Schiebel for another goal, to make the game safe.

Schiebel, who was replacing the injured Chuck Roth, scored his team's other two goals by his uncanny stickhandling, getting one in the first and one in the second.

Varsity's counters came from the sticks of Hendry and Maundrell, bot in the middle session. On numerous other occasions, they threw away other opportunities to count, after working their way into position by smart plays.

Ability to capitalize upon their scoring chances gave Hamilton their win over the Cataracts. Niagara Falls had just as much of the play as their opponents and were a speedier team, but Tigers carried more sting in their attack and produced better results.

"Goney" McGowan, like a true captain, led his players in victory. He scored two of his team's total and helped Herble Cain in another one. "Toe" Blake popped in the other Hamilton counter, after taking a pass from "Red" Whitehead.

Gets Lone Marker

Jerry Shannon, the elusive Falls speedster, counted his team's lone marker, when he waltzed through the entire Hamilton team to place the rubber behind Goalie "Hawse" Marsh.

McGowan got the only goal of the initial session, when he beat the defense and fired a hard shot into the net. "Scotty" Bowman and Lauzon, Cataract defensemen, watched this play from the penalty box.

After a scoreless second period, Cain found the mesh with a backhander, after 14 minutes of the final frame had elapsed. Shannon then came through with his solo effort to reduce the margin.

Following what appeared to be a Cataract score, McGowan raced through to beat Esseltine and then returned to listen to the argument over the apparent marker scored by the Falls. The goal judge was replaced and play continued. Forty seconds later Blake counted the last goal of the night.

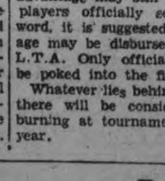
Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Henri Cochet Undergo Amateur Standing Investigation.

OTHER STARS ON LIST.

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(Special to The Examiner)

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Foreign and home amateur net players participating in British lawn tennis tournaments next year may be required to sign a declaration that they are deriving no pecuniary benefit from playing.



Mrs. Moody

Determined to purge lawn tennis of the pseudo-amateur, the British Lawn Tennis Association will consider this proposal at a forthcoming meeting. Indications are it will receive approval and be incorporated in the laws of the association.

The proposed form of declaration will state that the signatory has not directly or indirectly any pecuniary interest in any particular firm supplying equipment, that he or she is not competing in the tournament for monetary consideration, and that no special expenses for hospitality are being received.

Such noted net stars as Ellsworth Vines, Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra, Mrs. Wills-Moody and Betty Nuthall will be required to sign such a declaration before participating in the Wimbledon tourney next year, for example.

Henri Cochet

"Every reasonable amateur would wish to sign such a declaration," an official of the L.T.A. told the writer. "If he or she does not, action would be taken. Again, if it were discovered any signatory had contravened the letter or spirit of the declaration, we should feel bound to act."

On the other hand, an attempt will be made to insert a clause in the declaration that pecuniary advantage may still be enjoyed by players officially selected. In a word, it is suggested that patronage may be disbursed only by the L.T.A. Only official fingers may be poked into the financial pie.

Whatever lies behind the scheme, there will be considerable heart-burning at tournaments here next year.

QUAKER TOWN MOUNDSMAN IN 292 INNINGS

Allows Average of 2.84 Runs Through 44 Contests in Schedule.

ALLEN LEADS WINNERS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Robert "Lefty" Grove, elongated fast-ball thrower of the Philadelphia Athletics, led the American League pitchers in 1932 for the fourth successive season, according to official figures released yesterday.

He allowed an average of only 2.84 runs a game in 292 innings, distributed through 44 contests. However, the veteran's average was not as good as his 2.05 for 1931.

Lefty, who last year gained the double disinction of first place in earned runs and winning percentage, slumped to fifth in the latter column for 1932, with 25 victories and 10 defeats, giving him a percentage of .714. Last year he won 31 and lost 4 for .886, the highest average for any major league pitcher since 1900.

Johnny Allen, right-handed fireball pitcher of the New York Yankees, took first honors in winning percentage, while playing his first season in the major leagues. He won 17 and lost only four games for .810, although he ranked ninth in the earned run column with 3.65.

In keeping with the general dominance of fast-ball pitchers in the American League during 1932, Charlie "Red" Ruffing, Yankee right-hander, placed second in earned runs, allowing an average of only 3.10. Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox, was third with 3.28, and Alvin Crowder of Washington, fourth with 3.33. Crowder led the league in innings pitched, 327, and in games won, 26, although he lost 13 for .667.

Young Lewis Krausse, right-hander of the Athletics, was second to Johnny Allen in winning percentage, with .800 for four won and one lost. Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, of the Yanks, ranked third with 24 won and 7 lost for .774, and Ruffing came fourth with 18 and 7 for .720.

The champion Yankees headed the pitchers' list for club performance, allowing an average of 3.98 earned runs against all opponents. However, this was not as good as the 3.47 hung up by the Athletics, champions in 1931. This season the Athletics fell to fifth place, with 4.46. Cleveland jumped from sixth place to second place with 4.12. Washington, second in 1931, dropped to third with 4.16. Detroit finished fourth both years, but this season gained 26 points, from 4.56 to 4.30. Boston Red Sox took the worst tumble, falling from fifth to last place with 5.01.

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING
BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

The Southend Hockey League meets at eight o'clock this evening in the Board Room of the Duffus' Bowling Alleys—not at the Raybestos as formerly. It is an important meeting, and all entries must be in. Representatives of every team should be on hand. Several more entries are expected and the league will be getting squared around for an early start after tonight's session.

* * * * * * *

And tomorrow evening at eight in Duffus' the City Hockey League meets. We understand both Normal School and St. Peter's will apply for entry. This will bring the loop up to six teams, Rotary, P.C.I., Rangers' Meat Market and Pirates—with Norwood also wanting in. Each team should be represented at this meeting, also. Looks like another good year for junior players around town.

* * * * * * *

Word was received last night that the Peterborough O.H.A. juniors would be grouped with Port Hope, Cobourg and Bowmanville, while Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls will be in together. This should suit both groups. It's the berries with us, as both our intermediates and juniors are now in with fast Lakeshore teams, and the younger team doesn't have those three tough trips during their schedule. We're not kicking at all these days, and that may be one for the book. The junior schedule will be drawn up tonight in Port Hope.

* * * * * * *

The intermediates opened the season okay last night at the Brock getting the right side of a 5-4 count over Campbellford. It was a fast and rather bruising game, showing some smart hockey before a small crowd. The ice was perfect and the players all seemed in pretty fair shape, as they kept up a hot pace the whole route. It was 1-1 ending the first, and 2-2 at the finish of the second—a good, close tussle.

* * * * * * *

Those Campbellford huskies are no slouches. They uncorked plenty of speed, smart combination and can they check, or can they check. The answer is "yes" and "absolutely", with no qualifications. They backcheck hard, but their bodychecking is plenty tough. And they are quite willing to swap rough playing. The Petes were not only aggressive, but also a bit too rough at times, but the Campbellford players were never noted for being stingy with the hickory either.

* * * * * * *

Both Fred and Harry Ingram turned in some great rushing and effective checking. Davis, Whitton, Hendy, and some of the others of the visiting squad also went good. Outside of Howe, Ellis, Lebarr and Dundas, and the three goalies, we wouldn't say which of the Petes went the best. These players all looked good most of the way in all departments—except the goalies who have just one job and it's a tough one. The rest of the team played hard and fast, none looking better than the others.

* * * * * * *

Features of the game on the Petes' part as we saw them were Ted Lebarr's beautiful solo rush to score the final goal, Howe's checking, smart all-around centre ice work by Jim Ellis (his long poke check was pretty), and Dundas' boring-in tactics which netted him two goals. Creighton, Jarvis, Maudsley, Hatton, Weis—in fact they all worked their heads off, and kept up their speedy pace surprisingly.

* * * * * * *

This year's Petes are fast and able to take it, too. They need more practice on combination under the new rules, and some of them must learn to expect stiff bodychecks when they are in enemy territory, even though they may not have the puck. A hard check when you're just a sort of innocent bystander may get your goat but that's the new ruling, and one of its bad points. It will take a few more games and another week or so before the team is polished up perfectly with the changes in the rules working properly, and then the Petes will be hard to stop. They probably have a good start on the other teams in their group now.

* * * * * * *

They go back to Campbellford Friday, and aggressive but clean hockey should be the motto for this game. They may arrange for one more exhibition tilt early next week, and then be ready to entertain Bowmanville here the 30th. The locals' new sweaters look a great deal better than those they've worn in the past. The wide white stripe down the arms lessens confusion when a player is plowing ahead fast with his head down, glancing sideways for a teammate. The shoulders are padded, too.

* * * * * * *

The two local Ski Clubs are just marking time for the present, waiting for snow. They can't do much until there is a foot or more snow in the fields, as the skiers aren't so interested in the organization work as the outdoor sport. It was something of a washout everywhere last winter, but boys and girls who go in for this type of winter sport are planning on a winter at least as successful as that of two years ago. There are no artificial-snow centres yet, so one town fares as well as another.

* * * * * * *

Indoor activities around town are moving along on schedule, and will reach their height after Christmas. Plenty of bowling, carpetball, curling, and gym games, these evenings keep the welkin ringing and a lot of folks busy nights. On any ordinary winter night there must be a real mob either participating in sports or watching them, showing how much these games mean in the life of a community.

* * * * * * *

This and that: Belleville's hockey team will find the Campbellford crew as soft as eight-minute eggs....You might refer to the Lindsay Vics as the victims—of tough luck....Cobourg lost its first game of the season, the Petes won theirs; add 'em up and divide by common sense, and the answer is still nothing....Norwood is a fine hockey centre, they're aways looking for games down that way with local teams....Some of the plain and fancy grunts heard at the Brock last night when fast-skating forwards collided with boxcar defencemen made us think the rasslers better look to their laurels.

SIDELINE SHOTS FROM OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL FIELDS

Which was the first team to introduce a plan of campaign?

Sir Charles Clegg, the president of the Football Association, who played in the first international match between England and Scotland at Glasgow 60 years ago this month and who has a wider field of recollection than anyone in the game, has been contrasting the football of to-day with that of his youth, when many of the present accompaniments were undreamed of.

"People would have laughed outright if anyone had prophesied some of the plans of football clubs to-day," he said in an interview.

NO TRAINING OR PRACTICE

There were no elaborate schemes of attack and defence worked out in advance when Sir Charles started playing.

"We used to play as individuals, not as a team. We played from match to match without practice together, and sometimes a team would have two matches in an afternoon.

"I well remember when I was playing at Sheffield a team of Royal Engineers introducing a scheme of combination. How they showed us up!

"We were fair players, according to the times, but the Engineers, with their combination, were much too good for us.

"There was no team training then; no organization as we understand it now.

Stripped in a Hedge

"I remember we sometimes had to change our clothes under a hedge and give a lad a copper or two to look after them until we came back after the game. But we enjoyed ourselves.

"There used to be a good deal of vigorous charging, perhaps in a manner which would not be approved now. I think that more charging should be allowed.

"Sides would have a man whose main duty it was to deal with the goalkeeper when the ball went near the goal. He did that and very little else.

"There were not nets at one time, and we had a tape instead of a cross-bar. This used to lead to a good many disputes as to whether the ball had gone into the goal or not."

The Betting Danger

Professionalism, in the opinion of Sir Charles, has had good effects.

"I first of all was out to oppose professionalism," he said, "but it was not long before I changed my mind.

"There are difficulties connected with the game to-day which had be met," he continued. "Betting is one of them.

"I could not say that there was no betting in the old days, but there was no real difficulty with regard to betting at any time until dog racing began. I am afraid it may develop."

Contrasts

The season has provided no greater contrast than the performances of the two promoted clubs—Leeds United and Wolverhampton Wanderers.

The United have thoroughly justified their advancement. They started badly by losing their first two games to Derby County at home, and to Blackpool at Bloomfield road, but since then they have never struck their colors to any club.

Of their last thirteen matches they have won six and drawn seven, any they have lost fewer goals than any clubs in the first division. Portsmouth are the only team that has penetrated their defence more than twice.

Woe at Wolverhampton

The Wanderers, on the other hand, continue to have a most distressing time. They have only won two matches, which is one more than Leicester City, but they have now sustained seven defeats in succession, and three of them have been at the Molineux grounds.

They have the worst record of any club in any section of the league, and their position is occasioning much concern.

The directors are endeavoring to bring about an improvement, and following upon the acquisition of Ivill, the left full-back from Oldham Athletic they have signed Nelson, the centre half-back of Preston North End, and Wildman, a goalkeeper from South Kirby.

Nelson, for whom both Everton and Manchester City were understood to have a sneaking regard, made his first appearance in the league team against Sunderland, and Wildman played for the reserves against Everton at Goodison Park.

Considerable interest was aroused in Hollywood when Joel McCrea refused the opportunity to star with Janet Gaynor in "Tess of the Storm Country." Joel turned down the proferred part because the action of the film required Janet to rescue the hero from drowning. He thought that this situation would be unmanly and might reflect unfavorably upon his career. Alexander Kirkland also refused the role for similar reasons, but Charles Farrell accepted the part.

Althought Kathleen Burke won the role of the "Panther Woman" in "The Island of Lost Souls" in a national contest which included 60,000 entries, the night before the contest closed she did not have a picture of herself suitable for entry. He developed the film in the kitchen sink, printed the picture, dried it in the oven and rushed it to the theatre before midnight, the closing hour of the contest.

POOR RECEPTION ON LONDON STAGE

George Bernard Shaw Sees Remedy in Reduced Prices for New Plays.

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—Somerset Maugham's play, "For Services Rendered," a highly pessimistic study of post-war effects upon an English family in the country, was hailed as a remarkable piece of work when produced by Sir Barry Jackson. Nevertheless it has been withdrawn after a run of less than seven weeks.

Ill-luck has attended Sir Barry's ventures for some time. He put on G.B. Shaw's "Too True to be Good," which survived in London for only a few months.

His third production, "Evensong," made a profit in its earlier career, but just now is playing to considerably less money than covers expenses. It will be withdrawn early in the New Year.

This is not to say that these plays did not possess a certain drawing power. The real difficulty is the present high production expenses ruling in the West End. Before the war any producers thought he had achieved a distinct success if he had a play which brought in $5,000 a week. This was the amount that "Too True to Be Good," was making when taken off here; yet it was losing money to the producer. Bernard Saw's proposal of a remedy is a huge theatre with five shillings as the highest-priced seat.

Two old favorites, Herbert Marshall and Edna Best, were warmly welcomed at the Lyric in "Another Language," by Rose Franken, a domestic comedy from the United States. The characters seem to move a little awkwardly in their English setting, and although the play showed to Londoners a certain amount of slackness in construction, the audiences so far have given the performers the most enthusiastic of receptions.

"To the Ladies," a light comedy by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly, is another importation, produced at the little Embassy Theatre, which may be classified roughly as an American version of "What Every Woman Knows," and there seems every prospect of it reaching the West End. This happy fate befell "The Cathedral," by Hugh Walpole, which was tried out just recently at the Embassy.

GENE SARAZEN'S HINT

Gene Sarazen, holder of the British and American open golf championships, expressed the opinion that either Archie Compston or Arthur Havers of Britain were entitled to meet him for the "World's championship." Compston accepted the hint in a hurry and cabled Sarazen, asking the American if he was willing to play under the same scheme that Compston met Hagen. Archie said he was willing to back himself for $2,000. It is probable that matches, five each over 36 holes, will be arranged early next season in Britain, as Sarazen says he intends to cross the ocean, havers plans to wait until Sarazen arrives.

Earl of Dunraven announces that his well-known horse Warden of the Marches, sire of many winners, is available at a stud fee of little more than $400 at the present rate of exchange. Johnny Gottselig Will Rejoin Hawks

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (A.P.)—Johnny Gottselig, star centre of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, on the injured list since Nov. 22, will rejoin the club in time to play against the Montreal Maroons at Montreal to-morrow night.

Gottselig suffered a knew injury at New York, and aggravated it during the few minutes he played against Boston last week. He was released from the hospital last night and immediately left for Montreal with William J. Tobin, business manager of the club.

Ice Hockey Popular Among Tokyo Fans

(By Percy Whiteing, C.P. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, Dec. 10 (C.P., by mail).—Once again Canada's national sport has gone far-afield and met a rousing reception. Bringing with it a breath of the wintry blasts of Canada's northland where it had its early growth, organized ice hockey will shortly make its initial appearance in Tokyo.

A hockey club on Canadian lines is in process of formation by the Canadian community of Yokohamo and Tokyo, assisted by United States and Swedish residents.

Tokyo's only artificial ice rink, completed a few months ago, will be the scene of action. Shortly after the rink was constructed a team composed of Canadian residents here played several exhibition matches with Japanese university teams which attracted great interest.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

FARMER BROWN'S BOY TRIES TO SMOKE OUT YOWLER

If there is any one with an uglier sounding snarl or a more threatening growl than Yowler the Bob-cat I don't know who it is. Neither does Farmer Brown's Boy. When he heard it for the first time issuing from the litte cave in the ledge of rocks deep in the Green Forest where Yowler had made his home he backed off in hurry, and funny little creep, chilly feelings rangs all over him. He began to have a feeling of sympathy for Bowser the Hound. He didn't wonder that Bowser refused to hunt any one who could snarl and growl like that, especially after having felt the teeth and claws with which Yowler was armed.

Now that he had found Yowler, he wondered what he should do next. There was no way he could get at Yowler in that little cave. He couldn't crawl in there if he wanted to, and he didn't want to. No, siree, that was the last thing he wanted to do. He couldn't get at Yowler, but Yowler could get at him any time he chose to rush out unless he was careful not to get too near. Farmer Brown's Boy went off a little way to sit down and think it over. Bowser sat down at a safe distance and watched. He wondered if things would happen as they had happened with him when he had found Yowler in the heap of fallen trees. If they did perhaps his master would understand just how he felt and why he had no desire to hunt Yowler any more.

After awhile Farmer Brown's Boy gathered some stones and sticks and threw them in the little cave. At least he threw them in at the entrance. But the only result was renewed snarling and growling. You see those stones and sticks couldn't reach Yowler because there were several turns in the passage to the little cave where he was, but they made him angry. Finding that he couldn't make Yowler come out in this way, Farmer Brown's Boy decided that he would try smoking him out. He no longer feared that Yowler migh rush out an attack him. He knew that Yowler was a coward and would fight only when he had to. He knew, too, that Yowler was smart enough to know that so long as he remained in his cave he was quite safe.

So Farmer Brown's Boy laid aside his gun and gathered a lot of dry leaves. Then he found a lot of damp ones. When he had a big enough pile to suit him he pushed the whole against the entrance to the cave where Yowler was and then set fire to the dry leaves underneath. They blazed up merrily, but the damp leaves on top were too damp to blaze and they smouldered and made a great deal of smoke. With a long stick Farmer Brown's Boy pushed the smoking pile of leaves in at the hole. Then he went back to a safe distance and waited. He knew that smoke would work back into the cave and that Yowler would not be able to stand it long.

The snarling and spitting and growling increased, and now and then there was a cough which showed that Yowler was becoming very uncomfortable in the cave. With his gun ready Farmer Brown's Boy waited, but he waited in vain. He gathered more leaves and pushed them in, but still Yowler refused to come out. From little cracks among the rock Farmer Brown's Boy could see the smoke working up so he knew that it must be filling the cave. It was queer that Yowler should or could stand it so long.

Suddenly Sammy Jay began to scream at the top fo his lungs some distance off to the right. Farmer Brown's Boy looked over there just in time to see a big brown form bound away among the trees. Farmer Brown's Boy's face fell.

"How stupid of me!" he exclaimed. "How very stupid! There was another entrance to that cave. I ought to have thought of that and looked for it. Yower has got away this time, but he won't again."

What Today Means to YOU

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 21st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5.30 a.m. to 7 a.m., from 11 a.m. to 12.15 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 4.30 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8.15 p.m.

A feeling of happiness will prevail no this date and general harmony should be apparent. Much satisfaction will come from time spent in the home. Your thoughts will go out to friends in distant places and their will come to you. A message of good cheer from afar may well arrive on this December 21st.

Born on this December 21st, the child will probably enter a home where forces making for harmony are at work. He will be happy in his home. He will love and obey his parents and will be best satisfied and contented when at their side, studying, reading, or talking with them. Do not for a moment think that the child if a boy will be the "apron-string type" for he possesses all the qualities of vigor, courage, etc., that make for virile boyhood.

If December 21st is the date of your birth, you are inclined to be too self-centred, too much interested in your own affairs, both business and personal. You are not a good mixer; you have pretty well smothered whatever yearnings you ever had for the company of others. You are a hard worker, the plodding type. You have definte artistic talent which can be developed through hard work. You should be able to write though your style would be ponderous rather than light and sprightly. Music appeals to you and you turn to it often for comfort and consolation.

Whether you are a man or a woman, you are the possessive type. Your mate you will feel belongs to you, and you will demand, often reasonably, of his or her time. On the other hand you are a loving person, kind, often indulgent. You will be really happy only if you can establish yourself as the central point in your little world that revolves about yourself. The idea of parenthood does not appeal strongly to you, but you will make a better than average mother or father as the case may be. You will have few friends, fewer enemies; but you will suffer from the criticisms of those who believe themselves excluded from your own little world.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

DENTISTS ARE NOW DOCTORS

One of the encouraging signs of the times is the manner in which the public and also physicians look upon the dental profession.

It is only perhaps ten or fifteen years ago since dentistry was looked upon as a sort of "mechanical" profession. A dentist simply pulled or filled teeth.

"Dentistry in the past has been operating upon a hind-end first plan of waiting for destruction to occur, and then through a process of patch work mechanics making all the hay possible while the sun shines. This has resulted in an unhealthful, uneconomic, and unsocial situation and has put dentistry in the position of being considered by the public as a business rather than a profession."

The above paragraph is from Dr. Joseph H. Kauffmann, a dentist of New York City.

Why has dentistry risen to its proper position as a profession?

Because it now teaches the public how to preserve the teeth, and thus prevent disease, just as the medical profession by teaching hygiene to school children and adults, has lengthened the human life span by many years.

Your dentist now advises that you see him twice a year. This means that any little decay, any tartar at the gum margin of the teeth, any root infection may be detected and thus you will not only save your teeth, but your health also No one can begin to estimate the damage to the entire workings of the body from infected teeth, from poor chewing surfaces, and from diseased gums.

This half-yearly or yearly visit to the dentist is thus really health insurance.

Just as there are research workers in medicine so are there research workers in dentistry.

Dental students today are alive to the great strides being made in their profession, and these new students, or recruits as Dr. Kauffman calls them, "wil place facts above opinions, truths above fancies, prevention above cure, children above adults, the whole body above only the teeth, and profession above trade."

It is not to be wondered at therefore that the dentist is now rightly called doctor, because a doctor is really one who teaches. The dentist helps to teach people how to live properly.

FAIRBAIRN SUIT FOR DAMAGES IS DISMISSED

Sued H. G. E. Choate For Failure to Warn Buyer About Naptha.

SOUGHT $3,000.

Frank R. Latta is Given Judgment for $1,1472.36 Against Field.

Dismissal of the action by Mrs. Susana Fairburn of North Monaghan against H. G. E. Choate for $3,000 damages for alleged sale of naptha without warning of its inflammable nature, and subsequent explosion causing severe injuries to the plaintiff, was one of the concluding incidents of the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court here this morning.

Mr. Justice Raney had disposed of the earlier cases on the docket with a celerity that had not been generally expected. When the court opened on Monday there were prospects that it would continue through most of the week at the usual rate of procedure. It was intimated on Tuesday that His Lordship did not intend to sit later than Wednesday evening, but recourse to postponements of cases that might not have been reached was avoided by the despatch with which the docket was disposed of.

Late Tuesday afternoon Mr. Gordon, counsel for Mrs. Fairburn, requested that this action be set over. One of his witnesses, an expert with the Imperial Oil Company, had gone to South America, Mr. Gordon said, and because he had not anticipated the speed of the court's progress he did not think he could get in touch with an expert whom he wished to call as a substitute.

Insisted On Trial

Mr. J. A. O'Brien, counsel for Mr. Choate, hardware merchant, Hunter Street east, objected that there had been already one adjournment when the case came for trial before Mr. Justice Wright here on October 10. He was unwilling to consent to further delay because Mrs. Fairburn's writ was hanging over his client and in that respect was inimical to his business.

Finally, Mr. Justice Raney decided to proceed with the trial, and this morning it was first of the two remaining cases on the list. No evidence was presented, and the action was dismissed without costs.

In her statement of claim Mrs. Fairburn alleged that she had bought a gallon of naptha from the defendant in October 1931, that she had started to use it for cleaning some clothing in her home, that she left it on the reservoir of her cook stove, with the result that the naptha exploded destroying her home and causing severe personal injuries. It was claimed that the defendant should have warned Mrs. Fairburn of the dangerous nature of naptha, its volatility and the danger in the circumstances in which she made use of it.

In Mr. Choate's statement of defense one paragraph was to the effect that "without admitting that the defendant sold the naptha" to Mrs. Fairburn he denied that there was "any obligation on his part to warn the plaintiff of the alleged dangerouns character thereof, and in any event the defendant alleges and the fact is that if damage and injury were sustained by the plaintiff in her person or property that it was caused wholly by reason of her carelessness and negligence in the handling of the naptha to which the defendant in no way contributed."

First Use of Naptha

In her examination for discovery Mrs. Fairburn who lives on the Port Hope highway, eight miles from Peterborough, stated that the naptha was purchased by her daughter, who teaches school in Lindsay. Paintiff had not previously used naptha for cleaning purposes, and had not even seen it. Mrs. Fairburn put some of it in a dish and set it on the back of the stove when she began to use it on October 27. It was on the stove about five minutes.

"I went upstairs and when I came down it was flaming in the dish. If I had rin out then I wouldn't have got burned myself, but I thought I would see what I could do. I tried to remove it from the stove and I think that is when it exploded because it flashed all over me."

Mrs. Fairburn was deeply burned on both arms to her elbows, her face and hair were burned, and the upper part of her body around to the back. She said that she thought naptha was something like gasoline.

Latta vs. Field

In the last case on the list Frank R. Latta was given judgment against Fred Field for $1,472.36 with interest for liability on two promissory notes given to the Royal Bank and the MacDonald Lumber Company. G. N. Gordon, K. C., was counsel for the plaintiff and Fred C. Richardson of Cobourg for the defendant. Both notes were paid by Mr. Latta and he entered action against Mr. Field for his share of the liability.

HUGH ROBERTSON SELECTING MEN

Fifty Unemployed Men Will Leave for Camp on December 27.

REQUIRE CLOTHING.

Hugh Robertson, superintendent of the Provincial Government Employment Bureau here, has commenced the task of interviewing the fifty single unemployed men from this city who have been suggested by Relief Officer Art. Metheral for work on the Minden-Dorset Road this winter.

The remaining fifty unemployed men of the one hundred who were assured work by the Government on the highway are being equally selected from Lakefield and from the Township of North Monaghan. It is expected by Mr. Robertson that the men will leave Peterborough on Tuesday, December 27.

Transportation costs of the men will be defrayed by the respective municipalities, but whether the men will be sent by train or by road is not yet decided. If the party goes by rail, they will be able to go only as far as Huntsville, and will have to complete the remaining twenty-five miles into No. 12 Camp by road.

Unlike the condition attached to the selection of the last batch of men for highway work, the Government does not require that the men be medically examined, although it is, of course, essential that the men be of sound physical condition. In addition to supplying the cost of transportation the municipalities will have the responsibility for seeing that the men are properly equipped with work clothes, Mr. Robertson said.

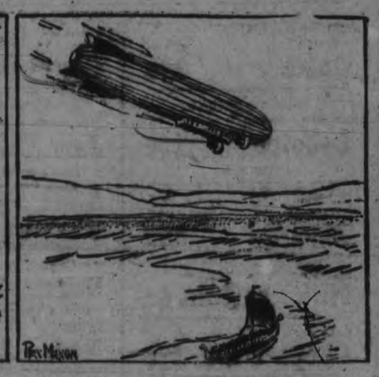
TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE, No. 93 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

From Dacor, brother of Dian the Beautiful, Empress of Pallucidar, and Tanar, son of Chak, each captain of a ship, Tarzan learned the fleet was on its way to attempt a rescue of the Emperor David from the dungeons of Korsar. It had been long in building and only recently had they found a water passage into the Korsar As. "Soon now," said he who was named Tanar, "we shall be before the city of Korsar."

"Tell me," questioned Tanar, "how did you expect to rescue our Emperor with only a dozen men?" "We are not all here," answered the ape-man. "We are lost from our companions. But we have not many men in our expedition. We depended upon other means than man power to effect his rescue." As if in answer to his words a great cry arose from one of the ships and the men hastily rushed to the deck.



The excitement rose and spread. The warrior were all looking into the air and pointing. Already some of them were elevating the muzzles of their cannons and all were preparing their rifles. A steady, far-off roar was heard which Tarzan and Jason recognized. And as they too looked skyward, they saw the O-220 far above them. The dirigible had evidently discovered the fleet and was descending toward it in a wide spiral.

"These are our friends," cried Jason to Ja. "That is our ship that I told you about," said Tarzan to Tanar. All that happened on board was quickly signalled to the other ships until every member of the armada knew that the great thing hovering about them was no gigantic flying reptile, but a ship of the air come from the outer world on a mission of adventure and rescue of their beloved Emperor, David I. Slowly the great ship settled toward the surface of the sea.

SHORT COURSES IN AGRICULTURE OPEN JANUARY 9

Classes Will be of Four Weeks' Duration for Junior Farmers.

ALREADY 40 APPLICANTS

The regular winter short courses in agriculture, open to all junior farmers in Peterborough County, commence here at South Central School on January 9th.

There is to be a class for boys in general agricultural subjects (mainly livestock and crops) and a class for girls in household science and home nursing.

Boys will be under supervision of J. B. Nelson, local representative of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, assisted by E. A. Innes a son of J. W. Innes, noted Holstein and Jersey cattle breeder. The girls will be instructed by Miss Marjorie Hamilton of Glen Huron, who teaches domestic science and by Miss Edith Petty of Toronto, teacher of home nursing.

The classes will be of four weeks duration. Already over forty young farmers are registered for instruction, and Mr. Nelson anticipates that when the classes commence the number of pupils will be in the neighborhood of one hundred.

CAVAN

Mr. N. Lamb spent the week-end with friends in Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Howden and Mr. Willie Howden attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Howson from Millbrook on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Reynolds and Mr. E. Lamb were visitors in Peterborough on Friday.

Miss Jennie Swain, Lindsay is with her sister, Mrs. W. Tinney, who is ill.

S.S. No. 8 (Whitfield's) whose teacher is Miss Francis Jones, won the chimes given by Mr. M. B. Chenhall, music instructor in the Cavan schools, to the school singing the Christmas carols most correctly.

HASTINGS

Born at the East General Hospital, Toronto, to Dr. and Mrs. Andrew McGee on December 14th, a son.

Born in Detroit, on Sunday, Dec. 18th, to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Overland (nee Pearl Parker), a daughter.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy King, were Mr. and Mrs. E. Timlin, Luella and Willis, also Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown, and daughter, Lisile of Roseneath.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 21.—There was little change in conditions on the local produce market yesterday, trading was slow and prices were about steady with those quoted on demand for creamery solids, and the undertone to the market was firm, while prices asked were steady. Choice solids from Ontario points were quoted at 21¼c, and second grade solids were 20¾c. Asking prices on Western makes were 21¼c to 21½c. Prices to retailers on creamery prints were 24½c for No. 1 and 24c for No. 2. Trade in cheese on te brokers' market was on a basis of 10c for new large, 10¼c for new twins, and 10½c for new triplets. Prices to retailers were firm at 11c for new large, 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets and 13½c for stiltons.

Prices on fresh and storage quality eggs were unchanged, and the demand was fairly good Country shippers were offered 30c for extras 25c for firsts, 20c for pullet extras and 16c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Fresh supplies to retailers were quoted at 38c for extras in cartions, 36c for extras loose, 32c for firsts loose, 26c for pullet extras loose, and 21c for seconds loose.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 21. — Easier price trends in eggs and turkeys provided the main feature on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Carlots or less of fresh Ontario graded eggs were a cent lower for extras at 33c to 35c, and firsts at 29c to 30c, but pullets held firm at 27c a dozen. Storage eggs in carlots, were unchanged at 21c for extras, 18c for firsts, and 17c a dozen for seconds. Receipts were 260 cases.

Christmas turkeys, in carlots or less, were half a cent a pound lower as trading continued active. Quotations were 16c to 17c for 'A' grade, 14c to 15c for 'B' grade, and 11c to 12c a pound for 'C' grade.

Trading was dull in butter, cheese and potatoes, with prices holding steady. Butter arrivals totalled only 95 boxes, while there were no receipts of cheese. Carlots or less of No. 1 finest grass butter were quoted at 21½c to 21¾c a pound. Current receipts of Ontario white cheese were quoted at 8¼c to 8½c, current Ontario colored at 9½c to 9¾c, and Ontario early season make at 10½c to 11c a pound.

New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island Green Mountain potatoes, per 80 pound bag, were 90c, and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 90 pound bag, $1.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.— Grains in Chicago scraped the season's low-price levels yesterday, with Liverpool smashing for the third time this week bottom records extending back 344 years.

Relative steadiness of the Chicago wheat market was largely due to correct surmises beforehand that official domestic crop figures from Washington this afternoon would prove bullish. The present condition of United States winter wheat was shown to be by far the lowest on record. On the other hand, the Government estimate of 1933 domestic winter wheat acreage was a surprise, being well above recent private returns.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled, ¼c to ⅝-8c under yesterday's finish; corn, 1-8c to 3-8c off to 1-8c to 1-4c up; oats, unchanged to 1-8c to 1-4c down, anfid provisions unchanged to 20c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 21. — With weaker outside markets, foreign demand absent, and other support limited, it took very little wheat to depress prices on the Grain Exchange here yesterday, and the close was ⅝c to ¾c lower for the day.

December closed at 39¾c, May at 42½c, and Juy at 43¼c.

Estimates of export were not available, and local traders were unable to confirm reports from New York of substantial sales of Manitobas. Canadian wheat still remains the cheapest in the world's markets, and with the support of the preference crowded out Argentine grain at Liverpool, where Broomhall reported the two in keen competition. Liverpool prices were lower, as were those at Buenos Aires.

Chicago was bolstered a bit by expectation of a bullish note in the crop report issued later yesterday by the United States Government.

JACK SANDFORD.

MADOC, Dec. 21. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — The sudden death of Mr. Jack Sandford, carpenter, of Bannockburn, son of the late James Sandford, took place on Monday, 19th. It had previously been reported as Mr. E. Sandford who had passed away.

FRANK CROWE.

WARSAW, Dec. 21.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Cluff, N. Dummer, to attend the funeral of her brother, the late Frank Crowe. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, pastor of the United church, of which Mr. Crowe was a member, conducted the services at the house and at St. Mark's cemetery, where interment took place. The pallbearers were Messrs. James Cluff, Maxwell Marston, John and Frank Booth, John Douglas and Fred Hill.

There were many beautiful floral pieces. Mr. Frank Crowe is the third brother who has died within two years.

BABY DOUGLAS BLAKELY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, December 21. — The funeral of John Douglas, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blakely (nee Jessie Brown) of Seymour, whose death occurred on Saturday evening, December 17th, was held from the home of his parents, on Monday afternoon.

The service was in charge of Rev. Mr. Kemp of Havelock of the Trent Bridge United Church, and was quite largely attended. The remains were interred in Trent Valley Cemetery, Hastings.

Marmora

The boys' class at St. Paul's Sunday School, recently taken over by W. J. Cottrell, has been organised and will be known as the Anchor Class, this name having been selected by the boys themselves. Ross Rogers was elected president, and George Rice secretary at a meeting held on Tuesday evening.

A monster relief entertainment, dance and card party, sponsored by Marmora L.O.L. 319, is being held in Marmora Town Hall on the night of Tuesday, January 3. The entire proceeds will be used for direct relief by Marmora Village Council.

Mr. William Shannon, who is attending St. Michael's College, Toronto, is home for the Christmas vaction.

Nearly 5,000 deer and about 1,500 moose were taken in Nova Scotia during the 1932 big game hunting season.

ROOSEVELT SHYS FROM DEBT TANGLE

ONTARIO DEFICIT IS $1,975,000.00 TREASURER SAYS

Payment of Exchange and Direct Relief Vanquishes Surplus.

EXPENDITURES DOWN.

Exchange Cost the Province $2,330,000 Dunlop Announces.

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—A deficit of $1,975,000 was officially announced late yesterday by Hon. Edward A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer for Ontario, for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1932.

The ordinary revenues of the Province for the past year were set at $54,186,000 and the ordinary expenditure at $56,161,000. There is no mention made in this Mr. Dunlop's third pre-sessional statement of the total capital debt of Ontario, and questioned by The Globe, the Provincial Treasurer stated that it was not yet ready, and it was not the practice to give these figures out before his budget address in the House.

Exchange Charge

A surplus would have been claimed, Mr. Dunlop says, but for "the extraordinary charge of $2,330,000 for New York exchange and the direct relief charge of $3,950,000. The latter amount, however, has not been put entirely into this year's accounts, and is prorated of five years, including the fiscal year just closed.

The $2,330,000 cost for exchange is compared in the Provincial Treasurer's statement with the $95,000 cost for the same purpose for the year ended Oct. 31, 1931.

The province's share of municipal and provincial works, which are known as indirect relief, is $9,800,- [illegible] capital account.

Expenditures Cut Down

Department expenditures are reduced $4,636,000, it is stated, which

BEER BILL SET BEFORE SENATE

Dry Members Confident of Victory Despite Wets Early Successful Vote.

HOLD HOOVER ALLY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. (AP)—The Democrat 3.2 per cent beer bill which rode through the U.S. House of Representatives on the wave of a 65-vote majority, came abreast of two new hurdles today—the Senate and Presidential approval.

Prompt consideration was promised in the Senate, probably in mid-January after a vote has been had on prohibition repeal, but Democratic leaders were not voicing the optimistic predictions which preceded victory in the House yesterday.

While the wets continued jubilant over the 230 to 165 vote which spelled their first successful attempt to modify the Volstead law in 12 years, dry members confidently asserted that the measure would be defeated at the other end of the capitol. If not there, they held that President Hoover would not approve it and that it could not be passed over his veto.

Shouts and applause greeted speaker John N. Garner's announcement of the bill's passage yesterday after three and a half hours of tense debate and quick rejection of approximately two doen amendments, including one to cut the alcoholic content from 3.2 to 2.75 per cent by weight.

SENATE ADOPTS REPORT

WASHINGTON.—The U. S. Senate to-day adopted the conference report on the Philippine Bill, granting independence to the islands in 10 years. The report now goes to the House.

Canada's New Radium Plant at Port Hope Starts Production.

Opening weeks of 1933 will see Canada established as an important source of that great boon of suffering humanity—radium. Less than three years after the discovery of pitchblende ore on the shores of Great Bear Lake in far north-west, the first minute but valuable shipment of the rare element will go forward from the newly-completed plant at Port Hope to the radiological laboratory established by the Ontario Government at Toronto, to be used for preparation of radium emanation for distribution throughout the province. In the above layout is shown: (TOP) LaBine Point, Echo Bay, from which the radium-bearing ore has been shipped to eastern Canada with barges unloading supplies and machinery; (LEFT) plant of Eldorado Gold Mines at Port Hope which will house the concentration process developed by the department of mines at Ottawa, with the building containing the main finishing laboratory in the background; (RIGHT) Inside the laboratory, showing bowls containing concentrate in the final stages of the extraction process; (CENTRE) Gilbert LaBine, discoverer of the Great Bear Lake silver-pitch-blende finds; (LOWER LEFT) M. Pochon, radium expert, in charge of the plant; and (LOWER RIGHT) E. LeCronne, who will supervise initial concentration.

LLOYD GEORGE PUTS FOOT DOWN ON DISCLOSURES

Ready to Publish Whole Debate on 1923 Issue at Risk of Going to Jail.

OPPOSES PARTIAL STORY.

Scores Lords for Threatening Members of House—Hints Jail for Others.

LONDON, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—David Lloyd George, the former Liberal leader, made a sensational declaration in the House of Commons this afternoon, intimating that he was ready to go to jail, if it came to that, on the issue of further disclosure by him of Cabinet proceedings which he threatened, should any further "partial disclosures" be made.

What led up to this was the recent partial disclosure by several members, including Mr. Lloyd George himself, during debate in the House of proceedings in Lloyd George's own Cabinet in connection with the 1923 debt settlement with United States. Mr. Lloyd George at that time demanded publication of the full minutes, but this was refused.

To-day's outburst was occasioned by a warning by Lord Hailsham, Secretary for War, and others in the House of Lords last night, that disclosures of Cabinet secrets made the offender liable under criminal law.

Threats Something New.

Mr. Lloyd-George hotly declared to-day that it was a new thing when the Lords began to threaten members of the House.

"I know," he said, "that last night there was talk about liability to two years' imprisonment. I beg to say that if partial disclosure of this kind is given again I shall, without any hesitation, take the responsibility of publishing the whole transaction."

If he were sent to jail there would be others who would have to be sent there, too, he said, including "two or three members of the present Government."

Mr. Lloyd-George also accused Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of an insult to the House for absenting himself from debate on unemployment recently on a plea of indisposition, although "he was able to travel to Lossiemouth and speak there on unemployment on the very night that the House was debating the question."

Nominations Friday In North Monaghan

North Monaghan's municipal nominations meeting will be held at May's School Friday from 1 p.m. until 2 p.m., with Bruce Johnston, township clerk, presiding. It will be followed by the customary public session at which candidates may address the ratepayers, and the affairs of the township be generally discussed. The present members of the Council are Reeve John McIntosh, Deputy-Reeve George Patton, and Councillors John Barnes, Robert Dobbin and Wm. Whitfield.

Enquiries in regard to the probability of new candidates being named to-morrow have not succeeded in bringing forth any definite pronouncement, although there have been rumors of a movement, quietly operating, to inject some new blood into next year's council.

Other township nominations throughout the county will take place next Monday.

Going to Market in Style

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 22.—C.P.)— "This little pig went to market" is a well known ditty. But the verse never stated just how the market-bound animal travelled. The modern animal goes to market in style, if the scene witnessed just outside Belle[illegible]e can be taken as an example.

A large Belleville-bound coupe whirled along the road. In the rear seat section stood a small calf peering intently out of the window. Both man and animal seemed quite unaware of the mild sensation they caused on their journey.

WAR TO FINISH ON GANGSTERS

Chicago Police in 1932 Have Slain 40 Against Losing 9 of Own Force.

MAYOR BACKS DRIVE.

CHICAGO, December 22 (C.P.).—The Chicago police are shooting straight these days—and nights.

It's a war to the finish, against gangsters and other law violators, as Mayor Anton J. Cermak views the situation, and no immediate let-up was in sight.

Already 40 who chose to fight it out with the police in 1932 have died, while police counted but nine of their own numbers lost in the gunfire.

Three notches on police guns were figuratively scratched on their weapons yesterday and last night.

The latest to fall before their marksmanship was William Nydick, described by investigators as a one-time partner of "Smiling Joe" Filkowski, notorious bandit, who heads Cleveland's list of "public enemies." Earlier in the day two negro robbers were slain as they fled the scene of a holdup.

Detective Harry Miller of Mayor Cermak's office, who on Monday helped stage a police raid on a downtown office in which Frank Nitti, reputed "enforcer" for the somewhat deflated gang of Al Capone, was shot and seriously wounded, was the man who killed Nydick. He was attempting to serve a warrant charging robbery to Nydick in his hotel room.

"Nydick grabbed the warrant, tore it into bits, and reached for his pistol," Miller said. "I just beat him to the draw and shot him."

YOUTH AND GIRL ARE FOUND SHOT

Farm Hand Believed to Have Slain Employer's Daughter, Then Suicided.

JEALOUSY BLAMED.

INNISFREE, Alta., Dec 22 (C.P.).—A double killing, arising from a farm hand's jealousy of the affections of his employer's daughter, was revealed to-day by the finding of two bodies in a barn on a farm four miles from here. The bodies were those of Peter Shulupka, 25-year-old farm hand, and Katie Dulaba, his employer's 20-year-old daughter.

The girl was believed by police to have been shot by Shulupka as she went about her early morning chores in the barn. The man is then believed to have committed suicide by shooting himself with the same rifle he used to slay the girl, of whose affections he was said to have been extremely jealous.

Shulupka is said to have come from Central Europe about two years ago, and since was employed by Stack Dulaba, a pioneer settler in the district.

Royal Canadian and Mounted Police with Coroner Dr. M. C. Adamson are coming from Vegreville to investigate.

Kiwanis To Entertain 218 Camp Children

The Kiwanis Club is playing Santa Claus on Friday afternoon to 218 children who attended Jackson Park Camp during the past summer. Kiwanian Laurie Mitchell, manager of Peterborough Bus Lines Limited is going to loan some busses to bring the children to the Capitol Theatre, where Kiwanian Jack Stewart will entertain them to a show. After the show Santa will distribute useful gifts to each child, in addition to candies, nuts and an orange.

Names May Be Had From City Relief Officer Metheral.

Peterborough's job this Christmas is still far from finished. There is yet no certainty that all of the 614 families listed on the city's relief rolls will receive some portion of Christms cheer. While many of these needy families have been provided for and a large basket of Christmas goodies will be carried over their threshold on the eve of Santa Claus' visit, there are numerous others who, unless citizens come forward immediately, may have empty cupboards for the great festival.

Many Families Remain.

Relief officials, who are giving all their energies to the task of caring for the needs of these depression casualties, admitted to-day that Christmas may not enter the door of every Peterborough family. There are still many families on their rolls that have not opposite their names the little pencil mark above the earth's surface. This system, separated from the first by Switzerland, also differs in that it is utterly simple, while that on the German frontier is amazingly intricate and complicated.

Marshal Petain, the defender of Verdun, who flung the slogan, "They shall not pass!" at the German crown prince, is the creator of both systems which will be completed in 1935. Since it was practically impossible to go underground in the granite formation of the Alps and the Jura Mountains, Marshal Petain conceived the idea of making the rock itself perform the chief defensive work.

There are but twelve roads connecting France and Italy. All ex-

Wishes Free Hand On Taking Office He Tells Hoover

Expect President Will Refrain From Appointing His Proposed Debts Commission As Result Of Roosevelt's Refusing To Accept Joint Responsibility.

PAUL-BONCOUR TO FOLLOW HERRIOT'S LEAD AIMING AT GENERAL DEBTS SETTLEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt in correspondence made public today at the White House declined "to accept any responsibility" in the appointment of a commission to explore the war debts and other international problems—telling President Hoover, in effect, that he wished a free hand after he takes office March 4.

The exchange between the president and his successor to-be consisted of four lengthy telegrams. To them the president attached a brief statement to the press, saying:

"Governor Roosevelt considers it is undesirable for him to assent to my suggestions for co-operative action on the foreign problems outlined in my recent message to Congress. I will respect his wishes."

In authoritative sources it was learned that the president will refrain from appointing the debts commission proposed by him in his message to congress last Monday.

He was described as feeling that without the support of the president-elect, the commission could not properly be formed to carry on after March 4.

No Commitments.

In his brief statement attached to the correspondence, however, Mr. Hoover added:

"Situations will no doubt develop and will be dealt with by the administration as they arise. But of course no commitments will be made for the next administration."

The correspondence was initiated by President Hoover last Saturday, two days before his message to Congress. He wrote that the debt problems "can not be disassociated from the problems" to come before the world economic and disarmament conferences.

He asserted that "exchange of views in respect to debts can not be accomplished in satisfatcory manner through the ordinery routine of diplomatic contacts" but require "free and direct round table discussion with each government separately."

Roosevelt replied Dec. 19, after Congress had received the Presidential message, that, "I can not

THREE PERISH IN TRAIN CRASH

Flier Leaps Tracks at 70 Miles an Hour, Crashing Through Signal Tower.

PASSENGERS HURT.

IMA, O., Dec. 22 (C.P.).—Crashing through a signal tower after jumping the tracks, a speeding Erie Railroad passenger train was wrecked two miles south of here last night, killing three men and injuring several passengers.

The train, No. 7, westbound from New York to Chicago, was going about 70 miles an hour, trainmen said, when it left the rails.

Nine cars and the engine overturned in a ditch, and two of the cars caught fire. Four other coaches, containing most of the 30 passengers aboard, remained upright.

Charles Scott, engineer, and Earl Swihart, fireman, both of Huntington, Ind., were trapped in the cab of the locomotive and were killed. Charles Aldrich, of Lima, working in the tower, was killed when the crash hurled him from his lofty room onto one of the burning coaches.

Only one passenger, Miss Georgia Deerwester of Huntington, Ind., required hospital treatment.

While Lima firemen fought the flames it was feared for a time that some of the trainmen were trapped in a blazing baggage and mail car of wood construction, but no bodies were found when a search was made of the smouldering wreckage.

Cause to Forget

DETROIT, Dec. 22.—(A.P.)—John Miller almost threw a monkey wrench into the legal machinery of his $10,000 alienation of affections suit against Henry Shelters, of Rockwood, Mich., when he failed to recall the first name of his former wife.

"We can hardly expect," commented Judge Monihan sternly, "that your suffering is very great when your memory of your wife is so faint you cannot remember her name."

"But," replied Miller, "my suffering is so great that her name seems of no importance."

CAN.-AM. WILL OPERATE AT FIVE-TEAM LEAGUE

BOSTON, Dec. 22 (C.P.).—With the Springfield Indians definitely out of the Canadian-American Hockey League, President James E. Dooley and his directors to-day were in a position to revise their schedule on a five-team basis. That odd number of teams functioned perfectly during the first two years of the circuit's existence.

The decision of William F. Carey, who yesterday named Lester Patrick to succeed Col. John S. Hammond as president of the New York rangers, to withdraw that club's farm team from Springfield did much to clear the air of uncertainty that surrounded the league during all of the current season, which brought financial troubles to almost every club.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 22 (C.P.).—Everything was in readiness for the marriage of Clara Blanche Hayes, 18, of Canfield Junction and Jack Van Slack, 31, of Dunnville, at the latter place to-morrow, but Mr. Van Slack may not be able to be present.

To-day he was arraigned in police court on a charge of giving false information in applying for a marriage license here, police contending he is not divorced from his first wife, whom he married in Youngstown, O., in January, 1931.

Van Slack pleaded not guilty and was remanded until January 3. He described himself as a bachelor in applying for the license, the charge said.

ALD. M. TURNER NOT CANDIDATE FOR THE COUNCIL

Acclamation for Mayor Denne Most Probable on Nomination Day.

CONTEST FOR COUNCIL?

Election is Also Assured for Seat on Utilities Commission.

Prospects for the municipal nominations tomorrow indicated this afternoon that there would be contests for the City Council and the Utilities Commission, with the probability of an acclamation for Mayor Denne.

To-day's developments brought out the surprising announcement that Alderman Mel Turner had decided not to be a candidate for the council, although some of his friends, citizens who have appreciated the quality of his municipal service, felt rather confident that they could persuade him to accept nomination again.

Alderman Turner did not express any specific reason for retirement, except that he believed he had done his share of duty as a civic administrator in the seven years he has been a member of the council.

Nagle E. Phelan has already resigned from the council, and if Alderman Turner is fully determined to withdraw from civic activities, next year's council will miss the counsel and experience of two of its younger members who have shown conspicuous ability and diligence in the performance of the aldermanic duties.

The other three aldermen whose terms are expiring are James Hamilton, D. J. Holland and J. A. McNabb. They have stated that they will accept nomination, and the other new prospects are James E. Ellis of Ashburnham, Max Sloan of the south ward, Fred Goodfellow, and George Benton, 762 Water street.

Utilities Commission

For the vacant position on the Utilities Commission three candidates have already been announced, E. R. Shirley, whose second term is now concluding; E. B. Fowler, and E. G. Patterson. The business experience of Mr. Patterson and Mr. Fowler, and the knowledge Mr. Shirley has already gained as a member of the Commission, are assuring factors that the strength of the commission will be maintained by the successful contestant

ARCTIC FLYING FULL OF DANGER

Pilots Find "Black" Snow in Northland More Hazardous Than "White" Variety.

FOGS LEND DANGER.

OTTAWA, Dec. 22 (C.P.).—'Black' snow in the Arctic is much more of a hazard to Canadian airmen than the ordinary "white" variety, and when a sable wall looms ahead of the flier, the best thing to do is to bring the aeroplane down to mother earth. This is the counsel of Captain G. C. Upson, formerly of the Royal Canadian Air Force, who has just returned from Great Bear Lake after a season's flying there.

The reason for his discreet advice is not far to seek. "Black" snow means snowstorms ahead. To the pilot, thousands of feet up in the air, these present themselves as an almost impenetrable black wall, to fly into which is to invite disaster. Visability is completely destroyed, and to add to his troubles, ice begins to form on his air-screw, on his propeller, and on the leading edges of the struts and wings. Within a very brief space the whole shape of the aeroplane is altered by coatings of ice, and its efficiency as a buoyant medium whose domain is

PRAIRIE FARMER PRESENTED GIFT OF DEBT RELIEF

Interest on Obligations Contracted 1929 and 1930 Cancelled by Imperial Oil.

$5,000,000 INVOLVED.

Repayments Start Next October Based on Price of Wheat.

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—Debt revision and a sweeping cancellation of back interest, is the Imperial Oil Company's Christmas present to farmers of Western Canada.

The repayment plan offered last night by the company to upwards of 80,000 debtor farmers in the Prairie Provinces, provides for remission of interest on amounts due from 1929 and 1930 up to October 1, 1933. Thereafter, during the course of a five-year repayment period, interest at only four per cent. will be charged. Repayment is to be made in annual instalments on October 1 of each of the following five years—but instead of taking a dollar for each dollar's worth of debt (if wheat prices remain at relatively low levels) the company will permit liquidation of amounts due on the basis of wheat values, rather than dollar values as carried on its books.

While the company makes no announcement of the aggregate par value of debts involved, it is understood that it is upwards of $5,000,000; and the amount by which the total capital debt will be scaled down depends upon the value of wheat during the five years following October 1 next. Interest charges accumulating from that date will also be scaled down, should wheat values remain at depreciated levels.

Based On Current Capacity.

Apart, therefore, from the material reduction in interest charges, Imperial Oil's Christmas present to the burdened West is a plan whereby farmers may repay old debts upon a basis of current earning capacity, rather than upon earning capacities as at the time of contracting the debts.

The principle of ability to pay thus replaces the "pound of flesh" theory in fixing the actual value of debts owed the company. In applying its liberal policy, the company estimates that the outstanding debts included in the plan were incurred when wheat was at an average value of 70 cents per bushel. Thus, one hundred bushels of wheat was equivalent to a $70 liability incurred through the purchase from Imperial Oil of gasoline and oil to operate farm machinery in 1929 and 1930.

In repaying the debt, on the annual due dates beginning October 1, 1933, 100 bushels of wheat, according to the plan offered, will still repay $70 worth of the individual farmer's debt. Thus, if No. 1 Northern wheat on any due date closes on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at 70 cents, the farmer will pay full par value of the debt. If, however, the closing price is 50 cents, the proceeds from the sale of 100 bushels of wheat would still discharge $70 worth of the original debt; that is, the company agrees to accept, in that instance, 85c in cash for $70 worth of the original debt—such interest as may be due at the same time being similarly scaled down. If, on the other hand, wheat should be above 70 cents on any of the due dates, the company accepts cash for the debts at their par value, the farmer getting the benefit of the extra value of his product.

Debts Causing Fear.

In making its announcement, the directorate of Imperial Oil takes cognizance of the real nature of debts, and remarks that, "To-day burdens of debt are disturbing nations and individuals and causing fear to weigh heavily on all people. Until fear is overcome and employment increased, thereby strengthening prices, difficulties will continue to prevail." The further statement is made that the company has given additional employment to workers, for the above reason, and is now prepared to go a step further in adjusting debts owed to it by the public.

MANHATTANITES WILL DINE WELL

Stores Offer Favorite Dishes For Those Who Follow Old Land Customs.

SPECIAL ENGLISH DISHES.

(By Robert St. John, A. P. Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. — (AP) — Gastronomically, this Christmas will be a merry one for Manhattan dwellers.

Never before, merchants reported today, have the New York shops — from the Bowery to Park Avenue— been so full of holiday delicacies.

You can make merry over caviar from the Volga at $1 an ounce, or eels from Quebec at 20 cents a pound.

One east side storeoffers the "makings" of a complete Christmas dinner at $1.25, while across this city of contrast, an exclusive Fifth Avenue food shop has' a holiday assortment packed in holly trimmed wicker baskets at $125.

Shopsin the foreign sections are displaying tons of food which from a proverbial part of the Christmas feast for Britishers, Frenchmen, Germans, Italians, Hungarians and others who would follow their "old world" customs.

English Dishes

An English shop has plum puddings made from a recipe preserved since the days of Charles Dickens. They are guaranteed to have been sprayed with cognac and brandy. Then there are Yorkshire pies concocted from chickens fed on rice and honey, and gallon kegs of peaches preserved in brandy sauce, with a spigot in case you are more interested in the sauce than the peaches.

More British hams than ever before are on display. You can get a york ham cured in mahogany dust a Suffolk ham cured in treace and beer, and an Irsh ham with the smell of peat smoke still clinging to it, all in a hamper for $35. Lax, or smoked salmon, is selling for $1.25 a pound. Other Fifth Avenue delicacies are rum butter, shark's fin soup, chedder cheese swimming in port, kangaroo tails and truffles —and underground fungus—which the importers swear were hunted in English forests with specially trained pigs, dogs and goats.

In the French quarter the four Christmas specialties are patte de foie gras, geese, snails and glazed chestnuts.

ALD. J. A. McNABB TO BE CANDIDATE

Has Seen Six Years' Service in City Council, Two With School Board.

GIVEN GOOD SERVICE

Alderman J. A. McNabb to-day announced his candidature for re-election to the City Council. For the past six years Alderman McNabb has given earnestly of his services to the citizens of Peterborough. He was a member of the Board of Education for two years before graduating to the City Council where he has shown keen insight into the city's affairs.

This year Alderman McNabb has been chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee, and the keen manner in which he straightened out this committee's affairs gained him wide recognition. A returned soldier himself Alderman McNabb has always shown a keen and helpful interest in everything pertaining to the benefit of veterans.

Five Forced To Flee Blaze In Apartment

TORONTO, Dec. 22 (C.P.). — As firemen assisted his wife and two others down a ladder from the third-storey window, George Wilson, crippled subdivision postmaster, fought his way through heavy smoke to carry his 10-year-old daughter, Joyce, to safety after fire had broken out in the tailoring shop beneath their flat early this morning.

Heavy smoke, which suddenly seemed to fill the hallways and rooms over the shop, left the tenants choking and nearly blinded.

Mrs. Wilson, in alarm, ran from the second floor upstairs to escape the fumes. Wilson lifted his daughter out of bed and made his way downstairs to the street.

A. J. Tolmie and Mrs. M. Chapman, on the third floor, were joined by Mrs. Wilson and firemen scaled the ladders to rescue them.

GARDINER MAY TAKE ALBERTA PREMIERSHIP

Ottawa Report States Progressive Leader to Succeed Brownlee.

TARIFF BOARD DEAL.

Present Premier to be Member Under Judge Sedgewick, Rumor Says.

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—Announcement of the personnel of Canada's new tariff board, which is expected early next month, will be followed immediately, it is believed here, by a statement that Robert Gardiner, Progressive leader in the House of Commons, is retiring to accept the Premiership of Alberta.

The report is predicted upon the assurance that J. E. Brownlee, now Prime Minister of Alberta, has accepted a position on the tariff board and will make his decision known at the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta in January.

In the same connection, it is declared with certainty that Mr. Justice Sedgewick of the Supreme Court of Ontario, has accepted the chairmanship of the Board, contingent upon the promise of the government that the emolument the position will carry will be made as attractive as that which he receives as a judge. The third member of the board, it is stated, will be Emile Chaput of Montreal, son of the late Charles Chaput, and well-known Montreal business man.

Not Unexpected

Translation of Robert Gardiner to the provincial arena in Alberta is not unexpected. After Robert Forke went over to the Liberal party in 1926, Mr. Gardiner became leader of what were known as the co-operating independent groups. Within the past two years he has seen his leadership wane, with many of his followers turning to J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg, for their guidance. That defection has become much more pronounced in the last three months with the growth of the Co-operative Federation and Mr. Gardiner, who is rather conservative in his radicalism, is said to be quite ready to find a more congenial atmosphere in his home province.

Rumors

EDMONTON, Dec. 22 (C.P.) — Changes in the Farmer administration of Alberta, with Premier J. E. Brownlee resigning and Robert Gardiner, leader of the Progressives in the Federal House, succeeding to the Premiership, were rumored today. But they were quickly denied by Mr. Brownlee.

"Wild rumor," declared the Premier, when shown an Ottawa despatch, published by a Toronto newspaper.

Liberals Select Clarence Massey

COBOURG, Dec. 22. — A special committee appointed by Northumberland County Liberal Association, at its last convention, and composed of presidents and secretaries of the various town and township associations, has announced that Clarence W. Massey, farmer, of Morganston, will be in the field for nomination as Liberal candidate to contest the riding in the next Provincial election. The committee was appointed to interview possible candidates, which duty it has carried out. Mr. Massey is president of Northumberland County Liberal Association, and has been an active worker in Liberal interests for some years.

The three other boroughs in England that have already voted on the question have produced large majorities in favor of the Sunday shows.

REFORMATORY TERMS GIVEN TWO BROKERS

Johnstone and Byles Found Guilty, in Creamery Collapse, at Goderich.

SEVEN-DAY TRIAL.

Judge, Opposing Suspended Sentence, Makes Penalty 2 Years Less Day.

GODERICH, Dec. 22 (C.P.) — Commenting that he was opposed to sending anyone to penitentiary if it could be avoided, and that accused had not secured their money by violence, Judge Costello, in county court last evening, sentenced John Powell Johnstone, 31, former Toronto stock broker, and his head head salesmen, Francis Byles, 53, each to two years less one day in the Ontario reformatory.

The prisoners took their sentences calmly, shaking hands with their counsel and numerous friends in the court room before being taken to the county jail.

The sentences date back to the day of their incarceration in Huron county jail, in the case of Johnstone some 14 weeks, and with Byles to April of this year.

Seven-Day Trials

The sentence marked the culmination of trials extending over seven days.

Johnstone, immaculately dressed, was found guilty of converting to his own use, funds of Consolidated Creameries, Limited, which he promoted.

Immediately Johnstone was sentenced, counsel for Byles, R. V. Hays, Jr., asked permission to change Byles' plea of "not guilty" to one of "guilty" with respect to the false pretences charge against his client. The request was granted and senence identical to that of Johnstone was imposed. On charges of conversion and theft, Byles was discharged, the Crown offering no evidence.

Losers Look On

Among the spectators who heard sentence passed, were a number who had lost large amounts—in some cases their all—in Consolidated Creameries.

Defence counsel, Frank Donnelly, asking for suspended sentence for Johnstone, said: The shareholders would receive 35 cents on the dollar.

"I cannot agree with suspended sentence," said His Honor, addressing Johnstone. "Not directly, but through you indirectly, a large number of people have been defrauded out of their hard earned cash. Many will not have a joyous Christmas, as they might have had had they not invested in Consolidated Creameries."

His Honor told Johnstone he was young and clever and possessed of much talent which, if put to proper use, would quickly re-establish him in society.

Franco-American Pact Nearly Ready

PARIS, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—It was reported reliably to-day that U. S. Ambassador Walter E. Edge has returned here with the draft of a new Franco-American commercial treaty practically in complete form so far as American desires were concerned. The treaty must be gone over again with the French, it was said.

(The Ambassador went to the United States in September with a draft of French counter-proposals to an American bid for a new treaty. Previous reports said French failure to pay the Government's debt to the United States last week would force an indefinite suspension of the trade negotiations).

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. Bessey

There are doubtless quite a number of people in Canada who have never seen either of the stamps that are illustrated below and yet they are the two high values of our last issue.

The new issue released the first of December has no value higher than the thirteen cent, thus these same two stamps may still be classed as in current use.

The fifty-cent value depicts Evangeline's church at Grand Pre in the province of Nova Scotia. It is dull blue in color but for all that is a very attractive stamp. Details in the central scene are quite discernable, and a little study of the stamp will prove very interesting. The two stamps, as illustrated, are a part of the set released in 1930; there having been no new stamps of these values issued since then, they are still current.

Good used copies of the fifty-cent value were very scarce for a long time, and it is only during these past few months that they have been obtainable in any quantities; even now they are far from common and collectors would do well to secure one soon. I do not think they will ever be any cheaper and I have no doubt they will soon go up in price. Unused copies may generally be obtained at your local post-office. Used copies catalogue at 20 cents, and readily sell at half catalogue or more.

A large percentage of these stamps are to be found with straight edges, thus holding up the value of the copies perforated on all four sides.

The one dollar, dark olive, depicting a view of Mount Edith Cavell, is named in commemoration of that gallant nurse of the Great War. A little study of the scene will prove very interesting, many details being clearly discernable.

Here is one stamp that I firmly believe will have a real future. Although this stamp has been in use for about two years, good used copies are extremely hard to find. Many post-office branches are selling the old King George $1.00 orange stamp. Again, the majority of these high value stamps are used by banks for their registered mail. I believe that a number of these banks, during the past year or two, have made more use of meter type stamps, thus eliminating the necessity of using adhesive stamps; this in addition to having cut down their mailing costs as much as possible, cuts out a very large number of these one dollar stamps, that might otherwise have been used.

Although, the catalogue value of the stamp is only thirty cents for a used copy, I know of cases where they've sold for over one-half of their face value. Just imagine having to pay fifty or sixty cents for a used stamp when you can go to the post-office and secure an unused copy for $1.00. If that doesn't give you some idea of just how scarce good used copies are, I don't know what will.

Many used stamps have straight edges and many others have such heavy cancellations that good copies average about three out of every ten. Better try and pick one up somewhere if you possibly can. There is no telling what the price may be in a year or so from now.

The author will be pleased to answer all questions about stamps or stamp collecting. Address your letter in care of this paper, and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

GUNMAN WOUNDS HULL CONSTABLE

Desperado Surprised Stealing Car Opens Fire After Mile Run.

DISTRICT COMBED.

HULL, Que., Dec. 22 (C.P.)—Constable Joseph Sanscartier, of the Hull City Police, to-day had been shot down by an unknown man whom he disturbed in the act of stealing a motor car here last night. The officer was shot from ambush. He had chased the man for a mile after the latter had run away from a car he was endeavoring to start.

The officer was wounded in the calf of his left leg. He is a patient at hospital in Hull, where his condition is considered not serious, although it will be some time before he will be able to be back on duty. The entire Hull police force together with the Ottawa and Quebec and Ontario Provincial police departments are scouring the district for the gunman.

The car which the thug tried to steal is the property of D. Rowding, Renfrew, Ont. When the owner went to get his car, he found it in charge of the police. They directed him to headquarters, where he was given permission to take the car.

2,000 CATHOLIC PUPILS FOR WINNIPEG SCHOOLS

WINNIPEG, Dec. 22. (CP)— Two thousand Catholic school children, who have been attending parochial institutions in Winnipeg, will be absorbed into the public schools when the new term commences, Jan. 4, following the Christmas holidays.

At a lengthy meeting of the Winnipeg school board, which did not conclude until early to-day, final plans for the care of the Catholic pupils from 10 parochial schools were completed. Due to the financial burden, the Catholic Church is unable to maintain schools after Jan. 1.

"The admission of the pupils to the public schools will not disturb the present organization of classes and the additional teachers required are available" stated D. M. Duncan, superintendent of schools, to-day.

School Free of Debt

Mr. Isaac Lawson, superintendent of the Supnday School, gave a short address to the gathering to the effect that the Sunday School was free of debt and hoped before long that the school would be in good financial standing and able to order supplies a year in advance. Recitation, Garnet Thompson; instrumental piano, Mary Brown; vocal duett, Chaplin Brothers, with Mrs. Chaplin at piano; recitation, Keith Thompson. The lighting effect was arranged to stage the pantomime, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by five young ladies, Misses Fleda Thompson, Fleda Wildman, Betty Ormiston, Margaret Brown and Doris Scott, under the direction of Mrs. George Brooks, those taking part were prettily gowned in white with silver star crowns.

The quartette, Mrs. John Scott, Mrs. Venters, Messrs. George Brooks and Rufus Reading singing the hymn, with Miss B. French playing accompaniments; Mrs. Brooks also was in charge of the tableau, "Six Stages of the Christian Womanhood," with the cast as follows: Nurse and Babe (Miss Fern Longmuir), with "Jesus Loves Me," sung by little Misses Jirene Brown and Lorraine Scott; little boys, Albert Venters and Keith Thompson singing "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam," with Vaughan Brown as School Girl; Bride, Miss Fleda Thompson, dressed in bridal costume, and "Love Divine," sung by Miss Reta Longmuir; Missionary, Miss Margaret Brown, with the quartette singing "Far and Near the Fields are Teeming"; Mather, Mrs. Thomas J. Brown, and Jirene Brown and Lorraine Scott dressed in sleeping attire kneeling in prayer at her knee, and hymn, "When Mothers of Salem," sung by quartette and young girls; "Abide With Me," Mrs. James Longmuir as Grandmother, dressed in appropriate garb seated in a large easy chair, knitting while the quartette rendered, "Abide With Me," and were joined in the last verse by the entire cast. Miss Bessie Inkster played the piano accompaniments for the school choruses; Miss B. G. French playing the piano accompaniments for the vocal numbers in the pantomime and tableaux.

Santa Claus arrived with pack on his back amid hearty applause and after a few jocular remarks to the little folk, distributed gifts from the tree, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with illuminated miniature electric blubs of various colors; each child was given a bag of home-made candy. A small admission fee was charged and over twenty-one dollars was added to the Sunday School treasury.

MISSION HALL HOLDS CONCERT

Beautiful Tableau, "Silent Night," is Ably Presented —Splendid Singing.

PRIZES DISTRIBUTED.

HAVELOCK, December 22 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual Christmas tree entertainment of Havelock Mission Hall was held in the Mission on Friday, December 16, and was in every way a great success. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion by the girls of Mrs. Ormiston's class, and supplied entirely by the Sunday School children.

Mr. J. Kinnaird, the chairman, in his opening remarks, told the audience that in the year 1932, out of 475 juveniles arrested in New York for both minor and major offences, only 3 had ever attended a Sunday School, and used this as an argument in favor of attendance at Sunday School. He believed the figures should be sufficient proof to parents of the necessity of sending them regularly to Sunday School.

The program consisted of readings, dialogues, recitations, duets, and drills, was carried out in splendid manner. Perhaps the most impressive number was the tableau, "Silent Night." All lights in the hall were turned out, and when the curtain rose, there was a beautiful tableau of living images. The Mother bending over the crib in which reposed an adorable Infant, the two figures illuminated by a subdued red light. Beside the mother stood two angels with outspread wings, and the central group was entirely surrounded by sixteen young girls in flowing white robes, made in Eastern fashion. A sweet voice was heard in the distance, singing "Silent Night," and the words of each line throughout the hymn were interpreted in motion by the grouped figures. At the concluding verse all those assembled on the platform joined with the singer in subdued tones, and remained in a kneeling position until the curtain was drawn.

Other interesting sketches were: "A Night in the Manger," and "Christmas Dolls." Great credit is due to Mesdames F. Chase, P. Newell, and S. Southward, for the way the children were trained. At about ten o'clock, after the program had been concluded, Father Christmas arrived with a huge pack. Every scholar received a book prize, as well as candies, etc. Thus ended another happy evening in the history of Havelock Mission Hall, everyone expressing their delight with the program presented by the children.

The Program.

Chorus, "New Jerusalem,' 'Sunday School Scholars; reading, Eva Deline; dialogue, Laura Chase and Iva Deline; boys' drill, Mrs. Armson's class; recitation, by Helen McMullen; duet, Thelma and Norma Ellis; recitation, Harvey Cook; duet, Jennie Chard and Olive Carson; recitation, Martha Chard; Christmas Dolls, Sunday School pupils; recitation, Wilma Emery; trio, Teresa Newell, Eva and Eveline; recitation, Marion Pirie; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Armson; recitation, Muriel McMullen; piano solo, Mrs. Newell. "Silent Night," tableau; recitation, Jim Hoard; telegram from Santa; duet, Marion Pirie and Gladys Chase; "Away in a Manger," Four Girls; recitation by Freddie King; recitation, Stanley Little; recitation, Martha Chard; "Good-night, Ladies," by Little Girls; Scripture lesson.

ST. JOHN'S STAGES ANNUAL CONCERT

Good Ship Christmas Represented With Choruses and Songs at Church Function.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 22 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—The annual Christmas concert staged by St. John's United Church, Campbellford, and held in the church hall on Tuesday evening, proved a great success. The hall was well filled to witness what was a representation of the Good Ship Christmas approaching the Christmas Harbor, and a spirit of the festive season prevailed throughout all the songs and choruses of passengers and crew.

Those taking part were: Captain Holiday, W. E. Davidson; steward, George Palliser; sailor, Fred Palliser; Mrs. Joy, Mrs. W. E. Davidson; twins, Polly Joy, Thelma Menzies, Dolly Jay, Marguerite Shepherd; Mrs. Wait, Ruth Palliser;; Dorothy Hope, Pansy Abernethy; radio operator, Raymond Wragg; Spirit of Love, Lillian Abernethy; hostess at the dolls' tea party, Betty Dolman.

In addition to the choruses, a duet was given by Douglas and Gordon Lucy; solos by Helen Nicholson and Elsie MacPherson, and recitations by Dorothy Grieg and Diana Ironside.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hazell assisted by several ladies of the church, were responsible for the training of the children.

At the close of the program Santa Claus in person visited the hall and distributed good things to the children.

CHINA BALANCES BUDGET

NANKING, China, Dec. 21 (A.P.)—Despite the world depression and the slump in silver, the Chinese budget was balanced without resorting to loans, said Finance Minster T. V. Soong in a statement to-day to the third plenary session of the Kuomintang (Government party).

ONTARIO DEFICIT IS $1,975,000.00

included an adjustment of $567,000 in respect to old-age pensions. The Dominion's contribution on the latter, of from 50 per cent. to 75 per cent., was to go into effect on July 31, 1931, but actually did not become effective until Nov. 1, 1931, and the adjustment has been taken up this year.

Finding the ordinary net revenue from liquor stores considerably reduced, the Government called upon the board's surplus, as is did last year, for millions, to bring a fair showing in its reduced revenue. The Liquor Control Board stated loss in profits, when the surpluses accumulated from better years' sales were thrown in, is fixed at a decreased revenue of $755,000.

This figure, of course, is far from showing the great loss in revenue from liquor during the past fiscal year, and it is left to succession duties to show the great paper loss, that of $3,370,000. Large estates did not come to the coffers of the province at the rate they built up revenues last year.

Mr. Dunlop takes the occasion to thank all Ministers for having cooperated with him in keeping the deficit as low as is shown.

U. S. SHIPPING ACTIVITIES PROTESTED IN AUSTRALIA

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—A protest against the U. S. owned Matson Shipping Line of San Francisco being allowed to trade between the Fiji Islands and New Zealand and Australia was lodged to-day by the Australian Maritime Unions with the Minister of Commerce.

Union officials suggested that U.S. be given " a taste of her own medicine" by restriction of the activities of foreign companies.

The minister intimated that the Federal Government already was conducting negotiations regarding competition from the Matson Line.

THE COST OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

The need of retrenchment in municipal circles, not only here, but in most centres throughout the country, is effectively shown in a bulletin just issued by the Citizens' Research Institute dealing with the cost of municipal government in 1931.

This cost, we are told, has risen to the highest figures reached any year since the Institute began investigating such matters.

The expenditure, after deducting revenues received from provincial sources, in seventeen representative centres across the Dominion, reached an average of $51.26 per capita in 1931.

This compares with a figure of $47.74 in 1930, $45.40 in 1929, $45.05 in 1928 and $44.99 in 1922.

In these seventeen cities—Peterborough is not included in the number, by the way—the average net cost of municipal government, weighted according to population, was $53.12 per capita in 1931, compared with $50.63 in 1930 and $47.37 in 1929.

The bulletin declares that a drastic revision downward in the cost of government is necessary in the average municipality in 1933 in order to bring such cost more in line with the taxpayers' ability to pay. And adds that this can be done if municipal councils have the determination to do it.

However, such councils need to be assured that such action has the backing of public opinion, and it is along this line that citizens interested in the problem are asked to work by giving their views to members of the municipal government.

AN ABSURD PROPOSAL.

Some people who evidently have given little thought to what is involved have applauded the decision of the Calgary City Council to meet obligations to the amount of $2,609,677, maturing in New York on January 1st, in Canadian funds, unless the Federal Government comes to the rescue by providing Calgary with gold at par.

The whole idea is absurd.

When Calgary borrowed in New York it, of course, contracted to pay in American funds, and it should be ready now, no matter how severe the burden, to meet its obligations; it cannot afford surely to do anything else if it puts a proper appreciation upon the value of public credit.

As for the suggestion that the Federal Government should come to the rescue by supplying the western city with gold at par, that cannot be entertained for a minute.

If such a policy were adopted in the case of one Canadian city it would have to be followed in other cases, and how long would Canada's supply of gold last under such conditions?

As the Ottawa Jocrnal shows, the interest and principal of Canadian payments falling due in New York in 1933 alone total 250 million dollars, and yet the gold on hand or in the Government's possession at the present time cannot be in excess of 70 or 80 millions.

That situation shows the utter foolishness of the Calgary proposal.

The Council of Premier Bennett's home town had better make up its mind to do the only sensible thing, pay its obligations.

A REASONABLE REQUEST.

The petition presented to the Government by the unemployed railway men of Canada, comprising approximately 7,000 unemployed firemen and 14,000 unemployed conductors, brakemen and other men in the running trades on Canadian railways, will appeal to most people as entirely reasonable.

Many of these men are in dire straits as a result of continued unemployment, and have lost all their savings and some of them their homes, and they are merely asking for something that employed railway men might well be expected to have granted on their own accord, in the spirit of brotherhood that is supposed to permeate such organizations.

The situation is this, that while this army of unemployed railway workers are suffering, the petitioners declare that the men now working in the running trades on Canada's railways are in a very great majority of cases working more than 26 days of 8 hours per day per month (100 miles in freight service being considered a day's work of 8 hours).

The unemployed men asked that the employed railway men in the running trades be restricted, during the depression only, to work 26 days per month, or, in other words, 2,600 miles per month in freight service and its equivalent in money in passenger service.

This would still leave to the men now employed approximately the following rates of pay per month: engineers, $177.00; firemen, $136.00; conductors, $145.00, and brakemen, $114.00.

There are approximately 6,000 locomotive firemen out of employment in Canada at the present time, and the petitioners assert that if their plan were adopted over 90 per cent. of these men would go back to work immediately, and that the same thing is applicable to other men in the running trades.

The Typographical Union has decided, in order to keep more of its members at work, to voluntarily adopt a five-day week, starting with January 1st.

The same spirit shown by the employed railway men would take care of the majority of their brethren now without jobs.

ON THE EVE OF NOMINATION.

To-day is the eve of nomination day, but so far the situation in regard to the municipal elections remains more or less obscure, and only a handful of citizens have declared their intention of entering one or other of the contests.

Let us hope that beneath the surface there is more activity, and that to-morrow's proceedings will bring into the various fields a sufficient number of men qualified by reason of their experience, business training, grasp of affairs and personal qualities to do good work in the public interest.

The Examiner has done what it could to arouse the community to the necessity of putting into office strong and well-balanced public bodies, composed of men who recognize that the supreme need at the present time is to put a tight and effective curb upon public expenditures.

This and all other municipalities has simply got to cut down the overhead, for with a very large proportion of the taxpayers suffering from sadly reduced incomes, tax bills cannot be met unless they are sharply cut down.

In their budgets for next year the City Council and the Board of Education must be guided solely by the present ability of the taxpayer to pay—and the proportion of taxes paid during the present year will afford a more or less accurate guide as to that ability.

Beyond that proportion they are certainly not justified in going in their planning for next year, and it will be necessary to use firmness and backbone in dealing with the situation.

Every item of expenditure will have to be carefully scrutinized with a view to determining why it is placed in the budget and whether it could not be reduced or even eliminated.

Such a scrutiny by men of business training, determined on retrenching because nothing else will meet the crisis, would likely disclose "luxury" items, the outgrowth of more prosperous times, which can be struck out without particularly affecting the particular service concerned.

Most items could be reduced, and even some services now considered desirable may have to be dispensed with until better times return.

To carry out a drastic economy program will require able men; it is to be hoped they will come forward to-morrow.

A VERY GOOD DISCUSSION.

There was some rather plain talk at the meeting of Perth County Council. Reeve Nagel of Hibbert surprised his hearers by saying that Perth County was bankrupt, and he applied the same standing to all other counties. As a matter of bookkeeping and a matter of record, Perth County has no debt, and Reeve Nagel knows it. His explanation is interesting. He turned to the debts of government, and there found that the share of the outstanding obligations falling upon the people in Perth amounted to $40,000,000, an amount which the folk in this county cannot pay or hope to pay. It looks different when one takes what might be considered our share of national debt and brings it home. We say at once we cannot pay it. It actually does collide with the notion that our county is, as we at times boast, free of debt.

That fact prompts the suggestion that although those whose business it has been for years to run the affairs of Perth County have done it in such a way as to keep out of debt, these outside agencies of government have in the meantime piled up so much debt that Perth County cannot possibly pay its share. And yet on top of that we hear the suggestion at times that county councils should be abolished!

It was a good discussion they had at the County Council. Growing out of it came the suggestion, voiced at first by Reeve Dickson of Elma, and approved by Reeve Nagel, that it was time the townships and counties were considering the refusal of further grants from the Government. A very good phrase was brought in here, when it was compared to the "impoverished helping the impoverished." The meaning is plain. Governments are running behind now in their finances; they are getting along on borrowed money, and the feeling of the county councillors was that it was not right for grants to municipalities to be paid out of borrowings. It was just another way of piling up obligations.

Reeve Dickson was certain that in such times as the present the township and county councils should inform the governments that they were quite willing to do without these grants. There should be a willingness to help the governments in this way.

There is something entirely wholesome in that outlook. It gives voice to a fine feeling which perhaps has been stagnant longer than it should have been. We might not be where we are to-day if people had grasped that point some years ago. There would have been fewer and less urgent delegations hastening away to Ottawa and Toronto to tell those in authority where and how they could spend more money to advantage for the benefit of some particular community.

The outlook of some governing agencies has not always been as solid as the financing of Perth County. It is easy to recall that this county has been told a good many times that it should go ahead and spend much more on its road system, and that advice has come from Toronto.

If counties and townships are willing and able to forego accustomed grants to relieve pressure on government finances, then the government in turn should cease piling up debts which people in the county have to share and sustain by reason of their being part of the province or of the Dominion. There should be reciprocity in the matter, and if the counties and townships are ready to point the way, then the larger bodies ought to meet them in the same spirit.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

AN OTONABEE COMPLAINT

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—I was astonished when I read in The Examiner a statement of Mr. McIntyre, Reeve of Otonabee, expressing satisfaction with the payment of taxes in Otonabee to date and taking considerable credit for the reduction of taxes.

Now, nobody knows better than Mr. McIntyre how this was accomplished—very simple, by borrowing more money, only paying interest on more debentures, even if the rate is high, because the debentures have not been disposed of yet. He also knows every dollar of the taxes costs the taxpayer $2.87 before he gets it paid.

In short, it is the most colossal farce ever attempted to be put over the ratepayers. He says the council is satisfied. Well, they are about the only ones and nobody need tell them after the nomination meeting. This reduction of taxes will take a lot of explaining and with snow plow purchases, horse deals and mileage fees to be ironed out, Otonabee can promise as interesting a nomination meeting as ever was staged in Keene.

Yours,
F. W. Wood.

A WORD FOR MR. SHIRLEY

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir, — The Peterborough Utilities handling our water, gas and electric light and power is an engineering project of no mean proportions and it is a source of general satisfaction that Mr. Shirley an electrical engineer of high standing and long experience has agreed to stand for re-election to the Commission.

I do not know what percentage of the total Utilities business is represented by the electrical end, but it must be quite large—and since there is no electrical engineer employed by the Commission it would appear particularly valuable to have an electrical engineer in the Commission with a comprehensive understanding of this part of the business.

The record of the Utilities as a well managed business has left little to be desired and the presence of an engineer on the Commisston for the last ten or twelve years undoubtedly accounts for a definite portion of the good results.

The present makeup of the Commission is ideal, consisting as it does of a retired banker, a business executive and an engineer. It would be a pity to make the personnel top heavy from the business executive standpoint by the elimination of the member having the best grasp of the engineering problems of the Commission.

CITIZEN.

FAVORS THE BY-LAW

To The Editor, Examiner:
City.

Dear Sir.—I have heard some arguments, both for and against the De Laval By-law, and as well, read a letter in your paper a few days ago on the subject.

I am a working man, but I am going to vote for the by-law. I do not know that I am favorable to bonuses or fixed assessments in practice, but when every other city is doing this very thing, we can not be an exception. I notice in reading the by-law as published that the De Laval assessment is being increased by $10,000.00, and tax is being paid on the total assessment, so far as local improvements, school taxes, etc., are concerned.

It is no secret that the majority of American plants located here as Canadian branch plants have not returned anything much on the money invested averaging the good years with the bad since their establishment here, in fact any plant this last few years and it seems to me it is good business with times so bad to get an increase in assessment anywhere at the present time.

My! What a piece of Christmas cheer it would be to hear of a new factory coming to Peterborough that would take on a couple of hundred hands.

We are very dependent on our factories, whether we like it or not, and just now we should not make it any harder for them to compete than it has been for them in the past. This is a plant, too, I understand, that requires much more manual labor than many others.

I am going to vote for the by-law, and I know lots of other workingmen who are going to do the same, in the hope that favorable consideration of present factories might be an inducement to others to come and take up some of the chaps who are now out of a job.

Yours truly,
—"WORKING MAN"

BE STILL!

STOP—JUST FOR an instant, no more than that—and be still.

Listen) to the beating of your own heart. Look at a cat sharpening his claws on a tree. Watch a bird on a limb, searching for insects. Look closely at a dead leaf. Look at anything. Be still. Out of that pause, great beauty, immense understanding may come. It may be the most beautiful moment you have ever known.

We came up, my friend and I, out of a rat ridden, smelly dugout into a winter night in the midst of the war. It was midnight, and there had been a storm. Snow had fallen. The fighting, for a little while, had stopped.

And we came up to a scene of startling beauty....Not a dog barking anywhere. Not a bird chirping. Not a thunder of guns. Not a rumbling wagon wheel. Not a single white flare in the sky. Not a green artillery signal floating up from the front. Not anything, anywhere, except the stillness and the white beauty of that winter night.

Every tree was outlined with snow. The shadows from a full moon were black beneath the limbs beside us. The earth was trackless. It was new and clean and perfect, unsmutched by man. All nature was still, ghastly action was still, and we, too, all alone in the world, were still. It was beyond understanding, amost. All the passion and pain, all the hatred and clamor were shamed by that still, white beauty.

We spoiled it all, too soon. A shell exploded, a machine gun ripped through the crisp night, the thing of which we were a part went on again. But that instant was perfect.

Be still for a flash of eternity, and life will flow richly into your breast. The strength that has been drained out of you will return. The faith you have lost will return. The faith you have lost will revive. The courage will be restored. Understanding will burgeon on the bare branches of your life. You will be alive again....Be still—and see!

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

ONE AWARD FOR CANADA

ON THIS DATE, in 1897 Canada won practically the only notable success in her many arbitrations with the United States—that concerning the Behring Sea seal fisheries. The United States, by virtue of its purchase of Alaska, claimed complete jurisdiction over what they claimed to be a closed sea. A number of Canadian sealers, owned principally in British Columbia, mostly at Victoria, were seized in 1886, 1887 and 1889. Great Britain protested on behalf of Canada and after long negotiations it was agreed to submit the dispute to international arbitration. The commission met at Paris in 1893, Lord Hannen and Sir John S. D. Thompson represented Great Britain and Canada, while Judge Harlan and Senator Morgan were the United States commissioners; other members of the tribunal being Marquis Visconti Venosta of Italy, Gregors W. Gram of Sweden, and Baron de Courcel of Belgium. Sessions of the tribunal were held both in Canada and in the United States, and finally the decision was given in favor of Great Britain and Canada, and contrary to the claim of the United States, and the United States were ordered to pay $464,000 to the Canadian sealers whose vessels had been seized. The latter, however, were put out of business by strict regulations to conserve the seal fisheries, and for years the trim vessels, whose life had been filled with romance and tragedy, lay at anchor in the harbor of Victoria. Rumor has it that after the United States "went dry" some of these vessels were used as vehicles for alleviating American thirst.

Pre-War Lady

A ROMANCE

Margaret Wickremer

CHAPTER 47

The younger maid Annie stopped her as she passed through the lower hall. On days like these a buffet luncheon was laid in the dining room. Little sandwiches, a big platter of salad, pitchers of cold drinks; people drifted in any time till three and took what they wanted, if anything.

"No, thank you, I had a late breakfast, Annie," she smiled to the girl. She felt as if she could never eat again. Her mouth was dry; she took a tall frosted glass of fruit-cup. She was glad of the respite. She smiled again at Annie—one must go through with the ritual of living, no matter what happened—and walked steadily across the lawn. Through the gap in the lilac hedge, stopping to speak to one or two of the house-guests, just up—and over to the rose arbor.

She had thought out, coming along, what she would say to Manny. He sat there already, waiting for her. He looked tired, eye-circled, but otherwise like himself. He too was dressed for the city; a dark suit, a straight collar. She sat down by him and took his lax hand and said it.

"Manny, I'm ready to go now. Everything is packed. Dick Stoddard won't stop annoying me till I'm married. I want you to drive me to New York now. We'll stop overnight and get a license in the morning and be married. You've always helped me, help me now. I want to. Please."

He turned his head away. "You love Scarlett and he loves you. Don't make me go over it all again."

"I can't marry Roger, I tell you." She leaned over and clutched him, tragic, her bright color gone. She shook him a little, even. "Manny dear, dearest Manny, take me away. Roger doesn't love the real me, he loves a girl in his mind that he thinks I am. You love me, really. If I married anybody but you I'd have to live a lie all my life. Manny, I implore you!"

Before he could reply—she felt him shiver under her touch — Emilia's hyperacute sense registered another presence. She turned her head and saw that the other three had landed at the dock below, and were entering through the river-end of the arbor.

But Manny, oblivious, his back to them, sprang up and stood above Emilia.

"No," he thundered, all his hard-learned mask of emotionlessness gone. "I love you, I'm crazy for you, I'd die for you, and then you ask me to marry you knowing all the time you love Scarlett with everything you've got? I should be a damn fool, I should be a beast to make you——" ... "Stop, Manny, stop, they'll hear you!"

But as Manny turned and saw them Dick threw himself with a quick motion between Manny and Emilia.

"You've all been conspiring to keep me away from Emilia ever since I came here," he said wildly. "I tell you it won't work. I saw her break down last night when she saw me come in. Milly belongs to me, Rosen, you half-baked imitation orchestra leader! She belonged to me before she did to anybody. She can't deny it. I don't care where she's been or what she's done since. She was my girl, and she's going to be my girl. She's——"

He had reached to snatch at the staring shuddering Emilia. But Roger was quicker. His fist struck Dick full in the mouth and knocked him down.

"Sorry this had to happen before either of you. Esther, take Emilia over to the house," he said. He stood above Dick, waiting for him to rise. But before anyone could move, Manny, with his quick eel-like deftness, had shoved Roger aside, and dropped one big immaculately shod foot on the prostrate man, holding him down.

"Lie quiet," he said, "or I'll beat you up like hell. Lie still and listen. You're saying something about Miss Vale that you would, of course. A dozen notoriety hunting, boastful pups say it about every girl that gets anywhere. Most girls take it in the day's work. But Miss Vale's old-fashioned; she knows it's a part of her being successful, but she doesn't like it. I believe in humoring people who do good work for me. So when pups try to get talked about by pulling that line, I treat 'em rough. I'm not even with you yet for what you did to me in the army, but this helps. It's whetted my appetite." He poked him lightly. He was making the whole thing light, ridiculous, a grotesque joke on a man he had an old grudge against. "So listen to this, I'm a big man financially. My people stick together I have a line pretty straight to your company. Just you forget to humor this old-fashioned notion of Miss Vale's and you lose your job and every one after that so quick you won't know one end of the breadline from the other. Run along now—Captain."

He stood at sardonic salute as Dick, tousled, mafked, dusty, struggled furiously to his feet.

"Keep your damn girl," he snarled and turned to go. Manny flung forward and using his fist for the first time, knocked him over the sill. Manny, blocking the entrance, turned to speak to Emilia.

"Now, my dear, I know it's upsetting to have this sort of a scene. But every woman in Who's Who has it happen every once in so often unless she's humpbacked."

Emilia reached out a mute hand to him, which he took and patted and released.

"Now I'm going to follow up my captain and see that he takes a bus out of this. Or walks. See you at Windward Gardens tomorrow night, Emilia; I'm letting Janie take your work tonight again. Good-bye, Esther. Ive been telling Emilia you were right——"

His brave semblance of casualness broke. He flung himself out of the arbor. They saw the little anxious hovering figure of his mother hurry out from the porch of the Valaty house; saw him almost run to her, saw her black silk arms go around him, the black-wigged head bend down over his smooth one.

Emilia had sunk down on the bench, her hands over her face. Esther threw herself down by her, wrapping her in her arms.

"Let him go, dear," she said. "He's right. And he's the best sport in the world. Don't take it too hard, Emilia, lots of girls want him and he'll marry one of them some time. I may take him over myself, for the matter of that!"

Roger was bending over her, all love and happiness in his face. But she straightened herself and spoke to Esther, facing her.

"What if—what Dick said had been true?"

"Well, what of it?" said the girl negligently.

"Esther!"

"Well, what of it? So long as you're what you are, fine and conscientious and right-minded and really superhonest and innocent, if you ask me—I cannot see that it would be anything to make all this song about. 'Course Dick's a climber—he'd probably say it about Queen Mary if he'd ever shaken hands with her." She paused, and spoke more seriously. "If Robin knew you were making yourself and Roger unhappy this way he'd hate it. If you believe he's existing somewhere still—and I do—have some common sense, do what he'd want you to; what I've been working like a pup with you and Manny and Roger all summer to have happen." She added a final argument. "I don't believe he'd make you stop your career!"

She whisked out of the arbor; they saw her running fleetly up the steps of the Valaty house, where the door had closed on Manny and his mother.

Roger came close again. Quietly, almost fatherly, he took her into his arms.

"My darling," he said, "give up this sense of duty to Manny. You have heard him, he won't hold you to it. We've lost twelve years of happiness, you and I."

He felt her stiffen in his hold; he could scarcely hear the almost impossible words, "But what Dick said—was true."

He did not start or change his position. His voice was quiet.

"I know, dearest. Your father told me when he was dying. The letter he wrote you was the bitterest grief of all his grief. But from what you said in Pelham, I thought—until just now—it was Manny Rosen."

"And yet you loved me—" She flung her head back and stared at him almost in terror.

"My own Emilia, unchanged — the most beautiful, the most innocent, the most good and lovable always—I have told you a thousand times what you are to me. I hope I'll tell you a thousand times more——"

She lifted her face like the child that in a way she would always be, and kissed him. "Oh, it's so good," she said brokenly, "to be home."

THE END.

DROP IN MILK PRICES BOOSTS CONSUMPTION

LONDON, Ont. Dec. 22. (CP)—Increased consumption of milk since dealers here brought the price down to seven and five cents a quart was reported by distributors to-day. Many homes had doubled the daily demand and were taking quarts where pints had previously been consumed. Coupled with a decreased supply, the increased demand may send prices up again, it is thought.

The first payment of $1 per 100 pounds was made to producers today, with dealers awaiting the reaction to secure higher prices.

GANG TERRORIZES RESIDENTS

WINDSOR, Ont.—Alleging threats of kidnapping and torture by a gang from Detroit, Herman Kolfage, Sandwich, charges a gang has been terrorizing a number of people in Essex County in search for liquor. He claims facts were placed with police, both provincial and local, following an alleged raid on his houseboat Tuesday night.

Inspector Oliver, Provincial police, hinted to-day his officers were checking but would not divulge further information.

HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

DORCHESTER.—Three Canadian National Railways sectionmen had a narrow escape from death when a locomotive demolished a hand car on which they were riding near here.

George Mulholland, J. Day and E. Paul jumped from the hand car yesterday just a few seconds before the locomotive struck it.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22 (C.P.).—Grain prices in Chicago tended downward early to-day, despite unexpected upturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool. New York stock market setbacks had a bearish effect on grain values here. Opening unchanged to 1-8 off, Chicago wheat futures subsequently sagged all around. Corn started a shade lower to 1-8 advance, and later underwent a general decline.

Two Masked Gunmen Rain Christmas Trip

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—(C.P.) — Two masked gunmen ruined Joe Burns' Christmas plans early to-day.

Joe was going to spend the holiday with his wife who is in New York. Last night his plans were completed. He had his passport, railway tickets and $15 pocket money. He was all set to take the train to-day.

Early this morning there came a knock at the door of his home. He thought it was some of his friends come to bid him farewell and wish him a Merry Christmas.

But instead it was two tough looking gentlemen wearing black masks and toting guns. Entering the hall, they curtly ordered him to stand with his face to the wall and took his passport, tickets and cash.

Joe sent an explanatory telegram to his wife in New York and resigned himself to a dismal Christmas at home.

STUDENT MISSING

TORONTO.—Police to-day are searching for Lorraine Cameron, 14-year-old art student who disappeared from home Monday night. The child was quiet and restrained, and had lived in the city only 16 months. She failed to arrive home from school Monday and has not been seen since.

EXPENDITURES LOWERED.

STONEY CREEK, Ont., December 22 (C.P.). — At the final meeting of the Stoney Creek High School Board the financial statement showed that the expenditure during the twelve months was less than any previous year, although the number of pupils was the largest in its history. The Board will close with a substantial sum to its credit.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (C.P.). — Stocks had slightly reduced extreme losses of 1 to 3 points in the late trading to-day. The market turned very dull on the decline, most of which occurred during the morning. Toward the close, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, New York Central and Union Pacific were off a couple of points, while U.S. Steel Common and Preferred, American Can., Santa Fe and several other leaders showed losses of around a point. Sales approximated 1,100,000 shares.

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Dec. 22. — (CP) — Sluggish trend of outside markets and a moderate export demand clipped a fraction from early advances Winnipeg wheat market here today. Trading for the most part was dull with the bulk of support credited to Seaboard houses. Price trend at mid-session ruled an even ¼c below yesterday's close, with December at 40; May at 42 3-8 and July at 43½.

At the start prices were fractionally higher in sympathy with Liverpool but eased shortly after opening due to weakness in stocks and easiness in the Chicago market. Trading during the entire first hour was extremely dull and featureless and early reports indicate that no export business of any account was worked overnight.

Liverpool wheat opened higher in sympathy with the strength in North American markets yesterday and quotations in the final stages were 3-8d higher per 100 pounds. Buenos Aires wheat at noon was ½c lower per bushel.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 22. (CP)—The spotlight was left pretty much to the cheap issues including Eldorado and Siscoe on the Standard Mining Market to-day. Even with the holiday dullness resting heavily upon operations the price level remained firm.

The buying wave in Eldorado that set in three days ago continued and the stock advanced to 1.35 for a gain of 2½ accumulation of Siscoe featured trading. The stock advanced to 1.02 and closed at 99 for a gain of 3½. High-priced golds lagged along within a narrow range. Lake Shore showed an advance of a few cents, McIntyre gained to $23 and Dome was easier.

Silver and copper shares were on the weak side. Noranda weakened to 18.90, Nickel to 8.85, and Coast Copper to 1.75. Nipissing struck a new low for the Fall movement at 95.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 22. (CP) — Stocks closed with losses in a majority of cases on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day although the recessions were of small fractions only. Volume was about of ordinary holiday calibre with the trading centring chiefly in Nickel, C.P.R., B.A. Oil and Walkers common. Gypsum and Alabastine fell back to 2, a new low for the year.

Ford "A" was carried down to 6⅝, C.P.R. was off ⅛ at 16¼ and Brazilian also lost ¼, closing at 9½. Weakness extended to Consolidated Smelters which slumped to 60 for a loss of one point, and Nickel at 8⅜ was off a fraction.

Outside of B.A. which was active and firm at 8, the oil shares were quiet, Imperial trading at 8½ off ⅛ and International Pete doing nothing. Food shares were mixed in trend.

DIDRIKSON EXONERATED

NEW ORLEANS.—Mildred Babe Didrikson, famous U. S. woman athlete, was exonerated on charges of authorizing publication of an automobile advertisement with her endorsement and to-day was reinstated to amateur standing by the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union here.

CONFESSES TO HOLDUP

WINDSOR, Ont.—Edward O'Neil, alias Norris, alias Nolen, has allegedly confessed to having taken part in the holdup of the Bredin Bread Company at Toronto, according to a statement issued to-day by Detective Allan Alexander of the Toronto Police Department.

REMANDED.

GALT.—William Bullock, Ray Koehler and Joe Niddery, all of Brantford, were remanded to jail for a week for sentence to-day when they appeared in court charged with conspiracy to commit armed robbery.

that assures that a Christmas basket will go out to them.

All church organizations, the Salvation Army, service clubs, and lodges have come forward to assist greatly in the work of seeing all families well fed on Christmas Day, but more remains to be done.

All such organizations have taken a certain number of names, and have accepted the responsibility of bringing joy into barren homes.

The names of needy families who are still not certain of Christmas baskets can be secured at the City Relief Office. Any organization or private citizen who would like to join in this work and see the fulfilment of Peterborough's slogan, "No hungry families on Christmas Day," need only communicate with the relief office. This should be done in order to prevent overlapping. The need is great.

the upper air is reduced to zero.

So much for "black" snow. What about the "white" kind?

Horizon Hard To Find.

It, too, has its menaces, particularly in flying over the vast regions of the North-West territories, regions that are still inadequately charted. The snow diffuses the light to such an extent that shadows are indistinct. The pilot is frequently unable to make out the shore-line of the lakes. The absence of trees in the barren lands adds to the hazard, for nothing breaks the monotony of the white vista that stretches away on every side. The horizon itself is hard to determine; contours and slopes do not show up. Pilots frequently have landed on steep hillsides in the firm belief that they were bringing their ship down on level ground.

Fof is prevalent in the Arctic, Captain Upson says, and particularly is this so on Great Bear Lake, the locale of Canada's newest Eldorado. The air moving southward from the ice-covered areas meets that rising from the sun-warmed land in summer-time. With an onshore wind fog may develop very quickly. The thing for the flier to do, then, is to look for a pocket, or land somewhere else and wait for the fog to lift.

Glassy Lakes.

And hazards present themselves even in the calmest of summer days. When the surface of the lakes is unruffled, glassy-smooth, the time has arrived for the pilot to exercise the extreme caution in making a landing. It is impossible to ascertain from a height where the surface is. A successful landing necessitates a slow sinking, with engine running, until the surface is touched by the pontoons. Several pilots have met their death by attempting to land on the mirror-like surface. Presumably they miscalculated and flew straight into the lake; or they "flattened out" at too great a height and their ship stalled into a nose-dive.

Forest fires in the heavily wooded portals of the barren lands, drifting snow which is whipped up by winds and carried high in the air, like fine dust, and heavy rains, add to the hazards of Arctic flying, says Captain Upson.

go along with the thought that the personnel conducting the conversations (war debts and economic conference) should be identical."

Because he had no constitutional authority as to the economic conference until March, and because of the divergence of opinions between himself and Mr. Hoover, as to scope of this conference, Roosevelt said:

"I must respectfully suggest that the appointing of the permanent delegates and the final determination of the program of the economic conference be held in abeyance until after March 4."

FOLLOW HERRIOT'S LEAD.

PARIS, December 22 (C.P.). — Joseph Paul-Boncour intends to follow the policies of the Herriot Government with regard to negotiations in connection with the war debt, he revealed to-day in his first appearance as Premier before the Chamber of Deputies.

His primary objective will be a conference to effect a general settlement, but he warned that the political situation in the United States makes it advisable to conduct the negotiations with the greatest care.

His disarmament policy also will be a continuation of his predecessor's. In domestic matters he intends to effect administrative economies which probably will take the form of salary and pension reductions.

In his foreign relations, he said, he desires particularly to cultivate the friendship between France and Great Britain, at the same time granting to Germany so far as he can consistently do so the status of equality which she demands.

ALD. M. TURNER NOT CANDIDATE FOR THE COUNCIL

in this arena. Nominations for the commission are scheduled for Friday morning, from 10 to 11 o'clock, at the same time as the nominations for Mayor. The list of candidates for the aldermanic board will be made up tomorrow evening when nominations will be received by City Clerk Armstrong in the council chamber from 7.30 until 8.30 o'clock.

By his public statement several weeks ago Fred Goodfellow removed any doubt about his intentions. James Ellis said this morning that he did not wish to cause an election, but if there were more candidates than the number of vacant seats he would be in the field.

Aldermen Holland, Hamilton and McNabb have declared their willingness to remain in the city's administration if the ratepayers wanted them. The tenor of their brief statements was in the same chord, recognising that thee hoice rests with the ratepayers. Alderman Hamilton is the present chairman of the Board of Works, Alderman McNabb has been chairman this year of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Alderman Holland is chairman of the Reception Committee.

South Ward Candidate

Max R. Sloan, Romaine Street, told The Examiner this morning, that there was a general feeling throughout the south ward that this section of the city should be directly represented in the council.

"From Sherbrooke Street south, a large area of the city, there is no resident member of the council" Mr. Sloan said. "I am offering myself to the ratpayers as a candidate for alderman on a platform of trying to bring about lower taxes by close examination of every item of civic expenditure. I will support every move for economy which will give a maximum benefit to both the taxpayers and the unemployed. I believe that a generous arrangement of relief should be made with a graded allowance to those in need who have been longer residents of Peterborough. We are large taxpayers, and I feel that the question of taxes which has become so important to the owners of property should receive the most careful attention during these times. I would be opposed to all non-productive expenditures except where it can be shown that a larger measure of relief would accrue from them. I am in favor of local contractors and workman being awarded all contracts, for the time being at least, where the cost is anything like near in line; and I am for all material used in civic work being purchased locally or through our merchants, consistent with proper price and service."

Board of Education.

Each of the four members of the Board of Education whose terms expire at the end of this year, have expressed a willingness to offer themselves for re-nomination. They are E. F. Reid, James Dutton, I. P. McNabb and Dr. A. Moir.

Present indications are that the candidates will receive an acclamation, there having been absolutely no sign that any other candidates are coming forward to precipitate an election fight. But of course the issue remains in doubt until City Clerk S. R. Armstrong shall announce on Friday forenoon that nominations are closed.

Mr. Reid completes his fourth consecutive term of eight years' service on the Board of Education. During that period he has held the chairmanship of the Property Committee for four years, and chairmanship of the Finance Committee for one year.

Mr. McNabb and Mr. Dutton have each seen four years on the Board, the former having held the chairmanship of the Finance Committee for a year and the chairmanship of the Appointments Committee for two years, and Mr. Dutton having held chairmanship of the Property Committee during the past year. He has also been a member of the Advisory Vocational Committee for the past six years, three of which have been spent as chairman of the committee.

Dr. Moir was first elected to the Board four years ago. He was returned by acclamation for his second term of two years. During his period in office he has served as chairman of the Supervision Committee.

Police Chief, Banker Wounded In Hold-Up

GEORGETOWN, Ill., Dec. 22 (C.P.)—Four robbers wounded O. P. Clark, bank president, and escaped with $9,300 in a daring highway robbery to-day.

They opened fire with shotguns when Evans, sensing a holdup as their sedan drew alongside Clark's coupe, drew a revolver. Both men were wounded in the head and were brought to a hospital. Their injuries were not believed to be serious.

The money was being taken from a Danville bank to Georgetown to use in cashing miners' pay checks, Friday.

PRICES LOWER THIS CHRISTMAS THAN FOR A GOOD MANY YEARS

Turkeys Were 50 and 55 Cents a Pound in 1920—Now 22 to 25.

POTATOES ONCE $5 A BAG

Not in many years have prices been so low in the city, as far as foodstuffs go. On the farmers' market this week fowl could be bought for almost a song. Turkeys went as low as 15 cents, if bought in quantities, while 22 cents a pound was the highest price for a good hen bird, guaranteed Government blood-tested, which is the latest idea for fowl. Last Saturday, they were down to 14 cents a pound. Geese yesterday morning touched 11 cents a pound, and chickens and ducks could be bought for 14 and 15 cents. Potatoes were 65 cents a bag and pork and beef 6 and 8 cents a pound, for front and hind quarters. Eggs were 32 to 38 cents a dozen and butter 20 cents a pound.

Comparisons may be odious, but they are often interesting. In 1913, just before the war, turkeys were priced at 22 to 25 cents a pound, geese at 14 to 16, ducks 18 and 19 cents and chickens 16 to 18 cents a pound.

In 1914, the first year of the conflict, Christmas-time turkeys sold at 17 to 19 cents a pound, geese at 14 and 15 cents, ducks 16 to 18 and chickens at 14 to 16 cents a pound. Prices of fowl approximated fairly those of to-day. Eggs and butter were higher, the former selling at 45 cents a dozen, with 35 cents asked for storage eggs, and the latter at 28 to 30 cents a pound.

In 1917, turkeys were 35 cents a pound, chickens and ducks 25 cents, butter 47 to 50 cents a pound and eggs 60 and 65 cents a dozen.

The up-grade continued in 1918. Turkeys were 40 cents a pound, geese 30, chickens 29, eggs were extravagances at 70 cents a dozen, butter was 53 to 57 cents a pound and potatoes $1.70 a bag. Beef on the market was priced at 27 cents a pound and pork at 28 to 30 cents, a long way ahead of the low prices of to-day.

Bumper Prices.

In later years, potatoes went to aristocratic heights, one year scaling $5 a bag, when the spuds were very scarce.

The year 1920 saw a bumper Christmas market for the farmers. Turkeys were 50 and 55 cents a pound, with an ordinary bird bringing $5 and many selling at $10 apiece. Geese were 35 cents, chickens 30 cents and ducks 35 to 40 cents a pound. Butter was 55 cents a pound and eggs were alarming at 90 cents for twelve.

In 1922, just a decade back, turkeys sold at 35 to 40 cents a pound, geese at 26 to 30 and chickens at 20 cents a pound. Butter was 35 to 38 cents and eggs 45 to 60 cents a dozen.

Two years ago, turkeys were 28 to 35 cents a pound, geese 20 to 23 cents, chickens 20 to 22 cents. Eggs were 45 to 50 cents a dozen and butter was 30 cents a pound.

Last Christmas, turkeys were bought for 23 to 30 cents a pound, chickens for 22 cents and geese from 18 to 22. Butter was 22 cents a pound and eggs 28 cents a dozen.

In 1913, a Christmas dinner for five people, as calculated by a local caterer, ran in the neighborhood of an outlay of $9.88, while the same dinner in 1914 cost about $10.37. To-day, it could be put on the table for an approximate cost of $7.44.

The contrasting prices for the three years, 1913, 1914 and 1932, for the items required for such a meal, are reckoned as follows: 1½ pints soup; 1913 15 cents, 1914 15 cents, 1932 10 cents; 1½ pounds fish, 20-23-19 cents; 12 pounds turkey, $3.30-$2.65-$2.00; cranberry sauce, 10-10-10 cents; small measure potatoes, 12-10-5 cents; parsnips or vegetable marrow, 10-10-5 cents; plum pudding, 65-75-50 cents; hard sauce for pudding, 15-15-15 cents; mince pie, 25-25-25 cents; coffee, 15-15-15 cents; fruit, oranges, dates, figs, 35-50-30 cents; nuts, 25-25-20 cents; candies, 50-40 cents (no price was reckoned for candy in 1913 for some reason); flowers or table decorations, $1.50-$2-$1; fuel and labor, $2.50-$2.50-$2.

COUNCIL MEETS AT MILLBROOK

Entire Body Will Act as Relief Committee, with Councillor Bentley as Chairman.

LAST SESSION OF YEAR

MILLBROOK, Dec. 22.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Reeve P. Stinson presided at the final meeting of the Millbrook Municipal Council for 1932, members all being present and communications read as follows:

From the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, stating that Mrs. Thursa Russell is a patient there and that this municipality is responsible for maintenance.

Bentley-Ball: That the clerk write the Nicholls Hospital advising them to communicate with the clerk of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham as they pay maintenance in such cases. Carried.

From J. A. Ellis, Toronto, secretary of the Relief Committee of Ontario, advising Council how to act in direct relief cases.

Ball-Bentley: That instructions regarding direct relief be complied with, and that the clerk make out accounts for November and forward same to Mr. Ellis. Carried.

J. N. McGill addressed Council regarding grant to Agricultural Society, and on motion of Ball-Eakins, the usual grant of $75 was made.

Councillor Bentley introduced a by-law to unite polling subdivisions Nos. 1 and 2 for municipal purposes, which was passed.

Eakins-Ball: That the whole Council be a committee on relief, with Councillor Bentley as chairman. Carried.

A notice was passed urging any citizens having wood to cut to please confer with Councillor Bentley, chairman of relief, as there are a number of men in town who will cut wood for the same price as machine-cutting, therefore aiding unemployment.

The following accounts were presented, and on motion, ordered paid:

Hydro-Electric, street lighting, $71.17; Municipal World, supplies, $3.35; Richards & Richards, 4th quarter's printing, $23.75; C. Thorndyke, 4th quarter's salary, postage, etc., $60.00; counties treasurer, maintenance Mrs. Turner, $26.25; J. Guthrie, work, $1.25; G. Freelove, work, $1.75; J. Stevenson, work, $1.75; F. A. Kidd, groceries J. McIvor, $25.54; J. T. Deyell, constable, $10.00; H. Nattress, caretaker $15, meals $8.50, $23.50. Public Library Board, grant, $250.00; W. Tremaine, account, $2.20; R. H. Edmunds, account, 45c; firemen's grant, $150.00.

Reeve Stinson thanked the members of Council and the municipal officers for their kind co-operation during the year, and wished them all the season's greetings. Council then adjourned.

FUR THIEF SUSPECTS PLEAD THEIR OWN CASE

TORONTO, Dec. 22. — C.P.) — "British justice says 10 guilty men should be set free rather than that one innocent many should suffer", sad Max Beaver in addressing the jury which is trying him and Morris Rosenbaum on charges of stealing valuable furs from a local store.

The prisoners have conducted their own defence, not being represented by counsel. Rosenbaum told the jury the police recovered 41 fur coats, 153 fox furs and 1,000 skins. the star crown witness asked the jury to believe, Rosenbaum said, this huge stock was carried out in 10 minutes.

"There must be a screw loose in his head somewhere. We all have confidence in our police and law. And if we drove all those furs out on the night in question, surely the police would have seen it."

PIONEER PASSES

BRANTFORD,—Mrs. Louise Halberstadt, pioneer of this district, is dead. She was 92 years old. The body was taken to-day to Galt. She is survived by three sons, Fred C. Brantford; Charles, Preston, and Joseph R., Galt; and two daughters, Mrs. Spittal, Brantford and Mrs. J. W. Campbell, Galt.

Extortion Efforts Land Youth In Jail

CHATHAM, Ont., December 22. (C.P.). — Edward L. Labombarde, 21, will appear in County Police Court today on two charges of attempting to extort $10,000 by menace from David E. Walker, of Charing Cross.

Labombarde is alleged to have confessed. It is alleged he wrote two letters to Walker, the first asking for the money to be placed at a certain spot, and the second intimating a man would call for the money. Labombarde, according to the police, made the call. Detained by police, he was then permitted to go to a place where, he said, he was to meet the man who had asked him to go to the Walker home for the parcel of money. Nobody appeared, Labombarde then confessed, police claim.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

OTTAWA.—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death last night in connection with three infants who died from coal-gas poising in a boarding home here a week ago, a defect in a stove was the direct cause of death, it was found.

The infants, wards of the city, had been boarded with Mrs. Malvina Kiroudac, 244 York street. One cold night she placed them in cots around the kitchen stove. When she arose early next morning to go to her scrubbing job, the infants were dead.

Canteen Worker Dies; Murder Charge Laid

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 22.—(CP) George A. Hendrie yesterday was charged with the murder of Peter Davis, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery canteen employee, who died this morning from injuries allegedly inflicted by Hendrie.

Hendrie, arrested yesterday in Smith's Falls, pleaded not guilty. An inquest into the death of Davis has been ordered for today, and a post-mortem was conducted yesterday.

While provincial police were bringing Hendrie to this city, he is alleged to have confessed to attacking Davis when the latter surprised him as he was attempting to rob the canteen.

U. S. BARS OUT 500,000 ALIENS

Action Taken on Law Excluding Persons "Likely to Become Public Charge."

12,697 VISAS IN 1932.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—A.P.) —Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson yesterday reported to President Hoover that as a result of emergency bars against immigration, over 500,000 aliens who normally would have entered the United States "during the economic depression" have been held out

The Secretary of State reported this result had been accomplished solely through the enforcement of existing provisions of law, principally the clause excluding persons "likely to become a public charge."

Breaking down his total into smaller figures, Stimson said that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, only 12,697 quota immigration visas were issued as compared with the total annual quotas of 153,831.

SOUTH-WESTERN ONTARIO YIELDS 10 WOLF PELTS

LONDON, Ont., December 22 (C. P.). — Approximately 10 wolves have fallen this year before the guns of hunters and farmers of the settled districts of South-western Ontario, Col. Richard Emmerton, Western Ontario Game and Fisheries Warden, said to-day.

Most of the animals killed in Western Ontario fell in the Bruce Peninsula. Two were killed in the Thedford District and one in Norfolk County. All were brush wolves, whose habits are to live in woods close to settled areas.

The Norfolk wolf was the one killed by a hunting party last week, Col. Emmerton inspected it, while in Toronto yesterday, and reported it to be a type of brush wolf.

MINES STAY IDLE

RESERVE, N.S. — Hundreds of miners, believing yesterday's strike had forced a settle of unemployment relief grievances, turned out for work to-day, but returned to their home when informed all their demands had not been met. As a result, Collieries No. 5 and No. 10 still are idle.

RELIEVING SERIOUS HEART CASES

Only a few years ago the words "heart disease" were sufficient to throw the patient and family into the depths of despair. Every form of work or exercise was forbidden as the patient "might fall dead" at any moment.

The war came along and showed what Dr. James MacKenzie had been teaching for years, namely that a heart murmur was not a serious condition as long as the heart was doing its work. A leaky pump continues to pump water year after year, often doing much more work than a perfect but very small pump, or in the case of the heart, a heart whose normal muscular walls are not really powerful.

And so it has come about that many thousands of individuals with heart murmurs enjoy life as long as those whose hearts are free from murmurs.

But what about those with severe heart disease, whose feet, ankles, knees, or other parts become swollen—filled with fluid?

Until recently all that was done was to give them digitalis which slowed and strengthened the heart beat, and for a number of years they would be able to live almost a normal life, always of course being in danger of collapse.

Today however physicians are able to help many of these severe cases of heart disease by vigorous treatment.

Drs. H. T. Hyman, and N. M. Fenichel, New York City, report 100 cases of the severe or serious type in which relief was obtained by the following methods:

(1) Rest, complete rest of mind and body for a time, with foods that were easily digested and thus no digestive upsets occurring to interfere with the heart's action.

(2) The fluid that has accumulated in the cavities of the body—abdomen, joints, and so forth—was removed by mechanical means.

(3) The drug digitalis was used as a routine treatment—the greatest heart drug known to science.

The use of diuretics. A diuretic is a drug that enables the kidneys to throw off more fluid.

It is certainly gratifying to see how these serious heart cases, formerly without hope, are now relieved of their symptoms and able to get something out of life.

GROVE PUPILS PRESENT PLAY

Shakespeare's Great Tragedy, "Julius Caesar" Enacted By Students.

TAKE PARTS WELL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, December 22. — "The Grove," long famous for its sports proficiency, has entered the field of dramatics, and "The Grove" Dramatic Club in their production of "Julius Caesar" on Monday evening reached a new high record, quite as high as that made in the academic or sporting fields. The play was given at the school before an audience composed of the staff and pupils and friends of the school.

great tragedy, "Julius Caesar," was fully justified in the production, which it is by no means an exaggeration to call high class. The scenery was surprisingly well managed, and also the lighting effects which were good, making a real contribution to the atmosphere, which transported the audience from the school to Ancient Rome, with its problems, its conspiracies, and conspirators. The performers seemed to be no longer school boys but Roman citizens, each fitting into the part to be impersonated so well that the actors fairly lived the parts. In action, the dignified mein which one associates with those proud Romans of the days of Rome's greatness, was personified to the life by the chief characters. Never did a lapse break the spell which held the audience in closest attention.

The stately Caesar, the valiant Mark Antony, the insinuating Cassius, the noble spirited Brutus and the sardonic Casca, were portrayed with a regard to detail which denoted talent more than ordinary. The minor parts were all well taken also, each filling his place, contributing his part to the great drama, which enacted nearly two thousand years ago, still lives as one of the world's great tragedies.

The Soothsayer, who warned Caesar of his doom, was outstanding, and the feminine parts of Portia, wife of Brutus, and Calpurnia, wife of Caesar, were exceedingly good.

Among the high lights of the performance might be noted the wooing of Brutus, that devoted friend of Caesar, to the ranks of the conspirators, by the wily Cassius; the funeral oration of Mark Antony, the declamation of Antony over the dead body of Brutus.

Mark Antony's funeral oration, familiar to most people, took on a new meaning in the setting which was surprising in its realism, and the declamation was given in a manner which did credit to the training and the orator.

In the act the picturesque armour of the period, added its note of militarism; the armour, specially procured for the production, was correct in every detail, and one was impressed by the contrast to the present day uniforms.

T. J. Wood, director, was called before the curtain at the close of the play by the demand of the audience, and received a hearty ovation on the splendid success of the venture.

Mr. Wood modestly disclaimed the credit, passing it on to The Grove players. Mr. Wood and the boys all deserve the greatest praise for a performance which was outstanding in the dramatic annals of Lakefield.

E. dele Fletcher was prompter, a position, which he said, was a sinecure, as the players were word perfect. William Burgess was stage manager.

The head master, Rev. Doctor A. W. Mackenzie, introduced the play in a brief speech, and at its close voiced his appreciation of its overwhelming success.

The following was the cast:

Julius Caesar: Allan Wright.
Marcus Brutus: John Macrae.
Cassius: Douglas Macdonald.
Marcus Antonius: Edward Wood.
Casca: Allan Gray.
Cicero: Edward Hincks.

Marullus: Bernard Hepburn.
Soothsayer: Gavin Macaulay.
Cinna, the Poet: John Creighton.
Calpurnia, wife to Caesar: Harry Carter.
Portia, wife to Brutus: Jocelyn Payne.
Servant to Caesar, Antony: Thos. Depch.
Cobbler: Thomas Dench.
Lucius: Hugh Harvey.
Strato: Edward Hincks.
Pindorus: Bernard Hepburn.
Citizens, Soldiers and others: — Dench, Jones, Dawe, Gunn, Mitchell.

A 26-foot shark weighing 3,000 pounds and locally known as a "liver shark" was recently taken at Harbor DeLoutre, N.B. The huge fish, the first of its kind ever taken in Bay of Fundy waters yielded 350 gallons of liver, and a great quantity of oil.

Bethlehem Scene Is Painted By Turners

In the workrooms at the J. J. Turner and Sons Limited factory here yesterday afternoon The Examiner viewed a painting ten by five feet in size, depicting the visit of the angel to the Shepherds on the Hills of Bethlehem following the birth of the Saviour.

Painted by Harry Lewis, one of the Turner Company's artists, the picture was made to the order of M. Veneranda of 509 King street. It is to be placed outside his residence to-day, and by night throughout the Christmas season will be floodlighted. Underneath the picture is to be placed the caption "Peace on Earth Goodwill to all Men."

Dairy Notes

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, December 22. —The Eastern Dairyman's Association, which has convened annually since 1877, will again meet in convention in Perth, Ont., on Jan. 4 and 5, 1933.

During the season just closed the total cheese graded in the 13 factories in Seymour township, and which group is quite compact, and from which returns are easily available, we find was 1,464,426 lbs., and the gross returns from the sale of cheese would amount to $433 per patron for the 321 patrons delivering milk to the cheese factories, compared with $1,011 for each of the 389 patrons in 1925. In that year the average price was 20.7c as compared with the 1932 price which registered 9.5c.

Beaver Factory.

The annual meeting of Beaver Cheese Factory was held on Friday afternoon, presided over by Alfred Merrills, the president of the company. Due to the absence of the auditor, Guss Bertrand, the auditors' report was read in conjunction with the financial statement given by the secretary, G. Isaac, and duly passed by the meeting. Mr. Merrills assured the patrons that everything they wished to be taken up by the Eastern Dairymen's Association would be taken care of.

A motion was passed requiring the directors to look into the possibilities connected with churning the whey cream and if possible to install the necessary equipment.

The following items appear in the report of 1932: Pounds of milk, 1,008,288; lbs. of cheese, 84,751; lbs. of butter fat, 30,924; milk per lb. cheese, 11.96 lbs; average price per lb. of cheese 9.25c; average price per lb. butter fat, 26.33; cheese per lb. butter fat, 2.74 lbs.

S. H. Meal of Campbellford and J. A. Murray, group instructor, addressed the meeting and the secretary was instructed to send to John Anderson, for some years a member of the Board of Directors, a letter expressing the sympathy of the company toward him in his serious illness.

Usertesen was the name of three kings of Egypt of the twelfth dynasty.

BETHEL COUPLE HONORED UPON EVE OF DEPARTURE

BETHEL, Dec. 22 (Examiner Correspondence)—A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Francis on Friday evening to bid them farewell on the eve of their departure for their new home at Mather's Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis were presented with a beautiful clock as a small token of the high esteem in which they were held in this community.

The evening was spent in dancing. Mr. Victor Foley and Mr. Roy Francis supplying the music. At midnight a delicious luncheon was served by the ladies.

Obituary

MRS. GEORGE HOWSON

MILLBROOK, Dec. 22 (Examiner Correspondence)—The death of Margaret Jane McCamus (Mrs. George Howson), which occurred on Sunday, December 18, after a comparatively brief illness, removed probably the oldest resident of the community, deceased having been born in Manchester, England, ninety-three years ago, and coming to Canada with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John McCamus, when only two years of age.

Deceased was the eldest of a family of five daughters and four sons, and the family homestead was located in Hope Township where Mr. and Mrs. McCamus cleared the land from the virgin forest, and brought up their family of nine children. Later they moved to Otonabee, not far from Mather's Corners, where they were living when the marriage of Margaret McCamus and George Howson took place in 1863, the latter predeceasing his wife by twenty-nine years.

To their union two daughters and five sons were born, all of whom survive their parents: Mrs. Thomas Muncey, Greenworth, Sask.; Mrs. C. Neill, Toronto; Gilbert, of Keene; Edwin, of North Battleford, Sask.; Christopher, of Oakland, California; George, of Millbrook and J. Wesley, of Cavan.

Mrs. Howson, though of such an advanced age, retained her faculties to a remarkable degree, and from early girlhood had been of an earnest Christian character, devoted to her church and its interests so long as health permitted, a good neighbor, and winning many friends wherever her place of residence might be through the sterling qualities and kindliness of disposition that marked her life throughout.

For the last five years deceased had made her home with her son at Millbrook, and was able to go about readily and care for herself, visitors being always welcome in her cheerful room, a serious illness last spring resulting in impaired strength though a fair degree of recovery was attained, and but three weeks of ill health preceded her death last Sunday. Besides those already mentioned the immediate surviving relatives include: two sisters, Mrs. Edwin Thurston, Toronto and Mrs. John Hanbidge, Peterborough; and two brothers, Rev. David McCamus, of London and Robert of Keene; two sisters were previously deceased, one, Miss Emma McCamus, just two weeks ago at Peterborough, and the other Mrs. John Howson, passing away thirty years since. Two brothers, John and William also predeceased their sister.

A private funeral was held on Tuesday, at 2 p.m., from the residence of Mr. George Howson, King street, Millbrook, the service being in charge of Rev. W. W. Jones, B. D., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, and the pall-bearers were six nephews: Albert and William Thurston, Wassan and William Hanbidge, Christopher, and Norman Howson. Interment was in the family burial plot at Keene. The beautiful floral tributes laid in loving memory on the casket included wreaths from the family, from Mrs. Edwin Howson and family, of Toronto and from some near neighbors.

Among relatives from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Edwin Howson, Earl Howson, Mrs. Wilfred Rush, and Mrs. Fred Byers, of Toronto; Mrs. Alex Bichard, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Albert, and Mr. and Mrs. William Thurston, and Mrs. Kennedy, of Dunsford; Christopher Howson, of Otonabee; Bruce Savigny, of Otonabee; Mr. and Mrs. Wasson Hanbidge, of Peterborough, and others.

10-Year-Old Hobo, No Crimes On Record Is Puzzle To Authorities And Parents

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 22 (C.P.)—"What to do about this 10 year-old hobo?" that seems to be a question here. Home surroundings are good and he has never committed a crime. Two weeks ago, however, where he was haled into juvenile court it was revealed he had a penchant for staying out all night.

One night this winter, the young hobo slept in Springbank Park, under the trees. Another night, with the mercury at zero, he slept in a hayrack and came back without frost bites at that. His mother brought him to see A. G. N. Bradshaw, probation officer, to whom the boy said he preferred staying home rather than going to an observation home.

Then came the climax. Major Bradshaw was just nicely tucked in bed when the phone rang. It was the observation home calling. The 10-year-old had once more wandered away from the family fireside and voluntarily turned up at the observation home, where he asked for a bed. He was accommodated.

He is still there—the first voluntary guest the institution has ever had.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—The local fresh egg market is still unsettled, but yesterday signs of steadiness began to appear, and prices were unchanged. The market on storage eggs was also ruling steady to firm. Fresh extras quoted by dealers to country shippers are 30c, while fresh firsts are firm at 25c. No change was shown in pullet extras at 20c, while seconds are quoted at 15c.

Poultry is moving well, but supplies are much heavier, particularly turkeys, due to the coming holiday season, and prices are inclined to be easier.

No change was reported by produce brokers in the butter and cheese market. Creamery, pasteurized No. 1, is quoted firm at 20¾c, to the shipper. Quotations to the retail trade for creamery prints, No. 1, are 24½c, while seconds are unchanged at 24c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Extensive liquidating sales by Eastern holders of wheat futures tumbled the Chicago market temporarily yesterday to below the season's bottom level, but fractional rallies ensued. Accuracy of Washington official crop estimates were widely questioned.

Late rallies in wheat prices were ascribed to purchase orders on the part of United States Government-sponsored agencies and to buying here against simultaneous sales at Winnipeg. Liverpool wheat quotations declined to a new all-time record low for futures in that market and to the lowest known for cash wheat or futures in England since 1588.

Close Is Unsettled

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8c higher, corn a shade to 5-8c down, oats 1-8c off to 1-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 15c lower.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 22. — For the first time in many sessions pressure of offerings lightened, sufficient export demand appeared to bring a measure of firmness to trading in wheat on the Grain Exchange here yesterday, and prices closed ⅝c to ⅞c higher.

December closed at 40½c, May at 42⅝c, and July at 43c.

Foreign trade was not large, but another bullish factor was the general tone of world grain news. The Australian new crop 2,330,000 bushels less in a Government report, and United States Government reports on the new winter wheat crop to the South were construed as bullish.

Broomhall reported some pressure prices placed on Argentine shipments, which induced a fractional loss at Liverpool. Buenos Aires was also a fraction off.

Cash wheat and coarse grains trading continued dormant.

SCIENTISTS SEEKING SOLUTION TO DEATH FLIGHT OF MURRES

Arctic Birds Migrate Annually and Perish in St. Lawrence River Basin.

LACK OF FOOD SUSPECTED

OTTAWA, Dec. 22 (C.P.)—Canadian scientists hope to solve this year one of the great mysteries of bird-life—why thousands of Murres periodically fly from far-northern waters to the St. Lawrence river basin only to die.

The strange migration already has started, the first in many years. Flocks of the Arctic seabirds have been observed passing high above Quebec City, flying toward Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa. In a few days they will be found dead in inland waters.

No one knows what causes the death-flight, why the birds desert the Arctic or why the St. Lawrence river basin always is chosen for their tragic ending, but scientists this year hope to provide answers because it may be years before the next migration.

Murres are about the size of a crow, but with smaller wings. The breast is white, the back, dark, the feet are webbed and the beak sharp and pointed.

The erratic wanderings of Murres in the past have taken them as far inland as Toronto and Ottawa. It is believed they perish in the southern latitudes from lack of natural food but it has not been established even if they attempt to eat on the death-flight. It is all a mystery to science—as much a mystery as the disappearance of the wild pigeon.

FRANCE, ITALY ARE PREPARED

cept one, which follows the Mediterranean shore from Nice in France to Vingtimilia in Italy, are mountain roads. Besides these roads there is no possibility for an army to move from one country to the other. Individuals might, indeed, navigate the wild mountains and glaciers. At least this hazardous stunt has been performed in recent years by Italian political fugitives. No man can tell, however, how many perished. Napoleon, and Caesar and Hannibal before him followed the roads, and even there they lost heavily through misadventure.

Heavily Mined

Above each mountain pass, in the neighborhood of the spot where the roads cross the line, Marshall Petain has caused to be erected small lookout posts. At the same time the mountain-sides are heavily mined. Nobody but the staff knows the exact location of these powerful explosive charges. Should an army approach from the direction of Italy, which can only be an Italian army of course, its presence must be observed by the men in the look-out.

But the mere pressure of a row of buttons, succeeding walls of granite will come crashing down into the gorge through which the roads pass. In ten minutes time or less the roads will be completely obliterated under thousands of tons of sharp and jagged rock. The pressure of the buttons has done the trick and the invasion by land has become impossible.

The curious fact is that the Italians have an exactly similar system of dynamiting the passages. Their looks out stations and the French, each equipped with these magic rows of buttons, which are linked, of course, by hidden wires with the buried explosive charges, are but a few miles apart. But whereas the French keep their explosives in storage places away from the roads in time of peace, the Italian mines are said to be always ready. Whether this is true or not can obviously not be verified by a foreigner without running the risk of being arrested and treated as a spy.

Travellers on the train along the Modana railway track need have no undue apprehensions however. Many times I have scanned and explored every inch of the line on both sides, but never did I see a trace or sign of the mines which might bring the mountains down on the coaches. In fact that road is too wide to be mined in this way.

Costs Billions of Dollars

The most of these frontier defences runs into the billions of dollars. The best brains of France and the highest engineering skill are employed on these vast works and one is quite naturally led to speculate in the presence of such staggering figures, of so much wealth and energy poured out for destructive purposes how greatly humanity would benefit if but a hundredth part of the money and energy were spent in the cause of peace.

For it is quite possible that all these huge and costly defences will prove absolutely useless in the event of an armed conflict either between France and Germany or between France and Italy. How will they stop a fleet of bombing aeroplanes, sailing over in the mist, radio-controlled?

The officers of the European staffs are quite certain that the next war, if it ever comes, will be fought in the air. Armies will stand at the frontiers, to be sure, but the objective in the next war will be the capital cities, the industrial regions, and the large centres of population. As soon as possible after a state of war exists between two countries, aerial fleets will leave with loads of explosives and gas straight for Paris, or Rome, or Berlin or London. This is meant when they talk about triking at the enemy's heart in the war academies these days.

The civilian populations are to be thrown into a panic, right from the first hour. There are bombs now which contain enough poison gas that a dozen of them will wipe out every living creature in an hour's time in cities like Paris with its three million and a half inhabitants. If two hostile coastal fleets, leaving simultaneously from France and Italy, let us say, taking a different route—and they would take a different rout for they would be radio-controlled—Paris and Rome might crumple into dust and infernal death at the same moment.

Inconceivable? Such things are conceived quite coolly and realistically in the war schools. What do you think they do there, knit socks? And so we will have either one thing or othe other. Or civilization will crumple up some day in a ghastly insane holocaust, or else the very thought of the frightfulness of such a war, as now is possible, will kill the very thought of war through the peoples saying "NO."

UNABLE TO PAY TAXES ON ROADS

Emily Township Petitioned to Revert Back to Statute Labor System.

The Emily Municipal Council met in the Farmers' Club Rooms on Thursday, Dec. 15th, 1932, as the statutes provide. The members present were H. E. Endicott, reeve, in the chair, and Councillors D. J. Guiry, H. Jackson, W. J. Patrick and T. H. Rice.

Communications were read from W. L. Weldon, asking for information, and recommendations in regard to applicants for old age pensions.

From R. J. Grandy re claims for compensation for damages to cars of Frank Crough and M. J. Herrington.

From H. C. Small, secretary Municipal Board, enclosing order of Board approving Telephone Bylaw No 617.

From the Central Supply Warehouse, Toronto, enclosing price list of goods and clothing required for relief purposes.

From M. D Harrington, advising council in the matter of the taxes against the property occupied by John Hickey.

From J. E. Anderson, enclosing certificate as required by the Jurors' Act.

Boundary accounts were received from the clerks of Ops, Cavan, Smith Ennismore and Verulam.

A petition was received from Melville McBrien and 18 others, asking council to revert to the statute labor system, and from Roy Howden and 32 others asking the council to submit the question of reverting to statute labor to a vote of the electors; both of the said petitions advancing as a reason that the ratepayers were unable to raise sufficient funds by taxation to maintain the roads.

Accounts were received from A. M. Fulton for legal advice, from E. J. Houlihan and Alex. McGahey for services as fenceviewers.

From George O'Donnell and M. D. Earl for supplies for relief of Wm Millage.

From Arthur McQuade for extra services as treasurer, and from Harry McElwain for extra services as collector for 1931.

A sheep valuer's report was received from Ed. Best. School orders were received from S. S. 6 and 15.

Eugene Switzer and others addressed the council re the matter of the sale of the East Emily Dairy Co.'s property for taxes, and a legal opinion from A. M. Fulton was read and filed on the matter.

The road accounts as presented by the road superintendent were approved and ordered paid.

The claims of Frank Crough and M. J. Harrington for compensation for broken cars were approved and referred to the Globe Indemnity Co.

No action was taken in the matter of old age pensions for Eliza Siddle, Catherine McAuliffe, Patrick Murphy, and a pension of $10 per month each was recommended in the case of Thos. and Annie Heenan.

The collector's time was extended until the 9th of Jan., 1933, and a bylaw introduced and passed appointing time and place for nomination and appointing all the necessary officers.

The following orders were drawn on the treasurer:

Ald. F. Armstrong Out For Mayoralty

LINDSAY, December 22 (Examiner Correspondence). — The municipal election pot is commencing to simmer in real earnest. Ald Frank Armstrong, who fought against secret sessions of the Council, has thrown his hat in the ring for the office of Mayor. Alderman D E Morrison announced to-day that he would oppose anyone not in the 1932 Council who aspired for the office of Mayor. Opposition is increasing to the by-law to merge the local Power and Light Commissions into one body, and the measure is in danger of defeat.

William Humphrey, of Verulam is dead at the age of eighty-seven years. He came to Canada with his parents when only ten years of age. They settled in Verulam, where the deceased lived all his life. He was a staunch Presbyterian, and a Liberal in politics. He is survived by one son.

It is announced in local C.N.R. circles that passenger traffic has been quite brisk during the past few days, and very satisfactory holiday business is anticipated. The grain movement has been held up for a few days, and the last big order received will not be taken care of until a later date.

Bruce Scott, despatcher at C.P.R. Station, has been transferred to Perth; J. McKenzie, roadmaster, has also been transferred to another division, while the section men on the Lindsay-Burketon branch have been transferred to Cavan, Fleetwood, and Bethany.

BOARD REVIEWS PENSIONS
OTTAWA. — Canadian National Railway directors are studying the company's pension scheme in the interests of economy, it was learned here in official circles. No pensions have been cut and no scale of reduction has been determined, the board's review not having progressed that far.
The board is acting on the suggestion of the Parliamentary Railway Committee which made a short study of the pension scheme a year ago.

FIDELIS MISSION OFFICERS ELECTED

George Street Church Society Holds Annual Meeting on Monday.

The Fidelis Mission Band of George Street United Church held their final meeting for the year on Monday afternoon in the Sunday School hall with a large attendance.

The meeting opened with the call to worship and prayer by the Superintendant, Mrs. Wellwood.

The President, Harry Winslow was in the chair and splendid reports were submitted by the secretary, Wilma Saunders and the Treasurer, Dorothy Smith, showing that the Band had reached their allocation.

A vocal duet was then rendered by Marjorie and Marion Foster and a piano solo by Pentland Wellwood. The election of officers for 1933 was held, resulting as follows: President, Elphie Saunders; 1st Vice President, Ileen Winslow; 2nd Vice President, Marjorie Lewis; Secretary, Betty Carman; Treasurer, Rosamond Burns; Pianists, Joy Walker and Merrell Smith; Heralds—China, Mary Duncan; Japan, Shirley Richardson; Canada, Dorothy Larue; India, Francis Smith; Siam Marjorie Foster; Korea Marguerite Ash.

Mrs J. B. Nelson donated a life membership certificate for the member obtaining the highest marks for the year and won by Marjorie Lewis, and presented by Mrs. Nelson. Mrs. Don Munroe presented a life membership pin to Margaret Fairbrother for faithful work. Prizes for attending every meeting were awarded to Loreen Wellwood and Dorothy Smith. Several others who missed only one meeting were presented with small remembrances, Ileen Winslow, Elphie Saunders, Mary Duncan, Frances Smith and Pentland Wellwood.

Mrs. E. Piper presented a life membership certificate to Henry Winslow for his faithful services as acting President during the year. Mrs. J. E. J. Millyard presented prizes to those having the most in their mite boxes. The first prizes being won by Loreen Wellwood, Pentland Wellwood and Velma McQuarrie with a large number getting second prizes.

A Christmas treat was then given and a jolly time enjoyed.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

IN MEMORIAM.

GIVE $17.00 TO RELIEF
The Central Charity Board gratefully expresses its thanks to the Peterborough Chapter No. 161, Order of the Eastern Star, for a donation of $17.00 to relief of needy families. The money was raised at a card party recently held by this ladies' lodge.

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB
The Friday Night Club at the Y.M.C.A. will hold its annual Christmas supper party tomorrow evening at 6.15 p.m. As is the custom of this club, a collection will be taken which is to be handed over to relief, and the toys that will weigh down the Christmas tree in the "Y" dining hall will also be distributed among the needy children of the city.
C. A. Salmonsen will preside at the meeting which will include several novelty numbers before a full turnout.

TRUCKS WANTED TO DISTRIBUTE TOYS.
Distribution of the thousand and more toys which have been renovated in the toy factory at the Fire Hall, is to be commenced on Friday. Fire Chief Gimblett had originally planned that the work should start on Saturday, but after giving the matter deeper consideration he realized that the task is too big to be handled satisfactorily in one day. Up to this morning the Chief's appeal for the loan of five motor trucks had resulted in the promised loan of one truck and a sedan automobile.

HUMAN SOCIETY MEETING
Notwithstanding the busy season of the year, the Humane Society found time to hold their regular monthly meeting in the council room of the Chamber of Commerce, on Tuesday evening. Several matters of interest were discussed and the Society hopes to add new and interested members to their strength, in the new year.

PIONEERS OF MADOC TOWNSHIP CELEBRATE 56TH WEDDING DAY

Mr. and Mrs. James Cassidy Still Take Active Part in Queensboro Affairs.

FARMED MANY YEARS.

QUEENSBORO, December 22 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mr. and Mrs. James Cassidy, two of the oldest residents of Madoc Township, on Tuesday celebrated the 56th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Cassidy, who on December 4 passed his eighty-eighth birthday, was born in Napanee, where he spent the first thirty years of his life, at which time he came to live at Cooper, and later purchased a farm there where he worked for the next fifty years, and eight years ago with his family moved into Queensboro. He was a hard worker and very industrious.

Mrs. Cassidy, who before her marriage was Victoria Jane Blair, a daughter of th elate Mr. and Mrs. William Blair of Cooper. She is still real active and an interested church worker. Both are members of the United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy were married by Rev. Mr. Sing, the Methodist minister, who at the time was stationed on the Eldorado Circuit. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Irwin now occupy the farm where the Cassidys spent all their active married days.

There are four sons and four daughters, Mrs. Jennie Clement of Belmont, Mrs. Herbert Brown of Ottawa, Mrs. Effie Manchester, R. N., of Ottawa, Miss Ida at home, Charles Edgar in Prince Edward County, Thomas Wellington of Queensboro, Robert of Moordale, Manitoba, William James of Elzivir Township, also twenty-seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Still Hopeful

Hopes for the return of her aviation husband, Paul Redfern, have been rekindled for Mrs. Gertrude Redfern, of Pittsburgh, with the report that Redfern had been held captive by South American savages who revere him as their king. Redfern disappeared on a non-stop flight to Brazil five years ago.

VIMY RIDGE LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS

Sister B. Monk is Installed as Worshipful Mistress of Lodge.

A large and enthusiastic gathering assembled in the Orange Hall on Tuesday evening for the annual election and installation of officers for 1933 of Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. 244. Visitors were present from Northern Light L.O.B.A., Lakefield, Eastern Star L.O.B.A., and Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A., Peterborough. Previous to the election and installation, the usual routine business was carried out, which proved that Vimy Ridge had a most successful year. At the conclusion of the business, Wor. Bro. G. Porter, P.C.M., conducted the election of officers, assisted by the officers of Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A.. The following officers were the choice of the lodge for the ensuing year:

Wor. Mistress, Sister B. Monk.
Dep. Mistress, Sister F. Pilling.
Chaplain, Sister A. Elliott.
Rec. Secy., Sister E. Millard.
Fin. Secy., Sister J. Samis.
Treasurer, Sister E. Delong.
Direct. of Cer., Sister L. Hotson.
1st Lect., Sister L. Elliotson.
2nd Lect., Sister G. Mann.
1st Comm., Sister M. Brown.
2nd Comm., Sister H. Ferguson.
3rd Comm., Sister L. Pickering.
4th Comm., Sister A. Foster.
5th Comm., Sister S. Parkes.
Inner Gurd, Sister H. Elliotson.
Guardian, Bro. G. Porter.
Auditors, Bro. G. Porter, Sister G. Campbell, Sister R. Wright.
Pianist, Sister E. Broadley.
Degree Captain, Sister A. Devall.

The election concluded, Right Worshipful Sister M. Wright conducted the installation ceremony in an admirable manner, assisted by Sister Collins, P.M. of Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A., Sister Blakeley, W.M., Sister Nichol's, P.M. of Northern Light L.O.B.A., Lakefield, and W.M. Sister Clee. This was followed by pleasing feature, when an address and Past Mistress' Jewel was presented by W.M. Sister B. Monk and Deputy M. F. Pilling to P.W. Mistress Sister R. Manley, who gratefully acknowledged it.

The splendid services of the pianist, Sister E. Broadley, were recognized by an address and gift, presented by P.W.M. Sister B. Manley and P.M. Sister E. Millard, and fittingly acknowledged.

The business being concluded the large gathering filed into the banquet hall, where a sumptuous fowl supper was in waiting, prepared under the convenorship of Den. Mis Sister F. Pilling. The hall and the tables were tastefully decorated and everyone did full justice to the splendid things provided. County Master R. Ritchie acted as toastmaster and addressed the gathering and also proposed the toast to the King, which wa sheartily responded to. After short addresses by the visitors, the meeting concluded, and another most successful and encouraging year ended.

St. James' Auxiliary Officers Are Elected

The annual meeting and election of officers was held on Monday afternoon in Wesley Hall, by St. James' Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society.

The president, Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse, presided and conducted the devotional period.

The business was largely a matter of yearly reports. Mrs. A. Davis, Strangers' secretary, told of the many calls made by her department, bouquets and remembrances sent to the hospitals and to the shut-in members.

The secretary of the Missionary Monthly magazine, Mrs. Cripps, reported that her renewal subscriptions were all paid up, and that the Auxiliary members are more keenly interested in this splendid magazine than ever.

The Baby Band was reported as being in a flourishing condition, by its superintendent, Mrs. Copson.

The report of the treasurer is always of great importance, and while Mrs. English could not give this in full, it was quite optimistic, comparing fairly well with that of last year. To facilitate the work of closing the books and collections, a sub-committee was appointed to act with the finance committee, and included the two vice-presidents, Mrs. H. Davidson and Mrs. Ingham.

Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, the pastor, officated at the election of officers, and Mrs. W. Rose was appointed secretary for the meeting. The election was by ballot and was completed in record time, with the following staff of officers for the coming year:

President, Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse; 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Davidson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. A. Ingham; recording secretary, Mrs. Wesley Rose; correspond. and press secretary, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; treasurer, Mrs. R. B. English; assistant treasurer, Mrs. E. L. Woodley; secretary of Christian Stewardship, Miss Margaret Kidd; Stranger's secretary, Mrs. Alvin Davis; supply secretary, Mrs. Ross Payne; Associate helpers and mite box secretary, Mrs. W. Casey; Misison Band superintendent, Miss Constance E. Wager; Baby Band superintendent, Mrs. Mary Copson; secretary of temperance, Mrs. Beavis; Misionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. A. Cripps; secretary of literature, Mrs. Wagar; pianist, Mrs. Frank Stevents; assistant pianist, Mrs. P. Sollit; auditor, Mrs. Wagar.

Piano Pupils Give Interesting Recital

Piano pupils of Miss Margaret Widdess gave a very interesting recital on Tuesday evening in the studios of the Conservatory of Music. The program was as follows:

"Fun, Fun", and song, "The Nut Tree", by Lois Heffernan; "Sing a Song of Sixpence", "Evening", "All the Birds have Come Again", and "Hop, Hop, Hop", by Vivian Martin; "Violets", by Dorbell Heffernan; "The Little Prince", by Doris Moncrief; "Minuet", by Mary Pearce; duetts, "Nineteen Birds" and "London Bridge", by Evelyn and Vivian Martin; "Hungarian Dance", by Lenore Tinker; "Lorely Waltz", by Jean Moncrief; "French Melody", by Gwen Bond; "Mazurka", by Harry McKnight; "Sonatina", by Marjorie Tinker; "Rondo", by Christine Carlisle; "Sonatina", by Robena Tate; "Goblin's Frolic" and "Sonatina" (Beethoven), by Evelyn Martin; "Minuet" (Bach), by Walter Morrow; "Waltz" (Grieg) by Allan Park.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT AT CIRCLE MEETING

Songs and Stories Told By Members of St. James' Church Society.

Christmas, in story and song, was the theme pervading the December program of the X.L. Mission Circle, which was held at the home of the superintendent, Mrs. E. J. Wagar, Lock street.

With the president, Jessie Martin, in the chair, the meeting appropriately opened with quiet Christmas music, "Star of the East," played by Jean Rose.

The beautiful story of the birth of the Christ Child was told responsively, led by Jean Hammond, who gave from memory the Scriptural version as found in Luke 2. This was interspersed by the responses in song from "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks." Sentence prayers on timely subjects offered by Mrs. Moorhouse, Marjorie Hogan, and Zetta Wood, closed this devotional period, which was followed by a Christmas vocal duett by Marion Wood and Jean Rose.

"Christmas Customs in Other Lands" proved most interesting and was introduced by the president, with Philip Brooks' poem, "Everywhere, Everywhere, Christmas Tonight." Girls representing Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Sweden and Ukrainia responded, and told how this festive season is observed in their respective countries. At the conclusion all joined in singing, "Angels From Their Realms of Glory."

The Christmas spirit was again emphasized in the story, "The Tiniest Star," told by Connie Wagar, and a Christmas message was brought too the girls in the words of greeting from Mrs. J. Wagar, the superintendent, who thanked the officers and members for the fine spirit of co-operation evidenced throughout the year.

The business session was opened with prayer by the president, and encouraging reports were brought in by the secretaries of the various departments, as follows: Recording secretary, Aileen Rose; cesretary of Christian stewardship, Nina Andrus; Secretary of mite boxes, Zetta Wood, and Missionary Monthly secretary, Gladys Langton.

The fact that most of the giving was done systematically was stressed in these reports and at the conclusion of the busines session, the treasurer, Mrs. A. Rosborough, was able to announce that the Circle had again reached their allocation, in spite of existing economic situation.

Since this was, also, the occasion of the annual meeting, the pastor, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, took the chair for the election of officers for 1933, with the following executive resulting:

Superintendent, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; president, Jessie Martin, 1st vice-president, Jean Hammond; 2nd vice-president, Connie Wagar; recording secretary, Aileen Rose; corresponding secretary, Dorothy Drysdale; treasurer, Mrs. A. Rosborough; assistant treasurer, Hazel Nixon; secretary Christian stewardship, Nina Andrus; strangers' secretary, Marjorie Hogan; supply secretaries, Mrs. W. A. Wood and Mrs. W. Rose; pianist, Muriel Moorhouse; assistant pianist, Jean Rose; Sec. of temperance education, Edith Wright; press secretary, Mrs. Wagar; mite box secretary, Zetta Wood; Missionary Monthly secretary, Gladys Langton; visiting and telephone committee: Marion Wood, Alberta Frost, Zoe McDonald, May Welch.

During the social half-hour, "jig-saw" puzzles provided an entertaining contest, the winners being presented with Christmas cards as prizes. A dainty lunch with touches of Christmas decoration was served by the hostesses of the evening, Jessie Martin, Jean Hammond, Connie Wagar and Mrs. Wagar.

DOGS COME FIRST

SIOUX FALLS, S.D.—Unless the dogs are treated right there will be some motorists in South Dakota who won't be permitted to drive their cars.

The County Treasurer's office says the law will bar motorists from purchasing their 1933 license plates if they have failed to buy licenses for their dogs in 1932.

Yawning is a distinct benefit to a human being. It tends to restore the equilibrium of the air pressure between the middle ear and the outside air and often produces a feeling of relaxation.

SANTA VISITS ARMY TEMPLE

1,185 People, Mostly Children, Attend Annual Concert.

JOYFUL TIME HELD.

Seldom has the walls of the Temple held such a crowd of humanity as packed the hall, gallery and platform on Monday night, 1,185 people, mostly young children, anxious to see old Santa, who had promised if he could get through no other way, would take a bicycle and finish his journey. And sure enough, with sleigh bells on his bike and little Johnny Santa across the handle bars, he arrived at the Temple, to the delight of the boys and girls, which brought cheer after cheer, and hand clapping by all.

The proceedings, after the opening by the Young People's Band and a fine Christmas hymn, were given into the hands of the chairman of the evening, Fred Gandy of the Quaker Oats Co.'s staff. Mr. Gandy filled the chair to perfection.

Children from 3 years of age up took part in the fine concert arranged and overseen by Mrs. W. Saunders, wife of the Y. P. Bandmaster. It was a pleasure to see the little children demonstrate and sing to the tune of "Gathering Nuts in May."

"This is the way we blow our horns,
On a Christmas morning."
"This is the way we say our prayers,
In our Sunday school."
(All on their knees on the platform. May they never forget.)

Recitations, dialogues, hoop drills, action songs, singing by girls' choir and a Bible reading about the shepherds in the fields, went to round out a real fine programme.

Several telegrams durinig the program announced the coming of Santa, and ere the last item on the program was finished, he and little Johnny Santa arrived on their bike. They proceeded to the platform and among other things that happened, Santa went over to Adjutant Falle and gave him a hug and a kiss, which brought down the house with laughter.

This fine crowd of children who though depression had affected them in more ways than one, forgot depression and their other little troubles of home and school, and like good boys and girls sang heartily under the leadership of Sgt.-Major Leggat,

"I'll try to be all that you want me to be,
And brighten the lives of some more."

During November, owing to the lack of funds, it was thought that no gifts of any kind would come to the Army school, for while there are more children coming, yet the collections are much below the average. But by an effort made by Sergeant-Major R. C. Braund, and through the kindness and generosity of many wholesalers, manufacturers and business men of this and other cities, every child was presented with a full bundle of useful articles, which old Santa was glad to hand over to the teachers to distribute. The thanks of all the Sunday School teachers, officers, companies and the Y. P. Sergeant-Major is extended to every one who so wonderfully came to our aid.

PASTOR PASSES

BRANTFORD.—After some weeks of illness, Rev. Wray Smith of the United Church died here to-day. He was 86 years old and had served 58 years in the Christian ministry.

The aged pastor began his ministry at St. George, near Brantford, but for a number of years previously had been a local preacher in the Newcastle-on-Tyne coal mining area of England.

London is installing painted windows in boudoirs and drawing rooms which are lighted with concealed electric bulbs. The idea is to paint a window in a dark corner with curtains matching the others in the room.

J. G. STEWART WINS AT POULTRY SHOW

Otonabee White Wyandottes Take Challenge Cup . . . at Oshawa.

At the recent poultry show in Oshawa, J. G. Stewart of Otonabee, R.R. 8, Peterborough, was again successful with his White Wyandottes, the breed in which he has specialized for fifteen years. With seven entries he won first prize for cockerels; 1st, 2nd and 4th for pullets; 1st and 3rd hen, and 2nd cock. He also won the special for best cockerel, and the Association Challenge Cup for the best display. His wins at the Peterborough Show included best cockerel, best female in the show against all varieties, the Association Cup for the best display, and the Tully Cup for cock.

Gillespie Stewart has been showing his White Wyandottes in exhibition throughout the province from Fort William and Port Arthur to Prince Edward County and has been a consistent winner for fifteen years.

At the annual business meeting, with election of officers, of the Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. No. 244, held in the Orange Hall on Tuesday evening, a feature of the program was the presentation of a Past Mistress' jewel to Past Mistress B. Manley. Mrs. B. Monk and Mrs. F. Pilling made the presentation, with an accompanying address. Mesdames B. Manley and E. Millard also made the presentation and address which accompanied a gift to the pianist, Mrs. E. Bradley, in recognition of her splendid services. The meeting concluded with the serving of a fine fowl supper in the banquet hall, prepared under Convenor Mrs. F. Pilling. Visitors were present from Northern Light L.O.B.A., Lakefield; Eastern Star L.O.B.A., and Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A. Mrs. Nicholls, Past Mistress of the Lakefield Lodge, assisted in the installation ceremony.

Something quite different in the way of Christmas efforts was the dinner served in the parish hall this week by the ladies of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St John's Church, to unemployed members of the congregation and their families. About one hundred and eighty people were in attendance, including eighty-six children. The table was very attractively arranged with evergreens and bright rowan berries. Arrangements were in charge of the president, Mrs. G. Packenham, and Mrs. J. Bacon. Miss Lily Bacon, A.D.C.M., had charge of a very enjoyable program, which included songs by Mr. Ted Markham Stuart Roberts, Leslie Sage, Donald Perks and Gerald Perks, also piano selections by Mr. Harry Hotston. The singing of Christmas carols by the assemblage formed an interesting portion of the entertainment.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

NO DOUBT CHRISTMAS CARDS have already begun to make their appearance at many homes in Peterborough, and probably there is a little heap of them already to open on Christmas Day.

* * * * * * *

Or perhaps they have been opened as they arrived, and even now are tucked about on mantelpieces, lending their gay colored pictorial beauty to decorations.

* * * * * * *

These dainty little cards which have brought their friendly greetings to you can cheer sick children, and adults, too, if you will not throw the cards away, but send them on kindly missions.

* * * * * * *

Besides the sick, there are persons starved for beauty, in lonely places where cards so common and usual to us, are luxuries. So make up a package or two, and let them do double duty in the ways mentioned.

* * * * * * *

Perhaps some of you are wondering just where you should send your packages if you saved your cards. This puzzling question might deter you from attempting to use the cards as suggested. So let me make some suggestions.

* * * * * * *

The church which you attend will give you names of foreign ports where missionary work is being carried on. Get the name of the person in charge of the mission. The farther away these places are—such as Africa, Asia, etc.—the better.

* * * * * * *

In such localities cards are novelties.

* * * * * * *

Even the words on cards will be strange. Learning to read the words will familiarize the foreigners with gracious phrases and kindly words. So do not cover up the writing.

* * * * * * *

This, I believe, is an important feature in mail regulations. Warning is made against making any alterations on cards, such as covering reading matter with paper or otherwise tampering with the missives, postals in particular.

* * * * * * *

Another place to send cards is hospitals. If there is a children's hospital in your vicinity or in your town, inquire if the cards would be acceptable.

* * * * * * *

Contagious hospitals or wards are glad to get cards or any little things which, after being handled, can be destroyed without feeling that something valuable has had to be sacrificed.

* * * * * * *

It is difficult to appreciate what pleasure these Christmas and New Year's cards give, but don't destroy yours this year. Let them bring cheer to others, as they have brought it to you.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

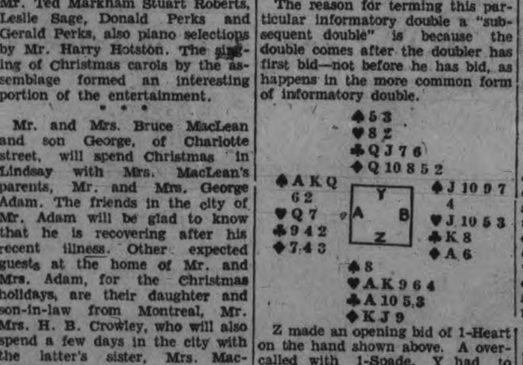
WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

THE SUBSEQUENT DOUBLE

Ordinarily an informatory double comes when an opponent has bid before the doubler has an opportunity to call. Sometimes the doubler himself opens the bidding. An adverse declaration is made, and the original bidder's partner has not bid, then a double by the original bidder may be made, provided the bid doubled is not as great as 2-No Trumps, four of a major suit, or five of a minor suit. This double is informatory. It asks the doubler's partner to support the declaration of the doubler, or to bid his own best suit, provided the doubled contract for greater gain than can result from bidding.

The reason for terming this particular informatory double a "subsequent double" is because the double comes after the doubler has first bid—not before he has bid, as happens in the more common form of informatory double.



Z made an opening bid of 1-Heart on the hand shown above. A overcalled with 1-Spade. Y had to pass. B bid 2-Spades. Z did not care to rebid his suit of only five cards, as he would at once be called upon to ruff spades, and a bad distribution of hearts might cause him to be doubled and beaten badly. He made an informatory double of the 2-Spades, asking Y to support hearts, bid his own best suit, or defeat the spade make.

A passed. Y bid 3-Diamonds. When Z raised his partner's bid to 4-Diamonds, Y ventured to bid 5-Diamonds, ending contracting.

B led his fourth-best spade, and A's Q won the trick. A returned a spade, as it might harm the declaring side to oblige dummy to ruff with one of only three trumps.

B captured the return lead of dummy's K of diamonds with his Ace, and B led back a trump, hoping to leave dummy in the lead, but the declarer overtook dummy's J with his own Q, and then pulled the last adverse trump, by leading the 10 of diamonds.

The declarer had won three tricks and lost two tricks. To go game he had to win the remaining eight tricks. To do this Y had to trap the missing K of clubs in B's hand, and clubs had to break, so as to give Y four club tricks. Y led the Q of clubs, and when B's K covered, dummy's Ace won the trick.

It was not yet certain that clubs would break. There were missing the 9-8-4. If all three of these were held in one opponent's hand, the J-10 would not drop them. To have another possible way of going game, in case clubs did not break, the declarer led dummy's Ace and K of hearts, followed by a low heart, hoping to establish hearts in those three leads, so that any losing club might be discarded upon dummy's hearts. But hearts did not break.

Y ruffed the third round of hearts. Finding that B still held a good heart the declarer had to depend for game upon the clubs breaking. He led his J of that suit. When both opponents followed suit Y knew that clubs must break, and he spread his hand, claiming the balance of tricks, and fulfillment of his contract. He went game at the minor suit, but Z could not have gone game at hearts.

MENU HINTS

Carrots and Bacon Baked Potatoes
Creamed Cauliflower Apple Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Carrots and bacon is a dish that is new to me. It is, however, economical and healthful. Bacon is quite inexpensive now, and a little of it, sliced, goes a long way in "dressing up" a dish and giving it more food value.

To-day's Recipes

Carrots and Bacon— Scrub and dice carrots and arrange in a greased casserole. Top generously with sliced bacon, cover the casserole and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until tender, removing the cover to brown the bacon. A little water may be added to the casserole if the carrots are old. More salt than that given by the bacon may be necessary.

Favorite Recipes.

CRANBERRY MATCHSTICK RING

As decorative as it is delicious and digestible, cranberry matchstick ring is an ideal Christmas salad. It is a new, more healthful way to serve the turkey accompaniment at the rich meal. And it adds sparkling red and green to that frequently "left-over" meal—Christmas supper. This year when the housewife has two feast days in succession, salads with "Christmasy" touches are a boon.

1 package lemon jelly powder
1 pint boiling juice from stewed cranberries, sweetened
Juice ½ lemon
2 cups celery, cut in matchstick pieces
1 red apple, cored and cut in matchstick pieces
½ cup double-whipped mayonnaise.

Disolve jelly in boiling cranberry juice. Add lemon juice. Turn into ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Toss celery and apple matchsticks together with mayonnaise. Pile in center of cranberry mold. Garnish with additional mayonnaise, chicory, chopped truffle and pistachios. Serves six.

Button-on tops in pique or linen are worn with evening frocks and wool travel dresses. They are practical, as they may be removed easily and laundered.

12 OUTSTANDING WOMEN OF U. S.

Mary Baker Eddy, Founder of Christian Science Church, is First Choice.

JANE ADDAMS SECOND.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (C.P.)—The twelve outstanding United States women leaders of the last 100 years, as selected by 128,882 women in a contest, were announced to-night at a dinner of the board of directors of the Council of Women, an organization for co-ordinating the efforts of American women's clubs.

Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, was first choice with 102,762 vote. The others selected were Jane Addams, founder of Hull House in Chicago; Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross; Frances E. Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union; Susan B. Anthony, Woman Suffrage leader; Helen Keller, deaf and blind lecturer; Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; Julia Ward Howe, composer of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic"; Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage leader; Amelia Earhart Putnam, the aviatrix; Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke College; Dr. Mary E. Woolley, delegate to the Geneva Disarmament Conference.

Likenesses of the twelve women will appear in an appropriate frieze in the council's exhibit in the Social Science Building at the Chicago World's Fair.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

BACK IN THE old days of silent moving pictures, eyes played a most important part in expressing emotions. In close-ups, particularly, some of our greatest actresses used their eyes alone to denote the thoughts and feelings that they were experiencing. And their portrayals, almost without exception, were good.

This fact should not be in the least surprising, since the eyes have always been considered the most expressive feature of the face. But the eyebrows, also, have a great deal to do with the expressiveness of the eyes—and indeed, of the entire face. And if they are to play their part in enhancing the loveliness and distinctiveness of the eyes and face, they must be well cared for at all times.

Beautifully arched eyebrows give a note of character to the face. And although it is not the fashion to pluck the brows to a thin hairline, neat shapeliness is essential. Fuzzy, untidy looking eyebrows are not attractive and only show neglect and lack of care. And any damsel who wishes to use those orbs of hers effectively on the opposite sex, should never permit her brows to get into such a state.

Merely brushing unruly, unkempt eyebrows with a small eyebrow brush frequently will make them tractable and help to keep them smoothly in line. But some eyebrows are exceptionally unruly, and refuse to respond satisfactorily merely to this treatment. And to train such eyebrows, a paste of starch is often recommended.

In employing the starch for this purpose, mix enough of it with a small quantity of cold water to form a thick, smooth paste. Then, before retiring at night, brush the eyebrows into shape, and apply the paste to them. Permit the starch mixture to remain on the brows over night, and remove it the following morning with tepid water and a soft cloth. Then brush the brows with a small eyebrow brush that has been moistened with castor oil or plain petroleum jelly, in order to counteract any drying effrects and to keep the tiny hair follicles in good condition.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair

Ada: The superfluous hair bleach to which you refer is composed of two teaspoons of peroxide and half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia.

Feet

Mrs. G.: To soothe tired, aching feet, bathe them in a tub of warm water in which a cup of Epsom salts has been dissolved. After the soaking, run cold water over the feet.

Facts And Fancies

Important Trifles

Why does a custard water or whey? Because it has been baked too long or at too high a temperature. Custards or other egg dishes should be cooked slowly, just until they are set. Longer cooking will make them water. Set the custard in a pan off water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 45 minutes. Longer if the pan is large.

What is the difference between evaporated and condensed milk? Evaporated milk is whole milk having had about 60 per cent of the water evaporated out of it. Condensed milk is produced by evaporating a combination of whole milk and sugar, usually the proportion being 125 quarts of milk to 40 pounds of sugar.

Syracuse Stars Beat Indians 6-4 in Rough Contest

STARS ADVANCE WITHIN POINT OF KING LOOP LEAD

Score Four Goals While Cleveland is Short-handed in Second Period.

NUMEROUS PENALTIES.

TORONTO, Dec. 22. (CP)—A seasonal gift, in the form of a battle for the league leadership, is on tap to-day for the London International hockey fans. Syracuse Star's 6-4 win over the struggling Cleveland Indians last night put them within one point of the top. The issue will be decided, temporarily at least, when Tecumsehs are hosts to the Maple Leaf farmhands Friday night.

The last-place Indians tried valiently to chalk up their second win of the season at the expense of the Stars. They held a two-goal margin at one stage of the game, but penalties at inopportune times weakened their defence and Syracuse lost little time in going to the front.

The first goal of the game was scored by Cleveland before the game had been underway three minutes. On a three-ma rush Alex Gray bulged the twine, Brophy and Halliday getting credit for assists. Hoffinger increased the lead on a solo effort shortly after the second session had started.

Hoffinger and Daley were caught violating the rules and while they were off Miller and Teasdale beat Emmett Venne for the tying goals. Sands gave Syracuse a lead shortly after, but before the period had ended Gray scored again to knot things once more.

Scotty Martin and Capt. Savage counted on individual plays in the final frame. Twenty-eight seconds after Savage's marker, Daley got the fourth Cleveland goal, following a pass from Brophy.

Freddy Robertson and Daley came to grips near the end of the game and were meted out majors. Dave Downie and Gray also put on a sparring act, and they also were chased. The quartette watched the finish of the contest from the penalty box.

Victory To-Night Give Leafs Margin

TORONTO, Dec. 22 (C.P.) — Hot on the trail of the long lead Conny Smythe forecast pre-seasonally they would roll up, Toronto Maple Leafs go into New York tonight in the hope the Americans won't do too many amazing things.

If they can tip over the Rabbit McVeigh-Normie Himes' menace and if Montreal Maroons fail to take advantage of having Chicago Black Hawks right in Montreal, the Leafs will be safely out in front of the National Hockey League's Canadian section.

In the only other game of the night Detroit Red Wings invade Boston for the second battle within a week against the Bruins. As the fighting Mr. Ross' boys lost the first one Sunday at Detroit, they will be out for points that will place them right up alongside the leading Rangers.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

BALDY NORTHCOTT.

Here is one of the National Hockey League's leading scorers for the early part of the 1932-1933 season. He is "Baldy" Northcott of the re-vamped and re-ambitioned Montreal Maroons who are setting the N.H.L. on fire.

Springfield Is Out Of 'Can.-Am.' League

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 22. — The Springfield Indian hockey team, charter member of the Canadian-American Hockey League, is definitely out of that circuit as the result of a conference that took place in this city yesterday afternoon.

Coach Frank Carroll and the members of the Springfield team have been ordered to report to New York to-day, at which time they will be assigned to other clubs by Lester Patrick, new hockey chief at Madison Square Garden.

In an attempt to see if he could bring about agreement whereby professional hockey might be continued in this city, William F. Carey, President of Madison Square Garden, come to this city yesterday in company with Coach Patrick of the Rangers.

To-Night's Line-Ups

The line-ups for to-night's game in Madison Square Gardens are as follows:

Maple Leafs.

Subs—King Clancy, Red Horner, Andy Blair, Ken Doraty, Bob Gracie, Joe Primeau, Charlie Conacher, and Harvey Jackson.

Americans.

Subs—Duke Dutkowski, Marvin Dutton, Nick Wasnie, Johnny Sheppard, Bill Phillips, George Patterson, Tommy Filmore and Walter Jackson.

DON BRADMAN

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 22. (C. P. Cable)—Don Bradman, world-famous cricket batsman, was subjected to a medical examination to-day and found to be in first-class condition. He will probably play for Australia against England in the next test match wich commences Dec. 30 and in the meantime will play for New South Wales on Dec. 23 in the Sheffield shield match against Victoria.

LES. PATRICK TO FILL SHOES COL. HAMMOND

Madison Square Garden to Lower Prices for N.H.L. Hockey Games.

Drastic Changes Pending.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. — Curtis Lester Patrick, the hockey duke of Drummondville, Que, reigned today as President of the New York Ranger Ice Team, and Vice-President of the $7,000,000 Madison Square Garden Tex Rickard built.

Patrick

His ascension to a new place of power in United States sports circles came today as he formally stepped into the pretentious shoes just vacated by Colonel John S. Hammond, one of the fathers of hockey in the Eastern States.

Officially, the transfer of offices was described as due to the Colonel's disagreement with certain policies of President William F. Carey of the Garden. But unofficially it was known there had long been strife between Hammond and Carey— a difference of opinion that had flared openly since the hockey-loving Hammond dropped the general managership of the sports palace to Frank Bruen when Carey was elected President of the Garden after Rickard's death in 1929.

Hammond was one of the last survivors of the Rickard regime. Wealthy, he had assisted the old peer of promoters complete financial arrangements for constructing the Garden.

Will Lower Prices

Simultaneous with the ascension of the Drummondville boy who wore a hockey uniform for nineteen consecutive seasons and back in the dim 1911 helped form the Pacific Coast Hockey League, there came an undercurrent of rumors concerning affairs at the Garden.

There was official announcement that prices for National League games had been slashed 33 1-3 per cent, dropping the scale to $2 for the best, and 40 cents for the backmost balcony seats.

Hammond and Carey were at variance on this matter, the Colonel striving to maintain the high price level in the belief it tended to elevate the game and its following.

Also, there were reports more drastic changes in the personnel of the Garden management were impending, following a news story today that the Garden corporation was negotiating settlement with Federal revenue officials for ticket-tax returns not filed from 1926 to 1932.

Garden officials did not comment on the story, which related the sports auditorium failed to turn over the 50 per cent. tax required by law on premiums charged ticket brokers in excess of the value of tickets. Box-office employees discharged last summer were reported to have drawn the matter to the attention of the Government.

Much Money Involved

The sums supposedly involved, unofficially mounting into hundreds of thousands of dollars, did not find their way into the Garden treasury, according to the published report.

News writers turned the spotlight on the incoming Ranger President, as Chairman Richard Hoyt of the Garden Board of Directors, said these words of Hammond's "passing."

"His resignation is due to his disagreement with certain policies of the President with which he is not in sympathy. The Board of Directors, while recognizing Colonel Hammond's long and helpful service to the corporation since it's inception, decided under the circumstances to accept his resignation with sincere regret."

The new offices lanky Mr. Patrick found himself occupying tonight culminated a career filled with drama. He had spent thirty years with the ice sport since leaving his Quebec home to don the jersey of Brandon's Manitoba Wheat Kings in 1903.

The greatest forward line in professional hockey—that's what they call the New York Ranger attack trio, the Cook Brothers, Bill and Bun, wings, and Frank Boucher, centre. The New Yorkers' three Bees —Bill, Bun and Boucher—sting like fury and have scored enough points to put the Rangers in the lead in their division of the National Professional Hockey League.

Grandma to Begin Career of Law

CHICAGO, December 19 (C. P.). — Grandma Anna L. Sher is going to put away her pistol and get down to the practice of law—that is as soon as she's retired from the Police Department, which will be in about a year and a half.

She's been on the Police Department eighteen and a half years, was admitted to the Bar in 1926, and handles a gun like a man.

The "grandma" isn't just a nickname. She's really a grandmother.

Earl of Rosebery has Miracle foaled in 1929, and Sandwich, foaled in 1928 now at the stud, the former at $1,000 and the latter at $600. Miracle was unbeaten as a two-year-old and was third in the Derby, winning $60,000 in all. Sandwich won the St. Leger and was third in the Derby of 1930, and won, in all $70,000. Sandwich is a half-brother to Manna, which won the Two Thousand and the Derby in his year and sired winners of $90,000 in stakes this year. Manna, which also sired Miracle, is by Phalaris out of Waffles. Phalaris will be remembered as the sire of Calaris, the horse that did so well at Tia Juana a few years ago.

Cricketers from N.Z.

The Rugby league are not to have things all their own way in going far afield for some of their players. It is common for clubs like Wigam to fetch a player all the way from Australia to play in England.

Recently the Lancashire Cricket league took a leaf from rugby men, and the latest reports advise that no fewer than three well-known New Zeland players will assist Lancashire league clubs next summer. A. W. Roberts, the Canterbury batsman, has accepted an offer to play with Church. W. E. Merrit has thrown in his lot with Rushton and I. B. Cromb has signed for East Lancashire.

Norfolk Hunters Spot Fresh Tracks Wolf Hunt For First Fall Of Snow

TILSONBURG, Ont., Dec. 22 (C. P.)—Fresh tracks in the vicinity of Mabee's Corners have spurred a new hunt for Norfolk County's pack of wolves, if any. Arrival of the $25 bounty from the Provincial Government is partly responsible for the renewal of interest. This bounty was paid for the now-famous animal which was shot last week. Now just as soon as the first snow falls, more than 100 men, accompanied by daring dogs, will start out.

When the cheque for the $25 arrived, the story of that first hunt became known.

Leo Stillwell, who keeps the store at Mabee's Corners, explained, "There were about 30 of us on the hunt, so we had a problem on our hands as to how to divide the money."

So the nimrods of Norfolk were called in for a consultation. They decided on a party.

Made 17 Holes In One Eight From One Tee

ALDERBURGH, Suffolk, Eng. Dec. 20—To hole-in-one is the ambition and dream of all golfers, and the golfer who succeeds in doing it once in a lifetime is satisfied.

But J. G. Skerlock, an Alderburgh golfer, to hole-in-one, has become a habit.

He recently did the 17th hole of the Alderburgh golf course, measuring 150 yards, in one, for the eighth time.

This achievement, J. G. Skerlock believes constitutes a record.

HEAVY EATERS AT GAMES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. Dec. 22. — Football crowds at the Harvard stadium were small this year but apparently they were heavy eaters. THIRTEEN CLUBS ARE ENTERED IN SOUTHEND LOOP

League Extends Closing Date For Entries Until December 29th.

MUCH BUSINESS DONE.

Thirteen teams have so far entered the South-End Hockey League, and with several more prospects, the closing date for entries was extended to December 29th at last night's meeting held in Duffus'. There was a fair representation on hand, and a number of motions were passed.

President Ches Mowry conducted the business, aided by Mike O'Brien, secretary-treasurer. Teams entered last night, along with those previously in, are: Intermediates: Quaker Oats, Pirates, Northenders, All Saints', Canucks and Park Hill; juniors: none yet; juveniles: Black Hawks, Rangers and Albion Knitting; bantams: Maple Leafs, Canucks, Empire Cubs and Warne Bros.

It was decided that the closing date for entries be extended to December 29th. A motion was passed also that the Southend League be responsible for no debts incurred without authorization by either the president or the secretary. It was voted that only the puck-carrier on teams in this league may be checked in the opponents' defence zone.

The matter of league finances came in for some discussion, a motion finally being passed that each team be responsible for ten books of tickets for the draw sponsored by this loop. And each team must finance itself till January 19th, after which the league will refund the expenses provided the amount in the treasury warrants it. It was agreed that the bantam playoffs this year be best two out of three games. Following some further discussion, and the decision to call the next meeting at eight o'clock in Duffus' next Thursday night, the meeting adjourned.

ATHLETICS WILL FINISH SEASON NEAR TOP IF THEY GET PITCHING

Connie Mack Has High Hopes For His Philadelphia Team in 1933.

51 YEARS IN BASEBALL.

PHILADELPHIA, December 22 (C. P.) — A "bull" on baseball—and life — Cornelius McGillicuddy will celebrate his 70th birthday to-morrow by preparing for his 51st year of diamond warfare.

Ready to observe his arrival at the three-score-and-ten mark, Mr. McGillicuddy — of course, that's Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics—sees only bright spots ahead for baseball, and himself, and thinks he has a pretty good chance of winning his tenth pennant in 1933.

Incurably optimistic, even after 50 years of unparalle'ed ups and downs on baseball's ladder, the oldest active man in the national pastime said, in effect, to-day: 'Don't sell baseball short, it's getting bigger and better and better."

"I think we are coming into the clear," said Mack. "Not only in baseball, but in other lines of business. I see the light ahead."

About himself—well, he doesn't feel like a 70-year-old man.

"It's a strange thing," he said, "but I catch myse'f looking at a lot of old men and wondering how much older they are than I, and the chances are they're several years younger."

About the Athletics — he thinks the American League battle next season will be a hard one, but that his team, if it gets the pitching, will be right up there near the top.

Alberta's section of the trans-Canada highway is practically completed, the province now having a surfaced road from the Saskatchewan boundary through Medicine Hat and Calgary to the west boundary of the province.

"HATES TO GIVE UP WORK," SAYS BIG JIM FARLEY

New York Athletic Commission Head Praises Boxing as Grand Game.

MEET BIG MEN.

Farley Will Likely Be Next Postmaster-General in Roosevelt Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (C.P.). — James A. Farley—"Big Jim" to the boxing business, chairman of the National Democratic Committee and "King Maker" to the rest of the U.S.—has decided definitely to retire from the New York State Athletic Commission.

Thus does the six foot 2½ inch, 220-pound perpetual motion machine, who can look down from the heights of many of the heavyweights he has bent to the will of the commission in seven years as its chairman, take leave of a job that has always fascinated him, a job without pay, but a job he hates to give up.

"As much as I regret it, I must leave boxing sooner or later," he said to-day as he settled back for a moment from the ceaseless activity of the National Democratic headquarters.

It's a Grand Game.

"I will be too busy to handle it, but I will hate to make this decision. It's a grand game, boxing, a sport for the ambitious, a game that gives everyone an equal chance. It develops the Tunneys and Dempseys, the Leonards and the Dundees, and there is no limit to the ambitions that courage cannot realize.

"It has given me the opportunity to meet big men who held in common a deep feeling for clean, rugged sport. I can't thank boxing too much."

Next Postmaster-General.

The public at large, and the political minds of the country in particular, already have decided for him that he is to be the next Postmaster-General in the Cabinet of the man whose campaign he directed successfully, President - elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

But as to that, James A. Farley has nothing to say. The reason is simple.

Forcefully and directly he explains that the apparent matter-of-fact acceptance of the public that he will follow the precedent set by victorious Presidential campaign directors who have become Postmaster-Generals in the past is the attitude of the public alone.

In official Democratic circles there has been no discussion of appointments. James A. Farley can't make that point too clear in any discussion of the future.

O.H.A. LAKESHORE JUNIORS

With representatives from Peterborough, Bowmanville, Cobourg and Port Hope present at last night's O.H.A. group meeting in Port Hope present at last night's O.H.A. group meeting in Port Hope, Harvey Sproule being convenor, the lakeshore grouping schedule for the juniors was drawn up as follows:

December 29—Bowmanville at Port Hope
January 3—Port Hope at Cobourg
January 6—Port Hope at Peterborough
January 6—Cobourg at Bowmanville.
January 10—Bowmanville at Peterborough
January 17—Peterborough at Port Hope
January 19—Bowmanville at Cobourg
January 23—Port Hope at Bowmanville
January 23—Peterborough at Cobourg
January 25—Cobourg at Peterborough

Following the single schedule the first and second teams will play home and home games to advance a winner into the OH.A. playdowns. Each club representative named two or three choices of referees to be approved of by the other teams, Ray Rose, Max Board and E. Coombes being named by the local delegate. Ken Payne of Cobourg was named to referee the first game in Peterborough, when Port Hope comes here January 5th.

(By C. J. P.)

Everyone interested in the City Hockey League should be on hand at eight in Duffus' this evening for that meeting. Five or six teams will be in, possibly more, and there will be plenty to do in getting the young fellows started properly. Five service and school squads gamely battled through last year, though having the short end of the stick because of so many games to be played on the few nights there was ice. With this winter likely to be a great deal better for ice, the City Loop should have a big season.

* * * * * *

The Southend League met last night, and they now have thirteen teams in. With the entry date left over till next Thursday, this circuit may have sixteen or eighteen outfits in yet. As it is, there is no kick except for the junior division. The junior city loop has cut in some there, and the Church League also has a junior section, but still we think two or three junior outfits could be rounded up yet for the Southend League. The players are there, if someone'll back 'em.

* * * * * *

The bantam section is filled up with four teams in, the juveniles have three—room for one more, and the intermediate series is again proving popular with six in so far. And everyone of that six should ice a strong team. We're glad to see Quaker Oats back again, and the north end is well represented with two outfits. Last winter, the intermediates had some fine battles with Quaker Oats, Lowney's and Canucks thundering down the stretch at the end, the latter winning over the Kandy Kids by a schnozzle.

* * * * * *

A good move decided last night was to rule that only the puck-carrier may be checked when in the other team's defending zone, thereby keeping the game cleaner and cutting down on the probable list of injuries. Another motion passed was that the league will not be responsible for any debts contracted in its name unless with the sanction of the president or secretary. Sporting goods stores should know this by now, with all leagues, and investigate before extending credit on purchases.

* * * * * *

And just to show how many intermediate hockey players around, here's the West-end Intermediate League organizing for the winter. Teams entered now are George street church, Peterborough Canoe, Keene Maroons, All Saints, with Cognawage Club a possible entry. It is open to any teams, there being no age limit and the only players barred being E.P.L. and O.H.A. ones. Games will be played at All Saints' rink, and outfits wanting to join should get in touch with this rink and procure entry forms.

* * * * * *

The junior O.H.A. schedule for this group was drawn up last night, a single schedule calling for each team to play home and home games with the others. The Petes open at home against Port Hope January 6th, and don't play away until they go to Bowmanville the 13th. Their second home game is the 10th against Bowmanville, and their third one here the 25th against Cobourg. They also play in Port Hope the 17th, and in Cobourg the 23rd. Max Board, Ray Rose from here and E. Coombes of Lindsay will likely be the referees from around here.

* * * * * *

The schedule should be quite satisfactory to the Petes, that opening date of Friday, Jan. 6th being a break. The 10th falls on a Tuesday, and the 25th on a Friday also. These lakeshore teams should be plenty fast and make the locals step to keep up with them. Harvey Sproule, who at one time did plenty of refereeing around Peterborough was convenor last night in Port Hope where the schedule was drawn. Ken Payne of Cobourg was appointed to referee the Petes' first home game. Now the E.P.L. can go ahead and draw up its schedule with plenty of good dates still open.

* * * * * *

The Cobourg intermediates have a galaxy of old Trent Valley League stars on their lineup, five of them having seen service in the T. V. L. Toey Ibey learned the game in his home town of Campbellford, the Geraldi brothers and Campbell formed the nucleus of Tweed's fast aggregation in the old grouping, and Henderson once shook a mean stick for Madoc of this same loop. This Cobourg squad will be no soft touch, as they generally go in for fast, aggressive hockey and teeth-rattling checking. The Petes don't meet them till the 20th here.

* * * * * *

Down Havelock way plans are afoot for plenty of hockey. Four teams make up a town league, some 10 or 11 boys to a team. They will be played every Wednesday, a double-header from nine till eleven. Then, the Albions intermediates have obtained Doc Gardner as manager and they figure on going places and doing things. George Aboud has presented a trophy for the Central Hockey League championship, obtaining it through the Berger Tailor Company.

* * * * * *

Grab-bag: The Petes go to Campbellford tomorrow night for that return encounter . . . . The E. P. L. will meet about the middle of next week . . . . The local juniors should have an exhibition game with Lindsay sometime next week . . . . Guelph's great southpaw, "Lefty" Judd is not on the market they say, though he's had several offers . . . , Babe Didrikson, Texan gal star, says she'll turn pro and thumbs her nose at the Amateur Union . . . . Les Patrick is new vice-president of Madison Sq. Garden in N. Y. and Boston . . . . We're losing some of our ball players, going elsewhere for jobs while outside stars offer to come here for work . . . . They're a dime a dozen these days, ball players, while work is scarce.

* * * * * *

Playing as a regular with St. Mike's Juniors against the Toronto Canoe Club last night, Jack Gardner, last year's Peterborough star, played a stellr role with Smith on defence, and also scored his team's third goal. The game went thirty minutes' overtime and finished in a 4-all draw.

NEWCASTLE'S IDEA

Officials of the Scottish Football League turned down the proposal of Newcastle United that the club be allowed to take over the fixtures of Bo'ness, the now defunct second division, Scottish League, Club. But that fact doesn't make any the less interesting the story of why Newcastle United wanted to do it.

Newcastle is managed by Andy Cunningham, a former Scottish international and the team includes several Scotsmen.

As everybody knows, Newcastle is situated close to the Scottish border and has a reserve team in the Northeastern League, and this reserve team just runs away with the competition, so much so that Newcastle's crack reserve men, and they have a duplicate star for every position, do not get a proper practice game.

Even at that, the Northeastern League games draw as many as 10,000 people regularly.

MAKE 124 ERRORS.

Max Bishop and Jimmy Dykes Account for Individual League Honors.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22. (AP)—Connie Mack's "old guard" of baseball shattered three American League fielding records while falling off the championship pedestal in 1932.

As a team with the remarkable personnel of five individual fielding champions, the Athletics cracked the nine-year-old club record for defense along with the league marks for fielding around second and third bases, the official averages disclosed to-day.

New York's team record of .977, established in 1923, was excelled by both Philadelphia and Washington during their 154 game campaigns but the A's shaded the Senators .980 to .979 to win the team field championship and hang up the New Mark. The dethroned champions of the American League accepted 6,020 chances and made but 124 errors while the Senators came right behind with 126 errors in 6,007 chances.

Individual Honors

Two of Connie Mack's veterans, Max Bishop and Jimmy Dykes, accounted for the individual league records. Bishop shaded his six-year old record for individual defense around second base, established at .987, by fielding at a .988 clip with only seven errors in 579 opportunities. Dykes fielded at the official rate of .980 through 141 games to top Willie Kamm's third base record of .978. Dykes made eight errors in a total of 401 fielding chances. Bishop worked in 106 games.

Counting the performances of the regulars, pitchers who worked in 25 or more games and others who played in 106 games.

Counting the performances of the regulars, pitchers who worked in 25 or more games and others who played in 00 or more contests, the Philadelphia Athletics won individual defensive championships in five positions, the Washington Senators two, and Cleveland and St. Louis one each.

BABE DIDRIKSON TURNS PRO. ACCEPTS FILM PROPOSITION

70 Years Old

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22. (AP) Here's how—and why—Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletics' manager who will be 70 to-morrow, keeps active:

I sleep nine hours and often lie down and relax a half hour before a game" he says.

"I eat a good breakfast, only Graham crackers and milk for lunch, and a good dinner.

"I exercise moderately, chiefly playing golf.

"I don't worry, especially about my age."

RICHARDS' RECORD BREAKER

Gordon Richards, Britain's leading flat race jockey, failed by ten to ride 200 winners during the season just closed, but he had the satisfaction of beating a record that has stood since 1911, when Frank Wootton rode 187 winners. In fact, Richards' list is the highest of the twentieth century, but it is certainly a long way behind the 246 winners ridden by Fred Archer in 1885.

Kempton Park race course has decided to spend $200,000 on the construction of new terraces and stands to make good the damage done by two fires, last summer. Modern buildings, to accommodate thousands, and well-equpped restaurants are planned.

Texas Sports Star May Try Luck at Swimming English Channel.

DO SPORTS WRITING.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Dec. 22. — (AP). Mildred Babe Didrikson has turned pro.

This 19-year-old Texas girl, universally regarded by sports followers as one of the world's greatest all-around feminine athletes, announced last night she had foresaken the amateur status which the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union already had taken from her for alleged commercialism of her name.

Miss Didriksn publicly claimed she had not authorized the use of her testimonial and picture in connection with a motorcar advertisement, the act for which the A.A.U. suspended her, and asked reinstatement. A Dallas motorcar agent took responsibility for the ad and a New York advertising agency said it had no authorization other than that of the agent. Her suspension, however, had not been lifted when she officially withdrew from the A.A.U., by telegraphing her decision to L. Di Benedetto of the Southern A.A.U. at New Orleans.

This slender, firm muscled girl who seemingly does everything athletic with ease, said she had accepted a film proposition, would do sports writing and was considering other offers. She said she had ambitions to swim around Manhattan Island and then try her luck at the English Channel and the Hellespont.

Miss Didrikson, here for the holidays at the home of her parents, denied a report she was considering matrimony, at least for the present.

SCREEN ODDITIES

ZaSu Pitts is one of the most popular players in Hollywood and her services are constantly in demand. During the past year she has made thirty-eight pictures, an average of better than three films a month. Her series of comedies in which she co-stars with Thelma Todd are well-known to fans and she is seen frequently in other comedies and feature productions. At present she is co-starring with Slim Summerville in "They Just Had to Get Married."

A large collection of birds' nests has been assembled for the filming of "Madame Butterfly." Included now in the assortment are nests of the wagtail, weaver bird, long-tailed tit, reed warbler, thrush, meadowlark, scarlet tanager, woodcock, wren, oriole and robin. The robin and its nest had to be imported from the South for this bird seldom is seen in Hollywood. When the picture is completed the robin will be returned to its native state and freed.

LEE FAMILY GUILTY IN LINDSAY TRIAL

Norland Residents Convicted of Receiving Stolen Toronto Goods.

LINDSAY, Dec. 22.—A trial lasting two days ended last night at 9 o'clock when Edward Lee, of Norland, who has already spent almost two months in jail, was sentenced to three months for receiving and retaining stolen goods, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Roden, manufacturers, of Carlaw Avenue, Toronto.

Lee's wife was found guilty on the same charge, and was let off on suspended sentence, Judge Ponton stating that her punishment would have been different, but for the fact that she had a new born babe.

Adrian Lee, the 16-year-old son, was also let off on suspended sentence for two years on the same charge, two business men agreeing to look after his future behavior.

The Crown offered no evidence in charges of house breaking and entering against the father and son.

The goods were stolen from the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Roden on Mud Turtle Lake, near Norland, but articles to the value of $200 were recovered by Provincial Constable Nelson, who made the arrests.

No Mail Pile Up In Local Office

The Post Office staff here yesterday was nearly swamped in the sea of Christmas mail. The stamping machines showed that 50,000 letters were mailed yesterday in the city, and thousands of letters and parcels were received from outside points. Despite the rush of heavy Christmas mail, the local staff, by their swift, orderly work, has been able to take care of the demand. As quickly as the letters and parcels come in, they are delivered. There are no parcels piling up as reported from other cities.

An annual sports event in Calcutta is known as the Noah's Ark Race. The competitors generally are a goat, a horse, and an elephant.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

GREEN FOREST PEOPLE BREATHE FREELY AGAIN

News travels very fast in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows. Yowler the Bob-cat had been living in the Green Forest only a few days before everybody knew that he was there and a great fear filled the Green Forest. Peter Rabbit no longer went there at all. Not since the night when he had seen Yowler over by the pond of Paddy the Beaver had Peter ventured into the Green Forest.

Big Tom Gobbler and his family and Mr. and Mrs. Grouse and their family didn't know a minute of peace and security during the day, and slept poorly at night. They actually were growing thin when they should have been growing fat, all on account of fear and worry because of Yowler the Bob-cat. Paddy the Beaver left uncut certain trees he had planned to cut. They were farther from the water than he cared to go with Yowler about. Always timid, Jumper the Hare was just a bundle of nerves and was seriously thinking of going back to the Great Woods where he had been born. Happy Jack Squirrel and Chatterer the Red Squirrel kept to the edge nearest Farmer Brown's. Unc' Billy Possum and Ol' Mrs. Possum retired to their hollow tree for the winter earlier than they would have. Whitefoot the Wood Mouse hardly dared put his nose outside his home.

It is dreadful to live in a state of constant fear. There is nothing in life much worse. All joy was gone from the Green Forest, at least for the smaller people. Lightfoot the Deer and Buster Bear didn't mind because they were too big to fear Yowler. Prickly Porky the Porcupine didn't fear him in the least and Billy Mink pretended not to care, but it was noticed that he kept close to the Laughing Brook.

Unc' Billy Possum and Ol' Mrs. Possum retired to their hollow tree for the winter earlier than they would have Jimmy Skunk wandered about in his usual independent manner. He knew that Yowler would be very hungry indeed before he would bother him. But all the other little people shivered with fear whenever they heard a leaf rustle.

Then one day Sammy Jay flew through the Green Forest spreading the news of what he had seen at the ledge of rocks deep in the Green Forest. He told how he had seen Farmer Brown's Boy there with a terrible gun and how he had made a great smoke which had driven Yowler the Bob-cat out of the cave where he had made his home. Of course, everybody was tremendously interested. It made some a little uneasy to learn that Farmer Brown's Boy had brought out his terrible gun again, for it was long since he had used it. But Sammy Jay, who is sharp and shrewd, was sure it was intended for use only against Yowler the Bob-cat.

Sammy was right. Several times Farmer Brown's Boy visited Yowler's home, but never again was he greeted with snarls and growls. At last he became convinced that Yowler no longer used that little cave for a home. Then he hunted everywhere through the Green Forest without finding a sign of Yowler.

"I believe that smoking drove him out of the Green Forest altogether," he decided at last. "If it did I'm glad. I didn't want to shoot him. I would have left him in peace but for the fact that he was too dangerous a neighbor for my friends in feathers and fur to have around. I hope he has gone for good."

He had. Yowler fears man more than anything else, and when he escaped from that cave he headed straight back for the Great Mountains from which he had come. He hated to leave such good hunting grounds, but he just couldn't stand being hunted himself. So back he went to his old home, where man seldom came.

It didn't take the little people of the Green Forest much longer to learn that Yowler no longer was hunting in the Green Forest than it had taken them to learn of his arrival there. At once they began to breathe freely again, and happiness once more reigned in the Green Forest. And it was all because of Farmer Brown's Boy.

What Today Means to YOU

by MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN"

If December 22nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10.30 a.m. to 1.45 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 5.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7.30 a.m. to 8.45 a.m. and from 10.30 p.m. to 11.45 p.m.

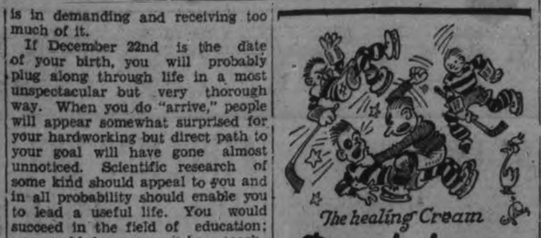
You will probably be aware of a certain tenseness in the air on this day. Things just won't seem to go right. You will have difficulty in getting things started, and once you do, there is little or no reason to believe that they will remain on the right course even with the closes surveyance. It will seem that you do not have to look for trouble on this day; it will just pop up all around you. Sweethearts should carefully avoid disagreements of any kind.

Born on December 22nd, the child will have great possibilities for success on this planet. Possessed of an attractive and magnetic personality, a good mentality, and a healthy body, he should go far under the proper guidance. He will be extremely independent, not a little conceited, and often stubborn. He will require much affection, but his greatest danger is in demanding and receiving too much of it.

If December 22nd is the date of your birth, you will probably plug along through life in a most unspectacular but very thorough way. When you do "arrive," people will appear somewhat surprised for your hardworking but direct path to your goal will have gone almost unnoticed. Scientific research of some kind should appeal to you and in all probability should enable you to lead a useful life. You would succeed in the field of education; you would, however, not be a teacher that would greatly inspire your students. You have a mathematical mind.

You are most economical except when it comes to your personal expenditures. You like to spend money lavishly on yourself, and this goes for your family too. As an employer, you are not ideal; you are not as considerate as you might be and you demand your money's worth of work from them. Like most people, you are happiest when doing right, and even though you realize this, you occasionally allow yourself to get off the "straight and narrow."

The name of the first kinf of the fourth Egyptian dynasty was Snefru.



Workmen Injured As Sewer Caves In

TORONTO, Dec. 22. — (C.P.) — Pinned against the stone foundation of the House of Providence when the shoring in a sewer excavation gave way, two laborers were imprisoned for 15 minutes before fellow-wokmen could release them. Neither was seriously injured.

Pat Kehoe was badly bruised about the legs while the second man, Jerry Pruzinec, was less seriously bruised.

The men were constructing a new sewer when the wall of the six-foot ditch gave way and collapsed.

WETS WIN FIRST CLASH ON BEER

Amendment to Declare 3.2 Beverage Not Intoxicating is Defeated.

LIVELY DEBATING.

WASHINGTON, December 22. (C.P.). — The wets outvoted the drys in the U.S. House of Representatives yesterday on the first test vote on the Collier Beer Bill—a vote upon which depended the life of the measure.

A perfunctory motion to strike out the enacting clause of the measure, one which automatically would have killed it, was forced to a vote by opponents of the Bill and rejected by a teller vote of 163 to 118.

The motion had been made by Representative Sirovich, Democrat, of New York, in order to gain the floor to take part in the debate. When after speaking he sought to withdraw his motion, opponents of the Bill objected and forced a vote. Sirovich favored the measure.

The vote was the first taken as the House swept through another tangle of disputatious debate, toward a final balloting on passage.

A moment later an amendment by representative O'Connor, Democrat of New York to declare 3.2 beer was not intoxicating was rejected.

Talkie Machine To Give Correct Time

PARIS, France, Dec. 20 (C.P.) —A special talkie machine connecting the big clock of the Paris Observatory with 20 telephone lines will enable Parisians to hear the exact time at any hour of the day or night by ringing up one of the 20 numbers.

The talkie machine will reply with the time in hours, minutes and seconds. The new system will start working January 1st.

RAISED IN HOSPITAL; RETURNS AS SECRETARY

VICTORIA, Dec. 20 (C.P.).—Five years in hospital is a long time, but then, of course, Othoa Scott hasn't always been sick.

She was in March, 1927, and they brought her to the Queen Alexandra Solarium as the first child patient. Now she is secretary to Dr. C. A. Wace, medical superintendent.

"Polly," as she became affectionately known among other patients and members of the staff, had been bedridden for years. She was a bright little girl with sunny disposition. Years passed and she soon would be able to leave the institution. Everyone hated to see her leave. They wanted her around the Solarium.

Her mother was poor so it was decided "Polly" should receive a business education. She went to business college and then returned to her home of the last five years—not as a patient, but as secretary to Dr. Wace.

On "Polly's" 23rd birthday there were big doings around the hospital, party and everythin', and Othoa was able to walk to her own reception.

KILLING WOLVES—A SIDELINE.

NORTH BAY.—Ridding the forest of pesky and destructive wolves is merely a side line with J. A. O'Donnell, game overseer at Kenney, 50 miles north of here, yet he reports having reduced the wolf population by four last week. "I got three one day and one the day following," he reports, "and I expect to get more."

Incidently it is reported that wolves are comparatively scarce in the region this season.

Ex-German Kaiser Confined With Cold

DOORN, Holland, Dec. 22—(A.P.) The former German Kaiser Wilhelm II, suffering from a cold and rheumatism, was confined to his room in Doorn Castle to-day by order of his court physician.

Measures to guard him against future intruders have been again intensified. (A German, believed by the police to be mentally deranged, was caught crouching in a castle room recently with a dagger and pistol on his person). All locks to outer gates and also to some of the doors of the castle itself have been renewed.

Chains by which the dogs were kept in the grounds have been lengthened in order to enable the animals to intercept suspected persons at longer range.

MINISTERS RESENT CRITICISM OF OXFORD GROUPS MOVEMENT

Rev. Drs. Sclater, Pigeon and Davies Make a Guarded Protest.

REPLY TO EDITORIAL.

TORONTO, December 22. — Articles dealing with the Oxford Group Movement appearing in the current issue of the New Outlook, the official publication of the United Church of Canada, are responsible for the issuing of a statement by three prominent ministers criticizing these articles, and claiming that the views contained therein do not represent the view of the United Church as a whole. The statement is signed by Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, Rev. Dr. Trevor H. Davies, and Rev. Dr. George C. Pidgeon.

Commenting on the "lengthy quotations which have appeared in the press from the paper connected with our Church dealing with the work of the Oxford Groups," the statement continues:

"We are agreed that the movement is before us for our eyes to see, and that it should be examined from every point of view, and that we honor the courage with which in the New Outlook the view of the writers has been expressed. At the same time we desire to make it plain that the point of view therein contained does not express the view of the United Church of Canada as a whole. Certainly, it does not represent ours.

"We see the unquestioned effects on friends whom we know. Its challenge has been helpful to ourselves. We cannot stand in a position of more criticism—still less of antagonism. The spirit of God works in divers ways. The working seems to us to be here now; we had better wait and be still."

Feeling that some action should be taken in regard to the articles appearing in the New Outlook, Dr. Davies, Dr. Sclater, and Dr. Pidgeon met together and prepared the statement issued last night to the press.

Annual Meeting Of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A.

The annual banquet and election of officers of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. was a very pleasing event of last week.

Rev. G. J. Bousfield welcomed the members and guests. Cecil Hope, president, acted as chairman for the flarst part of the evening's program.

The toasts given were: "The King," proposed by Cecil Hope and responded to by the singing of the National Anthem: "The Church," by Keith Willis, responded to by Miss Queenie Hope; "The A.Y.P.A. by Ormie Heap, responded to by Miss Edith Willis; "The Ladies" by Norman Heath, responded to by Miss Margaret Bethune; "The Guests" by Victor Sedgwick, responded to by J. Thompson, the guest speaker of the evening. He then gave a very interesting talk on the doings of the A.Y.P.A.. A hearty vote of thanks was voiced by Ormie Heap and seconded by Miss Clemena Long.

Much credit was given to the ladies who helped to make this event such a success. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the ladies by Miss Muriel Krant.

The election of officers then took place and keen interest was shown by all. Rev. Mr. Bousfield acted as chairman and the results were as follows: Honorary president, Rev. G. J. Bousfield; Past President, Cecil Hope; President, Miss Clemena Long; Vice president, Chris Sporle; Secretary, Miss Roma Reid; Treasurer, Miss Edith Willis; Publicity secretary, Miss Margaret Bethune; program, Miss Muriel Davies and Hector Bousfield; Membership, Mrs. F. Curtis and Keith Willis; refreshments, Miss Nellie Day; Sports, Victor Sedgewick; Dramatics, Ormie Heap.

AYRSHIRE MEN HOLD MEETING IN BELLEVILLE

Year of Advancement is Reported By All Speakers at Meeting.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Record Established By "Pincrest Violet," Bred by Allan B. Mann Adds Impetus.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 22.—The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Ayrshire Breeders' Club was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Wednesday morning and afternoon, with President W. T. Peebles in the chair, and some fourteen members in attendance. At noon, a luncheon was held in the new Queen's Hotel, with Mayor George O. Tice and J. O. Harity as special guests. Attending the sessions and giving much valuable information and constructive criticism were: Frank Napier, Secretary of the Dominion Ayrshire Breeders' Association; David Hunter, Dominion Ayrshire Field Manager, and William Hunter of Grimsby, Inspector for the Dominion of Bulls in Jersey, Ayrshire and Durham Breeds.

Much added interest in Ayrshire breed of cattle has been caused by the establishment in this district of a new world's record in 1932, for 5 year old Ayrshires by "Pincrest Violet,' owned by Frank P. O'Connor of the Laura Secord Co. This outstanding cow was bred by Allan B. Mann, Peterboro, and many of her relatives are in the stock of breeders and farmers of the district.

A year of advancement in the breed was reported by all speakers, in spite of a time of universal depression. Secretary F. M. Rutherford reported good sales from this district, surplus stock had been cleared up and fair prices obtained. David Hunter reported a successful year for the breed throughout the Dominion, even though less had been made. The culling of herds had been more vigorously carried out than in any other year, especially in the smaller herds. Good grade cattle were more appreciated than ever as revenue producers where inferior stock was an expensive detriment to any herd, large or small. These hard times herd increase was looked forward to. A new man can now get started with good stock with prices low. The nine Ayrshire clubs in Ontario were in better shape than heretofore ,with the exception of one. Mr. Hunter looked forward to a still better year in 1933, with closer co-operation existing between the clubs. He thought more interest in the clubs' field days might be created by holding them at the home places of the smaller herds.

The meeting place of the next annual meeting and the setting of the 1933 field day was left to the discretion of the executive. The officers and directors:

Honorary President, Alex Hume; President, W. J. Peebles; Vice-President, R. B. Ness; Secretary, F. M. Rutherford. Diretcors, Charles Rutherford, Colborne; Hector Wood, Ivanhoe; William Hume, F. G. Howard, R. H. Little, John Locke and John Thompson, Campbellford; T. R. Kerr, Hastings; Thomas Hume, Cobourg; S. S. TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 94
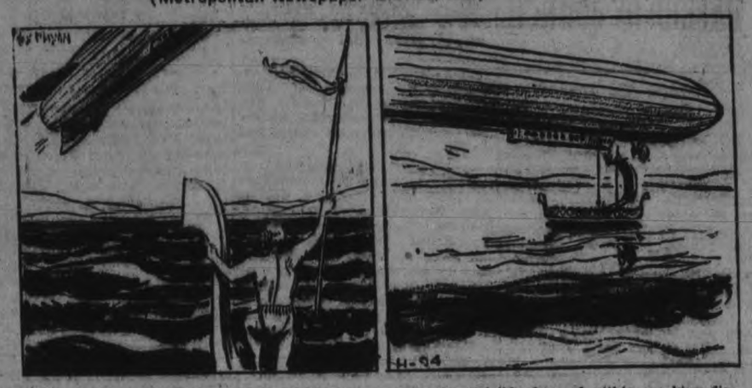
(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



Gridley, taking one of the warrior's spears tied Lajo's head-cloth to it and signalled the dirigible. "O-220, ahoy! This is the war fleet of Pellucidar's Emperor, commanded by Ja of Aronoc. Lord Greystoke, ten Waziri and Jason Gridley aboard." A moment later a gun boomed from the rear turret of the O-220, the first international salute that ever echoed under the eternal sun of the inner world. When its significance was explained to Ja, he returned the salute.

Now the dirigible dropped within speaking distance of the flagship. At Tarzan's suggestion a sling was lowered. The ape-man and Jason, Thoar and Jana and the Waziri were hoisted aboard. Before leaving, Tarzan requested Ja to proceed toward Korsar. The dirigible would keep in touch with the fleet, meanwhile perfecting plans for the rescue of the Emperor from the enemy dungeons. It was a happy reunion for the men of the expedition, marred only by the absence of their still missing first lieutenant.

Thoar and Jana were filled with boundless amazement at the giant dirigible. Being the only woman aboard, Jana was accorded all the formalities of civilization. After presenting the Captain to her, Tarzan, turning to the man of Zoram, said: "And this is Thoar, the brother of The Red Flower."- As Gridley heard that, he almost lost his composure. "Her BROTHER!" They had all known it. Why had he been so stupid as not to have understood! Suddenly the whole inner world looked brighter to him. Jana might not love him, but Thoar was not her mate.

Slowly above the waters of the Korsar Ax moved the O-220, dropping occasionally to within speaking distance of the fleet. When the distant city of Korsar was sighted, a sling was again lowered and Ja hoisted aboard. Rescue plans were discussed. He was returned to his ship and then Lajo, the Korsar, with his two companions, purposely conducted the three prisoners through the giant craft; and as things were explained to him, Lajo was filled with awe and consternation.

British Coal Imports To Reach 2,000 Tons

Two thousand tons of Scotch and Welsh coal will be burned in Peterborough furnaces this winter, it was estimated to-day by a local coal merchant. The popularity of the British product has increased enormously here this winter and prospects are that a greatly increased amount will be consumed in future winters.

As result of the wide use in Eastern Canada of British coal, this merchant expressed the opinion that a drop in coal prices can be expected next season.

"American coal men can see that they are quickly losing the Canadian market," he declared. "This year a survey shows that 62 per cent of the coal sold in Eastern Canada came from the British Isles. The Americans won't let this slip away without some attempt to hold it. I think next winter American coal will be around $11 a ton. Of course a readjustment in the price of the British commodity will also be made. Summing it up the result will be a general and sweeping reduction in coal prices for the Ontario consumer, but the British coal is here to stay."

ONTARIO PEOPLE URGED TO USE ALBERTA COAL, MEANS PAYROLLS IN THE PLACE OF SOUP KITCHENS

Kinsmen Hear Splendid Address By J. Orne Sparling.

EVERYONE CONCERNED.

Alberta Coal Brought to Ontario Means Boom to Dominion.

"Use Canadian coal. It means payrolls instead of soup kitchens for our own people."

That statement made by J. Orne Sparling during the course of an address as guest speaker at the Kinsmen Club dinner meeting at Empress Hotel last evening briefly summarises the main point of his message.

Mr. Sparling who is now accountant at the Bank of Commerce here was well qualified to speak on the Canadian coal situation, having spent a considerable period of his banking experience in the mining districts of Alberta.

The meeting under chairmanship of G. Wilson Craw, the retiring president auspiciously closed a very successful year in the history of the club. At the conclusion of his address the speaker who had been introduced by Fred Percy, president elect, was accorded a vote of thanks on motion of Dr. Ralph Honey.

Emett F. Sheehy, retiring vice-president, on behalf of the club voiced appreciation of the work of the president during the past year and testified to his ability as an organizer of no mean ability.

The following is the text of Mr. Sparling's address:

"The coal areas of Alberta include semi-bituminous, steam and lignite coal. The first two are coking coals and used principally for boilers where forced draft is applied and lignite for household use or automatic stokers with induced draft.

"The lignite coal is the one before the eye of the public at present for shipment to Ontario points and it must be borne in mind that there are vast differences in the quality of lignite coal varying in the dif-

CHICAGO, Dec. 23 (A.P.)—Mild husbands sassed their wives and growled at them.

It was breakfast time on Chicago's South side, and it was the taste in the coffee that made the husbands so annoying to their wives.

Arthur E. Gorman, water purification engineer, found the husbands were drinking crude carbolic acid. He said it got into the water, probably from refuse discharged from ammonia stills of by-product coke plants.

ONLY TELLER ON JOB.

Police Net Spread on All Highways to Toronto and Hamilton.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 23. — (C.P.).—Calmly stalking into the East End branch of the Bank of Commerce, a lone, masked bandit to-day held up the teller and escaped with approximately $600 in one of the fastest bank holdups in Provincial records.

Less than five minutes elapsed between the time the bandit walked into the bank waving his gun, and the time he had climbed into an automobile outside and disappeared.

W. C. Hughes, teller, was alone in the bank when the man entered. Just as he came through the door, the bandit pulled a handkerchief about his chin and nose. Before Hughes could move, the bandit covered him with a gun and ordered him to throw up his hands.

Then he forced the teller to lie on the floor of the bank, walked

MAIL CARRIER IS HIT BY CAR

Edward Bradbury Struck By Car Driven By Joseph Astels.

CAR IS DAMAGED.

Walking home last evening drawing the child's express wagon with which he had been assisting a postman deliver the heavy Christmas mail, Edward Bradbury, King street, was struck by a motor car driven by Joe Astles, chief electrician of the fire department. Bradbury suffered a severe cut on his right ear and a bruised knee and he was removed to Nicholls' Hospital.

In swinging to the left in an attempt to miss Bradbury, Astles' car collided with a north bound car driven by M. F. Campbell, Toronto. Astles' car was almost wholly wrecked.

The accident occurred between Lake and Perry streets on George at 7.45 last night. Bradbury was walking on the west side of George street drawing the wagon with which he had been assisting Oswald Meagher, postman, of 91 Crescent street.

Driving south on George street, Astles failed to see Bradbury until he was almost upon him. Astles swung left to avoid hitting the pedestrian, but the car skidded and crashed into Bradbury and his wagon.

Continuing onto the left side of the road, Astles' car collided with a car driven north by Campbell.

Bradbury was the only one injured. He was attended by Dr. R. G. Scott and removed to hospital. His injuries are not serious.

FIREMEN ARE DISTRIBUTING THOUSANDS OF TOYS IN CITY

Fleet of Trucks Are Required to Distribute Toys to Needy Children.

MORE TOYS THAN EVER.

"Something for a little girl of two and a half years" said Fire Chief Gimblett. He was checking off a list of names which represented homes where children would be gladdened this Christmas by some of the toys that the firemen have been fixing up for weeks past.

His attendant staff, ready to execute orders, were all at work. One man held up a little blue-clad doll with fair hair. But that doll never reached that particular house. In a minute she was back on the pile. The firmen were no longer doll doctors. They were fire fighters. A bell sounded, and in the twinkling of an eye, it seemed, they were into their coats and hats. It was No. 41. First went the hose wagon, then the hook and ladder truck. And the big room where the toys wait for distribution was empty of the firemen.

Little Boys Wait Eagerly

Two little boys wandered around, with a watchful adult guarding their rambles.

"Are they all going out to-day?" said one. And when he got the affirmative answer, he said, "Gee, I must order some right away. Where's the Chief?"

"You can't disturb him when

PRINCE TO BROADCAST TALKS ON UNEMPLOYMENT

LONDON, Dec. 23 (C.P. Cable).—The Prince of Wales has consented to introduce on January 6 a series of broadcast talks on unemployment, which will be given on successive Fridays. The purpose of these talks is to help those who are themselves willing to help by describing the history and progress of the most successful voluntary schemes which have been launched in various districts to assist in the relief of the lot of unemployed men and women so that these efforts may be emulated by others individually or collectively.

NO ACCIDENTS IN AIR SERVICE

Ontario Branch Flying Hours or Year Total 9,727.

CARRY 4,482 PASSENGERS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 23 (C.P.)—The operating season of 1932 was the most successful in the history of the Ontario Air Service, according to the annual report of the service, now completed. No accident of any kind were reported during the season, operating costs were reduced and efficiency was increased.

Flying hours for the year totalled 9,727 hours and 15 minutes, bringing the total flying time since the service began its operations eight years ago to 66,286 hours and 33 minutes.

During 1932 a total of 9,726 flights were made and 4,462 fire rangers and forestry branch passengers carried a total of 8,028 passengers, including fire rangers and air service personnel, for a total load—weight carried including operating or effective load—3,507,737 pounds.

"It is interesting to note," Captain W. R. Maxwell, director, said to the Canadian Press to-day in an interview, "that the summer patrol efficiency for 1932 is 98.8 per cent., while the same figure in 1931 was 96.28 per cent. The patrol operating efficiency for 1932 was 99.8 per cent., as compared with 99.1 per cent. in 1931."

AIME BOUCHER LOSES HIS SEAT

Courts Find Yamaska Liberal Guilty of Illegal Election Practises.

MEANS BY-ELECTION.

OTTAWA, Dec. 23. (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada to-day unseated Aime Boucher, Liberal member for the federal riding of Yamaska, Quebec. It will mean a by-election unless further appealed.

The case has been before the courts since the 1930 federal election when Boucher was given a majority of one over his Conservative opponent, Paul Comtois.

Napoleon Veilleux, a Yamaska elector, protested Boucher's election, practices. Boucher appealed to the Supreme Court from the Quebec court's decision, judgement being given to-day.

The Supreme court dismissed Boucher's appeal with costs which automatically unseated him. He was elected for Yamaska in a by-election in 1921 and held the seat with substantial majorities until 1930. His home is in Pierresville, Que.

The courts found Boucher or his election agents bought meals for voters and paid other expenses considered illegal. It was also found that outsiders voted in the Yamaske riding.

FARMERS PLANS FOR SEED STRIKE PROVE FAILURE

Albertans Continue Fight Despite Lack of Backing in Manitoba, Saskatchewan.

NEW PARLEY JAN. 17-20.

Call Arises as Aftermath to Forced Selling to Meet Maturing Obligations.

CALGARY, Dec. 23. (CP) — Western Canada's farm strike proposals to-day had met with defeat as an all-successful shutdown of prairie operations.

Despite lack of support from the sister provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, proponents of the cessation of seeding in the Spring of 1933 were fighting hard to win official status in Alberta through adoption of the plan by the United Farmers of Alberta, 16,000-member organization holding its annual convention in Calgary Jan. 17-20. It was the last hope of the disgruntled farmers who call for direct action to replace their shattered operations.

Reluctant to take sides in the strike call, officials on both the U.F.A. and the Alberta Wheat Pool were ready to admit success of the venture was virtually impossible in view of lack of action at the pool annual meeting and at constituency conventions of the U.F.A. force of habit that sends farmers on to the land to seed when Spring's sunshine gains strength was the most important factor in defeating the call.

Result of Forced Sale

Born in the chaos of unprofitable production and general adverse conditions, the strike call rose from Rumsey, Alta., as an aftermath of forced selling of wheat to meet maturing obligations which killed attempts to hold the grain for price advances. The resolution calling for the strike to go before the U.F.A. convention urges that unless governments take action to guarantee farmers the cost of production, the "executive be authorized to call a general strike of farmers of the province whereby all production of farm commodities, excepting those used on the farm, will totally cease for a period of one year commencing April 1, 1933."

Even though the U.F.A. fails to act or defeats the strike resolution proponents claimed the chief point had been achieved—drawing to the Election Assured For School Board Mayor, Utilities

Mayor Roland Denne In Seeking a Sixth Term In Chief Magistrate's Chair Will Be Opposed By Alderman Fred Tuggey On January 2.

E. R. SHIRLEY, E. G. PATTERSON, JOHN McCABE AND E. B. FOWLER OUT FOR SEAT ON UTILITIES

At Least Two Additional Candidates Will Qualify For The Four Vacant Seats On The Board Of Education—Old Members In Field.

A mayoralty contest in Peterborough is assured as well as a hot battle throughout the municipal arena. This was made certain as a result of the nominations held this morning in the City Council chamber.

Mayor Roland Denne announced that he would seek re-election to a sixth term. Alderman Fred Tuggey will be Mayor Denne's only opponent.

Visions of an acclamation for Mayor Denne were dispelled by Alderman Tuggey's announcement. In a dramatic speech in which he stated that all civic expenditures should be "cut to the bone", and that men with "guts" were needed at the helm of municipal affairs, Alderman Tuggey threw down the gauntlet to Mayor Denne.

Mayor Denne and Alderman Tuggey were the only nominees for the mayor's chair.

Four, including E. R. Shirley, who will seek re-election, were nominated for the single seat on the Utilities Commission. All announced that they would battle for the post.

Ten For School Board

Eleven were nominaed for the 4 seats on the Board of Education. Among these are the four retiring members who will stand for re-election, and at least two others will have their names on the ballots.

Those nominated were:

Mayor Roland Denne
Alderman Fred T. Tuggey.

FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION
E. G. Patterson.
E. R. Shirley.
E. Bruce Fowler.
John J. McCabe.

FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION

JOHN McINTOSH IS RE-ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Dean of County Council is Returned in North Monaghan.

THIRTEENTH YEAR.

Election is Likely For Deputy-Reeve and Councillors.

John McIntosh, dean of the County Council next year enters upon his thirteenth term as Reeve of North Monaghan Township, by reason of his election by acclamation today at the Township nomination meeting held at May's School House.

Reeve McIntosh was proposed by R. T. Lillico and was seconded by A. M. Laing.

A fight for the office of deputy reeve, and for the council is assurred, with the nomination of John Barnes who is out against George Patton the retiring deputy; and William Stevens and James Milby, who have accepted nomination against the three former members of this year's council.

The slate is as follows:
FOR DEPUTY REEVE
John Barnes
George Patton
FOR COUNCILLORS
William Stevens
John Barnes
James Milby
William Whitfield
Robert A. Dobbin

Reeve McIntosh was first elected to North Monaghan Township Council, forty-six years ago, and at the end of his first two years service in the ranks he was elevated to reeveship for the years 1897-98.

After a long interval he came back as reeve in 1915 and 1916. He was defeated by Harold B. Rye in 1917. He was re-elected to the office of reeve during the years 1918 to 1921 inclusive. For the past four years Reeve McIntosh has been at the head of the township council, thus making twelve years during which he has held that office.

TWO MEN PERISH $1,000,000 FIRE GRAIN ELEVATOR

Dust Explosion in Cupola Turns 6-Story Granary Into Blazing Torch.

MILLION BUSHELS LOST.

One Man Missing, Several Injured—Firemen's Efforts Vain.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(A.P.)—Two men were burned to death and several others were injured today as a six story elevator crammed with grain was destroyed by flames. The blaze ruined the elevator and probably 1,000,000 bushels of wheat and other grains at a loss estimated at $1,000,000.

A dust explosion in the cupola atop the structure apparently touched off the granary and it became a flaming torch. In less than an hour the blaze had swept from top to bottom, menacing nearby structures. One man was carried, fatally burned, from the elevator and another's body was thrown to a dock on the nearby Chicago river by an explosion.

Five tugs and motor apparatus brought by a half dozen special alarms poured a tremendous volume of water into the burning building from a snarl of hose lines but their fight seemed to be useless. The two tugs had to move to safer locations when the west wall of the elevator threatened to collapse.

One Missing

The dead were Walter Brazel, a laborer, and an unidentified man. Witnesses said they believed Charles Duval, another worker in the elevator had been killed.

Brazel was believed to have been standing at the time of the explosion at a window or entrance high up in the elevator. His body was tossed to the river dock by the blast.

There were 34 men in the elevator and warehouse building when the explosion occurred.

GIRL'S SLAYING FRESH MYSTERY

Body of Young Clerk Found in Burlap Pack Under Bridge.

DISAPPEARED WEDNESDAY.

MOLINE, Ill., Dec. 23 (C.P.). — Who killed Miss Rose Gendler, 22-year-old department store clerk, and why, were questions that puzzled investigators to-day as they shifted the few known facts about her death in the hope of solving the mystery. Her body, stuffed in a burlap bag, was found yesterday beneath a river bridge. Her skull was crushed.

The investigators knew she had telephoned her dressmaker from the store where she was employed about a bright Christmas dress last Wednesday night, that she also talked to an unidentified man with whom she made an appointment, but whether she ever kept it or not remained unknown, but they did know that she never kept an appointment with the dressmaker, whose Christmas dress will be Miss Gendler's shroud.

The police said they were convinced that ransom was not the motive for the brutal slaying, although a note demanding $2,000 was found by her parents, almost at the same time the body was discovered.

One theory was that the girl was slain when she repulsed advances of her kidnappers.

'NO MORE WAR' IS CRY AS FRENCH AND GERMAN VETS FORGET HATE

PARIS, Dec. 11 — The National Council of Ex-Soldiers in France has sent a telegram to the headquarters of the various ex-combatant organizations in Germany assuring them in the name of its two million members that "not a trace of rancor or ill-will to our German comrades remains to-day." In the same message the hope is expressed that the German ex-soldier organizations will in the future not hesitate to send delegates to the annual reunions of the French bodies "so that another step may be taken on the road that leads to the fraternization of the peoples, and moral disarmament may speed the day of general physical disarmament."

Pierre van Paassen

"We owe to our dead comrades," declares this same generous message, "that hatred be eradicted from the hearts of men. For they did not die for the perpetuation of rancor and strife, but that peace may be established on earth."

From the German side equally encouraging replies were received. It was pointed out by the directory of one Prussian ex-soldiers' society, that the injustices resulting from MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 23 (AP) To many persons, a life prison sentence would seem to be the most severe of misfortunes, but Merton Munn "lifer" at the state penitentiary at Stillwater is not one of them.

Munn, a Spanish-American war veteran, who has spent 25 years in prison following conviction on a murder charge, says he is convinced many men are in worse circumstances than he.

As a proof of his belief Munn yesterday sent $25 to the Minneapolis community chest fund, to aid unfortunates

Dumping Practice Never Been Tried Stevens Declares

Minister Of Trade Answers Reports From Chicago Competition Between Dominion And Argentina Causing Low Prices In Liverpool.

ADMITS CANADA IS GETTING ALL SHE CAN FOR HER GRAIN—EXCHANGE BIG PROBLEM.

OTTAWA, Dec. 23.—Canada's wheat is being marketed in an orderly manner. It is not being forced on to the market. This was emphasized by Hon. Harry H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when recent reports were referred to him from Chicago suggesting that the competition between Argentina and Canada was a factor in the existing low prices in Liverpool.

Returning yesterday from a trip which took him to the Pacific Coast, Mr. Stevens said he had noticed a marked change in the attitude of the public in the West from a couple of years ago. There was today a readiness to face the situation that presented itself. Where formerly there was a tendency to complain, now the people were bent on devising ways to overcome their difficulties.

"Of course we are selling wheat, selling all the wheat we can," said the Minister, "but we are fighting to get the last cent for it.

"There is no dumping of Canadian wheat and never has been. The cause of the low prices is that there is too much wheat in the world. Canada is the world's greatest exporter and legitimately so."

Sales of Wheat

He explained that the United States could use most to her wheat for domestic purposes. Argentina had a big export business in chilled meats, and Australia in mutton and wool, but Canada concentrated largely on wheat and must go on selling it.

"That's the big problem," he said, when asked if there was any solution in sight for the exchange situation. He had no further comment to make on it.

The disparity between the pound sterling and the Canadian dollar has frequently been blamed by Western farm leaders for the difficulties Canadian farmers have to meet.

CHILDREN PAY AUTHOR HONOR

Clement Clark Moore Wrote "A Visit From St. Nicholas" 100 Years Ago To-night.

MOST POPULAR VERSE.

TORONTO, December 23 (C.P.)—Countless children, hearing "A Visit from St. Nicholas" on Christmas Eve, reading the verse that has made Santa Claus real to youngsters for more than a century, will pay tribute to its little known author, Clement Clark Moore.

One hundred and ten years ago to-night Moore sat in the study of his great white house in New York City, and, while snow fell before his window, wrote the opening lines:

"'Twas the night before Christmas,
when all through the house,
"Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."

To-day it is still the most popular of Christmas verse.

Moore heard the story of St Nicholas from the Dutch children who played in the meadows near his home, which was located at 9th Avenue and 22nd Street. Moore wrote it for the diversion of an evening but fortunately a Miss Butler who was visiting the Moores, either memorized it or wrote it down. Just a year later, December 23, 1823, it appeared in the Troy, N.Y., Sentinel.

Copied all over the United States, the lines won great popularity, but it was years before Moore could be induced to father it. Moore was born on July 15, 1779, and died in Newport, R.I., in 1863. Thus the man who brought Santa Claus — the invention of Dutch children — so close to millions of children lived to an age when he could have acted the part with success.

Ten years ago at the centenary of the poem's birth, thousands of school children in the United States subscribed to a monument erected to make the last resting-place of the man who did so much to make happy a century of little ones.

WORST STORM SWEEPS COAST IN FORTY YEARS

Youth Drowns Trying to Retrieve Boat—Ship's Master Swept Overboard.

WIRES ARE SNAPPED.

Tides Sweep Over Highways Blocking Traffic—Property Damaged.

VANCOUVER, Dec. 23.—Two lives lost and property damage that may approximate $100,000 was the toll of the worst storm in forty years that swept over the lower mainland, the waters of the Gulf of Georgia, the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the west coast yesterday.

Full force of the gale, which at times reached a velocity of seven miles an hour, accompanied by rain, was felt over the lower area of Vancouver Island. The waters, lashed into fury by the wind, created havoc all along the waterfront of the island from William Head to Cordova Bay, wrecking boathouses and small craft, and disrupting telephone and electric light services, besides causing other property damage.

Swept To Death.

Roland Girling, 20, was swept to his death during an attempt to retrieve a rowboat from destruction at McNeill Bay, Vancouver Island, and Captain Soderburg of the American freighter Point Brava, outbound from Tacoma, was washed overboard off Cape Flattery.

The wind reached its peak over the island area at 10 a.m., with a high tide running and low barometer. An hour later it had subsided to fifty miles an hour, and continued to blow until mid-afternoon, when it ceased altogether.

Summer homes in Cadboro Bay were damaged and small boats were torn from their mooring, and crushed in the towering combers, which reached a height of fifty feet. A score of houses along the Vancouver Island shore were wrecked, and some of them swept into the sea with small craft. At the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, damage to the extent of approximately $20,000 was done when a boathouse, containing several sailing dinghies, was carried from its moorings and crushed. Other waterfront property suffered extensively.

Numerous chimneys toppled throughout Victoria during the gale. Beacon Hill Park resembled a logging camp, with hundreds of tree branches strewn about.

Tides Sweep Highway.

High tides at Cowichan Bay swept away 350 feet of road, blocking traffic on the island highway.

In this city and vicinity the storm did considerable damage, trees, poles and signboards being blown down. Sleet, snow and rain fell over the lower mainland.

The barometer at Prince Rupert recorded an all-time low of 28.02.

A portion of Marine Drive, on the outskirts of Vancouver, will be closed to traffic for two days, owing to the large number of trees which were blown down.

U.S. Beer Compares With Ontario Product

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (A.P.)—The alcoholic content of 3.2 per cent beer approved by the U.S. House of Representatives was said by government authorities yesterday to compare closely with that of beer sold in the province of Ontario.

Dr. James M. Doran, a chemist and commissioner of industrial alcohol, estimated that a brew of 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight had 4 per cent by volume and 8 per cent by the so called "proof" system of computation.

Beer of between 9 and 10 per cent alcoholic content is sold in Ontario where the "proof" system of computation is usually used. The weight or volume system of figuring content has been used in the United States since Congress practically eliminated the "proof" system after the war between the States.

CHRISTMAS GIFT, AUTO FOR WIFE CRUSHES OWNER

Swansea Man is Trapped As He Opens Doors Into Garage.

SLOPING DRIVEWAY.

Dying Victim Suggests Doctor Have Machine's Brake's Tested.

TORONTO, Dec. 23. — Secretly brought home as a surprise Christmas gift for his wife, a new sedan motor car yesterday rolled down the sloping driveway at 27 Larkin Avenue, Swansea Village, fatally crushing G. Norman Black against the garage door.

Mrs. Black, in the house, heard the thud of the car against the garage door. She ran outside, saw the strange car, and her husband crushed between bumper and building.

Her screams brought Mrs. O. C. Barteaux, a neighbor. The two, exerting an amazing strength, managed to shove the car back up the incline far enough to withdraw Black's broken body.

Two doctors arrived almost simultaneously. First aid was given, Black was taken to the Toronto Western Hospital. Two hours later he was dead.

Hints Brake Defective

Dr. W. J. Fletcher, of 29 Larkin Avenue, accompanied Black to the hospital. Black told him he left the car at the head of the incline, engaged the hand brake, and went down to open the garage doors. He turned and saw it rolling toward him, gathering speed. Then, he told Dr. Fletcher he advanced toward it and tried to stop it from crashing against the garage.

Before he died, Black suggested to the doctor that the brakes of the car be tested, as he thought they might be defective. The car was a second-hand one. Swansea village police are expected to test the brakes to-day.

Black's chest was crushed, and one leg broken. He died from the shock of the impact.

Turned in Old Car

Black, a yard manager for the Conger Coal Company, had turned in his old car and brought home the new one for his wife's approval yesterday, early in the afternoon.

BLOW ON HEAD KILLS SOLDIER

Jury Probing Canteen Manager's Death Fail to Name Assailant.

SUSPECT COMMITTED.

KINGSTON, Dec. 23.—That Peter Davis came to his death as a result of blows received on the head, causing fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain, was the verdict rendered last flight by a jury at an inquest conducted by Coroner Dr. R. J. Gardiner.

Davis, who was a member of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, died on Wednesday as a result of an assault made on him in the brigade canteen at Tete de Pont Barracks on Sunday, and Albert George Hendrie, a former member of the R.C.A. heavy battery in Kingston, was yesterday committed to stand trial on a charge of murdering Davis.

Dr. James Miller, who conducted a post-mortem, stated that death had been caused by fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain, and that the fracture had been caused by a succession of blows.

According to evidence given at the preliminary trial of Hendrie by members of the Provincial Police, Hendrie admitted that he had assaulted Davis, hitting him with a piece of iron pipe. The local police, following the assault of Davis, found a piece of pipe near a pool of blood at the scene.

COUNSEL NAMED IN RELIEF PROBE

W. H. Williams, K.C., of Pembroke, Will Assist Judge Justin.

START IN JANUARY.

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—Announcement was made yesterday by Attorney-General William H. Price, that W. H. Williams, K.C., of Pembroke has been appointed counsel to the recently authorized Royal Commission inquiry into alleged abuses by certain municipalities of provincial and federal relief contribution.

Mr. Williams will assist Judge Justin of Brampton, the Royal Commissioner, in bringing out the facts for investigation, and in generally laying down the line of action to be followed. Already he has been furnished with evidence secured in several municipalities by provincial police and by inspectors from the relief administration headquarters at Queen's Park. The complete audit made by an independent firm of auditors of municipal books and documents in connection with the Sturgeon Falls "muddle" has also been turned over to him for his consideration.

No definite date for the commencement of the commission inquiry has yet been named. It will, in any event, be started early in January, and Sturgeon Falls will be the first municipality slated for a public hearing before Judge Justin.

Approval of the Commission was given.

Tricky Nature

FORT MYERS, Fla. Dec. 23—(AP)—James A. Hendry is a bit astonished at the vagaries of nature.

He operates a nursery and for years had been experimenting with orchids. It's a tedious process for a man is lucky if he plants 100 and gets one mature specimen.

Yesterday he decided to use the old automobile he reserves for trips over rough roads in search of wild orchids. It had stood idle for several months. There, growing right out of the ragged upholstery, was a perfect orchid.

Now Hendry can't use his car until the orchid is old enough to transfer to a pot.

MURDER FACING TWO PREACHERS

Pair Alleged to Have Confessed Choking 5 Year Old Girl to Death.

"DRIVING DEVIL OUT."

LINDEN, Tex., Dec. 23. (CP) — Despite a purported confession, officers to-day continued an investigation of the death of a five-year-old girl, allegedly at the hands of two itinerant preachers who sought to "drive out the devil" they believed responsible for her partial paralysis.

Murder charges were filed against the two—Paul Oaks and his brother Coy Oaks—and precautions taken to prevent possible mob vengeance. Sheriff Nat Curtright said the two accused men, described by him as of the Apostolic faith, admitted they had choked the child to death in an attempt to cure her.

Officers said the preachers came to Cass County several months ago from another section of Texas, had been holding meetings in rural communities and had preached on the subject of faith healing. The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clayton, allegedly was killed last Tuesday at the Clayton home.

From George Wilson, a neighbor of the Clayton, officers said they received information as to how the child died. Wilson said he found two men kneeling over the prostrate form of the child. They ordered him to leave declaring he was a "devil." He said the child's father was in the room.

Dr. C. R. Taylor Cass County health officer said the child had been choked to death.

NORWOOD COUNCIL APPOINTS OFFICERS

Election Officials Are Appointed for Municipality of Norwood.

NORWOOD, Dec. 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Norwood Council held its final meeting for 1932 on Thursday night, with all members present. A by-law to provide for polling places and necessary officers for the coming elections received its several readings. It named R. A. Dean, D.R.O., with Ed. Slater as poll clerk in Poll No. 1; W. H. Harper, D.R.O., with W. J. Stares as poll clerk in No. 2 Poll.

Representatives of the United Church were present, and stated that the light in the church shed had been cut off, and asked the council to assume the cost of the same, pointing out it was more of a benefit to the public than the church. The council agreed to assume the cost of the same until Spring, on the motion of Brown and McConnell

REEVE ENDICOTT BANQUETS COUNCIL

Omemee Christ Church Children Put on Fine Christmas Concert.

OMEMEE, Dec. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—A fowl supper was given to the councillors and officers of Emily Township by their Reeve, H. Endicott, in the dining parlor of Mr. Tripp, following the meeting of the township council.

Councillor T. E. Rice took the chair and called on a number of those present, who all expressed their appreciation of the Reeve's hospitality and congratulated him on his work and activities during the past year. Mention was also made of the difficult times for those in positions of responsibility and of the harmony that had prevailed at all times.

Mr. Endicott responded briefly and thanked the members for their assistance and co-operation, and after Councillor Rice had favored the gathering with a couple of songs the members dispersed.

Christmas Concert.

The children of Christ Church, under the direction and training of Mrs. Weir, Horace Hill and Miss E. Currie, held a successful Christmas concert on Monday evening, the entertainment taking place in the basement of the church

Christmas decorations made a cheery and appropriate setting for the splendid program, the pupils acquitting themselves most creditably.

Very fine dramatic ability was shown in the play which was presented, "The First Christmas."

As a pleasing variation of the program were the selections from the different grades, including recitations, vocal and instrumental numbers. "Welcome to Christmas" was the chorus that appropriately preceded the jingling of sleigh bells and the arrival of dear old Santa Claus, the children uniting in saying "Good Evening Santa," the latter telling of his many adventures in reaching the church, and with several eager helpers, proceeded to dispose of the many gifts on the beautifully trimmed tree.

SHOPPERS TERRORIZED.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 23 (A. P.)—Following a city council meeting yesterday when seven Labor members were suspended over a refusal to receive an unemployed deputation, several thousand unemployed marched through the city and in one section fought with the police.

A detective was thrown into the Clyde and rescued with difficulty. Other policemen were chased for their lives. One mounted constable fell from his horse.

It was officially stated that five policemen were injured in the rioting, two seriously, and all were taken to hospitals.

Christmas shoppers were put in a state of terror and rushed helter-skelter to safety.

DECLINE GRAIN COLLECTIONS BOTHERS SOVIET GOVERNMENT

Authorities Encountering Greater Difficulties This Year Than Ever Before.

START INVESTIGATION.

By LINTON WELLS
Central Press Canadian

MOSCOW, Dec. 22—The Soviet authorities are encountering greater dificulties in completing this year's annual fall grain collection than at any time during the five-year plan, which is scheduled to expire on Dec. 31.

These admitted difficulties take on a more interesting aspect when it is realized that 84 per cent of the total grain to be collected by the state in taxes was allotted to the state farms and colhozes (collective farms) while the balance was to be paid by individual peasants.

Concerted Effort

It was soon apparent that a concerted effort was being made to conceal the actual amount of grain harvested. The colhozes and individual peasants had resolved to profit by their experiences of last year, when virtually their last kernel of grain was taken from them. In many districts stocks were so depleted as to reduce spring sowing and as a consequence there has been a grain famine in the Ukraine and certain areas in the lower and middle Volga.

It was discovered also that wholesale pilfering and the under-cover sale of grains at market prices were retarding collections. This was particularly true in the Kasakstan district (Central Asia) and Northern Caucasus.

The result of these revelations was the promulgation of a drastic decree declaring the hoarding, stealing or the sale or purchase of grains prior to the completion of state grain collections on Jan. 15, 1933, an offence against the welfare of the state. It was stated that violation of the ukase by individual peasants as well as members of state organizations would result in, first, confiscation of the grain; second, expulsion from the Communist party, if those guilty were members; and third, summary trial and the imposition of several penalties—even execution in the event of flagrant violations.

Results Reported

The first results of the campaign have been reported from the northern Caucasus, where a number of party officials, and the chairman and members of several village soviets and colhozes have been expelled from the party and held for trial.

Pravda views the situation with alarm and in a denunciary editorial ascribed the failure of the grain collection campaign to the counter-revolutionary activities of the kulaks, or well-to-do peasants, presumably a non-existent force today.

Despite the fact that the kulaks have been routed," asserts Pravada, "their influence in the village soviets and colhozes remains great. It must be eradicated forever, no matter by what means."

FRIENDS HONOR FENELLA COUPLE

Gifts Are Presented Mr. and Mrs. Harry Macklin—Jolly Evening Spent.

FENELLA, December 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Tuesday evening, December 20, a large circle of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. C. W. Macklin to honor her son Harry and his bride (formerly Miss Annie Wetherburn), and to present them with many beautiful and useful gifts. A very pleasant evening was spent in crokinole and euchre. Mr. Empy gave an appropriate address on behalf of the church, also Mr. Talling on behalf of the Sunday School, and Mrs. F. Talling on behalf of the choir. Among the many guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. Wetherburn of Brighton, parents of the bride, Mr and Mrs. Earl Davey, Hilton, and Mrs. K. Andrews, sisters of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. M. Davey of Roseneath.

Rylstone

A very enjoyable evening was spent on Tuesday evening, December 22, when the pupils and young folks of S. S. No. 12 school, gave a Christmas concert held at the school on the 9th concession of Rawdon. The following program was given, each one doing their part splendidly: Address by the chairman, Rev. H. A. Bunt; recitation, Welcome, Murray Reid; solo, "Old Folks at Home," Elwood Bateman; recitation, "Neighbors," Jean Stewart; pantomime, "Memories," Ruby Norton; Carl Heath, Leah Reid, Grant Reid, Dehla Mumby, Merle Reid, Alex Stewart, Murray Reid, Vera Stewart; reading, Percy Reid; dialogue, "Disappointment," by Jean Stewart, Clarence Anderson; solo, "Listen to a Miner's Cry," Grace Gibson; recitation, Jim Heath; solo "Old Black Joe," Laird Mecklejohn; monologue, "Getting Even with Sister," Vera Finch; duet, Elwood Bateman, Murray Heath; recitation, Harry Mumby; solo, "There's a new Star up in Heaven," Elwood Bateman; recitation, "When Papa's Sick," Marjorie Reid; dialogue, "The Papers Don't Say"; solo, "Old Susana," Don Stewart; recitation "Press and the Ball," Elwood Bateman; duet, "The Red River Valley," Grace and Evelyn Gibson; recitation, Leah Reid.

Santa Claus then arrived with his pack, and very jolly was he. He unloaded his pack and the Christmas tree, remembering both big and small. "God Save the King" was then sung.

QUOTA ON MEAT TO BE RETAINED

In Force For as Long as Necessary to Improve British Industry at Home.

EMPIRE ADVANTAGES.

LONDON, Dec. 23 (C.P. Cable). — The present quota system applying to imports of meat, which was started Nov. 22 with a view to improving the home industry and giving advantages to Empire producers will be retained for as long as it proved necessary.

This announcement was made in the House of Commons by Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, yesterday. He declared negotiations are to be undertaken with the exporting countries immediately and believed the Government could count on the same ready co-operation as was manifest on the previous occasion. The Government was fully aware, he said, of the importance of maintaining the recent improvement in the condition of the United Kingdom meat market.

The Scandinavian countries were most affected by the quota scheme which was designed to cut out foreign imports by 15 per cent. Improvement in the low price level for domestic producers created by the glut on the market and the desire to increase the imports from foreign countries were the main reasons for the Government's move.

Under the quota scheme Canada gets a maximum figure which at the present time is in excess of the amount of hams and bacon that she can ship to the United Kingdom.

BAR TESTIMONY FROM HEPBURN

Judge States Happenings Before Banking Group Nothing to Do With Harpell Case.

COUNSELS CLASH.

MONTREAL, Dec. 23 (C.P.) — Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal leader, precipitated a sharp conflict between counsel when he took the witness stand at the trial of James J. Harpbell for criminal libel to-day.

Aime Geoffrion, counsel for T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, the complainant, entered emphatic protest against questions asked Mr. Hepburn by Leon Gouin, associate defence counsel and was sustained by Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields.

Mr. Hepburn said he was a member of the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons and became acquainted with both Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Harpell when a Sun Life bill to increase capital stock which came before the House of Commons in 1929.

"What were the respective contentions of the parties," asked Mr. Gouin.

"I object," said Mr. Geoffrion.

"I will not allow it," said the judge, "what happened before the committee is a matter of curiosity but it has nothing to do with this case."

"The evidence I shall give has to do with the conduct of Mr. Macaulay before the committee," intercepted Mr. Hepburn, "if that is not relevant I'd like to know what is."

Mr. Gouin also failed in an attempt to get Mr. Hepburn to compare the report of a royal commission on insurance with the article in Harpell's paper.

Mr. Hepburn was then released without further questions.

The death-watch beetle has attacked the roof of the Vintners' Hall, which was built just after the Great Fire in London, and probably the whole of the roof timbers will have to be replaced. The Hall is one of the most famous in the city of London.

GOLDEN WEDDING

COBOURG, Dec. 23.—With their family assembled with them, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lean, Camborne, Hamilton Township, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Their marriage took place Dec. 20, 1882 at Hastings, Rev. Mr. McCleary officiating. Mrs. Lean before her marriage was Mary Morrow of Roseneath. They have a family of four daughters and six sons, who presented gifts to their parents. There was also a community gift and address from the people of Camborne.

LINDSAY RELIEF FUND NEAR MARK

School Inspector Pentland of Fenelon Falls Honored on Eve of Departure.

RAILROADERS PETITIONING.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, Dec. 23.—Pubic School Inspector Pentland, of Fenelon Falls, who has resigned the inspectorate of Haliburton County to accept that of North Frontenac, was the recipient of an address and electric reading lamp by the citizens of that village.

S. D. Fry, of Lindsay, who is chairman of the Canadian Re-Employment Railway Men's Association, is preparing a petition on behalf of that body which will be presented to the Governor-General of Canada. The Association proposes cutting the hours of those railway men who are working so that unemployed railroaders can get employment. The majority of railway men at present working are opposed to any further cut in time as they have already taken a stiff reduction.

The death is announced at Vancouver, B. C., of a former resident of Lindsay in the person of Kate Rose Deason. The deceased was a daughter of the late Col. James Deacon, a former police magistrate of Lindsay, and a veteran of the Crimean War.

The local relief fund has amounted to $5,274, the objective being $7,000. The fund will remain open as the distress is very acute, many pathetic cases being reported to the committee handling relief in the municipality.

Throughout the Dominion the strike aroused attention and brought from Premier J. E. Browlee of Alberta official recognition. Even to distant West Australia the cry was heard and answered with a declaration of President Boyle of the West Australia Wheat Growers' Union a policy of withholding wheat from the market was being followed.

MODERN BANKS WELL GUARDED FROM THIEVES

Intricate Devices Arranged to Detect Any Intrusion Upon Huge Vaults.

SPECIAL GUARDS AT NIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(C.P.)—Metropolitan banks are protected to the highest degree, yet outrages still persist. Highly organized man and machine vigil has been defeated at times.

Only recently $500,000 in United States liberty bonds disappeared from the cage of the Continental Bank and Trust Company.

Wall Street institutions keep securities many feet under ground guarded at one time or another by man or machine. Outrages are unlikely to happen during the day, but at night huge vaults are protected by guards, electrical devices and mechanical contrivances.

An interesting incidental is that most banks have men sift through their waste paper baskets during the night. Money or securities misplaced during the day are sometimes found and added to the assets. The banks label and keep the refuse matter for weeks, and one bank is known to store it away for almost a year.

Special guards, armed with tear gas bombs and riot guns, patrol the corridors about the vaults.

In one vault 74 feet below the street level, microphones take up the watch inside the huge money chamber as soon as the 60 ton door is locked.

Many feet away, a man sitting before an electric board, can detect the slightest sound. Another device stops and starts elevators hundreds of meet away and a system of lights advises the guard just where his men are patrolling in the 45 storey building at any time.

Christmas Concert Is Held At Warsaw

(Examiner Correspondence)

WARSAW, Dec. 22.—The Baptist Church was fairly well filled on Monday evening for the annual Christmas entertainment, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Walker, presiding.

The program consisted of the following numbers: duet, "Silent Night" twin daughters of Mr. A. Tedford; recitation, "Speak Softly", Roger Tedford; recitation, Thelma Tedford; song with guitar accompaniment, "The Grumblers", Mr. Walker, Jr.; recitation, Walter Tedford; recitation, Stella Tedford; solo, "Blessed Be the Name of the Lord", Pearl Tedford; address, "Peace", Dr. Munro; dialogue, "Moral Suasion"; recitation, Roger Tedford; address, Mr. Wilkinson; ukelele selection, Mr. Walker, Jr.; Tramp Song, Pearl Tedford; recitation, by a young lady from Lakefield; dialogue by four young men; recitation, "Description of a Honeymoon", Fred. Crowe; guitar selection, Mr. Walker, Jr.

The gifts were distributed to members of the congregation and children, bring a happy entertainment to a close.

Hastings

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on December 13, with a good attendance of members present. After the business part of the meeting the election of officers for 1933 took place and resulted as follows:

President: Mrs. William Hill.
Vice-President: Mrs. H. McMillan.
Secretary: Mrs. Annie Fleming.
Treasurer: Mrs. H. B. Wilson.
Home Helpers' Secretary: Mrs. C. Dodd.
Welcome and Welfare Secretary: Mrs. H. B. Wilson.

Despite the depression that the farmers are fighting against Asphodel Township only had a little more than $7000, in unpaid taxes on Dec. 15. This speaks very highly for the farmers of this progressive township. Nominations will be held in Westwood on Monday, December 26, but an election is doubtful as the ratepayers very seldom call for election for any office.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—Supplies of fresh eggs on the local market this week have shown substantial increases over daily receipts last week and, as the demand has not kept pace, prices have been barely firm. Yesterday receipts from Ontario points were more than sufficient for the demand and prices to country shippers were slightly easier, while the two top grades offered to retailers were down 1c per dozen. Country shippers were quoted 29c for extras, 25c for firsts, 20c for pullet extras and 15c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, or a decrease of 1c on the top grade. Retailers were offered fresh supplies at 37c for extras in cartons, 35c for extras loose, 31c for firsts loose, 26c for pullet extras loose and 21c for seconds loose. Brokers quoted fresh graded eggs in free cases at 32c for extras, 28c to 29c for firsts, 24c to 25c for pullet extras and 19c for seconds, and Ontario storage eggs at 23c for extras and 21c for firsts, recandled. Western storage eggs were offered at 22c to 22½c, recandled firsts at 20½c to 21c, and seconds 18 to 18½c.

Butter

Pre-holiday dullness was evident in the butter market, but, though supplies in brokers' hands moved slowly, prices were firm at 21¾c for No. 1 and 20¾c for No. 2. Wholesalers offered prints to the trade at 24½c for No. 1 and 24½c for No. 1 and 24c to No. 2.

Cheese

There was a fair demand for new cheese and prices were steady at 10c for large, 10¼c for twins and 10¼c for triplets. Retailers were quoted new makes at 11c for large 11¼c for twins, 11½c for triplets.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—Irregularity in eggs was the lone price movement on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Fresh Ontario graded eggs in carlots or less were slightly lower, extras holding firm at 34c to 35c, firsts easing ½c to 28½c to 29½c, and pullets being 1c lower at 27c a dozen. Storage eggs in carlots were firmer, extras being quoted at 21½c, firsts at 19c and seconds at 17½c to 18c a dozen. Receipts were 352 cases.

In carlots or less No. 1 finest grass butter was quoted unchanged at 21½c to 21¾c a pound, with early Westerns at 21¼c. Receipts were 137 boxes.

Active trading in Christmas turkeys continued, with prices firm at 17c for "A" grade, 15c for "B" grade and 12c a pound for "C" grade.

Cheese remained steady, current Ontario white being quoted at 8¼c to 8½c, current Ontario colored at 9½c to 9¾c, and Ontario early season make at 10½c to 11c a pound. Receipts were 33 boxes.

Potatoes were unchanged at 90c for Prince Edward Island or New Brunswick Green Mountains per 80-pound bag, and at $1 for Prince Edward Island Green Mountains per 90-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Flurried by an outbreak of stop-loss selling on the part of holders of corn future deliveries, all grains plunged downward yesterday.

The entire list of corn future contracts broke the season's low-price record, and so, too, did May and July wheat. July oats equalled their previous low. Indications that a prominent Chicago trader had let go of a big line of corn were largely responsible for unsettlement of the corn market.

Corn closed unstable at about the day's bottom figures, ¾c-1⅛c under yesterday's finish, wheat ¾-1⅛c down, oats ⅛c-¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c lower.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 23. — Wheat prices firmed slightly in a quiet session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. With December at 40¼c, May 42½c, and July 43c, all futures were from ¼c stronger to ¼c easier.

Trading was dull throughout the session, and a general lack of support allowed prices to slip away from the higher points to which they had moved on word of stronger prices at Liverpool.

Export trade was of little significance on either coast, and exporters predicted little improvement during the holiday season.

What support there was reflected yesterday came mainly from seaboard interests, while the bulk of offerings were sponsored by elevator interests.

There was little demand for cash wheat, with the exception of No. 7 Durum, which was traded in at a spread half a cent higher than on Wednesday. Cash coarse grains were dull.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1932

A LAST CALL.

At the hour this article was being written the outlook in regard to the Christmas cheer effort was not altogether reassuring, because it was by no means certain that every family in Peterborough was sure of being remembered.

Noble work has been done by the churches and other organizations, but the number on relief is large, and there were yesterday still a good many names on the list for which provision had not at that time been made.

There must be a large number of individual citizens who have not contributed through any of the organizations and who would like to do something to make Christmas mean more than merely December 25th to some of the people who have been hard hit by the depression.

Their chance is now before them; they have simply to communicate with Relief Officer Arthur Metheral to secure the name of a deserving family not yet provided for, and in this way they can render effective service in a community crisis.

It would be pitiable indeed if a single Peterborough family were left at this festive season without something to remind them of the joyous nature of this wonderful anniversary.

Those who can help are asked to act at once; it will soon be too late to do anything about it.

A WELCOME SIGN.

Windsor announces the formation of a new non-denominational and non-partisan organization in that city to be known as the Border Political Study Club, a name that is practically self-explanatory.

The club consists of a number of young men who plan to hold frequent round-table discussions on current problems and issues, and eventually to make suggestions to those at the head of affairs.

There is on the whole so little interest shown by young men in municipal, provincial and federal politics that the launching of a club for the express purpose of studying such matters will be hailed as a most significant and desirable development.

There would be a much more intelligent expression of public opinion, and a better representation of able men in all our public bodies if organizations such as this Windsor club were in active operation in all sections of the country.

It is encouraging indeed to find young men who are willing to make a real effort to review public affairs frequently, to discuss the issues before the public in the municipal, provincial and federal arenas, and possibly after they have mastered the details of these problems, to offer themselves for public service.

Nobody should be more keenly interested in public business than the young men of to-day whose future is to a great extent being moulded by the decisions arrived at and the policies followed by the present-day legislators.

MISS MacPHAIL AND PROHIBITION.

According to a report from Dallas Texas, Miss Agnes MacPhail, who is on a lecture tour, has discovered that prohibition in the United States is 'an utter and complete hypocrisy," and has declared her belief in "provincial control" as opposed to federal regulation.

When it is remembered that on her native heath Miss MacPhail has consistently espoused the cause of prohibition and has found nothing good to say in regard to Government control in Ontario, her sudden disavowal of prohibition during her American trip will come as a surprise to her admirers in this section of the globe.

Are we to conclude that once again Miss MacPhail has been "misquoted," a defence brought forward by her on more than one occasion when something she was reported to have said got her into trouble?

Or is it merely a case of Canada's woman member of Parliament proving her business shrewdness by assailing prohibition because she knows that the very mention of that system makes the average American see red.

Remember, Miss MacPhail is on a lecture tour; it does no harm on such occasions to say popular things, and off-hand nothing is likely to prove more popular than an attack on a system that has long been discredited among the majority of Americans.

CURRENCY AND INFLATION.

The question is not infrequently raised as to whether, in times of depression, some measure of inflation or reflation should not be introduced into the currency of a country with the intention, avowed or implied, of raising the general price level. (The issue at stake is apart from, and should not be confused with, an adjustment of the relative price levels of different types of commodities as, for example, raw materials and manufactured articles, or again, of wholesale and retail prices.) The ultimate test of inflation is the rise of the national price level above that of world prices and the outward sign is depreciation of the currency in terms of gold, with the result that exports are favored as against imports, the country in question has the advantage over its rivals in the export market, can more easily receive payments from its debtors and finds it more difficult to make payments to its creditors.

It is not to be gainsaid that inflation has its temporary advantages, provided that the net result of the influences outlined above is advantageous, but a number of complicating factors may vitiate the argument. On the side of commodity trade, the price relation between exports and imports must be taken into account. With a depreciated currency a country which imports mainly raw materials and exports manufactured articles will be much better off than one whose trading is in the opposite direction, for the reason that the raw materials which it imports are almost invariably at a lower price level than the manufactured products it exports. There have been exceptions to this price ratio between raw and manufactured commodities, as for example when silver and raw sugar were selling at famine prices, but in general this statement holds true. Again, the ability to obtain the full price differential in the national currency corresponding with its depreciation is contingent upon the existence of a sellers' market. It by no means follows, for example, that a cheapening of the Canadian dollar will necessarily cause a corresponding rise in the Winnipeg price of wheat: it is conceivable that the market might be so much in the hands of the British importer that the Liverpool price would fall, wiping out much of the bonus in Canadian funds. Liverpool, in fact, sets the price for wheat in international trade and, in consequence governs the price in markets dependent on this trade such as Winnipeg and Vancouver, whereas markets primarily interested in the domestic demand, such as Chicago, are more free to set their own figure, which for export purposes is purely nominal when it is out of line with the Liverpool price. On the side of debt payments it should be remembered that if debts are to be paid in terms of a gold standard currency the premium will be an additional burden.

The advantages of inflation are contingent upon the passive acquiescence of the other countries interested. They hold good only as long as no retaliatory measures are taken, but the experience of the last few years shows that these are not long in forthcoming. Tariffs and anti-dumping regulations have almost invariably been the effective reply to a country which attempts, on the basis of its depreciated currency, to undersell its competitors. Moreover, depreciation acts as an automatic tariff on imports, causing the domestic price to rise and eventually affecting the living costs of the entire community. There will be, of course, a time lag, during which the advantages may outweigh the disadvantages, but the accumulating burden must meanwhile be borne by one economic class or another, or perhaps by the state itself, in which case taxes must be increased or the national debt enlarged.

At a round table conference of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown this summer, the difficulties attending a program of inflation by an individual country were discussed. "It appeared quite impossible," says the summary of the arguments of one leading economist, "for a single country, whether on the gold standard or on a paper standard, successfully to engineer a world rise of prices by inflationary methods, for the simple reason that a gold standard country would lose its gold and in the end be driven off the gold standard. A paper country, if it attempted to reflate by itself, would simply find rates of exchange moving against it. Enthusiastic supporters of paper standards forgot that just because the currency was no longer linked to gold, local monetary action was limited to the area within which the local paper currency circulated. Hence, if there were a policy of controlled reflation there must be a general agreement between the central banks of the world, at least the main ones'"

Whatever may be the immediate cause, the depreciation of a national currency in terms of gold is always a warning signal. It is a direct challenge to the national economy to correct its unfavorable balance of international payments and to adjust its budget. To pursue a deliberate policy of extensive inflation (particularly by working the Government printing presses overtime) with the currency already depreciated, would be to fly in the face of this warning. The history of recent years is too full of examples of extreme forms of inflation not to dispel any illusions as to its permanent advantages, especially in the case of a country such as Canada, whose lifeblood is her foreign trade.—From the monthly letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

CLOSE TO BANKRUPTCY.

(London, Ont., Free Press)

By exactly 15 minutes, the corporation of the city of New York, second largest city in the world, escaped bankruptcy. Just a quarter of an hour before the "zero hour" the Chase National Bank and the National City Bank granted a loan of $25,000,000. The result was that city employees received their pay checks and New York avoided for the moment being bracketed with Chicago, where civil servants pay for their roofs and food in I.O.U.'s. It is certainly an amazing spectacle, what the New York Daily Mirror calls a shameful spectacle, when the credit of the "richest city in the world" has become so poor that it is now impossible to sell a city bond anywhere. The banking group that averted the bankruptcy did so on the written understanding that the city would cut its budget another $20,000,000, making a total of $40,000,000. The banks issued an ultimatum which said in effect: "Eliminate at least this much graft or go broke."

The reasons for New York's sorry plight are not far to seek. For the last few years James J. Walker was mayor. He was a Tammany appointee and millions of the city's money went to Tammany workers, who held sinecures in the city's service, or who received city pay checks in faked names. Testifying the other day before the Hofstader committee, Commissioner of Accounts Higgins swore that for the last three years regularly he had made recommendations that would save the city millions, but they had been shelved by Walker because the economies suggested would injure political friends.

The banking group's loan was only a temporary expendient. New York has more revenue bills falling due which it has not the cash to meet. What will happen then no one can guess.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If Uncle Sam has no more success with his 3.2 beer than Ontario had with its famous 4.4 brew, there will be a good many disappointed people in the United States soon.

President-elect Roosevelt continues to believe that the war debt situation is not his baby. It may give him a lot of sleepless nights after March 4 next.

Nominations for aldermen take place this evening. Let us hope a good field of capable candidates will be secured.

Ontario's deficit of nearly two million dollars is not the kind of Christmas gift the people of the province will greatly enthuse over.

Either there has never been a depression or those who get up rummage sales are not easily discouraged.—Detroit Free Press.

WHO WAS TO BLAME?

To the Editor Peterboro' Examiner,

I would like to ask the following questions regarding the trial of Leslie Cowling who was acquitted by the Jury last Friday, Dec. 16th on a charge of carnally knowing my little daughter age 14.

Who was to blame for what I think was a great miscarriage of justice: If the Jury was to blame, it seems to me that Juries should be composed of women as well as men. The police went into this case as I thought very thoroughly and there seemed to be very strong evidence in the Police Court especially from the Chief of Police, yet when this very case came before the Jury, the police seemed to fade away and no evidence was given by them, and the most important part was left out; why this sudden change? I have written to the Attorney General, but as a poor but honest man I hope that some influential man or citizen will try and see that such a terrible wrong to my little child is righted. Even the Judge seemed very much surprised at the verdict. I hope there is some remedy to have at least the point discovered who was to blame.

Yours truly,
E. S. Harding.

Editor, Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I have before me a bulletin issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for December. In it, I find that prices of farm products in the U.S. stood this fall at an index of 54 (prewar average being considered as 100). Prices paid by farmers for commodities bought were at 106, and farm taxes at 250. You don't have to be a farmer to grasp the tragic situation behind those figures.

Back in the good old days of twenty-nine, Lewis F. Carr wrote a book in which he claimed that American agriculture, on a strict accounting basis, suffered a loss of five billion dollars in 1925. His statement was verified by Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Then, more recently, Bernhard Ostrolenk wrote "The Surplus Farmer," and suggested that between 15 and 20 per cent of the farm population in the U.S. was superfluous.

So much for American agriculture! But: Is the situation very different in Canada? In some respects, it seems even more drastic. Here, over half our population is rural, and our country is still a predominantly agricultural one.

The Canadian farmer, like his American neighbor, is up against it. In October of this year, for the things he bought, he was subject to retail prices 80 per cent of those prevailing in 1926. Yet, he received for his produce only 45 per cent of the 1926 average. No wonder gross agricultural revenue dropped from nearly two billion dollars in 1927 to eight hundred and eighty-thousand in 1931!

Has this ghastly state of affairs been offset by more favorable developments in the cities? Not at all. In 1929, establishments employing more than 15 workers reported 1,020, 635 on their payrolls. On October 1 of this year there were 780,-301.

The world has been learning that no one nation can prosper at the expense of the rest. We may yet learn as individuals that the same is true for us.

Perhaps it is just as well that Miss Macphail, whom the press has so gallantly revealed as having a stake in our present economic system, should abandon her perfectly natural desire for individual gain, UNDER THIS SYSTEM, long enough to tell the people of Canada how dire is the calamity that threatens to engulf us all.

Yours truly,
W. H. C. Coulthard.

NOSES

THAT WOMAN sitting across the way in the street car has an exceedingly handsome nose....Didn't you notice that?....Well, she has. And she was a beautiful young woman once. How do I know? Did I know her when she was younger? Certainly not; but I can see what I can see, can I not? Her cheeks are not as firm as they were; they lack that lovely precision of youth. Her eyes have little crinkly areas around them. Her lips are no longer red. Her hair is beautifully white, but, after all, white hair is not waving aburn hair, and I'll not be insisting it is....But her nose! You see those perfectly curved nostrils? You observe the straight line of it from her eyes to the tip? There's a nose! ....Handsome, you must admit....Didn't I tell you?

Very useful, the nose. Warns you, guides you, checks your vagrant curiosity, gets you into trouble, too.

You stick it into other people's business and sometimes you're sorry you did. You pick up many interesting, not altogether proper, facts—of gossip, human endeavor, human foibles and quibbles and such.

All sorts of noses do that. Pug noses, rounded noses, narrow noses, flat noses, big noses, little noses, thick noses, ugly noses, handsome ones. Funny noses, imposing noses.

I looked through a book of famous quotations for something about noses. It had nothing. I turned the pages of Solomon's Song, and he mentioned his beloved's nose but once, saying it was "as the tower of Lebanon which looketh toward Damascus." And what kind of compliment was that? And once it was said of Cleopatra that the history of the world have been different had her nose been longer, or shorter.

So much for noses. Exceedingly important. Not sufficiently appreciated.

Where's that woman with the handsome nose who sat across the way? While I was thinking of noses she left the car and I didn't see her go....What a shame!

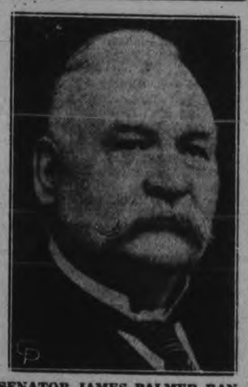
MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 23.—Silver dollars are welcome Christmas presents these days, and it's so little trouble to send them—at least the way Chris. Nelson did it.

Nelson wanted to send a dollar to each of six grandchildren in Detroit and New York. He put a postage stamp on one side pasted a slip with the address on the other, and dropped them into a mail box

All six were delivered.

Who's Who in Ottawa

By CHARLESROSS, Jr.



SENATOR JAMES PALMER RANKIN, M.B., L.R.C.P. & S.

His appointment in 1925 to the senate was as popular at Ottawa as it was in his own constituency of North Perth, Ontario. He has the faculty of making friends wherever he goes. Possessing an unassuming kindheartedness and a geniality of outlook, he has a long and honorable record, both as physician and surgeon in private practice and as a medical officer. He gave twenty years of service in the Canadian army medical corps, in which he attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. In addition to being a bachelor of medicine (University of Toronto and Trinity university), he holds the honored degree of Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Edinburgh university. Active in public life, he served on the Stratford public school board and the classic city council. A staunch supporter of the Liberal party, he first came into the political field in 1908, being elected to represent North Perth in the House of Commons. In 1911 he was defeated, but on Dec. 8, 1921, he won by a large majority over the Farmer and Conservative candidates. He has many fraternal associations, is a member of the United Church of Canada. Fifty years of successful medical practice and a distinctive political career is a veritable tribute to his pioneering parents who came from the Old Country in 1845 to set up farming on virgin forest land not five miles distant from the industrial centre which finally recognized a political leader in the old settler's son.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

HOME FROM SOUTH AFRICA

ON THIS DATE, in 1900, Halifax was in a state of excitement, anticipation in the morning, disappointment at noon and celebration at night. The Royal Haligonians were keyed-up to give a hearty welcome home from South Africa to the Royal Canadian Regiment, the first battalion sent by a Canadian government to participate in an empire war. An elaborate programme had been prepared; the docks and streets were gayly decorated; piping hot meals waited in kitchens; but alas! The transport came not; and it was not until after dark that the steamer came up the harbor. The boys from Quebec and Ontario were anxious to get home as soon as possible—quick work might bring them into Montreal on Christmas night (and did) and they did not want any Halifax welcome. Consequently the banquet was consumed by the Maritime and western companies who had just as good a time as if the whole regiment had been there. It was a wet night on the waterfront that night! But when the boys got home what they talked about was not their trials on the veldt or the fighting at Paardeberg or their lack of water on the long marches—but they were most enthusiastic about the great time they had had in Old London and told with pride how King Edward had reviewed them and of how nothing was too good for the Canucks, little thinking that some of them would be back again within 15 years to again fight for the flag.

The Urchin

by

Dora Secrehbaum.

For the fifth time in the last hour Arthur Forest laid down his brushes and palette to answer the door-bell.

He had already politely declined to subscribe to a new magazine that was to appear early in the New Year. Another caller had suggested that he purchase the Book of Knowledge "for the children". The third caller was sure that he was not carrying enough life insurance, whilst the next person to disturb him at his work almost insisted that he buy a vacuum cleaner on the instalment plan.

Who could this be now? Probably the superintendent with his usual "Now Mr. Forest, you are three months behind in your rent, and the Company insist upon having their money or else you will have to move out". But no, he was agreeably surprised to find his fears unfounded. Instead of the superintendent, a special messenger handed him a letter, and said he would wait for a reply. The letter was from a Mr. Gilbert asking whether he would be in that afternoon, and if so, he would call around and he "might" be interested in picking out a few sketches to give as Christmas presents, if the prices were reasonable enough. He had been trying to get him at the studio, but had been told that the phone was temporarily disconnected.

Well, perhaps this would be a little break, and goodness knows things had been going rather badly lately.

He wrote out a hasty note in reply, to the effect that although he was rather busy this week he would make it a point to be in at, say four o'clock.

Gilbert was one of those hard-boiled business men who had the idea that artists could or should live on little or nothing. Nevertheless if by a little judicious diplomacy and flattering, he could sell him even a hundred dollars worth of sketches, it would certainly be a big help in tiding him over the holidays. The depression could not last forever.

Like most of his fellow painters, he had been obliged to do more or less commercial work in order to make a living, but of late the departmental stores for which he did odd commissions, had been cutting down on their advertising. The cheques in payment for what he did do, were much slower in coming along than they were during the good times.

If he could only get hold of say one hundred and fifty dollars, he would marry Julie instantly. Poor Julie, how disappointed she was. He had promised to marry her before Christmas.

How lovely she looked in the muskrat coat he had given her. After all, they were going to be married sometime, so what if he had given her a coat. Very true, there were still eight more instalments to be paid on it, however, no use of worrying about that.

Two could live almost as cheaply as one, and with a woman around, the studio could be made quite homelike, and then of course they would save on rent.

Forest hurried out to a pay-station to phone to Julie to buy some eats, and to come right over and they would have lunch together, and afterward they would clean up the studio.

He would put on a good front in any case No use of letting this chap Gilbert patronize him too much.

Julie arrived very shortly, and brought the makings of a frugal but substantial lunch. The liver pate sandwiches always tasted better when Julie made them, and Oka cheese and French bread, washed down with a glass of white wine, was very filling and satisfying.

An occasional crock of wine was the one luxury that Forest allowed himself. It helped to bring back to him those three happy years he had spent in Paris, when he was studying at Julian's. Those were the days.

"Another Christmas coming and I am still Julie Henderson. My, but everything seems so hopeless!" Julie sighed over the table. "I am sick and tired of it all."

"Oh, don't be silly dear. You know that I am crazy about you, and if this chap Gilbert buys only a hundred dollars' worth of sketches, we'll get married tomorrow."

"I have heard that for the last three years. If only I had a job, I wouldn't worry the way I do. No use of even looking for one nowadays."

"Julie, I really mean it this time."

They washed the lunch dishes, and with sleeves rolled up, they started in to polish the floor.

It was fully two hours before the studio was presentable.

It was incredible the number of books and magazines, brushes and tubes of paint, and what-not, that littered up the place.

"I'm off. He must not find me here", Julie remarked, putting on her hat. "Good luck!"

"And you wait for my phone call," said Arthur. "Somehow or other, I have a hunch we are going to be married before Christmas."

"Before which Christmas?" Julie asked, with a sad smile.

"This Christmas, sweetheart."

The sketches were now "hung on the line" all ready for inspection. Arthur kept back four or five of what he considered his best ones. He would only produce them if he saw that none of those on the wall pleased Mr. Gilbert. He would certainly not like to part with those three sketches he had painted at Concarneau, that summer he spent in Brittany. They were very personal to him. They recalled such happy memores!

The door-bell at last. It was the postman. A bill from the Artists' Emporium. Bad news.

Four o'clock. Four fifteen. Four thirty. It was now quite dark out of doors. Surely to goodness, Gilbert was not going to disappoint him.

He looked out the window impatiently. Large lazy flakes of soft snow were floating around in the air. They looked as though they were alive, and were looking for a good place to alight.

At last a taxi drove up to the curb. The driver turned on his spotlight. He was looking for the street number.

Yes, here was Gilbert, but he had another man with him.

Why couldn't he have come alone? They both had to be assisted out of the taxi.

There was the bell. Let them ring a second time before opening. No use of being too eager.

"Why good afternoon, Mr. Gilbert. I was commencng to think that you had postponed your call until another day."

"Oh, not at all, Forest. We had lunch together at the club, and the time just slipped away. I beg your pardon, this is my friend Mr. Shaw —Mr. Forest."

Arthur noticed that Mr. Gilbert smelt a little of the wine of Scotland, and evidently Mr. Shaw was a little the worse for wear, as his main object in life at that moment, after removing his overcoat, was to make a bee line for the couch, and promptly dozed off. Not so Mr. Gilbert. He lighted a cigarette, adjusted his glasses, and commenced a very critical examination of what he was pleased to call Forest's stock in trade. He stressed the fact that business was very bad, and money very scarce, consequently it had to go far. He finally picked out seven sketches, which apparently met with his approval.

They were priced at twenty-five dollars apiece, but he said quite coolly that he would give one hundred dollars for the lot.

"Well, if that is all you are prepared to pay me for them, then we will not do business today," Forest announced, rather hotly. "I would rather have the pleasure of giving them away myself than to sell them for so little."

The idea of expecting to get seven really good sketches for a miserable hundred dollars. He would rather starve than be imposed upon in this manner.

He helped Gilbert on with his overcoat, biting his lips to control his anger. He really felt like throwing him out.

Poor Julie. What a disappointment again in store for her, and for himself. The life of an artist was certainly no bed of roses.

Mr. Shaw had now aroused himself, and was walking around the room, eyes intent on some of the larger paintings.

"I say, Forest, I like this little chap immensely. Who is he?

Arthur told him it was the janitor's boy, who frequently did messages for him.

"You see, I have painted him with a loaf of bread under his arm, just as he looked one day after I had sent him to the bakery. I have nicknamed him 'The Urchin'."

"Jolly good, indeed. How much for 'The Urchin'?"

"My price is one hundred and seventy five dollars." Arthur had put a slight emphasis on the "my".

"Of course, I can show you some of my other work at less money, if you are interested."

"I haven't the time to look around now, but this urchin picture has a very special appeal to me . . . . I'll take it."

"You see, Mr. Forest, I am O. H. Shaw, president of the Shaw Brothers Bread Company Limited. The picture of your little friend will make a cracker-jack calendar for 1934!"

into the cage and gathered up all the money in sight.

Nods To Customer.

The robber calmly and quietly walked out. He nodded to Hugh Thompson, a resident, who was entering the bank, and then disappeared down the street.

Thompson shouted to Hughes and the young fellow, aroused, informed him of the holdup. Both rushed out in an effort to locate the thug, but the bandit by this time had climbed into a green car and sped away towards Hamilton.

Police were called immediately and all available officers responded. Hamilton and Toronto, as well as western points, were notified of the holdup, and all highways were being watched this afternoon.

It was Brantford's first armed bank robbery.

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.) — The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 9¾c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices:

New—Large 11c, twins 11¼c, triplets 11½. Old—Large 17½c, twins 17⅝, triplets 18c. Medium—Large 15c, twins 15¼c, triplets 15½c.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—Trading on the Toronto Livestock market was moderate during the week with calves and hogs a shade higher. Cattle trade was steady; calves firm; hogs firm; sheep and lambs steady.

Cattle receipts were just about heavy enough for market requirements. Prices were generally steady at last week's close with a small gain for fed calves. Weighty steers sold at $4.25 to $4.50 for choice quality with a few at $4.75. Good and choice butcher cattle brought $4.25 to $4.50, and common butchers sold downward to $3.50. Cows were firm at $2.50 to $2.75 for good butchers with a few young cows at $3. Canners sold 25c lower at 75c per cwt. A few good butcher bulls brought $2 to $2.50 with bolognas downward to $1.25. Fed calves reached $7 for tops, with other grades at $4.50 to $6.50. A few loads of store cattle sold steady at $2 to $3.50 per cwt. according to quality. Milkers and Springers were dull at $40 for tops. All supplies were cleared out at the close.

Calf receipts were light with prices 50c per cwt higher than last week's close. Good and choice vealers sold at $5 to $6 per cwt. with common light calves downward to $3. Small lots of grassers brought $1.75 to $2 per cwt.

Under the smaller supply, hog prices gained 25c from last week's low mark. Bacons sold at $3.50 f.o.b., at $3.75 off truck, and at $4 weighed off cars. Selects brought the usual $1 premium.

Lambs sold at $5.25 to $5.50 for good ewes and wethers, with heavies at $3.75 to $4.50. Culls sold at $3.50 to $4.50 according to quality. Sheep brought 50c to $2 per cwt., according to quality.

SANTA VISITS KIWANIS CLUB

218 Children From Jackson Park Camp Entertained This Afternoon by Club.

SEE TALKIE MATINEE

An informal spirit of cheer and goodwill prevailed at the Kiwanis Christmas celebrations at Empress Hotel to-day noon, where everything combined to make the occasion quite a memorable event.

In keeping with the Yuletide season the hotel management served a specially prepared menu, featuring turkey and plum pudding, while the members were also privileged to receive a visit from Santa Claus himself, who distributed gifts with lavish hand.

One of the features of the meeting was an effective reading by L. J. Pettit from Dickens' immortal "Christmas Carol." The selected passage dealt with the famous converted outlook upon Christmastide that was the experience of "Old Scrooge," with tender reference to "Tiny Tim."

This afternoon the members of the Kiwanis Club played Santa Claus for 218 children who attended Jackson Park Camp during the past summer. By special arrangement with Kiwanian Laurie Mitchell, manager of Peterborough Bus Lines, the children were given free transportation to the Capitol Theatre. At the show the children were the guests of Kiwanian Jack Stewart, and at the conclusion of the performance they were the recipients of gifts handed out by Santa Claus in person.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Dec 23—(CP)—Moving within a narrow range, wheat prices at mid-session were holding about ⅝ cent stronger on the Winnipeg grain exchange today with Dec. at 40⅝; May 42⅝ and July 43⅝.

Support from the start was extremely light and came from several sources. Offerings generally were lacking, with the result top levels were well held. Export business overnight from both the Atlantic and Pacific sea-boards was insignificant and inter - market spreading operations were featureless.

Liverpool held early gains and quotations near the close were ½d higher per 100 pounds, while Buenos Aires wheat at noon was unchanged to ¼c lower per bushel.

Wheat clearances from the Argentine for the week totalled slightly more than 2,000,000 bushels, while Australian shipments amounted to 2,750,000 bushels.

WALL STREET CLOSE

NEW YORK, Dec. 23. (AP) — Stocks were irregular and dull toward the close of to-day's market. Resistance encountered on a further decline around mid-day carried well into the last hour when leading issues were but slightly changed from Thursday's final quotations. U.S. Steel preferred, Southern Pacific, Case, Harvester, Santa Fe and Allied Chemical were slightly lower, while New York Central, Westinghouse, U.S. Steel Common, American Telephone and several others ruled steady. Sales approximated 900,000 shares.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—The easiest road was downward for Toronto Stock Exchange listings to-day. Recessions were moderate, however, and were chiefly due to holiday lethargy and lack of buying orders. Persons offering stocks were obliged to accept lower bids. International Nickel, Brazilian Traction, C.P.R. and Ford A all fell back from 1-8 to 3-8 of a point. Nickel closed at 8½, Brazilian at 9¼, C.P.R. at 15 and Ford at 6½. Smelters held at 60 unchanged.

In the oil group Imperial weakened to 8 3-8 and International Petroleum lost some ground, while British American Oil held firm at 8. Utilities were fairly firm, Bell Telephone closed at 90¼, selling ex-dividend of 1¾, thus showing a net loss of 1-8.

In the steel group Dominion Bridge picked up a gain to close at 15, while small losses were registered for Waterloo Manufacturing Co. and Massey Harris.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—Undeterred by holiday distractions half a dozen stocks steamed right along on the Standard Mining market to-day. There were no big price appreciations, but the buying in Siscoe, Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves, Howey and Eldorado indicated these stocks are still under accumulation.

Movement in the gold group has become more selective this week. While Dome, Howey, Lake Shore and McIntyre have merely marked time in quiet trading the lower-priced issues have taken the lead. Teck advanced to 3.74 to-day and closed at 3.70 for a gain of two points. Hargreaves established a new top for the move, 349. After advancing to 1.06 Siscoe came in for active profit-taking, but closed at 1.03, up 4½. Eldorado merely held its ground at 1.35.

Copper shares were mixed in trend, Noranda and Nickel selling off 10 to 20 points each and Ventures and Sherritt Gordon advancing a couple of points.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, December 23 (C.P.) — A downward trend in grain prices here showed itself early to-day. Despite firmness in wheat quotations at Liverpool, Rains over domestic winter wheat territory south-west were construed as bearish, although some reports said drought districts received little benefit. Opening unchanged to ⅝ off, Chicago wheat futures underwent an all-around sag later. Corn started at ¼ decline to a shade advance and subsequently held near the initial range.

FACES ROBBERY CHARGE

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—(CP)—Facing a charge of robbery while armed, Edward O'Neil, alias Nolan, was brought back to Toronto from Windsor today. Arrested in the border cities after being traced through many cities in the United States, O'Neil is charged with holding up and robbing the paymaster of the Bredin company on Nov. 10, 1931, and stealing $2,400.

Don't You Know?

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (A.P.) —Christmas cards addressed by Edmund Vance Cooke, Canadian born poet, the day before he died in Cleveland, have been arriving in New York. Friends said to-day they bear a picture of Cooke, a native of Port Dover, Ont., wearing a monacle and reciting the following poem:

Life is merely an expression
Don't you know?
Of an absolute obsession
Don't you know?
It's a march, without procession,
From depression to depression
Just one devilish long procession,
Don't you know?

NEEDLES OF FISHERMEN'S WIVES SUPPLY MANY ROYAL GARMENTS

Proceeds Swell Coffers of "Nonia" Newfoundland Outpost Nursing Society.

BOON TO NEEDY.

ST. JOHN's, Newfoundland, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—The Prince of Wales' golf stockings, garments for little Princess Elizabeth, and tweeds for the Duchess of York—they come from the looms and knitting needles of fisher's wives in Newfoundland's outports, and they come back to the costal settlements in cash for the sick or injured, and material profit of the whole.

Years ago Lady Elsie Allardyce organized Nonia—the Newfoundland Outport Nursing Industrial Association. Its aims were two-fold: To provide nursing services in isolated places along this Dominion's serrated coastline, and to give assistance to those in need by developing their aptitude for knitting and weaving. The nursing services are maintained on profits from the sale of this handicraft work. Many a hooked mat, admired on an English floor, has had its share in bringing back to health some stricken Newfoundlander, a mother in labor, a child with lungs seared by the breath of winter.

Best Customers

Members of the Royal Family have been among Nonia's best customers; while the organization has been feeling the stress of the times, support from the highest source in the Empire has never failed. During the Christmas season the Nonia depot made a special effort to dispose of its goods and the response generally has been good. Perhaps no expression of thank for service rendered was received with more satisfaction than this.

"The Lady in Waiting to the Duchess of York is desired by Her Royal Highness to express to the High Commissioner for Newfoundland her pleasure at receiving a few weeks ago the tweeds made to order by Nonia, and Her Royal Highness would be grateful if the High Commissioner would be so good as to convey to the Nonia committee and workers the Duchess' satisfaction with the goods supplied.

High Standard

"Through the good offices of Lady Allardyce, the Duchess of York has placed orders with Nonia before, and it has always been a satisfaction to her Royal Highness to receive articles of such a high standard of workmanship, and to know at the same time that by means of these orders, the dwellers in lonely ports of the Dominion were receiving the benefits of sick nursing.

"The comptroller has to-day been instructed to send a cheque in payment of the account for the goods received."

Only the sight of a man or woman or child brought from a sick bed back to vigorous health brings greater gratification than that to the backers of Nonia.

ELECTION ASSURED FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Joseph E. Smith.
Ryerson Ritchie.
William Tinker.
John A. McKone.
E. R. Wilson.

It is more than likely that at least two or three of those nominated for the Board of Education will not bother to qualify, but it was made certain to-day that there will be no acclamation for the four seeking re-election. These are: E. F. Reid, James Dutton, Dr. A. Moir, and Isaac P. McNab.

Would Cut Estimates

William Tinker, in a speech in which he stated that the 1932 estimates for the Board of Education should be cut by at least 25 per cent for 1933 and that the five per cent. reduction in teachers' salaries was a farce, announced that he would be a candidate for election to the board.

J. E. Smith, although he did not announce himself, will likely be a candidate for the board, and there may be one or two others.

Will Not Resign Seat

Alderman Tuggey, questioned by The Examiner as to whether he would resign his seat in the City Council before entering the mayoralty contest, replied: "No, I intend to retain my seat in the Council and at the same time run for Mayor."

City Clerk Armstrong told The Examiner that as far as he knew Alderman Tuggey was quite within his legal rights in retaining his council seat, while at the same time contesting Mayor Denne's re-election.

While not as eventful or stirring as some past nominations, this morning's proceedings proved the increasing interest that citizens generally are taking in municipal affairs. The Council chamber was comfortably filled and there was a much larger number of working men present.

Many Questions Asked

Speakers were "heckled" more than formerly and several rose from the audience to ask questions of the speakers.

As the city clock was striking ten the nomination of Mayor Denne was handed to City Clerk Armstrong. Others followed quickly, but it was 10.45 when Alderman Tuggey's nomination was made.

City Clerk Armstrong announced that all those nominated who desired to be candidates for election must qualify before 9 o'clock Saturday evening, and they must file a certificate from the tax collector that their taxes were paid.

The speeches followed. Mayor Denne being the first to make an address.

"I have been urged by a large number of citizens and the members of the council to stand for re-election, and I am going to do so," said Mayor Denne. He thanked the members of the council for their co-operation during the past year, declaring that the council had had a difficult year owing to the many problems arising from the depression.

"The council no doubt has been criticized because it was so anxious to give the unemployed men work, but our unemployed do not want charity, they want work and we tried to give them jobs," he said.

Reduced Tax Rate

The council had reduced the tax rate, he stated; being assisted in this accomplishment by the co-operation of the Utilities Commisison and the teachers, who had volunteered a five per cent. salary cut. All our committees cut their estimates and at the end of the year all will be well within those reduced estimates," he said. "However, this is not true of the Charity Board which has called for larger and larger expenditures for relief."

On capital expenditures, such as sidewalks, sewers, etc., he said the council this year had not spent more than $30,000.

Mayor Denne drew attention to the large percentage of the taxes over the expenditure of which the council has no control. He quoted figures showing the amount the city had been called to pay for the maintenance of indigent patients in hospital and hospital grants, which totalled $24,233.32. The maintenance of Anson House and the House of Providence had cost the city $3,182.72, while Mothers' Allowance and Old Age Pension had cost a total of $19,500.00. For the maintenance of city boys sentenced to industrial schools by Magistrate Langley, the city had had to pay $1,142.75.

Relief costs for the year to date were also given by Mayor Denne, showing that the council and central charity board had given out $142,579.31 in relief, of which the city was called to pay $52,040.59.

If re-elected Mayor Denne pledged himself to give the same amount of time, energy and thought to his office as in the past. He said that daily he gives between two and three hours of his time directly to city business. For twenty years, twelve of them on the board of education, he said he had served the citizens of Peterborough. "During that time I have missed but two committee meetings, and I have never been absent from a council meeting.

Mayor Denne was loudly cheered when he took his seat.

Alderman Tuggey also pledged that if elected to the mayor's chair he would give the same time and thought to that office as he has to the city's business as an alderman.

Unpaid Taxes

He stated that the tax collector's statement showed that on November 30 there were $125,000 in taxes that were not paid. Of this amount $23,000 was the Board of Education's share. Alderman Tuggey said, "The committees of the City Council have kept within their budgets as the Mayor has said, but where is the money coming from to make up for these unpaid taxes." He pointed out the unsound financial position of the city in the face of the unpaid taxes.

The ony answer was determined cut in the overhead, he declared. In this connection he said he had moved that city employees be cut 10 percent but had been over-ruled in favor of a five percent reduction. During his years in the council had never opposed anything that was to the benefit of the common people, he stated.

Because of their inability to carry the burden of taxes, he stated, that men and women who have been thrifty and put their savings into homes are losing their homes. "I opposed the purchase of the brewery," he stated. "Not because I was opposed to its purchase but because I thought that the $3,000 paid for it could be better used for feeding our starving poor."

He also referred to the money granted each year by the City Council to public organizations in the way of special grants. He favored the cutting out of all grants.

"We are drifting and whither are we drifting we know not," Alderman Tuggey said "We must urge the school board to survey closely their expenditures. Finally what we need in this city is a round table conference of all spending bodies. What we need at the head of things are men with "guts".

Time And Experience.

E. G. Patterson said that he was willing to serve the citizens as Utilities commissioner. He stated that he felt that he had the time and that his experience as a manufacturer would prove of service to the city in the capacity of commissioner, especially in an effort to reduce expenditure and increase the service.

E. B. Fowler, in announcing himself a candidate for the Utilities Commission, said that he was a native of Peterborough and had always endeavored to serve the citizens wherever possible. While he had no criticism to make of the Commission or any individuals, he said he was ready to serve the common users of the utility.

John J. McCabe said that he represented the working class and now had lots of time to serve on the Commission. His aim would be to reduce the rates, and his watchword, economy.

E. R. Shirley, a member of the Commission for six years, said that when first seeking election he had stated that at least one technical engineer should be a member of the Commission. "After six years on the Commission, I repeat that statement," he said. He reviewed at some length the work of the Commission during the past six years, pointing out its splendid services and strong financial position.

Before he gained his seat, one of the audience asked Mr. Shirley, "What domestic rates are reduced?"

He replied that the domestic rate was just at the same figure now as when he entered the Commission.

"You tell us the rates have been reduced, but what about the commercial power rate? It used to be a half cent per kilowat hour, now it's one cent per kilowat hour. Is that a reduction?" asked another member of the audience.

Mr. Shirley did not reply.

Ex-Alderman M. McIntyre asked if Mr. Shirley thought it was good business to hand over to the City Council the $5,000 or $6,000 every year.

Mr. Shirley explained that such surpluses were bound to result although the Commission tried to keep its rates down as low as possible. The Commission could do nothing else but hand it over to the Council, and could not keep it as a sinking fund.

James Dutton stated that he never felt there was any extravagance in any body that for every dollar spent was securing a dollar in value.. He said the members of the Schoo Board were bringing ordinary common sense and their best business ability to bear upon all problems of the Board. The schools in Peterborough were as fine as in any city and the teachers were imbued with the highest ideals of their profession.

He stated that the teachers had volunteered a five percent cut in their salaries last winter, and had been informed by the Board that they must accept another five percent cut in January.

William Tinker said he would be a candidate for the Board of Education. He termed a five percent reduction in teachers' salaries a farce and that the appropriations of the Board of Education for 1933 should be a reduction of at least 25 percent on the 1932 estimates. "I may not be able to do this if I am elected, but I shall try" he promised.

The proposers and seconders of the nominations were:

For Mayor.

Roland Denne — Aldermen J. D. Fitzpatrick and G. A. Macdonald.

Fred T. Tuggey—George E. Johnson and Fred Shearer.

For Utilities.

E. G. Patterson—A. A. McIntyre and H. J. McCunnan.

A Lake For $1

Here's a nice lake which the city of Youngstown, O., is selling cheap —$1. It's Lake Milton, an abandoned reservoir built in 1916 at a cost of $1,500,000. It has a dam with flood gates, is 10 miles long and a half mile wide. Above, a summer view.

SHOULD REMAIN AS ALDERMAN

Editor Examiner, Peterborough,
Dear Sir:

I see that Ald. Tuggey is going to run for mayor. He has been a pretty good alderman but as a supporter I think he would better his chances of running for mayor if he would resign from the council and make a straight fight for the mayor's chair. I hear so many saying that he is in the council anyway for another year if he is defeated for mayor that they won't vote for him for mayor this time.

Yours truly,
WELL WISHER.

Former Lindsay Boy Is Held For Holdup

LINDSAY, Dec. 23 (Special to Examiner).—The local police have received information from Windsor to the effect that Bryon (Edward) O'Neill, alias Norris, a former Lindsay youth, had been arrested in that city, and had confessed to a Toronto hold-up.

The authorities have been on the look-out for O'Neill ever since he staged the daring hold-up over a year ago, when the Bredin Company's plant was entered by armed men, the night watchman slugged over the head by a gun, said to have been in the hands of O'Neill, and several thousand dollars stolen. O'Neill, the police claim, was the master mind behind the hold-up. Lindsay police were at once notified to be on the watch for O'Neill, as it was believed that he would strike for Lindsay, where his relatives reside. The police were also warned to use every precaution as the man was always armed. Later on O'Neill actually did visit Lindsay to see his wife. The police were tipped off from some unknown source. They lost no time in effecting plans for his capture. Just before they arrived at the home where O'Neill's wife was visiting, the much wanted man and his wife entered a car, and, it is believed, were whisked off to Windsor.

One of O'Neill's companions is now serving a term in penitentiary for the hold-up and the third man is being sought.

BLUFFS BANDITS.

WINDSOR.—Two bandits, one armed, were bluffed out of a daylight robbery to-day by George H. Nairn, supervisor for a downtown chain store. As the armed man said "Stick 'em up," Mr. Nairn made a move as if to draw a gun from his pocket. The men fled and no trace of them has been found.

FUR THIEVES SENTENCED.

TORONTO.—Max Beaver and Morris Rosenbaum were to-day sentenced to long terms for their part in the robbery of a local fur store. The men conducted their own defence at the trial. Beaver was sentenced to six years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and Rosenbaum to five years.

SUICIDES

DETROIT, Dec. 23 (A.P.)—Arthur Morley Kugeman, 32, prominent in Detroit society, shot himself to death last night in his home at Grosse Point Farms. He was the son of William E. Kugeman of New York, an official of the American Radiator Co. His widow was unable to offer any motive for the act. He left three children.

FIREMEN ARE DISTRIBUTING

he's at a fire" cautioned his companion, with proper respect for authority.

In a few minutes, the men were back. A chimney fire without the proper signals had brought out all the equipment, to get splashed and muddy in the heavy going. But the trucks waited for their bath until some more of the toys were on their way.

A fleet of trucks were requisitioned for the delivery of the thousands of articles which have accumulated from all over the city in weeks past and now are going out, with clean faces and dresses and new paint, to homes where Santa Claus might only be a fairy tale, but for the patient and careful work of the firemen.

Proud Beauty

During the fuss and flurry of the haughty dollie in the little blue doll carriage never stirred. She had a right to be proud. Out of many dolls, the Chief had selected her for a little five-year-old girl who made a special plea for something nice for Christmas. She had pink cheeks and a pink silk dress, but, contrary to accepted opinion, she didn't seem to be a blonde.

All the ladies of the doll family were there: Jean Harlow in black velvet; Dolly Dimples in pale yellow crepe, and Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary in a gingham gown. There were little dolls and big dolls, blondes and brunettes and stormy black-haired damsels. There was a sad-eyed dame with blue Irish eyes, rubbed in with the proverbial dirty finger, as the Irish say, waiting for a little mistress in a wicker rocker.

There was Aunt Dina, ready to make pancakes, Jiggs and Maggie accompanied by the traditional rolling-pin, a black "Oh My" Sambo with a limp in his gait, little camels and cats and doggies and teddy bears with pleased expressions, March hares with their ears flat to the wind, a tiny grey dog with specs over its cultured eyebrows, a monkey with a big hat, in an aerial hammock.

There were picture blocks, books, drums, mouth organs, tiny violins and mandolins and guitars, blackboards and sleds and skates, a racing motor car with lovely stream lines, a street-car complete with sliding doors, rocking chairs, tiny stoves complete with tea kettles and metal pots, tables and scooter skis and velocipedts. In a box waited 200 jig saw puzzles for careful little boys and girls to work over. There was a hobby horse with a wonlerful white tail and a prancing white steed romped away with a tiny milk wagon. There was a fire station complete with all equipment, ready for the bell to get into action, there were tobaggans and flat irons and sleights and tiny pianos and writing desks. There were aeroplanes and a lovely little seaplane with two big bronze 'shoes'. There was an ice wagon with a black horse and a tiny sewing-machine.

In a word, there was everything to delight the mind and eyes of the children who will get these pretty and useful things for Christmas. They were mainly toys that were discarded as unfit for use and now they are all ready again for another bout at life at the hands of little children. And, to a vivid imagination, there seemed to be a real aspect of cheerful and happy waiting brooding over these things that have taken on a new lease of joyous life, from the demure little Eskimo doll with the fuzzy black fur skirt to the modern damsel with a tip-tilted hat. One and all, they seemed to say that they were mighty glad to be back again.

Retiring Principal Honored By Pupils

BRANTFORD, Ont., December 23 (C.P.). — An unusual presentation marked the annual Christmas concert of the children of Dufferin School here. With pennies, nickels and dimes, the youngsters purchased a silver tray as a gift to the principal, J. S. Rowe, who is retiring after 42 years' service.

Mr. Rowe came here from Markdale, and has been the only principal of Dufferin School.

Alexandra School pupils for the second time won the Expositor Shield for efficiency in fire drills.

Christmas Service On Sunday Evening

To any in Peterborough who need a little Christmas Cheer, a group of girls are holding a "Christmas Carol Service" on Christmas Night, Sunday, especially for you. The young man or woman who is away from home, and the boy or girl, who is a boarder or roomer is particularly invited.

The only thing asked is that you come, and ask for your old favorite hymns and enjoy singing them. Clothes don't mean a thing! It will be a cheery warm place to spend a Christmas night, and maybe get a cup of hot coffee and a sandwich or two, at St. Andrew's United Sunday school hall, corner of Brock and Rubidge streets. Christmas Night, Sunday, at 7.30.

What shall we have for Dinner?

MERRY Christmas is universal. Its joy is not confined to any one community, or any one country, or any one people. It is celebrated the whole wide world over.

And in Canada, more than fifty different nationalities will celebrate Christmas in different ways, each following a national custom—a rite handed down through the ages, generation after generation.

There will be the Italian households where macaroni and spaghetti will appear, and perhaps the famous sweet cakes called brioches, which are often eaten as salad as part of the Christmas menu. Stuffed eels are a Christmas delicacy in Italy, but needless to say they will be rather difficult to get in Canada. Some native fish will be a substitute.

The Italians, like the Canadians and the English, must have their roast turkey and roast beef. But they serve vegetables which seldom grace a Canadian table. Broccoli, boiled endive and ravioli, Gnocchi, a delightful fritter, are often served with the meat course.

The Englishman who has not long been out from the old country will prefer roast beef on his Christmas table to the customary turkey or chicken.

Perhaps he will prepare it in the traditional manner by broiling on a spit and garnishing with vegetables.

The Irishman will vary this by substituting mutton for beef, while the Australians prefer veal on Christmas day.

At the Englishman's dinner, the plum pudding will be a main part of the dinner. It will come blazing with burning brandy from the kitchen to make a delicious dish, garnished with brandy sauce. And all this will be served amid decorations of evergreen, holly and mistletoe, with the Yule log burning in the grate.

And let us not forget the wassail bowl which will find a place on the table—and the nuts and candy. Who wouldn't like to sit down to an Englishman's Christmas dinner?

BUT wait. Look what the Roumanians will be eating. Bouillabaisse! And into it they put a pint each of shrimp, lobster, crab, blue fish and halibut, minced and seasoned, boiled and strained and added to a half-pint of fresh vegetable essences. Spices of every sort are added, and stars of toast, and wise men done in macaroni are sprinkled on top and remain just long enough to cook, and the famous dish is ready for the table.

How would you like that instead of turkey?

The Spaniards will have fowl, but not alone. There will be savory stews of lamb with entrees of white meat of turkey and pies and tarts stuffed with the darker portions of the fowl as principal dishes. Asparagus done in the traditional Spanish style with mushrooms and poached eggs will also form a part of this delectable menu.

And while we're on the subject of Spain it might do to remark that Santa Claus was unknown in ancient Spain, and has been adopted into only some of the provinces today. Their special gift day is not until the sixth of January.

The Germans in Canada will have a very plump goose, boiled slowly and then stuffed with apples and dried fruits of every kind — dates, figs, raisins, apricots and peaches, highly spiced and mixed with butter. The bird is served with mashed potatoes, sauerkraut, spiced beets and cucumbers. Many dried fish precede the goose, while a very important part of the feast is the braised veal and mushrooms. All this followed, of course, by cake, coffee and candy.

And so they will feast, these many nations that make up Canada. Some will feast elaborately, others frugally—perhaps more of the latter this year than ever before.

And Canada welcomes all these people on Christmas Day, and hopes that their Christmas will be a merry one in their new surroundings.

ANCIENT YULETIDE

Christmas boxes, it is said, had their origin in old Roman days. At that time altars were erected in every village, and money was placed by the people in a common box. The day following Christmas the money was distributed among the poor. Originally Jan. 6 was observed as Christmas, and four events were celebrated: the birthday of Christ, the appearance of the star which guided the Wise Men, the baptism of Christ and the first miracle. Uniformity of the date on which Christmas is now celebrated by many nations came into existence A.D. 428.

CHRISTMAS STOCKING

Stockings for Santa Claus to fill were more in vogue, and Christmas trees less so, fifty years ago. The latter were reserved chiefly for large gatherings, such as Sunday school teas, and they were considered very wonderful indeed, though there was a certain charm about the Christmas stocking which could not be duplicated even by a tree. The stockings held very little of value, but the element of mystery played its part, and the youngsters enjoyed the excitement of waking in the night or early morning to pinch the toe of a well-filled sock and guess what it contained. There was one thing almost certain to be found in the toe—it fitted so nicely—and that was a cornucopia of bright-colored paper filled with tiny candies. There were nuts and fruit and presents as well. A 25-cent doll, and horse and cart, or a Noah's ark, met the requirements of the average child.

Good St. Nicholas

Mr. Santa Claus Started in Spain 400 Years Ago

It Was During a War—Holland and Norway Accepted Him Next

ONCE A BISHOP

For the past few weeks no figure in international affairs has been more prominently displayed than the name "Santa Claus."

We all pay homage at this time of the year to the great white-whiskered old gentleman, but very few of us know where he comes from, how old he is, where he lives or what countries he visits.

Indeed, it is to be doubted that Santa himself knows from whence he originates.

All this being admitted, suppose we explode the mystery of Santa Claus; suppose we try and find out the how, where and whyfore of the red-coated reindeer driver with the cheery smile.

To start the story off in typical fairy-tale style, once upon a time someone started a war between Holland and Spain. That was back in the year 1568. The war lasted for 80 years.

It was natural that during the war Spanish soldiers should wander all over Holland telling stories of their native land.

And among these stories was the one about the Spanish bishop, St. Nicholas. It was told that this bishop had a very benevolent nature, worked always among the poor, had a great love for children and took a keen delight in giving them presents.

Before very long the Spanish children held feasts in the honor of this saint whose birthday, it was said, was on Dec. 6.

Now the Spanish word for saint is Santa and so it was that the feast became known as the feast of Santa Nicholas. But in Holland they nicknamed Nicholas, and called it Klaas, so that when the story had spread over Holland for many years, and the feast celebrated in that country, it became the feast of Santa Klaas, and is still known in that country to-day where the great children's feast is held on the 6th of December.

On the day before that date, the children are told that a great ship of toys from Spain is on its way to Holland and when it arrives the Spanish bishop, Santa Klaas, dressed in his scarlet robes and his mitre on his head, stands on the front of the ship accompanied by a black Moorish boy.

When the ship docks, Santa and his boy mount big black horses and, laden with toys, travel all over Holland distributing them to all worthy children. During the night the horses land on house-tops, and the black boy goes down the chimney.

Now, getting back to the eighty-year war, the conflict had amazing results in opening up new channels of trade with other countries. New lands were discovered, and the story travelled swiftly.

When it reached Holland, the name Santa Klaas was changed to the Norwegian, Santa Claus, which is the name we in Canada know. But the Norwegians refused to accept Santa Claus with the mitre and as a leader of the church, so they put a pair of fur-lined trousers on him, gave him a red cap and all the other things that Santa wears, and proceeded to welcome him into their homes. And Norway is a cold country, so the Norwegians were forced to supply him with a sleigh and reindeers.

They still allowed him to go down the chimney, but in the shuffle the little black boy was lost, so that Santa had to go down himself. However, they gave him a fir tree instead.

Then, for religious reasons, they didn't like the feast of the bishop on Dec. 6, so they changed it to the Yule-tide season, or Christmas, Dec. 25.

The story from Norway travelled to Denmark, to Germany, to England and, of course, across to Canada. Now it is known in most countries of the world.

All this is one man's version, anyway. There are a dozen others, but this seems to be quite logical. Not that it matters a great deal where Santa Claus comes from, so long as he comes.

"To Meet Miss Mary Christmas"

"ARE we sizzling with envy!" the girls in Miss Lammerton's fashionable boarding school told pretty Mary as she packed her doodads into a week-end bag. "Imagine going to a Christmas party in a specially chartered aeroplane. Who's the secret admirer who arranged it?"

"Dad, I guess," Mary told them. "Christmas Eve is my birthday and he always thinks up some perfectly ducky surprise for me."

"Well, while you're joy-riding through the clouds," said one of the girls, "just think of us old-fashioned girls bumping along snow-clogged roads in stupid old straight eights."

Outside there was the steady thunder of an aeroplane approaching. All the girls rushed to the window. The ship circled about in the frosty air once or twice and then glided to the snow-covered campus.

"Happy landing!" cried the girls as Mary Christmas, flushed with excitement, tripped down the stairs. She ran out of the domitory and over to the aeroplane near which a young man was standing.

"Why, Phil!" exclaimed Miss Christmas, "I didn't know you were a pilot."

"The instructor at the flying field doesn't think so either, but I thought you might take a chance and travel the air route with me to Tom's Christmas house party. That's why I sent you that unsigned telegram."

"You think it's quite safe?"

"All I can say, Mary, is that your life is in my hands."

"Well, it was certainly sweet of you, but—" she glanced swiftly over her shoulder at the girls waving from the window. "—all right, I'll go."

"I knew you would," laughed Phil as he helped her into the cockpit of the aeroplane. "By the way, my deadly rival, George Fanning, will be at the party. He just got back from Alaska a few days ago."

"How nice! I will be glad to see him again."

"Not too glad, I hope," grumbled Phil, remembering his time-honored "friendly enemy" competition with George for Mary's affections. In a moment he had the engine started, and, waving to the girls, Mary Christmas was off.

NOW and then, as they sped through the bracing winter air, she looked over the side of the car. "Santa Claus will travel with his reindeer this year. There's plenty of snow," she said to Phil, but her words were drowned in the drone of the motor.

All of a sudden the aeroplane dipped towards the ground. Phil was working madly at the joystick, but could not seem to left the ship. The frightened girl looked over the side again at the white ground which they were now rapidly approaching.

The pilot shut off the motor. "I'll make a safe landing in that clearing!" he cried. And sure enough, he did. The trembling Mary jumped out of the aeroplane when it stopped, happy to feel terra firma under her feet.

"Now what do we do?" she asked Phil.

"I guess we'll have to wait until I can get this thing working properly."

"Hop right in with me," said Santa Claus, "I'm going to that party myself. See, I have presents for everybody."

"But there's no one around here and——"

As she spoke she heard the tinkle of Christmas bells in the distance. The sound increased. "Maybe it's a sleigh," she said.

She ran towards the bells and was amazed to see Santa Claus himself appear in a sleigh drawn by four reindeer.

"What can I do for you, my child?" he asked Mary, in a deep, pleasant voice as he alighted.

Mary explained her predicament and pointed to the aeroplane.

"Well, you hop right in with me," Santa said, "I am going to that party myself. See, I have presents in my sled for everybody."

Phil growled he would wait and repair the motor and Mary Christmas—feeling that this was even more exciting than aeroplaning, rode off with Santa Claus to the party.

"Who in the world can he be?" she asked herself as Santa merrily shouted, "Hi, Vixen! Hi, Blixen!" as they drove over the snow.

"Oh, please tell me who you are," pleaded Mary, as they rode on their way to the tune of bells tinkling on the reindeer harness.

Santa Claus merely laughed. "Until midnight," he said, "I will be just Santa, after that, who knows? I may even turn out to be an old friend of yours."

"Your voice is certainly very familiar," Mary told him. "But I just can't imagine—and, by the way, where did you get your four reindeer. Didn't steal them from the zoo, I hope?"

"No, indeed."

"And wasn't it stupid of Phil not to come along with us? The party will probably be over by the time he gets there."

Mary Christmas could have sworn she heard Santa whisper: "I hope so!" but the wind was whistling so she couldn't be sure. And just when she was about to ask him, they arrived at their destination.

Santa helped Mary out of the sleigh. "Now, not a word about meeting me, my dear," he cautioned. "I will be back on the stroke of midnight. I have to make a couple of other calls."

The girl promised silence. Mr. Claus whipped up his reindeer and was off.

"It's all like some fantastic dream," she told herself, as she went into the house.

THE gay affair was in full swing. But inside she saw neither Phil Edginton nor George Fanning, the boy she had expected to meet again to-night for the first time in a year. When midnight approached, Mary became worried about Phil's absence.

She suggested sending out a rescue party after him. But the others laughed at her, said there was no danger—he'd appear. And when she asked about George they laughed again, told her that George would come, too, at the proper time.

Just as the clock was striking twelve there was a noise outside, excited shouts and then in stalked not one Santa Claus, but TWO! They looked exactly alike. Their bags of presents came down off their backs as they stood there arguing in a very unChristmas-like spirit.

And then their masks fell off. One Santa was George Fanning, the other was Phil Edginton!

"We both had the same idea," cried George.

"Sure," said Phil, "I wanted to ask Mary to be my Christmas bride."

"And I did, too," announced George.

Mary Christmas hesitated not a moment. "I guess the man who brought those four reindeer all the way from Alaska just to surprise me wins," she said.

Mary held out her arms to George. Her Santa Claus kissed her. "This is the best present I could have," said he—"a Mary Christmas."

Santa's Predicament

I've heard it's very cold up north where good old Santa lives;
I always thought he made the toys and all the things he gives;
I never in my life supposed that he was like my Dad
And grew a lot of wheat to pay for all the things I've had;
But Santa does depend on wheat, in spite of all the cold,
And I must not expect too much, for Santa Claus is old.

I learned all this the other day when I wrote down the things
I wanted Santa Claus to bring:—A necklace and some rings,
A talking doll, some roller skates, a car that's just my size,
A lot of games, a Teddy bear, an aeroplane that flies.
When Daddy saw the list I'd made he said, "Good Gracious, Honey!
How can old Santa buy all that, with two-bit wheat, for money!"

The Rebellion of the Toys

By LELLA L. RAYFIELD

THE tin soldier walked up and down excitedly while the watch dog barked and the lions and wolves growled in their throat. Everyone talked at once. It was an awful babble for such a wonderful place as Toyland.

An intense stillness fell over the excited toys as the door opened and Santa Claus came in. He looked around confused and bewildered. "My children," he said, "Whatever is the matter?"

The tin soldier cocked his gun and looked neither to right nor left. The beauty doll closed her eyes and pretended sleep. The mama doll's cheeks were red with anger. The rocking horse balked and refused to move. They had no greeting for him today.

"But my little ones, I have good news for you." Santa seemed hurt.

The tin soldier lowered his gun, touched his cap and stepped in real military fashion. "If it means going away, we don't want to go," he said.

An awful buzz of talk followed his remark. "We aren't going," they said.

"Not going?" Santa Claus questioned. "You can't mean that." He stroked his long white beard. "Why the girls and boys will have no Christmas."

"Why should we worry?" the sleepy beauty doll demanded. They don't care for us. They break us and throw us away. Why last year a naughty girl broke my poor sister's head off." She drew out her handkerchief and sobbed into it.

"I don't want to go," the rocking horse said," they'll break my bones. Besides they are all selfish anyway. Look at their letters."

Santa looked down at the pile of letters he held in his hand.

"But they aren't really selfish," the old man defended, "and they will be disappointed." Tears stood in his kind old eyes. Santa seemed suddenly very old and feeble. The tin soldier felt a tight place in his throat as he watched him. He knew how hard it would be to answer all those letters. He saluted as he opened the door for the old gentleman.

When Santa had gone he turned to the toys. "We are sorry," he said, "but they deserve it. Now to bed, friends. We must not lose our beauty sleep." The toys very subdued, climbed up to their places on the shelves.

The next day they were very restless. The watch dog bit the bear and they quarrelled. The tin soldier had to beat them with the butt of his gun. He tried to interest them in "Hide-and-go-seek" but nobody wanted to play.

In the evening they gathered for their usual dance. The dishes took their places beside the violin and the piano. Usually they had a wild, hilarious time for they knew they would not be together much longer, but Santa did not come out although they watched anxiously for him. Then the sleepy beauty pushed the mama doll and made her fall. The rocking horse crowded the rocking chair. Everybody was cross and cranky so they played the "Home Sweet Home" waltz early. The tin soldier ordered them back to their places.

Morning broke bright and shining. The toys were talking in whispers when Santa Claus came in with a letter in his hand. His voice trembled as he read about the little girl in the General hospital who wanted a mama doll. She had been lying there for months with her side all paralyzed and she wanted a doll. Would one of the dolls go?

The mama doll swallowed hard and looked at the tin soldier. It was a hard moment. He felt sorry for the little girl, but if one went they would all have to go so he shook his head.

"I think I should have gone," the mama doll whispered to the beauty doll.

"She'd probably get cross and throw you down. Remember your weak side," answered the beauty.

But it worried them. They dreamt of the little girl in the hospital, of the good and bad girls and boys everywhere. Besides, Christmas was near at hand.

At last they could stand it no longer and called a meeting. It was decided that the watch dog should go to the edge of Toyland and see for himself what was actually happening. He went on the electric train. When it brought him back at night he was dusty and dirty. He greeted them with a tired bark.

"What news," they questioned.

He told them of the journey down. His had been frightened as he saw the world far below him. He had looked and looked in every direction. None of the big departmental stores had any decorations. The shelves of the toy sections were yawning like caverns—all bare. There were sad children everywhere.

Just a few days until Chirstmas and no toys. It was rumored that there wouldn't be any Christmas. He had seen them talking about it on street corners instead of playing. There were no merry laughs and smiles anymore. Santa Claus was not coming.

The tin soldier coughed and said from behind his hand, "They are only getting what they deserve." The toys said nothing.

The watch dog continued, "I was looking into a big store when John Wilson came in. He was a poor thin little fellow with red hair. His clothes were ragged and he looked cold. I could see he was clutching something in his hand. He went searching down those long aisles looking at the bare shelves. At last he found a clerk.

"Aren't there any sleeping dolls?" he asked.

"None," said the clerk. "We haven't any dolls."

"But I want a doll for my sister," John continued. "She's sick.

"Im sorry," said the clerk again, "but we haven't any."

John went out with his face all screwed up to keep from crying.

The toys cleared their throats and turned with one accord to the tin soldier. He looked gravely at the beautiful doll. He knew what would happen; her beauty would be marred, her loveliness gone forever. Then he said in a husky voice, "It is for Beauty to decide, but I would hate to see the little boy disappointed."

The beauty doll half laughed and half cried. "Oh I'll go gladly. There's nothing I'd like better."

"And I'll go to the little girl in the hospital," said the mama doll.

Santa Claus entered quietly. He stared in amazement. They were all laughing and crying.

"We want to go down after all," they chorused.

Santa's face beamed. The tin soldier told him what the watch dog had seen. "We are going," he concluded, "even though we end in the gutter."

Santa got his big pack and shouted to a brownie to harness his reindeer. The toys tumbled in, one and all. The tin soldier brought up in the rear.

"I wonder," said Santa smiling, "if John Wilson wouldn't like a tin soldier."

A great weight was lifted from the heart of the tin soldier as he snuggled down with the toys in the great pack.

Birthday of the Poor

This is your birthday, children of the poor,
If still there is, in the warm heart of the earth,
A memory of a Birth,
Earth's Magi should bring offerings to your door.

Where should they lay them, if not at your feet?
Where else should blaze that Christmas diadem,
That Star of Bethlehem,
Save o'er your hovels, in your mean lane and street?

But you with lives of happier circumstances,
Should not forget poor children, your co-heirs,
Should climb their garret stairs,
Bring them their part of this joint heritance.

Their part is small—a doll, a drum, a cart,
Whole lighted Christmas trees will spring indeed
From but a little seed
Of Christmas kindness in a poor child's heart.

O do not let their bleak blank Christmas page
Bear only the inscription of a tear,
But write some word of cheer
That suits their tender heart and tender age.

Cannot Fix Date of Christ's Birth as December 25

Real Date of Jesus' Nativity Not Known to Biblical Students

WAS PAGAN DAY

GRAVEN upon a silver star let into the rock floor of a cavern under the altar in the great basilica at Bethlehem are the words: "Hic de Virgine Maria Iesus Christus natus est." "Here was Jesus Christ born of the Virgin Mary."

The silver star was placed there more than two hundred years ago—in 1704—but it alludes to a tradition that even at that time was fourteen centuries old.

Let us look into this strange tradition.

It must be remembered, of course, that there are two Bethlehems in Palestine: one in Judea, some seven miles south of Jerusalem; the other in Galilee, seven miles west of Nazareth.

During the whole course of His ministry, Jesus was known as the "Nazarene," and in the Acts of the Apostles both Peter and Paul speak of Him as "Jesus of Nazareth."

This and other references in these chapters would show that He was born in Judea, not Galilee.

"The Cave of Nativity," wherein rests the star with the inscription, was once a sanctuary of a pagan god, the Syrian, Tammuz, who, legend says, died and returned to life again every year. Although the Bible says that Jesus was born in a manger, or stable, this cavern could quite easily have served that purpose, as it was wide at the mouth, with a sloping entrance. It now has steps leading down.

SINCE the middle of the fifth century eastern and western Christendom alike have observed December 25 as the day of the nativity of Jesus. But even so conservative an authority as Monseigneur Duchesne admits that "there is no authoritative tradition bearing on the day of the birth of Christ," and that "even the year is uncertain."

The Gospels give no definite indication of the time of the year Christ was born. The earliest evidence for the observance of December 25 is furnished by a calendar drawn up at Rome in the year 336. But Chrysostom, in a sermon preached at Antioch, 50 years later, speaks of Christmas as a recently instituted observance in the capital of Syria. It appears that in the fourth century (A.D. 301-400), while Rome and the west observed December 25, Antioch and the east observed January 6 as the day of Christ's birth. Antioch adopted the Roman practice about A.D. 375, and thenceforth kept January 6 as the anniversary of the baptism in Jordan—the practice of the Greek church at the present day. But Jerusalem did not follow this lead until about A.D. 430.

TWO coincidences may be noted in connection with December 25. It synchronizes nearly, if not quite, with the festival institutes by the Jews in commemoration of the purifying of the temple by Judas Maccabaeus after the sanctuary had lain defiled and deserted for three years and a half. It was sometimes called the "Feast of Illumination."

Again, this date was observed by the the worshipers of the sun-god Mithra as the "Nativity of the Sun, the Unconquered God," being taken as the day on which the sun began to rise higher in the sky on his way from east to west and the days began to lengthen.

And so the day of the birth of Christ was a day which gave the world more light, and a new age dawned over mankind.

Christmas Fancies

FALLING as it does on a Sunday this year, Christmas enjoys a little better hope than when it falls on a Saturday.

For had it fallen on a Saturday, we could expect dire things to happen during the coming year, say the ancient seers and prophets.

Indeed, Sunday is one of the best days on which Christmas could fall. For then all is quiet and peaceful—a happy and prosperous omen.

But it is not only the day of the week, according to the astrologers, that decides the coming year. There is an ancient tome in which it is written, "The wise and cunning masters in astrology have found that men may see and mark the weather of a holy Christmas night, how the whole year shall be in its working and doing."

THUS, if Christmas day be dark, the cows will give much milk; if light the hens will lay well. Plenty of wind in the early hours of the day means that the "beastes and cattle" are going to have a bad time of it.

A clear Christmas day with plenty of sunshine presages a year of peace; but if clouds gather towards sunset it betokens much illness in the spring and autumn, while a high wind at sunset signifies that death will come among "kynges and lordes." If Christmas day brings thunder, a severe winter is certain, but a sunny Boxing day is something to be devoutly prayed for. It betokens a good financial year for us; or, as the old saying runs, "Then gold shall be easy to get among the English."

BUT superstitions cluster round Yuletide as thickly as bees round a honey-pot. If your Christmas is really a merry one, and you get playing games or dancing or junketing about in the evening, let it all be done by the light of the fire. All candle light, gaslight, or even electric light, is most fatal on such an occasion; and if you do not put them out before you begin your revels you will live to rue the day. Also everybody in the house should wish three wishes during the evening. A log fire gives great potency to this part of the proceedings. If you can get a nice gnarled and knotted log, put it on the hall or dining room fire, and when it has burned up well, each member of the household should sit in solemn silence before it and wish three times, and then they will get what they desire.

CHRISTMAS eve is a very dread occasion. All the ghosts in existence (especially ghosts of suicides), all witches and hobgoblins are about, eager to work what mischief they may before the hour of midnight strikes; and so just before twelve you should open as many doors and windows as you can, in case any have made their way into your house, that they may be expelled.

Married men must be careful in choosing the holly for their home decoration, for if smooth leaves preponderate, the wife will be mistress for the next twelve months; if prickly, she will play second fiddle to her spouse. But, whatever you do, allow no new leather in any form to enter your house during Christmas week, for it is sure to bring ill-luck with it.

If you would protect your house from fire, keep the charred remnant of this year's yulelog to light its successor next Christmas; and while it is burning see that no person with bare feet or a squint enters—and, above all, no flat-footed woman.

Of course, the first thing brought indoors on Christmas day must be something green; and the first person to enter must be a male—even a tom-cat, it is said, can be relied upon to bring luck with him; while anyone who draws water from a well on Christmas morning draws good fortune for his family.

If a cricket chirps on your hearth on the fateful day, you may look forward to the coming year without a fear; for of all luck bringers at Yuletide the cricket is king.

Many keep their ears open on Christmas night for the crowing of the cock, for when "the bird of dawning singeth all night long, no spirits dare stir abroad during the coming year." In parts of Devon and Cornwall the superstition still lingers that "at midnight on Christmas eve the cattle fall on bended knees in their stalls in adoration of the infant Christ." And some there are who declare that, at the "witching hour,' cattle have the gift of speech, and hold converse which no eavesdropper must listen to unless he wishes harm to befall him.

For the maiden who wishes to know her matrimonial fate, Christmas offers more facilities than any other season of the year. If, for example, she wants her husband-to-be to reveal himself in her dreams, she has only to eat the egg of a black hen on Christmas eve, and any fears or hesitation she may be troubled with will soon be dispelled when once her head is cosily pillowed.

If she wishes to make the spell as potent as possible, she will boil the egg hard, remove the yolk, and after she has filled up the cavity with common or table salt, will eat egg, shell, salt and all. If she does not dream of her lover then it will certainly not be the hen's fault.

NEW CHAPTER IN INDIA'S CASE

Heare States Emergency Orders to Maintain Law May Be Cancelled First of Year.

GOOD WILL SPREADS.

By George Hableton, C.P. Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 23 (C.P. Cable)—"We are beginning a new chapter," Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for India, told the House of Commons yesterday as he spoke optimistically of the situation in India.

"There is a new spirit of good will abroad and by the new year it is hoped the emergency orders now in effect to maintain law and order will no longer be required," said Sir Samuel. The Indian legislature, "of its own free will" had given the situation. Sir Samuel cited the ratification of the Ottawa agreements between the United Kingdom and India by the Indian legislative assembly as a particular expression of good will. "From the very first of the Ottawa negotiations I stepped aside entirely. I took the view that the legislature of India should have the opportunity to ratify or reject the agreements as they liked," he declared. "From the start to the finish no influence was brought to bear upon them, either by myself or by the department of Whitehall. Eventually, after the closest study of the agreements the legislature ratified them by 77-25 which indicated a majority in favor of the agreements apart from the official bloc."

The secretary for India predicted the Round Table Conference now in session would have great results and said the whole situation was definitely better than it was six months ago.

ONTARIO PEOPLE URGED TO USE

ferent districts from which it is shipped.

"The upper seams, strip mines and coal areas with little ground cover over the seam always contain considerable moisture, and break up rapidly giving a small flash heat but no lasting power.

"The lower seams and coal from well known districts are harder, stand the transit over long distances owing to containing a much small er proportion of moisture and the coals that should be shipped to the Eastern points.

"There is considerable confusion instilled into minds of users of household coal experts and the 'B. T.U.' (British Thermal Unit) content. This expression or measurement is applied to and used for steam producing purposes mainly and does not bear very much on the household coal or coal required for low pressure heating plants.

"The B.T.U. technical explanation so that you can see it is of no great value to the householder, British Thermal Unit is the unit of heat or amount required to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 59 to 60 degrees F. or equivalent to 778 foot pounds of work. Therefore one horse power is equivalent to 42.41 B.T.U. per minute. That does not help a fellow much with his furnace on a cold night. What the householder wants is a coal containing a good high carbon or fixed volatile content which produces heat and lasting power and the matter of B.T.U.'s should not enter into this proposition at all except to confuse the man on the street.

"Made in Canada" is a familiar phrase to all and our Western province comes along with their slogan "Produced in Alberta." A drive initiated by the coal producers of Alberta plans to bring the two provinces much closer together in a mutual exchange of commodities.

"Ontario has a wide range of natural and manufactured products to sell to Alberta. But that province has only one principal commodity to offer Ontario. Coal. Ontario is seeking markets for manufactured products. Alberta is seeking markets for coal. Why not get together and trade?

A Vital Duty

"We all—every last one of us—owe a vital duty to our fellow citizens. That duty is to help provide jobs for more people, especially in the winter months when the need is greatest.

"If men and women are working they are spending and so keeping money in circulation. Every dollar we pay out for "Made in Canada" products comes back to us in one way or another.

"You may not think you are interested in or concerned with coal other than as a consumer but you are. Ontario is the principal supply centre for mining machinery, structural steel, food stuffs, clothing and hundreds of other commodities used in the coal mines of Western Canada.

"It should be realized that the total amount of coal imported into Ontario from foreign countries for domestic use only is two and a half million tons. It would be a comparatively easy matter to purchase from Alberta five hundred thousand tons of this, providing a freight rate were secured of $5.00 per ton. The present freight rate is $6.75 per ton and the mines receive $3.50 per ton from their product. The long hoped for freight rate of $5 per ton would permit the coal being laid down here at $8.50 per ton. In adlion to the $6.75 per ton freight, the Government pay the railway a bonus of $2 per ton on all coal hauled from the West. That is what is killing the Western coal trade, high freights, nothing more or less.

If 500,000 tons of Alberta coal could be moved to Ontario it would provide employment to railway men alone as follows:

"Each moving train load of coal will give work to a crew of five out of each of the 16 divisional points between Alberta and Ontario. In other words it will provide 80 days' work.

"Allowing for each train to be made up of 80 cars, each car holding 36 tons of coal, we find that each train will transport 2,160 tons. On this basis in order to transport 500,000 tons, 250 trains would be required. As 80 days' work is provided by one train, 250 trains would provide 200,000 days' work. The yard movement on these 250 trains would provide 8,000 additional days' work. The car and locomotive repair work on the 250 trains would provide 3,000 additional days' work. The fuel used by the locomotives on these 250 trips would amount to 190 tons per trip, a total of 47,500 tons. Alberta coal would be used for fifty per cent of this haul which would mean an additional amount of Alberta coal used of 23,750 tons and as each three tons of coal used provides work for one day for one man we have a further 7,916 days' work.

"These cars that come down with coal from Alberta have to be hauled Westward again. The railway companies' statistics show that the expense of the return haul is eighty per cent of the cost of hauling the fully loaded train eastward. If therefore employment of 38,900 days were provided in hauling of 500 000 tons of coal eastward to Ontario, employment to the amount of 31,-120 days would be provided on the westward haul. The transportation of the 500,000 tons eastward and the return of the empty cars westward would therefore provide 70,020 days' work.

"With regard therefore to providing work by reason of the actual hauling of the coal, we find the following:

	Days Work
Railway trainmen	20,000
Railway yardmen	8,000
Rail. car & locomotive rep's	3,000
To sup. fuel for locomtles	7,900
	38,900
Return haul	31,120
Total	70,020

On the actual mining preparation and loading of the coal at the mine, we can quote the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Their figures show that every three tons of coal give a day's employment. It is quite apparent therefore that in the mining of 500,000 tons of Alberta coal with one day's work for each three tons, a total of 166,666 days' work would be provided.

"We then have the following:

	Days Work
Railway work days	70,020
Production	166,666
Total	236,686

"That is, by giving Western Canada a $5 rate on coal it is estimated 236,686 days' work would be required.

"Coal mining in Alberta as an industry provides possibly more work than any other industry in the province. Besides the men actually mining there are numerous machine cutters, tracklayers, timbermen, laborers and outside helpers so that it only averages about 3 tons of coal per day for man employed. Hence the coal mining industry is a large pay roll distributor, and wages, as all know, is the quickest circulating money known. Besides the large pay roll of their own, the transportation of the coal provides labor on the railways. Large quantities of mine timbers are used, benefiting the workers in the woods and the railways again. There are miles of rails used in every mine and possibly 4 to 5 tons of mine track spikes per annum providing work for steel mills and manufacture of spikes. Tons of carbide are used every year Explosives "black powder" is bought by the car load besides dynamite in large quantities and electric cable by the mile.

Everyone Concerned

"Unemployment relief is constantly mounting and is a great deal heavier than most of us realize. Every citizen is personally concerned whether a direct tax payer or not. One way or another we all help to pay the cost of maintaining our unemployed and the burden is constantly growing. Direct relief and public works are but temporary expedients. The only way to reduce unemployment expense is to give men jobs instead of hand-outs. Each man put to work even for one day is one less on relief. And we can put not one man but literally hundreds at work by using Alberta coals. Consider this: When you purchase a ton of imported coal you automatically take business from a Western mine, from a Canadian factory manufacturing mine equipment and tools, a Canadian lumberman getting out the vast quantities of pit props, ties, etc., required by the coal mines and a Canadian railroad which transports the coal from Alberta to Ontario.

"Carry it further: Consider the hundreds of people each of these separate businesses employ and the many trades in turn supplying them with raw materials. Use Canadian Coal, it means pay rolls instead of soup kitchens for our own people."

Use Old Trolley Car As Church

FATHER DANIEL FORD

The Italian Parishioners of Milton Heights, Ontario, by dint of hard labor and ingenuity succeeded in erecting for themselves a parish hall from an abandoned trolley car (left). Father Daniel Ford is the minister to this unique congregation. The inside of the car has been renovated and an altar placed at one end, while the old seats have been torn out and wooden benches used in their stead. The church is known as St. Margaret Mary.

Little Incidents in the Lives Of Famous Canadians

By J. H. MOSGROVE

George Etienne Cartier—The Refugee

The November morning broke cold, dark and stormy. Across the bare plowed fields of St. Denis the bells of the old village church sounded the tocsin. Through the rain and sleet the "patriotes" from the neighborhood of St. Ours and Contrecoeur trudged ankle-deep in the muddy, sodden road under the banner of an old faded tri-color and the light of a smoking lantern carried aloft. A motely crowd, soldiers of Louis Joseph Papineau, grouped together in a common cause. They were armed with rusty muskets, picks, pitchforks and cudgels, smoking short black pipes and wearing blue tuques which hung halfway down their backs, clothes of "etoffe du pays," and leather mittens.

Hidden by the mists of the night that hovered low over the river, the "patriotes" from the parish of St. Antoine, under the command of Geo. Etienne Cartier, crossed the Richelieu in several "bateaux" taking possession a large stone house, known as the Maison Saint Germain, and situated on the main road by which the British troops had to pass to gain the village of St. Denis. Barricading themselves on the ground floor where the massive walls constituted an almost impenetrable barrier, the "habitant" army awaited the approach of the enemy. Dr. Wolfred Nelson, the "patriote" commander at St. Denis and young Cartier were everywhere exhorting their followers to firmness.

The British Attack

It was between nine and ten o'clock. The sleet had turned to snow and was falling heavily, almost blindingly, across the landscape. It was there that the regulars under Col. Gore appeared before St. Denis. Perceiving that he had to meet with an armed resistance, Gore divided his brigade into three columns, one of which was marched to a nearby wood and another by the way of the river, whilst the main force, with a cannon, kept along the highway to lay seige to the stone house of Saint Germain, in which the most formidable force of the "parties" were quartered.

Bringing the cannon immediately into action, and raking the upper structures with a hail of shot, the regulars made a rush upon the fortress. The "patriotes" met the attack with a withering fire and many of the soldiers fell in the advance. Towards two o'clock in the afternoon the regulars astounded at the determined stand of the defenders, were obliged to seek shelter behind fences, piles of cordwood and in an old barn nearby from which they were able to keep a steady fire upon the house.

It was at this critical stage of the conflict that Dr. Nelson dispatched young Cartier upon a heroic mission to St. Antoine for reinforcements and supplies. Without a thought for his own safety, Cartier slipped out by a back entrance, skirted along the fence until he was sure of his direction, then sped across the fields under the brisk fire for the British troops and made toward the river. Putting out in one of the small boats, the bullets whinning about his ears and spitting into the water all about him, he crossed the Richelieu, and returned in an hour's time with the desired reinforcements.

The British Retreat

Encouraged by the arrival of fresh recruits from St. Antoine the "patriotes" redoubled their efforts to repulse the troops. Col. Gore perceiving the danger of a complete rout owing to the lack of ammunition, abandoned the cannon and ordered a retreat on Sorel.

The jubilation of the "patriotes" was short-lived. The overwhelming victory of the regular troops at St. Charles was a crushing blow to the "patriote" cause, and the leaders of the rebellion finding themselves wholly deserted by their followers, made all haste to escape to the United States. After proceeding some distance, young Cartier and a relative, who accompanied him, lost their way, and after some days' wandering found refuge in the home of a farmer of the parish of Vercheres, Louis Chagnon dit La Rose. Here, during the long winter months, Cartier and his cousin remained, their presence being discovered in a rather curious way.

The young lady of the household was affianced to a young farmer of the district and the "refugees" were in the habit of concealing themselves until the young man's departure, whenever he paid court. However, on one particular cold winter's evening, the young lover sitting closer to the fire than usual, happened to notice two pairs of feet stretching from under the kitchen chimney. The secret was out and the young woman was obliged to confide it to her lover, and the same time enjoying strict silence.

All went well until one evening in the early spring when a lover's quarrel developed, the young gallant accusing his sweetheart of preferring the young "refugees" to himself and threatening that not only would he divulge their hiding place but that he would also denounced her father to the authorities. Cartier and his cousin accordingly took their departure at once, and succeeded in reaching Burlington, Vt. where they lived in security until August, 1838, when they returned to Montree' under the amnesty granted by Lord Gosford.

CHURCH CONCERT

Presents Are Distributed at Cordova Mines Following Yuletide Program.

CORDOVA MINES, Dec. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very successful Christmas entertainment was staged in the Methodist Church Sunday School room on Wednesday evening, when the scholars of S.S. No. 12, presented their annual concert, before a large audience of interested spectators.

Choruses, dialogues, drills and recitations which had all been prepared under the able direction of Mr. Donald Buchanan, school principal, assisted by Miss Anderson, teacher of the lower forms, were gone through with precision, hardly to be expected of some of the younger children. The opening chorus, "Deck the Hall," was sung by the entire school, and was followed by a number of recitations, well given by the following: John McGregor, Ernest Johnson, Jean Johnson, Theodore Bedore, Jean Youmans, Donald Kelsh, Daisy Kelsh, Olive Hamilton Jim Fitzpatrick, and two cousins, both named Gerald Youmans. A motion song by eight boys, an Upside Down Drill by some of the scholars; a dialogue, "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," and the closing chorus, "So Very, Very Good," were all well done, and heartily applauded.

During the evening, Mr. Isaac Anderson, brother of the junior room teacher, who is also a councillor in the Township Council, addressed the audience, and gave a humorous reading. Mr. Charles Chard gave a couple of violin selections, and Mr. Will Steenburgh gave a vocal selection, with guitar accompaniment.

The distribution of the Christmas parcels was made after the concert, and every boy and girl received a goodly share of gifts, candy and nuts. The proceeds of the entertainment, twenty dollars, will be used for recreational school equipment.

NO DEPRESSION

SEATTLE — Depression? Pooh! Five thousand customers of the Home Savings and Loan Association haven't noticed it. R. A. Fraser, auditor, said today that cheques for $10,000, written Sept. 1 when the Association's receiver declared a dividend, have not been called for by the claimants.

The Trade

ELKHORN, Wis. Dec. 23. — (AP)—The white horse Ralph Tolkan looked upon made him see red.

One day last fall he saw the white horse on a farm and offered to trade his buckskin horse for it, but the farmer said no. Came another day recently and he saw the farmer again.

"How's the white horse?" Tolan asked.

"Not quite so spry and a little stiffer," he quoted the farmer, whereup on trade was arranged.

Later Tolkan came before a judge and said:

"As he's said before, it was a little stiffer than usual. I went back of the barn and there was the white horse—stone dead."

Nineteen Are Killed In Tokyo Slub Fire

TOKYO, Dec. 23.—(A.P.)—Nineteen persons were dead, 18 injured and 32 still unaccounted for as police continued a search for bodies in ruins of a fire which razed a tenement section to-day in the Fukagawa slum district of Tokyo.

The majority of the casualties were Korean coolies.

Twenty tenements housing 92 families were destroyed within half an hour after the blaze started, before dawn.

GRAB BAG

What country did oranges come from?

What is the green gage?

Are Japan quinces poisonous?

Correctly Speaking—

"Ugly" means repulsive to the eye. A provincialism when used to mean vicious, malicious or ill-tempered.

Today's Horoscope

Persons born on this day are neat and tidy and want no slovens around them.

Answers to Foregoing Questions

1. The orange is a native of India or southern China.

2. A variety of sweet plum, originating from France.

3. It is not poisonous, and can be used for making jellies and jams.

BOY SCOUTS PLAY SANTA ROLE, FIX, DISTRIBUTE TOYS TO NEEDY

Chain of Shops Operated By Boys Stretch Across Dominion.

GIRL GUIDES AID.

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—The Boy Scouts of Canada have gone over the top again—and this time with a rush of enthusiasm and determination that could not be denied, even by old man "depression."

Nearly 100,000 toys and other children's articles have been prepared and sent out to needy children who might otherwise have had Santa Claus pass over their chimney without going down. A chain of more than 150 Scout toy repair shops, stretching the length and breadth of the Dominion, has been feverishly busy during the last six weeks in helping Santa Claus in his onerous task of seeing that every child in Canada receives a present on Christmas day.

Poor children in the crowded cities whose parents are more vitally concerned with where the next meal is coming from than with buying presents, and children of immigrants settled on the lonely farms throughout western Canada and northern Ontario, have been looked after in the thorough and painstaking fashion that results from a combination of the cheery spirit of Santa Claus and the "good deed" motto of the Boy Scouts.

"Presto Chango"

Animals without heads, mamma dolls that won't say mamma, rocking horses that won't rock, mechanical toys without that certain "something" that makes them operate and dozens of other toys, crippled and maimed and seemingly useless, have found their way to the toy repair shops of the Boy Scouts. There they have gone through the "presto chango" stunts and have been converted into fine strong playthings prepared to make some kiddy's Christmas the brighter and some unfortunate home the happier.

To the Girl Guides, too, must go much credit for this great movement. In each centre they have co-operated and done their share in aiding Santa Claus by redressing and remodelling dolls and dolls clothing. Senior Sunday School classes and units of the Canadian Girls in Training have also lent a hand in the work.

This task of obtaining old and worn out toys and bringing them back to life for some other youngster which the Scouts and Guides have undertaken is what the Chief Scout, Baden-Powell, terms "happifying." It originated a few years ago in one Scout pack but has now become a national endeavor and has spread into the United States and England. That its scope is not parochial nor its execution niggardly is borne out by the results of last year's work. One hundred thousand toys is a lot of toys, the making of which in spare time without reward could perhaps only be done by the Boy Scouts and the Girl Guides.

NO MORE WAR CRY OF WAR VETERANS

the Versailles treaty, now universally admitted, only served to keep alive the war psychosis and that the best way to overcome the walls of prejudice, German and French citizens should rise above the barriers and extend each other a hand of reconciliation.

Secret Documents Published

-2com..cntion-ss-a..b—n-l- j c-

Thus has been reached a milepost in the ever-widening movement on both sides of the Rhine to bring the war of the spirit, which was an aftermath of the armed conflict, finally to a close. The day seems not distant now that the war mentality, which perpetuated thoughts of revenge by a ceaseless repition of wartime fallacies and prejudices, will disappear. One thing is certain; influences of the war literature on both sides of the Rhine, and the publication of secret diplomatic memoirs, the eyes of millions have been opened to the realization that they were largely the victims of hysteria and false reasoning in the holocaust years. They know now that it was humanity which was crucified in the conflict, humanity of which all combatants irrespective of nationality formed an indissoluble pari.

For the last five years the movement for reconciliation has been spreading so that to-day it may be said to have attained all the strata of the population in France and Germany. Hardest to penetrate with the thought of peace proved the upper layers of society in both hands. Yet the significance of the widening scope of the process in Germany can probably be best gauged when it is known that on the days when Adolph Hitler held his mass-demonstrations in the course of which the Nazi leader breathed revenge and defiance in all directions, immensely more powerful demonstrations for peace were held by the German Socialists simultaneously in other cities of the Reich. When Hitler had his 50,000 brown shirts face in the direction of Poland on the occasion of the Nazi rally in Breslau, this geste of cocky nationalism was neutralized and completely overshadowed by the solemn oath of 500,000 German Socialists gathered that day in Munich who swore that "war shall never be again."

While the initiatives in the movement for international reconciliation was taken by the Social-Democrats in France and Germany, other organizations have since fallen into line. The Catholic church has been particularly active and large delegations of French Catholics, led by clergymen, have been visiting great Catholic gatherings in Germany. The reception they received in the Reich was not merely enthusiastic, it bordered on the incredible.

A Touching Scene

One of such monster gatherings in Cologne which I attended some three years ago at the inception of the movement for reconciliation, brought scenes of unforgettable beauty and grandeur. After the reading of a moving letter from the Pope who expressed the hope that Germans and Frenchmen would reach each other the brother-hand in the name of Christ the King, a French priest, who wore the medals, exclaimed: "Chretiens, nous sommes retrouves" (Christmas, we have found each other back). At these words virtually the entire assemblage burst into tears.

Another phase of this international reconciliation movement is the annual sojourn in Germany of groups of French university students and reversely of German students in France. This was initiated in 1929 when the first five groups of German students, each group numbering 500 boys and girls, visited German university cities as the guests of their German colleagues.

These visits, of course, have nothing to do with the heavy German tourist influx each year into France. In spite of the colossal number of American visitors to France, half a million in the tourist peak year of 1929, the Germans always surpassed the American even in 1931, when the depression had struck Germany visitors at the Colonial exposition.

From a totally different quarter again has come a determined and conscious effort of reconciliation when the Liberal Press associations of France and Germany pledged each other not to publish news or editorials, which might have for result a revival of the old spirit of hostility and hatred. On occasions when difference of view of opinion should arise between the French and German governments, due care was to be taken, it was agreed, to proceed with circumspection in enlightening public opinion. No appeal to prejudice was to be tolerated on the part of other papers without a prompt challenge.

Millions Committed to Peace

Everywhere you go in Germany you see men wearing the small emblem of the "Never Again War" movement, which consists of a small rifle being broken in two by a pair of hands, in preference to Iron Crosses or ribbons denoting other medals and decorations. The entire left wing political parties, who polled 21 million votes in the last election, is irrevocably committed to a policy of peace. This is not counting the Centrum and other middle-class democratic parties.

The sentiment of the Parisians in the direction of friendly relations with Germany, a sentiment which is decisive in this matter as well as in all other things for the whole of France, was illustrated concretely on the occasion of the visit of Chancellor Bruening to Paris for his conferences with Prime Minister Pierre Laval. Hours before the arrival of Dr. Bruening the boulevards were jammed with an innumerable crowd. It was the first time that a German statesman was to visit Paris in fifty years.

Some anxious moments were passed by the Prefect of Police, M. Jean Chiappe, and the minister of the interior on the morning of that day when Chancellor Bruening was to arrive and when it became evident that fickle Paris for some unaccountable reason was in ferment. Shops were closing in the afternoon so that employees might be free to witness the show. By noon a million people were on the boulevards. The streets in the neighborhood of the great North station and the German embassy were impassable by three o'clock. Nobody knew the temper of the crowd. Troops were poured in from the suburbs. Ten thousand policemen lined the route Dr. Vrudening was to take.

"Vive la Paix!"

When the Berlin express finally pulled in, a small party of grimy, oil-smeared men in overalls, firemen and engine-drivers and wipers, made its way to the platform. They stood next to the ministers and diplomats in top-hats and morning coats. The prefect confessed later that he was in a sweat. Then Dr. Bruening left his carriage. M. Laval greeted him. There was an exchange of formalities. And then suddenly one of the firemen, a fine type of worker, old poilu, stepped forward right in the German chancellor's path and, as he took off his cap, he said deliberately: "Vive la Paix!" (Long live peace!) There was a moment of silence. Then Dr. Bruening returned the greeting: "Vive la Paix!" The words were not out of his mouth or the others in the group of station employees burst forth with a vibrant "Vive l'Allemagne!" (Long live Germany).

It was quite a simple gesture, but a spontaneous one. The cry was taken up by the crowd in the great lobby. It spread to the street. The populous faubourgs were carrying it forward; thunderous, resonant, irresistable: "Vive l'Allemagne! Vive la Paix! A bas la guerre!" (Down with war!) That was Paris speaking. And Paris always speaks the mind of France.

PUPILS PRESENT PLEASING PROGRAM

Annual Christmas Concert Staged in Confederation School.

The annual Christmas concert at Confederation School was held last evening under the auspices of the Home and School Association. The programme was provided by present and past pupils of the school and in order to avoid overcrowding two performances were given, the first at 7 o'clock the second at 9 o'clock. The room was prettily decorated with signs of the Christmas season.

The program, which was well carried out and thoroughly enjoyed was as follows: Chorus, "Old Santa Claus is Coming", Miss Johnson's class; Recitation, 'The Crippled Dolly', Viola Bradman; Motion song, by boys of Miss Sander's class; Exercise, 'Signs of Christmas', Miss Johnson's class; Stocking parade, boys of Miss Garbutt's class; Harmonica selection, by 'Y' boys; Duet, "Mending Christmas stockings', Gladys Holland and Violet Hebson; Recitation, "What The Stocking Said", May Pitchford; Tap dancing, Lilian and Ethel Barnes; Chorus, "Snowflakes', girls of Miss Johnson's class; Star drill, 8 girls of Miss Garbutt's class; Duet, 'Rueben and Rachel', Marion and Gordon Juniper; Guitar selections, Miss Viola Sanders and Mr Keith Welch.

The characters for the play, 'Great Aunt Martha" were as follows: Rachel Pendennis and Great Aunt Martha, Hilda Curtis; Mrs Forrester, Helen McFarlane; Jane Forrester, Madge McFarlane; Martha Forrester, Mollie Harrington; Violet, the maid, Beatrice Curtis; Mrs. Pendennis, Agnes Sturgeon.

Pageant, "O Holy Night" by Mrs. Jacksons class. This depicted the first Christmas night in Bethlehem, showing the Shepherds, the appearance of the angel, the visit to the manger, the wise men worshipping the Christ Child, and a company of young worshippers bearing candles and singing "Away in a manger." Ruth McBride was the reader, Mae Pickles represented the Angel Gabriel and Violet Freeman the Holy Mother of Jesus.

During the pageant carols were sungby a chorus behind the platform. The carol "Joy to the World," was sung at the close of the pageant. The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

Miss Chrissie Milby acted as accompanist for the musical numbers.

The draw for the quilt resulted in Mrs. R. Pilling being the winner with ticket number 35, while a dressed doll given as door prize was won by Harry Douglas with ticket number 138.

The concert was a great success and a very satisfactory sum was realized the whole of which will be used for relief. The members of the Association also acknowledged with thanks donations from Mr. H. B. Rye and Mr. J. Milby.

MRS. W. THOMPSON WINS FIRST PRIZE

Winners Announced in Advertising Slogan Contest Conducted by Hamilton Bros.

Winners in the recent advertising slogan contest conducted by Hamilton Brothers, 163 Charlotte street, were announced last night over Station CKGW, by C. McEown, who is now preparing art designs for Hamilton Furriers' highway signs, and who was the official judge of the contest.

Slogans in the contest were received from as far west as Wilkie, Saskatchewan, and as far south as Barrington, Massachusetts. There were many from Ontario and Montreal, Quebec.

To Mrs. W. R. Thompson of 577 Homewood avenue, Peterborough, goes the first prize, a Hudson seal jacket, for the slogan: "Quality, Style, Workmanship too, is Hamilton's aim in serving you."

Mrs. J. Doyle of 174 Simcoe street, Toronto, gains the second prize of a brown fox fur scarf, with the slogan: "Honesty pays, Quality tells, Service pleases."

The third prize, a kolinsky fur neckpiece, goes to Mrs. J. F. Burgess of Lakefield, for the slogan: "Hamilton's threefold seal: Honesty, Quality, Service."

Timely Meows

TORONTO, Dec. 23. (CP)—"Lizzie" smelled smoke. So she arose from her down couch and investigated. Sure enough, the house was on fire. Lizzie went to Isador Solway's door and began screaming and scratching. Solway eventually awakened. So did Mrs. Solway. They opened the door. There was Lizzie, just a few feet from the flames.

Mr. and Mrs. Solway promptly awakened their children, Reubeh and Sidney, and went out in a hurry. So did Lizzie "She's certainly a great little cat" said Mrs Solway, as firemen rushed to the scene. Damage was estimated at $200.

PROMOTE ROMANCE IN OLD PLYMOUTH

Town Fathers, Alarmed at Celibacy, Take Steps to Encourage Marriage.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Dec. 22. — (C.P.).—Apparently the John Aldens of this town are not speaking for themselves. The figures show that Plymouth where the Pilgrim Fathers first set foot this side the Atlantic, and where they built up the richest of all New England hamlets, before the revolution, is slowly dying.

The town population, about 12,000, has dropped by 1,000 in two years. Marriages have fallen off from 172 in 1920 to less than 100 a year. Not a single marriage intention is now on fyle.

At the town hall the belief is that young men and women living in Plymouth move away when the time comes to set up homes of their own. And so they are going to do something about it. In future local couples will be not only invited to marry here, but strongly urged to keep on living in the vicinity of the famous rock.

As a tangible incentive, Chief of Police Russell Dearborn announces that his men will no longer interfere with cars parked at historic Plymouth beach, where the Mayflower hove to, or on Powder Point Bridge Road, thus giving romance a change to germinate.

The truth is, since Priscilla Mullens redirected John Alden's suit on behalf of Miles Standish into more personal channels, Plymouth has been proud of its reputation as the home of the love-match. That was in 1687 or thereabouts, and while the town fathers are not hopeful that any white palfreys will be curried for the journey from the church in these times, they are banking on the efficacy of the Plymouth beach moonlight.

Hastings Couple 28 Years Married

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, December 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Scriver celebrated the 28th anniversary of their wedding on Wednesday, and were hosts to a great many citizens who called to wish them many more years of wedded life.

Mr. Scriver is a Hastings boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Scriver, who recently celebrated their 58th anniversary. Mrs. Scriver was born in Lindsay, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Johnson. Their wedding took place in Hastings on December 21, 1904, Rev. Mr. Steele performing the ceremony. The happy couple were attended by R. Thompson and Miss Letitia Scriver. Mr. and Mrs. Scriver have spent their entire married life in the village. Their two sons, Lloyd and Cecil, are at home with them.

OVER THE TRANSOM

LONDON, Ont.—A rather particular thief climbed through the transom over the door of Ashplant's shoe store here. He gathered in the available cash, took one pair of boots— and a pair of spats.

Tyrtaeus was a Greek lyric poet, famous for his political elegies and marching songs.

Fugitive's Mother

Mrs. Catherine Burns, of Pittsfield, Mass., mother of the "chain gang fugitive," Robert Elliott Burns, who twice escaped from a Georgia prison camp, declares her boy will be cleared although he face extradition from New Jersey back to Georgia, following his arrest at East Orange. Burns came into national prominence as the author of the book "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," later made into a play.

Canada has 1,364,200 telephones in use at the close of 1931, a numoer exceeded only by the United States, Germany, and North Ireland.

HOLLYWOOD "Sense and Nonsense" Talkie Town Topics

OF COAST-WIDE interest to Canadian theatre-goers is "Back in '22," a celluloid compilation of high-lights of Canadian news items of exactly a decade ago. Digging into the files, astute film-editors have taken the cream of that season's news events, set the short film to sound and given the picture an old-time piano accompaniment of the sort that set feet pounding and small boys whistling in the old days of the so-called silent film.

As the days slip by, ten years seem like no time at all and yet, if we were to look back that far, we would see a lot of things that show that 1922 was a long, long time ago. Many of the big events of yesteryear which loomed so large then and have since been almost forgotten prove strangely interesting.

Completed by Associated Screen News, this unique Canadian film includes scenes of the great fire in the Temiskaming timberlands when flames swetp 25,000 square miles of territory and 17 towns, leaving 6,000 families homeless.

DIX AS FLIER FOR FIRST TIME

RICHARD DIX wears aviator's wings for the first time in his screen career in RKO Radio Pictures' "The Lost Squadron," on the Regent screen next week. Dix has played more than 200 different roles, ranging from Indians and hoboes to lawyers and gangsters. In his current picture, the star is supported by Mary Astor, Eric von Stroheim, Joel McCrea, Robert Armstrong, Dorothy Jordan and Hugh Herbert. Bebe Daniels and Edward G. Robinson starring in "The Silver Dollar" will be the New Year's attraction at the same theatre.

PICKFORDS TURN CHRISTMAS CASH TO NEEDY.

THERE WILL be a new kind of Christmas at Pickfair this year. The tree will be decorated as usual, but no presents will be exchanged. Mary and the members of the household have agreed to take the money and buy things for the needy.

Mary Pickford

Each employee at Pickfair will be asked to report the name of a family in want. On the day before Christmas, Mary will distribute boxes in which there will be the customary holiday trimmings, but also canned goods, staple groceries, blankets, clothes and a sum of money. These baskets will be delivered personally by the members of the household.

At the studio the star has asked her associates to take the money they would have spent on her and give it to a charity specializing in Christmas dinners for the poor.

Of course, Doug and Mary will have gifts for each other. And, just as predicted, he has cabled to expect him home for the holidays. He sails from Plymouth and will arrive here December 23rd.

FAMOUS SPORTS FIGURES IN PICTURE

PARAMOUNT has scored the "Sports Smash of the Century" in "Madison Square Garden", a talkie movie that is being screened at the Capitol theatre today and on Saturday of this week. There is a parade of famous old sports figures that will awaken memories in the breast of every old sports fan. You'll see Tom Sharkey, Mike Donlin, Stanley Zbyszko, Tommy Ryan, Jack Johnson and also some famous sports of this day and yesterday, like, Ed. W. Smith, Grantand Rice, Westbrook "Red" Pegler, Paul Gallico and Damon Runyon. Followers of the wrestling game will find a splendid picturization of the art in "The Flesh" starring Wallace Beery, Karen Morley and Ricardo Cortez being screened at the local Paramount theatre during the latter half of Christmas week.

STARS PHOTOS INSTEAD OF CHRISTMAS TREES

QUITE A STORM of discussion has been raised among the film folk over the illuminated photos of the stars which this year have replaced the proverbial Christmas tree along Hollywood's main stem. Some prefer the old yuletide decorations, other the new.

At any rate, no favoritism was shown in placing the pictures. Marlene Dietrich's photo is in front of a cut-rate drug company, Clark Gable's in front of an auto park. Polly Moran's before the Hollywood public library. Tallulah Bankhead's (appropriately) before a travel bureau and Stuart Erwin's in front of a five-and-ten-cent store.

SOME FACTS ON A ROMAN BATH.

TO A MODERN person, a bath is an incident.

Not so to the Roman gentleman of 64 A.D., however. His bath comprised many luxurious stages.

According to data gathered by Paramount's research department for production of Cecil B. DeMille's "The Sign of the Cross," the Roman nobleman's daily bath routine was as follows:

Entering his "insula" (private bath), he was set upon by two "balnetores" (muscular masseurs).

The next step was the "ephebias," a place for water sports similar to a gym pool of today.

Tiring of this, the Roman repaired in turn to the Unctutorium—to be performed.

Laconicum—to clow a spell with water nymphs.

Elaeothesium—the last portion of the water bath.

Tepidarium—a slightly warm room.

Frigidarium—a cooler place.

Triclinium—where breakfast was served.

Velarium—a lounge where the gossip of Rome was exchanged.

Cubiculum—where he luxuriated in a short nap.

The bath required from six to eight hours to complete.

The Roman ladies took as much time, but confined their bathing to one luxurious stage, according to a spectacular scene in "The Sign of the Cross," featuring Claudette Colbert as Poppaea. While a hidden orchestra played wild, archaic music, and at least a dozen waiting women attended her, Poppaea, wife of Nero, performed her ablutions in 500 gallons of asses' milk strewn with rose petals.

While still in the bath she gossiped, sang songs, permitted her hair to be dressed, and had her breakfast served in golden vessels.

Indoor Gardening

Watering Plants

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Central Press Garden Expert

WATERING plants sounds like a simple subject, but it really is the most important part of caring for plants indoors and the thing that most amateur plant lovers understand least.

The cardinal rule, of course, is to water house plants when they need it—not merely when you happen to think of it. How can you know when a plant needs water, unless the habits of that particular plant are well known? Here is a simple and effective way: Pick up the pot and rap it with the knuckles. If the sound is dull, the plant has sufficient water, but if the pot rings, the plant is dry and therefore should be watered.

Plants which grow rapidly or produce an abundance of flowers require more water than plants which are resting or not in active growth. Slow growing plants stand the greatest amount of neglect in watering.

Half watering plants is really worse than not watering them at all. Plants growing in small pots frequently are filled with roots. When such a plant is only half watered the surface of the soil becomes wet but the soil in the bottom of the pot remains bone dry. At frequent intervals most house plants should be set in a tub and allowed to soak up all the water they will take.

When the sun is shining, plants stand more water than during dull weather. Too much water in dull weather causes the buds of flowering plants to drop and the leaves to turn yellow.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD.

Artificial blondes are by no means the product only of recent years. For way back in the Roman era, gentlemen seemed to prefer blondes. And many of the Roman damsels experimented with different bleaches, in order to transform their raven locks to gold.

In those days, of course, a good many heads of hair were ruined because of experimental and inexpert bleaching. But even to-day, all the bleached blonde tresses one sees are not in the best of condition. And it's not always due solely to the bleaching treatments, either. For bleached hair requires a special shampooing process. And very few women seem to realize this fact.

Bleached hair cannot be shampooed in the same nonchalant manner that a virgin head of hair usually is. For bleached hair is not of a normal tone or texture. The bleaching agents remove a great deal of natural oil from the hair, weaken it and tend to make it dry and brittle. And an ordinary alkaline soap used for shampooing would only tend to increase the dryness and brittleness of such hair.

Of course, bleached hair should always be given frequent hot oil treatments, such as the excellent castor oil treatments described in my "Beauty Culture" booklet, in order to counteract the bleach's drying effects and to keep the hair soft and glossy. But for ordinary cleansing purposes, I personally think that the egg shampoo process is best for bleached hair. The whites of two eggs should be beaten to a stiff consistency for this shampoo. The hair should first be moistened with lukewarm water, and then the beaten egg whites applied. The fingertips should be worked through the hair and over the scalp in the same manner as when a soap shampoo is used.

After several latherings with the egg whites, the hair should be rinsed about three times with lukewarm water. Hot water should never be used in this shampoo, as the egg might harden.

As the final rinse, a solution of half a glass of cider vinegar and a pint of clear water should be used. This will invigorate and enliven the hair, and help to counteract the weakening effects of the bleaching.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Finger Nails.

Rita: Massage a bit of warmed olive oil into the base of each of your nails nightly before retiring. This will help to correct their dry, brittle condition.

Thin Legs.

Teresa: It is indeed possible to develop, fatten and shape thin, scrawny legs. Full information on this is contained in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs," but is too long to print here.

Colors.

Harriet: I think that you will find shades of tan, brown, blue, grey, dark green, dark red and black most becoming to you.

Better Results Given By Share-Out Clubs

LONDON, December 23 (C.P. Cable). — There is a rather less melancholy story to tell this year of the Christmas share-out clubs. Many of the smaller of these are conducted amongst a group of the workmen or dwellers in some industrial area under haphazard conditions. The secretary or treasurer is unaccustomed to handling cash or keeping accounts. The pitiful result often is that when the time for the share-out arrives both the cash and the official are missing.

Fewer instances of these lapses appear to have been reported this season. Possibly small subscribers to such clubs have learned by bitter experience to place their organization upon a sounder basis.

There are share-out clubs in plenty, however, which have for years been conducted with extreme efficiency. Some of them in the London area distribute as much as $200,000.

POPE ARRANGES TRUCE?

VATICAN CITY, December 23 (C.P.). — Pope Pius XI. obtained to-day a pledge of a Christmas 24-hour armistice on the Gran Chaco battle front from the governments of Bolivia and Paraguay. Both agreed to Vatican proposals that hostilities cease from 10 p.m. to-morrow until 10 p.m. Sunday, in compliance with the Pope's desire that there be no fighting on Christmas.

We extend our Heartiest Christmas greetings. May one and all enjoy the Best of Everything.

There are gifts to be mailed, presents to be wrapped and delivered, for even when persons are before hand with getting things off, there are likely to be one or two last-minute things not included.

Then for the housewife—there is market ordering to be attended to, cooking to be done and rooms to be made ready, to say nothing of a tree to be trimmed.

Amid all the exuberant prepafation and the hurry which is almost inescapable, there is a test put upon good nature. At heart, everyone feels goodwill, but the emergencies of the moment, often call forth expressions that do not voice such a feeling.

* * * * * * *

So we must guard against little irritations.

* * * * * * *

If there ever was a time when it is wise to follow the adage about a soft answer turning away wrath, it is in a Christmas rush.

* * * * * * *

The foundation on which the rush is laid is one of goodwill, of joy, of happiness. We defeat its significance during the jarring moments.

* * * * * * *

So, when they come and we get enmeshed in unpleasant words, our adjustment lies in erasing the incident from our remembrance, and begin having a Merry Christmas right away.

Stamp Collection Of King George Fills 370 Volumes; Every Stamp Is Of Empire

By MARY HACKER
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 23—The hobby of His Majesty King George is contained in 370 volumes.

Between their red leather covers lie the treasures of his famous stamp collection. This collection has one unusual trait. It contains not a single foreign stamp. Every stamp in it is a stamp of the British empire, which forms a complete record up to date of the postal development of the empire.

Here is revealed the struggle of some small outposts of civilization founding their first postal services.

Mauritius Island, yearning for a printed stamp and having no facility for getting one, entrusted the island watchmaker to print stamps off a hand-die. He would lay aside his watches and punch out the stamps one at a time, in a leisurely way. Even then he had plenty of time to give the watches. But then there came a time when Mauritius was developing rapidly. Speed was essential. Mass production came in—and the old watchmaker punched out his stamps with a larger die in batches of twelve.

King George has one of the earliest single stamps.

Another colony used to run out of the most-used values, and before it had come to think of printing more of them, the postal authorities hastily ran stamps of other prices through a printing machine and printed fresh prices on them in black. One harassed official put in a sheet of stamps upside down, so making not only a curiosity but an error. The King has one of these jumbled stamps.

He buys all his stamps in the open market, as an ordinary collector, never accepting them as gifts from anyone but his intimate friends.

But only once has he sold a stamp at a profit, and that was during the war, when the needs of the Red Cross fund were enormous. He took out one treasured slip from its red leather sanctuary and put it up for auction. It fetched 2,500 guineas.

Not even in the utmost extremity are any of these stamps to be sold for his majesty's personal profit. He regards the collection as belonging to the nation, not to himself.

PUMPKIN PIE.

For dinner, there is nothing better than a delicious new pumpkin pie made with cocoanut to give a fine, new flavor with fresh pumpkin. For the evening party, tarts with the pumpkin filling are delicious, too. But whether pies or tarts, use a light pastry that is especially adapted for shells, such as the one given here.

PIE CRUST.

2 cups sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup cold shortening
½ cup cold water (about).

Sift flour once, measure, add salt and sift again. Cut in shortening until mixture looks like meal. Add water, a little at a time, mixing with a knife or spatula until the dough cleans the bowl of all flour and pastry. Use as little water as possible. Roll dough ⅛ inch thick on slightly floured board. Fit loosely on pie plate. Turn edge and prick with fork. Bake in hot oven (450) for 15 minutes. Makes one 9-inch two crust pie or twelve 2½ inch tart shells. Use ½ recipe for one pie shell only.

DELICIOUS PUMPKIN PIE

Use ½ recipe given above to make pie shells and line plate with pastry. Then fill with this fine flavored custard.

1½ cups premium shred coconut
2 cups cooked, mashed pumpkin
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
3 tablespoons butter, melted
3 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups milk, scalded.

Combine ingredients in order given and mix thoroughly. Pour into pie shell. Bake in hot oven (400) 15 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate (350) and bake 30 minutes longer.

Gay, Modern Lamp Shades Made from Strips of "Cellophane"

ONE of the most important adjuncts to the charm of any room is its lamp shades, and the modern trend for colourful shades, each with a touch of individuality, is nowhere better shown than in the increasing popularity of shades, made in the home, of shimmery colourful material that looks equally well when the light is on and when it is not. The Diana Shade is 10 inches in diameter and made on a wire frame, in many cases an old frame the covering of which has been discarded. "Cellophane", in a roll, some colored crepe paper, a few gummed blue, red, or gold stars and a yard and a half of ribbon for binding are the materials needed. Many color combinations can be made.

Having secured either an old or new wire frame, cut the paper slightly more than the height of the frame and as wide as two of the sections made by the wire uprights. Stretch and paste it over two sections, pressing it down neatly top and bottom. Trim off the surplus. Proceed around the frame until it is all covered with the paper. Then stick stars, or colourful cut-outs of any sort, here and there upon the paper.

"Cellophane" in overlapping strips is used for the outer and inner wrapping. The roll of this material should be cut into inch wide strips and folded to a half inch width. The strips can be cut the entire length of the roll by withdrawing the cardboard tube and slitting the roll lengthwise. This long transparent strip is wound up, over, down and up again, overlapping the strips half their width until the frame is covered.

The shade may be bound top and bottom with silk, velvet or other attractive binding ribbon which may be glued into place.

Plain transparent or coloured "Cellophane" in rolls, may be obtained at department, stationery and chain stores.

"CELLOPHANE" is the registered trade mark designating cellulose sheets and films, manufactured in Canada under special arrangements with the duPont Cellophane Co., Inc.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS
By E. V. SHEPARD

"WILL YOU FINISH THE RUBBER FOR ME?"

As I entered the card room I was asked: "Will you finish the rubber for me? I must catch a train." The request was not an uncommon one, and I readily agreed to play the current hand, as well as to finish the rubber. But the bidding that the player rehearsed for me was not so commonplace. I was given B's hand as the declarer, with a contract of 7-Diamonds to fulfill.

	♠ K Q J 10 8 5 ♥ 7 6 ♣ J 9 8 ♦ 9 8
♠ A 7 3 2 ♥ A K 4 ♣ A K 3 ♦ A K 6	Y A B Z	♠ none ♥ Q J 5 2 ♣ 7 6 4 2 ♦ Q 7 4 3 2
	♠ 9 6 4 ♥ 10 9 8 3 ♣ Q 10 5 ♦ J 10 5

Contracting had gone as follows: Z, Pass; A, 2-No Trumps; Y, 3-Spades; 4, 4-Diamonds; A, 4-No Trumps; B, 5-Hearts; A, 5-No Trumps (on account of his four Aces; B, 6-Diamonds; A, 7-Diamonds (as worth more than 150 Aces).

The opening lead was the 9 of spades. Dummy's Ace won. I looked over the hand, and I tried to calculate what each opponent had and the best way to try for that grand slam. Probably Y held at least six spades, with 100 honors. The most common division for a hand having a six-card suit was 6-3-2-2, but suppose Y's suits were divided in that common manner, which was his 3-card suit? There were missing five trumps, and the odds were better than two to one that these were divoded 3-2 between Y and Z. Probably Y held the two trumps. There were missing in both hearts and clubs six cards. The odds against six cards being divided 3-3 are 65 to 35. If Z held only three hearts, regardless of how trumps were divided, I never could go game. My only chance to go game was in case Z held the following distribution of cards: four hearts, three clubs, three diamonds and three spades. I had to pick Z's hand. I could not figure out both what Y and Z might have, and play for both at once. I took what I considered the only chance, and I played for that chance to hold good.

First I won two diamond tricks in dummy. Both opponents followed suit, leaving the J of diamonds in one hand. I assumed that Z held this missing honor.

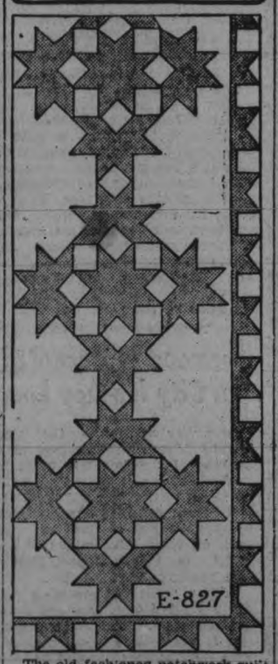
I won two heart tricks in dummy. Both players followed suit, leaving somewhere unknown to me the 9-8 of that suit. If Z held both the missing trump and the two missing hearts I was all right. If he held only three hearts he would be able to ruff the fourth round of hearts, and my plan of discarding the losing club from dummy on my fourth heart would not work.

I led dummy's third heart. Y discarded his lowest spade, showing that he did not hold the missing trump. My hand won two hearts tricks, and of course Z had to follow suit. On the fourth lead of hearts I discarded dummy's lowest club. But I was not yet out of the woods.

Dummy's Ace and K of clubs won the eighth and ninth tricks for our side. Both adversaries followed suit, but would Z have two spades was what troubled me.

I led a spade from dummy and trumped it. Both opponents played spades. I led my club. Z followed suit, and dummy trumped the trick, which was our eleventh tricks. To my delight Y played a club. That assured me that Z held one more spade and his one trump. I led a spade from dummy. I trumped with my low diamond. Z played a spade. Then I picked up my thirteenth trick with my Q of diamonds. Z had held just what I hoped he had. The only chance had been taken and it had won.

FASHION SERVICE



The old-fashioned patchwork quilt is back again!

It is amusing to make it, and how proud you'll be when it's finished.

It's made of cotton material, and at a very small outlay.

Cotton batting is used as a fill. Unbleached muslin sheeting may be used for the foundation of the quilt.

Style No. E-827 is a very effective design in stars and cubes. It measures about 74 by 91 inches including a 3-inch border.

A calico print in blue and white with plain white is a nice scheme.

It will take 3⅞ yards of 36-inch printed material with 9¼ yards of plain with 2¼ yards of unbleached sheeting. Transfer blue.

Household Hints

MENU HINTS

Baked Omelet
Scalloped Cabbage and Apple
Hot Biscuits Raw Carrot Salad
Cocoanut Pie Coffee

To-day's Recipes

Baked Omelet—One and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon salt, three tablespoons corn meal, one tablespoon butter, three eggs. Scald milk in a double boiler, add the salt and corn meal. Stir until thick, then cook for 30 minutes. Add butter and stir until well blended. Add to beaten yolks of eggs. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., until firm, 30 minutes.

Scalloped Cabbage and Apples—Two quarts shredded cabbage, one quart tart sliced apipes, salt to taste, one teaspoon sugar, two to four tablespoons butter, one cup buttered bread crumbs. Place in a greased baking dish alternate layers of cabbage and apples, seasoning each with salt and butter and sprinkling the sugar on the apples. Over the last layer spread the buttered crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes, or until the cabbage and apples are tender. Toward the last remove the cover so the crumbs can brown. Serve in the baking dish.

Raw Carrot Salad—Three carrots, one teaspoon minced parsley, salt, paprika, salad dressing, iceberg lettuce. Grate the carrots or pass through food chopper, using the fine knife. Mix with parsley and seasonings and moisten generously with salad dressing. Chill and serve piled high on iceberg lettuce.

STUDY CLUB HOLDS SECOND MEETING

Miss Mary Fitzgerald Read Very Interesting Paper.

The Immaculate Conception Study Club held its second meeting recently. Miss Mary Fitzgerald read a very interesting paper on the "Deportation of the Acadian Neutrals." This was introduced by Longsfellow's description of the village of Grandpre, recited by Miss Mary McCabe. The subject of the second paper, which was presented by Mr. William O'Toole, was "The Extent of the Ancient Diocese of Quebec." The writer recalled the time when this diocese embraced the greater part of this continent and very graphically described the explorations of LeSalle, Joliet, Marquette and Hennipen, which added a territory now comprising a dozen states to the French Crown. After the Louisiana Purchase by the American Government, there still remained of this venerable see, territory now divided into seven ecclesiastical provinces. A recitation, "Pere Lalemont" by Gladys Perdue, and two numbers, "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Good Saint Anne" by the choir, completed the program.

Moore, James Shields, and Charles Brown; auditors, W. W. Dawson and Charles Brown.

After the meeting, the young people enjoyed a program of dancing to music played by Red Moncrief's Orchestra, with Bert Jones as floor manager.

Simpson's Amazing Amerks Blank Leafs 1-0

SHEPPARD SCORES ONLY GOAL OF GAME IN THE SECOND PERIOD; BRUINS OUTCLASS WINGS TO WIN

Cotton and Conacher Draw Major Penalties in New York Fixture.

HAWKS BEAT MAROONS 4-1.

Montrealers Outskated on Their Own Ice By Chicago Sextet.

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—If Toronto Maple Leafs are ever called on to face New York Americans in a Stanley Cup final it probably would be just too bad for the shotmakers of Mr. Conny Smythe.

While Mr. Smythe's Toronto Maple Leafs can skate with any one of seven foes in the National League, outshoot most of them and generally make headway in the common run of things, they are just another pushover for the Americans. It is unfortunate for the Amerks they don't hold any particular power over other teams.

Last night the jacked-up, bespangled Americans bumped and bruised the Leafs before an admiring crowd of 8,000 in Madison Square Garden. They nagged the champions of the world by persistent back-checking, stilled the big guns of Charlie Conacher and Busher Jackson with a stern defence and put over a 1-0 victory because Johnny Sheppard scored in the second period.

The boys on both sides carried sticks very high throughout and the resultant flare-ups cost the Leafs more dearly than the Amerks. Conacher was banished for five minutes after swinging his club at Normie Himes in the third period, and Nick Wasnie of Americans and Harold Cotton of Toronto waged a fist duel along the boards that brought both major penalties.

Roy Worters had to be good at times to keep the Leafs from scoring, but his forwards helped no little by consistent backchecking. A couple of Winnipeg-bred front-liners, Red Jackson and Wilf (Twinkle) Starr, were useful here. The Amerks obtained Jackson from their New Haven farm in the Canadian-American League and Starr from the defunct Springfield Indians.

The defeat of the Leafs was no more surprising than the 4-1 drubbing Chicago Black Hawks administered the Maroon at Montreal, or the sweeping 7-0 whipping the Bruins handed Detroit Red Wings at Boston. Boston's win sent them into a tie for first place with New York Rangers in the United States section.

Maroons Outplayed.

Maroons were outplayed by a fast-skating outfit that seemed to have recovered much of its power with the return of Johnny Gottselig, after a month's lay-off with injuries. Regina's Johnny sent the Hawks out in front within two minutes of the start by ramming home a goal after a passing bout with Lolo Couture and Paul Thompson.

Mackenzie got another for the mid-westerners in the first period before Earl Robinson tallied the only Maroon goal. Couture and Doc Romnes added Hawk scores in the third session.

Ill with tonsilitis, curly-headed Charlie Gardiner played a superlative game in the Chicago nets. He was rushed to hospital as soon as he had skated off the ice after the game, but it is expected he will be ready for more action Saturday when the Hawks visit Toronto.

Sweet Revenge For Bruins.

It was revenge the Bruins were after, and 14,000, largest crowd of the season at Boston, turned out to see them get it in full measure. The Red Wings, fresh from a 2-1 win over Boston Sunday night in a game that ended in a free-for-all fight, held Bruins to a single goal in the first period, but they were outclassed after that. Bruins banged in three in the second session and three in the third.

George Owen, the big Harvard boy, scored twice, and five forwards—Billy Burch, Marty Barry, Harry Oliver, Art Chapman and Joe Lamb—shared the other scoring fruits.

OSHAWA AND LIONS LOSE JUNIOR GAMES

Native Sons and Danforths Score Impressive Victories on Toronto Ice.

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—What's the matter with Lions? The failure of Eddie Livingstone's highly fancied squad to click was never more apparent than last night, when they lost their second start to Native Sons, 2 to 1. There is something dramatically wrong with last year's Big Four champions. Livingstone attributes their poor showing to date to lack of practice and is confident that at the tiem of their next engagement they will once more be the team they were last season.

In the second contest of last night's Big Four group O.H.A. junior double-header "Dad" Gagnon's much-abused Danforth outfit scored a surprise victory when they managed to stave off a weakened Oshawa team to win out 3-2. The Motor City team were minus two of their stellar performers last night, "Jo Jo" Graboski and Maundrell, clever wing man, and this made them less formidable. The former is visiting his parents in North Bay for the Chirstmas season, while Maundrell is sick.

EARL ROCHE STARS IN BULLDOGS' WIN

Windsor Takes 2-1 Victory From Detroit on Latter's Home Ice.

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—Earl Roche, shiftly left-winger for Windsor Bulldogs, and one-time Montreal Maroon player, may have a touch of the 'flu, but that did not prevent him from playing a leading role in spoiling Carson Cooper's inaugural as manager of the Detroit Olympics of the International Hockey League.

Roche, who left a sick bed last Tuesday to play against London Tecumsehs and is still fighting off a severe cold, was the big gun in Windsor's 2-1 victory over the Olympics at Detroit last night. He and Manager Jack Arbour helped Stan Brown score the first Bulldog tally in the second period and less than three minutes later he counted the second tally on a pass from "Peaches" Lyons.

It was Cooper's first managerial attempt since he succeeded George Hay, who was moved up to the Red Wings this week. Gus Marker and Leo Goldsworthy, who came to the Olympics in the Hay deal, performed creditably, but were unable to score.

Moffatt counted the lone Olympic tally in the third period, scoring neatly after taking a pass from Gordie Brydson.

Both goalies were kept busy. Clark pulled off a particularly smart save when he stopped one with his chin and as he dropped to his knees, swept the disc out of danger.

MISSED CENTRAL LEAGUE

Newcastle has tried a few times to get into the Central League, and, the last time, went so far as to offer visiting teams part of their travelling expenses. The club won admission, but one of the teams that failed to get sufficient votes, objected on the grounds that Newcastle had committed a breach of rules in offering inducements. The protest was upheld and Newcastle lost out.

United officials saw in the Bo'ness affair a chance to get a place in the Scottish League and thus assure 50,000 football fans of Newcastle a big first class every week, but Scotland said no. And that's that.

Row In Penalty Box As Reds Beat Eagles

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Dec. 23. — The Rhode Island Reds broke the jinx which the New Haven Eagles have held over them in the Canadian-American Hockey League by winning at the Auditorium last night 4 to 1. It was the first victory for the Reds in three starts against New Haven this season.

The game was climaxed in the third period by a penalty-box fight between "Sparky" Vail and Harold Picketts. They had been banished for roughing and words flew in the box until Vail let fly. During the melee the Eagles scored their only goal of the game. The Reds had scored two in the first period and added one in the second and third.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Reds at home.

Badminton Club Is Formed At Havelock

HAVELOCK, Ont., Dec. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Badminton was added to the long list of sports in this sporty town at a meeting held at the home of Edward Fennell on Wednesday evening.

Miss J. C. Hendershott of the Public School staff has been very energetic in her efforts to have a club formed here, the culmination of which was the formation of the first badminton club of Havelock.

Arrangements were made to purchase the necessary equipment, and the town hall has been obtained at a reduced rental for the games that are to start the first week in January. Wednesday and Thursday evenings of each week are the days set aside by the club.

Norwood Is Accepted In City Hockey Loop

Norwood's entry into the City Hockey League was accepted at a meeting of the loop last night in Duffus'. This will bring the league up to six teams, provided the Normal School definitely enters—there being no representative of this team on hand. The others in are P.C.I., St. Peter's School, Rotary and Rangers' Meat Market.

With a small representation out, not a great deal of business could be transacted. After some discussion it was decided to get in touch with the Normal team and find out its plans; then draw up a schedule. This would be a single schedule, each team playing each of the others once, and if they were finished in time, it could be extended to a double schedule.

It was recommended that a rule be adopted allowing only the puck-carrier to be checked as in past years, but contrary to the O.H.A. ruling. This will be voted upon at the next meeting. The Norwood team was willing to co-operate in any way if permitted to enter the City League, and those present were in favor of accepting the out-of-town team, provided no O.H.A. or Peterborough League player was used. With nothing more to be done at present, the meeting was adjourned till Thursday, January 5th when all league business will be wound up preparatory to starting the schedule.

The annual pest competition held in Alberta this year brought about the destruction of 43,614 crows and magpies, 621,786 gophers, and 152,773 crows' and magpies' eggs, most of the work of ridding the Province of agricultural pests being accomplished by school children.

Free Drinks Aid To Bring Crowds

CAMBRIDGE, England, Dec. 23.—(C.P.)—Terence Gray, well known producer, is making a "sure hit" at the Festival Theatre, Cambridge, which he founded, by giving free drinks to all who attend on one night. Nobody knows in advance which night it will be, however, and in this he keeps everyone guessing. He invites his first night audiences to the stage to meet the actors, and, where possible, the author of the play as well.

Terence Gray's Monday nights on the stage of the Festival Theatre after a show are a great feature of Cambridge artistic life. Mr. Gray's name is a household word in advanced theatrical circles, and it is not necessary for him to give free drinks to draw audiences, nor is it necessary for him to advertise his shows by inviting audiences to the stage on first nights. He seems to enjoy doing these things however and his audiences enjoy them too.

NEWFOUNDLAND PAYMENT DISCUSSED BY BENNETT

OTTAWA, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—"The Prime Minister informs me that he had several discussions about the Newfoundland situation with the British Government, and he will make a statement regarding same either before or immediately after his arrival." This was the declaration of Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, to-day following receipt of a cable from Premier R. B. Bennet on the subject of the interest payments due by Newfoundland on January 1.

The statement of Sir George Perley confirms the dispatch from Ottawa last night, that Premier Bennet had discussed with the British Government the matter of the $1,941,473 payment due by Newfoundland on the first of the year.

FORMER HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP SIGNS SCHMELING AND BAER FOR 15-ROUND BOUT IN JUNE

Dempsey Has Connection and Colorful Following to Buck Garden Successfully.

NO RIVAL FOR SHARKEY.

Chicago Wants the Match as Part of World's Fair Attraction.

(Herbert W. Barker, C.P. Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, December 23 (C.P.).—The monopoly Madison Square Garden has enjoyed on prime heavy weight attractions since the days of Tex Rickard was threatened from a new and formidable quarter to-day.

Boldly tossing his expensive chapeau into the promotorial ring, William Harrison Dempsey announced yesterday he had signed Max Schmeling, and Max Baer for a 15-round bout some time in June. The site was not specified, but Demps eysaid it would be either New York or Chicago. Other cities will figure in the situation only if some unexpected hitch develops in Dempsey's present plans.

Other promoters have sought to "buck" the Garden in the past, but most had two strikes on them before they went to the plate, either because the Garden had the best locations or the best fighters, or both, tied up with air-tight ocntracts.

Has Fighters and Site.

Not so with Dempsey. Jack has his fighters — and they are good ones—safely signed, and through his association with Tim Mara, he will have his choice either of the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium should he deicde to stage the fight here. Mara has the two big ball parks under lease for boxing, and is duly licensed in this state as a promoter.

Chicago Wants Match.

Chicago, it was understood, is genuinely anxious to stage the fight as a World's Fair attraction, and probably will have some persuasive arguments for Dempsey's ear.

The Garden, in the meantime, finds itself in a position where it has the heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, safely under contract, but no outstanding rival for him to meet. Under the terms of the contract, the Garden is obligated to find some one for Sharkey to fight by June 20. With Schmeling and Baer both unavailable, the Garden will be forced to look elsewhere. Possibly in the general direction of Primo Carnera.

GOLFERS READY FOR '33

It's a long time to next summer, but already the golfers have set their houses in order and it is reported that date changes will seriously affect the British invasion by American professional golfers in 1933. The British open has been switched back from May to July. It has been the custom of Britain to confer with U.S. before fixing the British championships. Precedent was followed on this occasion and America has now decided to hold her open championship in June.

The date of the Ryder Cup match, between Britain and America, has been fixed to be played on a Southport course on June 26 and 27, a week before the British open.

It is not expected there will be many from America to contest the early tourneys in Britain, but the July invasion may be greater than ever.

Cheaper Bloodstock

The general financial depression has had its effect on the breeding of bloodstock in the British Isles and several owners of famous owners of famous horses, known the world over, announce big reductions in stud fee for 1933. But one of the exceptions to this concerns the great stallion Gainsborough, by Bayardo out of Rosedrop. In 1931 Gainsborough was top of the list of winning two-year-olds. This year he is top of the list of sires and dams of winners and second on the list of wining sires. The stud fee is $2,000.

Blandford, at Cloghran stud in Ireland, is another $2,000 fee horse, but a son of his from the stable, Trigo, which won the Derby and St. Leger and, in all, stakes worth $110,000, is announced for 1933 at a fee of $1,500.

These three are among the finest stock in the world. Some of the best horses in the Aga Khan stable are sired by Gainsborough. In most cases it is easy to tell a horse's sire by his name, but with Aga Khan it is different. He generally calls his horses after something connected with the Orient.

FORUM, Montreal, Dec. 23. — "Chuck" Gardiner, star goalkeeper of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, was taken to hospital after last night's game with Montreal Maroons. Gardiner was suffering with tonsilitis and had a rough passage in the match. Once he was injured, and had to receive assistance before resuming.

Despite his condition, the goalkeeper played a magnificent game, and generous Montreal fans frequently gave him a big hand.

P. GILLOU'S REPORT DEFENDS FRANCE'S CONDUCT IN MATCHES

Umpiring and Lining in Davis Cup Tests No Worse Than in Other Places.

UNJUSTIFIED CRITICISM.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23. (AP)—The French conduct of the Davis Cup tennis challenge round between France and United States last summer is defended by Pierre Gillou, president of the French cup committee, in his annual report to the French Tennis Federation, published to-day in American Lawn Tennis.

Gillou recognizes there was considerable criticism of the way the matches were conducted, especially the deciding encounter between Jean Borotra and Wilmer Allison, but holds that the criticism generally was unjustified.

French umpiring and lining, he said, was no worse nor better than in otherp laces. He dismissed the suggestion that neutral officials be named. "We will thus continue" he said, "as in the past, to reserve our right to name the umpires, without necessarily excluding neutrals."

Dampening of Courts

Gillou admitted that the dampening of the courts on the last day which tended to slow up the fast game of Ellsworth Vines, Jr., was excessive and not done properly but pointed out that there was no objection made at the time by the players and that the slow court also bothered Borotora, who likes a fast surface and is at his best on wood. He indicates that complaint shall not be justified again.

His report also disclosed that space on the cup for engraving the name of the winner is becoming very scarce and that there is room for not more than four more names on the big cup, given by Dwight F. Davis some 20 years ago as a trophy for international tennis competition.

Connie Mack Picks Some Of "Greatest"

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23. (AP)—Connie Mack, hailed by many baseball observers as the greatest tactician, marked his 70th birthday to-day by selecting some "greatests' of his own. They are:

Greatest player—Ty Cobb.

Greatest pitcher — Christy Mathewson

Greatest managers—Up to 1900, Ned Hanlon of the Baltimore Orioles; after 1900, John McGraw.

Greatest teams — Baltimore Orioles in the 90's; Chicago Cubs, 1906 to 1909; Athletics,

M.C.C. TEAM LEADING.

HOBART, Tasmania, Dec. 23 (C.P. Cable).—The visiting English cricket Test team took two Tasmanian wickets for 13 runs to-day when rain stopped the play.

It was the commencement of the M.C.C.'s second exhibition game with an all-Tasmanian team. The last game played at Launceston was won by the English Test players by an innings and 126 runs.

The English players on Friday, Dec. 30, engage with the Aussies for the second Test match.

WILL TURN PROFESSIONAL.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—Mildred (Babe) Didriskon announced here to-day that the reinstatement action of the Southern A.A.U. will not affect her decision to turn professional. "I do not in the least regret the decision I have made," she said, in a statement issued to the press as she boarded a Chicago-bound train.

1932 TITLIST BEATS RUDOLPH

Greenleaf Sweeps Championship Series Nine Successive Victories.

FOR $6,000 PRIZE MONEY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23. (AP) — Undefeated in 20 consecutive championship games over a span of two years, Ralph Greenleaf of New York stood to-day the unchallenged king of the U.S. pocket billiard players.

Greenleaf brushed aside Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, 125 to 22, last night to finish the 1932 championship tournament with nine successive victories and retain the title he won last year with a clean sweep of 11 games.

Rudolph, who defeated Greeleaf in the deciding game of the 1930 championship, never had a chance last night. The champion pulled into an early lead and finally ended the match with successive runs of 21, 34 and 44 in the ninth, 10th and 11th innings.

Not only did Greenleaf defeat every one of his nine rivals in the current tournament but he did so without being seriously threatened at any time.

Greenleaf's victory carried with it a diamond and ruby medal, a purse of $5,000 and 15 per cent of the gate receipts, estimated at $1,000.

BONCOUR GIVEN FIRST VICTORY

New Premier Authorized to Pursue Debt Dealings in Limit Already Set.

TEST IN JANUARY.

PARIS, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—Without a battle or even a skirmish, Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour has obtained a substantial majority in the Chamber of Deputies, authorizing him to pursue debt negotiations within limits already set by its votes, and approving other items in his program.

As far as was ascertainable, however, few, if any, deputies knew of the Hoover-Roosevelt correspondence made public yesterday, before they voted. (President Hoover abandoned his plan to re-open the debt question with European countries, postponing action on the problem until after President-Elect F. D. Roosevelt's inauguration).

The good impression made by M. Paul-Boncour in the Chamber was echoed in the press gallery to-day, but it was observed the real test will come when Henry Cheron, the new Minister of Finance, produces his financial "medicine" in January, for which Socialist support was considered doubtful.

The newspaper Le Journal summed up the situation thus: "M. Paul-Boncour wished to form a comprehensive union of the forces of the Left. He succeeded—for the present at least."

ROLF GRANT AGAIN

Cambridge beat Oxford 3 to 1 in the annual Varsity soccer match on December 8, which doesn't mean much on the face of it until it is recorded that the outstanding star of the Cambridge team was Rolf Grant, who was educated at St. Andrew's College, Aurora, Ontario. He had been out of the team for two months with broken ribs. Grant is also a first class cricket player, and, as he is a native of Trinidad, in the British West Indies, although his parents hail from Nova Scotia, he is expected to assist the West Indian team in their tour of England next summer. His brother, Jack, will probably captain the West Indians. Both are Cambridge Blues.

Capone Aide Shot

When police raided a suspected crime headquarters in a downtown Chicago skyscraper, Frank Nitti, chose to shoot it out with "the coppers." As a result Nitti, who has been directing the operations of Al Capone's underworld syndicate since the nation's No. 1 gangster went "to the big house," was sent to a hospital in a dying condition. His six gangsters surrendered without a struggle.

And Still Another Italian Heavy

Carting a couple of huskies around is just a lot of fun for 200-pound Innocente Baiguera, Italian heavyweight, who has come to New York to see what he can do against American boxers.

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING
BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

The City Hockey League meeting last night didn't draw worth a hoot, but nevertheless those present pushed through several important items. They accepted Norwood for one thing, the out-of-towners being very anxious to get in and willing to do anything they were told. The local teams were willing, but want it understood that no O.H.A. or E.P.L. player can be used. P.C.I., St. Peter's, Rotary, and Rangers' Meat Market are other sure entries—with Normal School expected.

* * * * * *

They'll draw up a single schedule and extend it to a double one if the season permits. This league, like the Southend loop and the C.G.E. Shop League, isn't fussy about having any but the puck-carrier bumped around in stiff bodychecks—and we don't blame them. It doesn't help youthful players (or mature ones for that matter) to get smeared on the ice when they might just as well be covered without any of this rough stuff. The puck-carrier expects it, and that's okay. Anyway the City League will likely rule against it.

* * * * * *

The Bowmanville paper had a piece the other day which sounded as though their junior team was quite tickled to think the Petes would not be in their group. They must have figured on smooth sailing, but since the locals are back again, it may mean stormy weather for the Bowmanville lads. The team had twenty-three out the last workout, and they figure on a strong outfit. We know Cobourg will be stiff opposition, but haven't any line yet on the Port Hope entry.

* * * * * *

As for the Bowmanville intermediates, who play the Petes the opening game here next Friday, they have a mixture of veterans and youngsters, last year's players and newcomers, and look plenty mean on paper They were bad medicine to us last winter and are not likely to improve with age. Grab an armful of this, being those out so far this season: Orv. Hooper, Gord Chartran, Phil Grant, Oscar and Frank Jamieson, Fred Jackman, Morley Oke, Ed Rundle, Scotty Cameron, George Piper, Erne Tweedle, Stuart Candler, Cec Mutton, Howie Hallman, Al Densem and Shinny Moise.

* * * * * *

The Petes are probably a step or two ahead of their group rivals in the matter of workouts and exhibition games, but the others are had at it these days. Cobourg will be hard to take, and this Bowmanville lineup looks good to us. Port Hope is a question mark yet, while we've been hearing lots about the Orono crew, but don't know their lineup to date. Trust Orme Gamsby, the paunchy pilot, to have a colorful collection wherever he gets 'em Orme's fine intermediate baseball team of two summers ago was wrecked last year when Oshawa went back into baseball, but he still scraped up enough players around the countryside to beat the C.G.E. squad in the O.B.A.A. playdowns.

* * * * * *

According to the Norwood paper, Alex Kempt has arranged for two hockey games down there to-night, a local E.P.L. outfit and a P.C.I. team going down from here. However, it's unlikely they'll have ice. As far as we can gather Bill Calladine and Bill Cripps are going to play with the Combines this season, along with Beavis, "Mose" Scriver, "Sheeny" Stevenson, Webb, Jack Morgan of Warsaw, while Harry Baker, Gord Rothwell and "Michigan" Bill Rogers are others trying out. With both a City League and an E.P.L. team in this year, Norwood should see quite a bit of organized hockey.

* * * * * *

The Church Hockey League is getting set again, too, with something like a dozen squads in now and several more expected. The word is out that all entries must be into the hands of Secretary C. Sproat no later than next Wednesday evening. Mark Street Juniors and Juveniles copped the duke in their series last year, and we hear the Ashburnham lads will be back strong again. George Street won the midget shield. Looks like winter is here all right. Oh, well, it's only three months till Spring.

* * * * * *

The Central Ontario Baseball League loses one of its old reliables after Christmas when Walter Gerow, Belleville manager, pulls up stakes in the Quinte Town and goes to work in Napanee. He'll manage the intermediate team there next summer, and the Nationals will sure miss him. Walter was playing first back in '19, and making good at the job, always being a smart baseballer and timely hitter. A few years later he took over the managerial reins of the Nats and brought them a bunch of championships in the last ten years. A smart man, a popular figure, a credit to the game and an old C.O.B.L. landmark—we're sorry to see Walter drop out of this league.

* * * * * *

Just to show what is meant by a "fighting heart", a Detroit sportswriter lets out a secret told him recently by Jack Dempsey. Jack, now a promotor and practically sure he'll never don mitts again, told the scribe that he figured he could "take" Sharkey right now, or years hence if he had to come into the ring on crutches! The reason? According to the old Manassa Mauler, Sharkey hasn't the heart and while he talks plenty he's careful to pick his spots, while Jack always had the pride of a champion, figuring confidently that he could massacre any fighter he ever faced. He still believes he licked Tunney—in that long count fiasco in Chi—and calmly states he will always be able to lick the Gob.

* * * * * *

Sport hash: No word at noon as to whether ther'd be ice or not for that game in Campbellford this e'en .... Our juniors are rapidly taking shape, being big, fast and well-drilled this winter .... While the sides of hockey stadiums in the East are caving in on small crowds, the sport in the West is even out-drawing the breadlines .... Talk about beheading the goose that lays the golden egg, the Yank Amateur Union must feel pretty silly about Babe Didrikson turning pro .... "Strangler" Lewis offers to lick Londos and Steele one after the other the same night, but they're not crazy—even if they are rasslers!

PAPER'S STORY IS VINDICATED

Citizen of Stratford Disbelieved Real Estate Broker.

STORY PROVED TRUE.

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (CP).—Vindication of a story published by the Associated Press, but more particularly the revelation of the circumstances surrounding the actions of an Alabama real estate dealer who burned $27,000 worth of unpaid mortgages and notes, is the subject of an interesting editorial appearing in the Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Briefly the story is this: An A.P. article recounting the seemingly unbelievable actions of the Alabama creditor who sacrificed his paper credits for the satisfaction of knowing he had relieved his fellow-men of a great burden, was termed by a reader of the Beacon-Herald as "just another newspaper story."

The editor of the Beacon-Herald did not like the inference, for, as the editorial states: "When the truth of an Associated Press story was challenged or even doubted, it became a matter of concern to the Beacon-Herald, because The Canadian Press, of which this paper is a member, secures much of its United States news through the Associated Press, that agency in turn securing its Canadian news through The Canadian Press."

This reason, together with the fact it was a good story telling of something "worth while and wholesome" which should have been amplified, prompted the editor to write W. A. Boyd of Tuscaloosa, Ala., the real estate man, asking him if the reports were substantially correct and for a general statement of the motives and conditions which had brought about his burning of the paper credits.

Mr. Boyd's response read in part as follows:

"I have two principal reasons for this. First is that the majority of my debtors were willing and really wanted to pay, but they are financially unable to do so. I had them in a jam and I didn't want to take what they had or foreclose any mortgages or collect any judgments that I had on them, so I just burned them up to better all concerned.

"My second reason was that I felt like it was my duty as a Christian citizen, because it removed from the mind and heart of those concerned a worry that they could not remove themselves, especially during a panic like we are now living in, regardless of the energy spent, brain power exercised or what not.

"You asked me what I hoped to accomplish. I only hoped to have this act approved by my Lord (and I felt He would) and to continue to have the staunch friendship of my fellow-men. And this act has certainly assured me of all I hoped for, and I want to say I am still glad I did it and I feel better over it every day that goes by."

The Beacon-Herald had much satisfaction on reading the letter, not only because it felt vindicated in carrying the original story, but because of the fine Christian essence of the letter. It finds that Mr. Boyd's action in introducing the Love of God and Mankind into actual business is most highly commendable and regrets that similar actions based on such motives are "entirely too rare."

"There is another thought in that letter which is fine—fine as pure gold. It is contained in these words: 'Because it removed from the mind and heart of those concerned a worry that they could not remove themselves'," concludes the editorial.

FORECASTS NEW MUSIC CULTURE

Professor Ciallo Morales Deplores General Lowering of Musical Standard.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 23 (CP).—The confusion caused by the present crisis which has hit the international centres of music very hard may prepare the soil for a new musical culture, although we cannot at present see clearly the future development. This is the opinion expressed by Professor Ciallo Morales, the secretary of the Royal Academy of Music, in one of his usual interesting speeches at the annual meeting of the Academy.

He deplored the unemployment amongst the musicians abroad and the general lowering of the musical standard caused by the world depression which, however, fortunately, has not so far seriously affected the musical life of Sweden. The Professor stated he had observed a tendency in modern music towards greater simplicity and harmony and towards the classical and preclassical forms. The young composers seem to regard the former musical revolutionists with respectful awe. The young ones, he said, now have the task of building up new musical works of art linking the spirit of the present age with the golden ages of the music of the past. It is, however, only a few great spirits to whom it is vouchsafed to lift the curtain of the future and to conquer new worlds for the growth of human culture.

To counteract the unemployment amongst the musicians Professor Morales offered an interesting suggestion. He urged the organization of ambulating orchestras as a kind of unemployment relief work. These orchestras should be sent to play in communities in such parts of the country where there is a lack of good orchestral music.

DIDRIKSON'S ATHLETIC FUTURE NOW RESTS ENTIRELY WITH SELF

Not Known Whether "Texas Wonder" Will Accept Professional Contracts.

EN ROUTE TO CHICAGO.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 23 (A.P.)—It is up to Mildred Babe Didrikson herself whether she turns professional or keeps her present ranking as the outstanding U. S. amateur athlete—and nobody but herself knew her plans to-day.

The Texas wonder was cleared of charges of professionalism and reinstated to amateur standing through the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union yesterday, just after she had announced plans to turn professional.

Lawrence Di Benedtto, chairman of the A.A.U. committee, said the organization had received Miss Didrikson's resignation, but her athletic future "is up to her" now.

En Route to Chicago

To-day, Miss Didrikson was somewhere en route to Chicago with her sister, Mrs. Esther Elam, and the trip lent credence to the belief she meant just what she said when she announced, before the A.A.U. committe acted finally, that she was tired of the investigation of her status and had accepted professional contracts.

The charges of professionalism were based on an accusation that Miss Didrikson had endorsed an automobile for advertising purposes.

New Game Bird Has Been Seen

MONTREAL, Dec. 23 (CP).—Sportsmen of the Abitibi district of the province of Quebec have been treated with an unusual sight during the last few days. The district has been invaded by what appears to be a new species of game bird, same to resemble the prairie chicken. It has been reported to the Province of Quebec Association for the Protection of Fish and Game here that these birds have been sighted as far south of the Trans-Continental Railway as Rouyn, and the association has requested that some of the birds be sent to their head office in this city.

The association's interest in these birds has reached a high mark because, having as its aim the conservation of wild life, any new addition to the ranks of the birds already in the province never fails to stir action towards their protection. It has been explained that, if the birds are prairie chickens, they have undoubtedly worked their way eastward along the railway.

A Suggestion!

CHICAGO, Dec. 23 (A.P.)—What the U.S. really needs in the opinion of Guiseppe Martino-Rossi, baritone of the Philadelphia Opera Company, is more melodious railway whistles. Arriving here after a railroad trip, he said:

"If only the locomotive whistles were a soothing middle, rather than the rasping of a basso, off key, the entire country would benefit.

"Citizens' disposition would be milder; farm cows might give sweeter milk.

"The possibilities are endless."

PETER RABBIT BROODS

Do you know what it means to brood? It means to keep thinking and thinking about something that it were better not to think about. Now Peter Rabbit is such a happy-go-lucky small person that he is the very last one in all the Great World you would expect to brood over anything. But you know how often in this life it is the unexpected that happens. It was so in the case of Peter Rabbit. Peter had taken to brooding, and because of it he was making little Mrs. Peter unhappy.

Can you guess what it was all about? I'll tell you. It was about his coat. Yes, sir, it was about his coat. And it was all because of that little test you know about when Peter and Jumper the Hare were surprised by Reddy Fox and Reddy quite overlooked Jumper, because the latter's coat so nearly matched his surroundings. Reddy had had no trouble in seeing Peter because Peter's brown coat showed strongly against the white of the snow-covered ground. Peter had had no difficulty in getting away from Reddy. He had simply crept into the heart of a bramble-tangle where Reddy could not follow, and there he had remained until he was sure that the way to the dear Old Brier-patch was clear and safe.

Once back in the dear Old Brier-patch with nothing in particular to do Peter began to think about the splendid coat of his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, and how it changed from brown in summer to pure white in winter when most of the time the ground is covered with snow. With his own eyes he had seen how Jumper had only to sit perfectly still in order to be overlooked, even by such a sharp-eyed fellow as Reddy Fox. Even before then Peter had been a little, just a wee bit, envious. Now as he thought the matter over his envy grew and grew and grew.

"For goodness sake, Peter Rabbit, whatever is the matter with you?" demanded litte Mrs. Peter

He couldn't put the matter out of his mind at all. He was cross to Mrs. Peter. He had no appetite. All he did was to sit and brood and brood.

"For goodness sake, Peter Rabbit, whatever is the matter with you?" demanded little Mrs. Peter when she could stand it no longer.

"Nothing," mumbled Peter.

"Don't tell that to me!" snapped little Mrs. Peter. "Something is the matter. Have you got a stomach ache?" You see Peter's troubles usually are in his stomach.

Peter shook his head. "It's nothing the matter with my feelings," said he. "It's my coat."

"Your coat!" exclaimed little Mrs. Peter looking at Peter as if she thought him crazy. "For the love of little bunnies what's the matter with your coat? It looks all right to me." She inspected Peter carefully.

Peter shifted his position uncomfortably. "It isn't just my coat exactly," he explained. "It's the unfairness of Old Mother Nature. Why should she give my cousin, Jumper the Hare, a white coat, in winter to make it easy for him to remain unseen by his enemies and give poor little me a brown coat so that I can't help being seen? I tell you it's unfair. It's dreadfully unfair."

What Today Means to YOU!

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICON"

If December 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10.20 a.m. to 11.30 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 9.30 p.m. to 10.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9.15 a.m. and from 11 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Forces operating on this December 23rd will seem to be against you. Fate will not be for you, but if you base your decisions and actions on sound judgment you should not fare badly. Bad news of a personal nature may come to your attention. Marital rifts are likely to occur and relations between amourous ones are likely to be severely tried and tested.

The child born on this December 23rd will have a good deal to overcome in the course of his earlier years. A not too strong constitution should be outgrown and in all probability will not be a handicap to his success. A whiny and picayune nature, with a tendency toward dmorbidity of thought will pass away as health improves. The child should come to lead a very successful life, a life both useful and interesting. You may count on him to achieve great accomplishments.

If December 23rd is your birthday, you are probably the type of person who can be be described as a "fair-weather" personality. You are friendly, happy and cheerful, kind and loving, active and "up and doing," when you are "riding the crest of the wave" and things are coming your way. When events go against you, you are quite a different person. You are inclined to be grouchy, aloof, unresponsive and gloomy, and even disagreeable. You have your ups and downs much more frequently than the average person. You react very quickly to the smallest of things.

You must seek to develop a more stable temperament. You are an enthusiastic and hard worker under favorable circumstances. You have an abundance of ideas, and are always thinking up some new scheme to advance both yourself and the company you work for. You are unselfish. You have great ambition; you want very much to succeed and to have all that success means in the way of fame, wealth, friends, etc. Fundamentally honest, you nevertheless stoop to trickery and scheming on occasions.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

VARIATIONS IN BODY ACTIVITIES DURING THE DAY

You may own a clinical thermometer, and find early some morning that your temperature is down 96½ or 97 F. As the normal temperature is about 98½F. you may be wondering if there is anything wrong with you.

On the other hand you may take your tmperature at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and find that it is 99F. which is about one half degree above the normal.

Now, as a matter of fact the difference between the early morning temperature and that of the afternoon is usually about 2 degrees in the average well individual.

Similarly with the pulse rate. You may be lying in bed some morning after a good night's rest, and by putting the tips of the index and middle fingers against the big bone of the wrist on the thumb side, you find the pulse beating at the rate of 68 or less to the minute which is below the usual 72. Some time later in the day you find even when doing no work or taking no exercises that your pulse rate is 80 beats to the minute.

Research physicians are now finding that what is called the metabolism rate of the body may also vary considerably, even when taken before breakfast on different mornings. The metabolism rate is the rate at which the body processes work when the individual is resting quietly with no food being digested.

Dr. D. Rozenblum, Russia, states that he and one of his assistants recorded the body energy for twenty-four periods and found that the variations during one year ranged from 10 to 15 percent of that taken the first day.

What makes the rate slower or faster than normal?

It may be due to some condition in the individual himself such as a slight infection, or it may be due simply to his thoughts and emotions.

This means then that when this test is made that if high or low, any treatment, surgical or otherwise, should not be given until a number of tests have been made.

Blood pressure is another measurement which should be taken a number of times and at different hours of the day before a definite statement is made.

Therefore in measuring the heart rate, plus rate, metabolism rate, and blood pressure, the variations even in normal individuals must always be remembered.

Preparedness?

More than 100 Bavarian waiters and waitresses garbed in native costume participate in a novel contest in New York City to determine who can carry the most steins of beer—just in case! This pretty maiden juggles a real handful with apparent ease.

I Jes' P'etend

I jes' p'etend my Dad's alive,
'At Mama doesn't have to work,
'At she can stay at home all day,
An' doesn't have to go and clerk
In 'at ol' store—I jes' p'etend!

An' I p'etend 'at we all live
In a big house in a fine street,
An' 'at we have a dra' big car,
An' lots of 'licious things to eat,
An' lots of close—I jes' p'etend!

I jes' p'etend the kids at school
Don't laugh at my ol' close and shoes,
An' 'at they all like me—a lot—
'At sometimes in the games they choose
Me, too' to play—I jes' p'etend!

An' after school, I jes' p'etend
When I go home again and cook
An' sweep an' dust till Mama comes,
'At I'm a princess in a book!
It's lots of fun to jes' p'etend!

An' me and Mama we p'etend
'At we are eaten' off gold plates,
'At we have turkey an' ice cream,
An' cakes an' raisins, nuts an' dates—
An', oh, yes—butter!—we p'etend!

An' when I go to bed at night,
I jes' p'etend 'at I am not
So awful cold. I snuggle down
An' make believe 'at I'm too hot—
Sometimes all night, I jes' p'etend!

An' when I hear the kids all talk
'Bout Santa Claus an' his reindeer,
An' all the things he's goin' to bring,
I jes' p'etend 'at he'll stop here—
I wish he knew how I p'etend!

Canada Moved Huge Bullion During Early Stages of Great World War

MONTREAL, December 23. (C.P.). — Britain's debt to the United States, $95,500,000, may seem a lot of money to change hands at one time, and it is, but there are me nin this city who can remember a bigger go'd movement than that, and a longer one, too.

It was during the early years of the war, according to J. R. Martin, manager of the Foreign Department of the Canadian Express. The then Dominion Express was given an order to move $96,000,000 from Vancouver to the Royal Mint vaults at Ottawa. There were 13 cars on the bullion train, nine of them held gold, and four guards each. The others were supply cars, carrying relief guards, officials.

The whole trip was made in 90 hours, with stops only to change engines.

The train was given precedence over everything else on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and stops were made only to change the engines. With men riding on the cow-catcher, armed with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, it was probably this train that started the rumor that a Russian Army Corps had been transported across the Dominion.

There were succeeding heavy go'd shipments, one of $68,000,000, and many ranging between $10,000,000 and $20,000 000. All told during the war something between $1,250,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 was moved, Mr. Martin said.

NEW ZEALAND NEED NOT RESUME PAYING WAR DEBTS BRITAIN SAYS

Rest of Dominions Included in Generous Offer—Canada Not Affected.

OWES BRITAIN NOTHING.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 23.—(C. P. Cable)—New Zealand's voluntary offer to resume payments on its war debt to the United Kingdom was met today with a statement from the British government which declared Great Britain did not wish to withdraw or qualify its offer of suspension, made to New Zealand and other dominions which owe her war debt accounts, at the time of the general Hoover moratorium.

This generous decision on the part of the British government has no effect on Canada, nor did the Hoover suspension of inter-governmental payments which ended on Dec. 15 when Great Britain again paid an instalment of $95,550,000 to the United States. Canada was able to carry on in the war without acquiring any indebtedness to the United Kingdom.

Accounts Outstanding.

But New Zeaand and Australia particularly, and other portions of the Empire to a lesser extent, still owe the United Kingdom on war debt account. Australia, the United Kingdom's largest Dominion debtor on this account, was ready to resume payments along with New Zealand, and when the United Kingdom again shouldered the burden of payment to the United States, but undoubtedly the British statement of to-day will apply likewise to Australia, and other Empire debtors.

Great Britain's attitude in this respect is consistent with her contention that the former war debt system must be replaced by a "new regime." In resuming the payment to the United States His Majesty's Government made it clear that it was not to be regarded as a resumption of the old scale. The United Kingdom, it was stressed, was making the payment on capital account; it was to be taken into consideration in the proposed general reconsideration of war debts.

New Zealand's offer to resume payments to the United Kingdom came only four days after Great Britain had met her payment to the United States. It was made with the request that if the United States renewed the debt moratorium, New Zealand would like her liability released.

SENATE BALKS AT BEER ACTION

Connecticut Republicans Move for Immediate Legislation Downed 43 to 23.

NORMAL COURSE URGED.

WASHINGTON, December 23 (C. P.). — The U.S. Senate refused to take up beer legislation to-day.

It rejected a move by Senator Bingham, Republican of Connecticut, aimed to get immediate consideration for the 3.2 Beer Bill passed by the House of Representatives.

The vote was 43 to 23.

The Democratic organization opposed Bingham's attempt on the ground that regular procedure of study by committee was desired.

The vote was decisively against the tall Connecticut opponent of the prohibition laws, although but a few minutes before he had declared that if the measure went to the Judiciary and Finance Committee for study and hearings, "it will just drag along."

"If it gets back here by the middle of February we'll be lucky," he said, adding that he felt the Bill "couldn't be got through before March 4."

The vote was not considered by Senate leaders as a test on the beer issue, because many Senators on both sides of the aisle insisted the Beer Bill should take the normal course of committee action.

U.S. PLACES BAN ON ALIEN LABOR

None To Be Employed on Public Buildings Within 154.7 Miles Canadian Border.

ONLY AMERICAN CITIZENS.

WASHINGTON, December 23 (C. P.). — Plans of the U.S. Treasury to prohibit employment of aliens in construction of public buildings within 154.7 miles of the Canadian border have been approved by Comptroller General McCarl.

McCarl ruled last August that the Treasury could properly insist that only U.S. labor be employed on the new post office building at Portland, Maine, and the Treasury a few days ago asked if this could not be applied to all buildings along the border.

McCarl replied saying there was nothing in any law to prohibit the employment of aliens on public building, but that he felt that the Treasury could properly require in its specifications that only American citizens or allents with first papers could be employed as mechanics or laborers on public buildings in proximity of a border where the added employment was likely to bring about an influx of alien labor.

McCarl set the distance at 154.7 from the border because Portland, Maine, is that distance from the Canadian border, and he held that the rule should not be applied further away without especial permission.

ADVANCE INFURMATION.

WASHINGTON, December 23 (C. P.). — Senator Colidge, Democrat, of Massachusetts, who recently gave the U.S. Senate telegrams from Massachusetts firms stating it appeared the Bermuda Government intended placing a prohibitive tariff on food products from the United States, has placed before the Senate a newspaper article on a probable trade pact between Canada and France.

The Senator did not comment on the article, but gained permission to have it printed in the Congressional record.

Ethel Barrymore Gravely Ill

Stricken with pneumonia, Ethel Barrymore, one of the leading American actresses, was reported gravely ill in New York. The opening of her new play, "Encore," on Broadway, was postponed indefinitely. She is shown above with John Barrymore, one of her two noted brothers, on her arrival in Hollywood, and in the role of the Czarina in her first motion picture, based on the life of the Russian monk Rasputin. Her brothers, Lionel and John, appear with her in the film. They have been stars of many films.

New Lease of Life for Gordon

So full of life and good spirits was Gordon, while a student at college, that he thought he could never outrun his store of vitality. However, such things happen and after a winter of hard study and plenty of sport, the gripping effects of a deep-seated cough made themselves drastically felt one day, and from a fainting spell Gordon was sent hurriedly to the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives.

It has taken nearly two years to rebuild his health and strength, but the experienced medical attention, the careful nursing, the rest and regularity of life at the hospital are having their usual happy results, and Gordon expects soon to return to take up his chosen life work.

Helping the sufferers from consumption back to health and usefulness is a great work, but it is never finished, nor could it be carried on at all without the generous help of many friends. Will you please lend your aid by sending a contribution for the cause to G. A. Reid, 833 College St., Toronto 2.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 95

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

While Ja's fleet was still a considerable distance off the coast, the O-220 raced ahead at full speed toward Korsar. The plan was to effect the rescue of David I. without bloodshed. As the dirigible glided over the inner world's principal city, its streets and courtyards filled with people staring upward in awestruck wonder. Three thousand feet above Korsar, the ship stopped and Tarzan sent for the three Korsar prisoners.

With stern face the ape-man addressed Lajo. "I have shown and explained to you all these deadly bombs that could easily blow up The Cid's palace. They could destroy all Korsar. You have seen the fleet coming to rescue the Emperor of Pellucidar. Your whole country is at our mercy. Now I am going to give you a chance to save it, for you shall take a message to The Cid. Will you tell him the truth?" The Korsar trembled, for he did not know what to expect, but he answered: "I will."

"Very well," answered Tarzan. "The message is simple. Tell your ruler we demand the return of Pellucidar's Emperor at once. Explain how we can enforce our will. If he places the Emperor upon a ship and sends him unharmed to our fleet, we will go away without firing a shot. If not, the blood of all his subjects will be upon his head. Do you understand?" "I do," whispered Lajo. Tarzan lead him aft where a bundle was waiting. "It is a parachute," he said "put your arms through here."

Quickly the parachute was adjusted. Its mechanism was explained to the Korsar, carefully. They led him to a door in the cabin and flung it open. The man hesitated. "Remember" said Tarzan, "your message to The Cid." "Don't forget to jerk the ring," cautioned Jason. Then, pale, but showing no other fear, Lajo, the Korsar jumped off into space. A moment later the watchers saw the white folds of the parachute streaming in the air—saw it open and knew that the message of Tarzan would be delivered to The Cid of Korsar.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS CONCERT IS HELD IN HASTINGS SCHOOL

Capacity Crowd Sees Youthful Students Stage Splendid Program.

MUSICAL NUMBERS

HASTINGS, Dec. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—The pupils of Hastings Public School staged the annual Christmas concert on Wednesday night in the Town Hall. The hall was filled, every seat being occupied long before starting time. J. C. Wilson, chairman of the school board, acted as chairman and in a few brief remarks thanked the large attendance on behalf of the teachers and school board. Mr. Wilson also got in some witty stories that put the big crowd in good spirits.

Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess took the occasion to compliment the teachers on the splendid program put on by the pupils; it showed what an interest both Mr. Sine and Miss Lamb had taken; also the amount of work they must have done in order to have the concert the success it was. Reeve Hess also complimented the school board on the condition and appearance of Hastings Public school.

Village Clerk A. Wilson, the oldest trustee in the village, who served for a great many years on the school board, in a short address, expressed his pleasure at being present at such a splendid concert; also complimented the school board on the general appearance of the school.

Every pupil played their part well, and there was delay between numbers, as is the case often. Christmas trees and decorations made the stage take on a real Christmas spirit.

The following is the program: Opening chorus, "How Do You Do, Everybody, Pupils. Recitation, "My Christmas Tree," Ruth McGuire; Recitation, "Mother's Helper," Jessie Turner; Song, "When You're With Someone You Love," Elene Dodd; Recitation, "My Big Brother," Alex Sherwin; Recitation, "Needle and Thread," Muriel Oliver"; Chorus, "Toymaker's Dream," Five Girls; Recitation, "Waiting for the 26th," George Simpson; Duett, Comic Songs, June and Ross Mouncey; Charm Boxes and Fairy Queen, Pupils; Maypole Drill, 12 Small Girls; Recitation, Raymond Scriver; Chorus, Twelve Girls; Recitation, Harold Edwards; Dialogue, "Mother's Little Girl," Five Girls; Dialogue, "Debating Society," Boys; Recitation, "So Do I," Freda McKee; Recitation, Daisy Graham; Recitation, Rosebud Calberry; Drill, Nine Boys; Chorus, "When Mr. Frog Went A-courting," Pupils; Recitation, Walter Edwards; Pantomime, "O Silent Night," Pupils; Recitation, Dolly Graham; Instrumental, Madeline Dodd; Dialogue, "The Rumpus at Ginger Bread Hill," Pupils; Recitation, "Christmas Spirit," Muriel Wilson; Chorus, Pupils; Recitation, "Good-Bye," June Scriver; God Save the King.

The regular meeting of St. George's A.Y.P.A., was held on Monday evening with the Vice-President Cyril Blackbourne, presiding.

"Shall we go Singing?" a play, in which Harry Tyrrell, read, and at intervals a choir of eight girls joined in carols between the readings, was enjoyed. Cyril Blackbourne and daughter, Marjorie, rendered a beautiful duet. The remainder of the evening was spent in practising for their annual concert to be held on Thursday, Dec. 29, instead of New Year's Eve as usual.

Services will be held in St.George's Anglican church on Sunday (Christmas Day, at 9 a.m., with the celebration of the Holy Communion, and at 7 p.m. with Evensong and carol services. The Rector, Rev. H. F. Battersby, will address the congregation at both services, and also at Roseneath in St. James' church, at 11 a.m. with the celebration of Holy Communion.

At Trinity United Church, Rev. H. J. Bell, will hold a special Christmas service, with Christmas music, at both services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Then on Monday evening, December 26, the 71st anniversary of their Christmas concert will be held in the town hall.

VILLANS PLAY SCORELESS TIE WITH DERBYITES

Arsenal Scores Nine Goals Against Sheffield United's Two in First Division.

Wednesday in Third Place.

Rangers Regain First Place in Scottish League by Beating St. Mirren 4-0.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (C.P.).—Scoring nine goals against Sheffield United's two, Arsenal got off to a flying start on their holiday schedule to-day in the English League First Division. Aston Villa dropped further behind the Gunners, playing a scoreless tie with Derby County, which left them still in second place, six points back of the leaders.

Beating Liverpool 3-0, Sheffield Wednesday hopped past Derby County into third place, a point behind the Villans. High scores were run up in most of to-day's First Division games. Birmingham scored four times without a return from Portsmouth, Blackburn Rovers beat Middlesbrough 4-2, Everton swamped the luckless Wolverhampton Wanderers 5-1, Leeds United defeated Bolton Wanderers 4-3, and West Bromwich Albion took Leicester by the same score.

Retains Advantage.

Stoke City retained their two-point advantage over Bradford City at the head of the Second Division standing by playing a 1-1 tie with the runners-up at Bradford City. Bury went into third place ahead of Tottenham by defeating Burnley 5-3, while the Spurs were being whitewashed 3-0 by Notts County.

Brentford continued their winning ways in the Third Division Southern Section, taking their game with Aldershot 2-0. They now have won 24 games, lost two and tied two.

SCHOOL BOARD ACCLAMATION?

Only Four Qualified Up Until Two O'clock To-day.

ELECTION FOR COUNCIL.

Despite the excitement of the nominations yesterday and the fact that 11 candidates were nominated for the four vacant seats on the Board of Education, it looked very much to-day that the four retiring members of the Board might be returned by acclamation.

Up until two o'clock this afternoon only the four retiring members had qualified for the election. These were: James Dutton, I. P. McNabb, Dr. A. Moir and E. F. Reid.

William Tinker, who stated yesterday that he would be a candidate, told The Examiner to-day that he had reconsidered and would not qualify. J. E. Smith, who also was mentioned as a sure candidate, said that he had not quite decided but he did not think his name would go on the ballot.

Others nominated appeared to have taken little interest. E. R. Wilson, a former strong member of the Board, said he had never considered being a candidate this year.

All things considered it looked very much as though the old four would be returned without a fight.

But matters were far different in the other sections of the municipal arena.

Both Mayor Denne and Alderman Fred Tuggey lost no time in qualifying for the Mayoralty race. Interest in this contest was at fever pitch around the city.

Three Qualified.

A big fight for the Utilities Commission is assured. At 2 o'clock E. B. Fowler, E. G. Patterson, and E. R. Shirley had qualified, and expectations were that the other nominee, John McCabe, would qualify to complete the ring.

As expected, hats clouded the Council ring. Nine had qualified for the five vacant seats at 2 o'clock, and it was certain that the number would reach ten, while others were sure that the candidates would

Our Christmas Greetings

In extending Yuletide greetings to its readers on the eve of the great festival The Examiner knows only too well that for many this occasion cannot be Christmas as usual.

The pressure of a prolonged period of depression has left many homes dependent on relief and many others unable in the matter of Christmas feasting and Christmas gift-giving to follow their custom as in the past.

And yet even to them all the spirit and all the joy of Christmas is not lost; if in material things there is an unwonted lack, they have evidence in their midst that the goodwill of the Christmas season has been even more than usual in evidence this year and that the magic of this anniversary has touched the hearts and unloosed the purse-strings of the more fortunate.

Probably there has never been a Christmas in our annals where more thought has been shown for others, when those who have have shown a greater desire to help those who have not, when the spirit of real brotherhood has been more convincingly demonstrated.

It seems as though the distress of these unusual conditions has come closer to reaching the real essence of the Christmas spirit than any other Yuletide in history and that cannot fail to have a lasting beneficial effect upon mankind in general.

Distinctions of class and station in life have disappeared, wiped out by a common disaster that has hit many of the former rich as well as the poor, all this Christmas finds our people drawn more closely together because of the general recognition of the fact that the misfortunes of one family today may be those of another family tomorrow.

In this desire to help and this feeling of kinship with those around us we should be able to find a measure of joy and satisfaction that will make this Christmas memorable.

That is The Examiner's hope in voicing to its reader its best wishes for the Christmas season.

King To Broadcast Christmas Message

LONDON, December 24 (C.P. Cable. — The voice of His Majesty will come to radio listeners throughout the British Empire at 10.05 a.m., E.S.T., Sunday morning in the special Empire broadcast, and not at 9.45 a.m., as previously announced.

While the broadcast will get under way at 9 a.m., E.S.T., an exchange of greetings and descriptive talks covering far scattered centres of the Empire will occupy the air for just over an hour.

His Majesty is prepared to open his Christmas message to his subjects at 10.05, from Sandringham, in Norfolk, where the Royal Family traditionally spends Christmas.

SINKING OFF JAMAICA STEAMER REQUESTS AID

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (A.P.)—The British freighter Newbrough broadcast an SOS early to-day, stating it was sinking off the Island of Jamaica, with its engine room flooded.

The call, picked up by Station WAX at Miami, Fla., was re-broadcast to the liner President McKinley, which feplied that she would proceed to the position given, 125 miles, or about eight hours, away.

The Miami's station's call also was picked up by the Coastguard in New York.

FLOOD DAMAGE CLAIMS MOOTED

Riparian Residents of North Monaghan Allege Action Was Tardy.

REPORTED ON TUESDAY.

A group of North Monaghan farmers told The Examiner to-day that they were considering some action to obtain from the government compensation to their properties caused by the Otonabee River overflowing its banks last week.

Large quantities of vegetables stored in some cellars were water soaked and their quality impaired. It was said they might not be fit for sale. Another farmer stated that their fences were bound to be damaged by the freezing of the high water and the subsequent sagging of the ice when the flood was checked.

Herbert Doig said that A. L. Killaly had been advised on Tuesday last week of the seriousness of the increasing height of the river, and that he had been told it was a matter for the North Monaghan Council to take up.

Evasive Answer

Reeve McIntosh reports that he consulted Mr. Killaly on Tuesday, and that the answer he got seemed to be evasive. Mr. Doig states that the stop logs at Buckhorn were not in the dam there at noon on Thursday. When the department did take steps to check the flow of the river the results were promptly effective late on Friday and on Saturday.

North Monaghan resident believe that the control measures should have been applied on Tuesday. That is the basis of their complaint, and also that the Otonabee went up to a new height.

OUR WEATHER MAN

DUMMER COUPLE 50 YEARS WED CHRISTMAS DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Job Wheeler Married in Lakefield in 1882.

RECALLS VOYAGE.

Mr. Wheeler Was Born in England, Mrs. Wheeler at Cobourg.

Married in Lakefield on December 25, 1882, Mr. and Mrs. Job Wheeler of Dummer township will celebrate on Christmas day the golden anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. Wheeler was born in Wiltshire, England, eighty years ago, near Warminster. He came to Canada when he was seventeen, and excepting a year in Minnesota has spent his life in this county, for a time as a resident of Ashburnham.

"My father's uncle lived on the second line of Douro" Mr. Wheeler recalled when The Examiner visited the elderly couple at their home yesterday. "When I was just seventeen my great uncle sent for me to come out to Canada. The long trip across the ocean and away from home, which I might never see again, was a great event for me. It would be for any boy, wouldn't it. I remember that the day I sailed from Liverpool was the 13th of July. I was ten days on the ocean, and when I arrived up in this part of the country I found that all the bridges on the Indian River had been washed out by freshets that made a record that Spring. Even the Warsaw bridge was gone.

There was plenty of work in those days; farmers needed men and I followed that for a time. Later I was employed for thirty-five years at the Curtis brickyard. I began with Mark Curtis, the old gentleman and afterwards worked for the sons when they took it over. It might be of interest to some of the older residents to know that I drove the first load of brick that went into the George Street Methodist Church when it was being built.

Named After Old Land

Warminster cheese factory is near here, and it was named after my old town in Wiltshire. George Payne, who also lived in this part of the township, had come from Wiltshire, too, and as he was connected with the factory he wanted it to be called Warminster because Friends, Relatives Wait Anxiously Around Tipple, While 50 Comrades Who Escaped, Labor To Sink Air Shaft Through Barrier To Men Far Underground.

VICTIMS BELONG TO CO-OPERATIVE GROUP WORKING ON SHARES TO EKE OUT LIVING.

MOWEQUA, Ill., December 24 (C.P.). — Fifty-four miners were imprisoned in the Co-operative Mine at Mowequa, near Decatur, by a gas explosion in an underground shaft at 9.30 a.m. to-day. Escape was cut off and the fate of the men remained in doubt. Attempts were made to force a tube through the barrier, through which to force down a supply of fresh air.

There was no evidence of the wreckage wrought by the explosion. That something "awful" had happened in the pit, was the word spread from the little tipple to the village of 1,200 inhabitants, a mile away, when the dull roar stopped all response to the signals from the mine office.

Miners imprisoned were those who four months ago attempted to make a living for themselves by joining in a co-operative venture to re-open the mine which the coal operators had closed as unprofitable.

Leased From Owners

A citizens' committee leased it from the Schafers, coal operators of Pana, and those who worked as miners shared and shared alike as stockholders. They had barely managed to make wages.

Glenn A. Shafer of Pana, owner, was one of the first outsiders to reach the Mowequa Mine. He telephone Mayor Charles E. Barnett, of Pana, requesting that the Pana Fire Department be sent to the scene, equipped with pulmotors and gas masks. "The mine," Shafer said, "is evidently filled with gas. We cannot say what caused the explosion."

He said 50 miners had escaped from the mine.

Shaffer said that 115 men were working in the mine but that 63 were laboring near the top, repairing supports and beams, and escaped without difficulty. From the time of the explosion, not one evidence of their safety had been obtainable from 52 men, Shaffer said who were imprisoned.

Plead For Action

The entire village population crowded about the mine with

YOUTH RESCUES FATHER, 3 GIRLS AS HOUSE BURNS

First Takes Out Dead Body of Mother Killed By Explosion.

POURED OIL IN STOVE.

Lad Fights Through Flames to Get Sister Hiding Beneath Table.

ARROWHEAD, Alberta, Dec. 24 (C.P.) — Nineteen-year-old Ralph Leonard dared a roaring inferno yesterday to save the lives of his father and and three girls when an explosion killed his mother and fire threatened his home. The father was burned slightly on the hands, and a 10-year-old daughter was overcome by smoke, while the others escaped injury.

Mrs. Leonard was killed instantly when the coal oil she poured on the stove exploded, flames spreading over the kitchen and dense smoke filling the house. She had risen from bed to get breakfast for the other members of the family who were sleeping when the tragedy occurred.

The explosion brought Ralph out of his bed and downstairs. He carried his mother's body outside and then aroused the other members of the house. Despite the flames and smoke he directed his 17-year-old sister Marjorie and Miss Mary Mitchell, a friend, to the top of a porch after breaking a window when escape in other directions was cut off. The youth helped the girls down a ladder and then continued his life-saving mission.

Takes Father Out

He placed a ladder below the window of his father's room and brought him out safely. The father, C. M. R. Leonard, manager of the Co-operative Oil Company, suffered burned hands when he attempted to fight the flames.

Ralph's work was far from finished when he realized his 10-year-old sister, Gladys, was imprisoned in the flaming structure. Undaunted he sped into the blaze again and found the little girl, unconscious, under the dining-room table. Another struggle with the fire, and Ralph placed the girl in the arms of her father.

19 CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED FOR ALDERMEN

Expect That There Will Likely Be Twelve Names Go on Ballot.

FOR FIVE SEATS.

Hot Aldermanic Contest is Assured Following Nomination Meeting.

The ratepayers are going to have a wide choice of candidates for City Council at the municipal elections on Jan. 2. Nineteen were nominated for the five vacant seats on the Council and nine of these announced last evening, or had stated previously, their intention of standing for election. One other said that he was still uncertain of entering the lists.

However, the barrage of hats that were tossed in the ring last evening at the nomination meeting in the City Council Chamber left no doubt that the city can look forward to a hot aldermanic contest.

Candidates Are Bold

The nine who announced themselves as certain candidates were not at all backward in doing so. They came out boldly and with due assurance declaring their belief that they had something to offer the ratepayers in their services. All the new men stated that economy would be the chief source they would pursue in the Council, if elected.

Three retiring aldermen outlined their work during their time in office, pointing out the difficulties the Council had overcome during the year and the economies made.

Those nominated who announced themselves as certain candidates were:

Alderman Dan Holland
George Benton
Maxwell R. Sloane
Joseph Henderson
Alderman John A. MacN...
James C. Ellis
Fred O. Goodfellow
Joseph S. Bell
Alderman James Hamilton

THIEF REMOVES PRIZE PICTURE

Cut From Frame While Gallery Crowded, Guards on Door.

POLICE ARE MUM.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24 (C.P.).—With guards stationed at every door and a number of spectators walking through the long galleries, a thief yesterday cut a large prize-winning oil painting from its frame in the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, and walked unnoticed from the building with the canvas.

The painting was "Portrait by Night," by Hilda Belcher, New York artist and magazine illustrator, who lent it to the academy after it won the Lippincott prize.

It is about four feet high and three feet wide, and shows a girl in a red dress, with the light of a fireplace reflected on her.

Police said the thief used a sharp knife which cut the canvas on a clean line, close to the edge of the frame. Detectives called every guard and employee of the academy into a conference to compare notes on persons they had seen entering and leaving the building. Police refused to discuss the outcome of the meeting.

EVERY FAMILY WILL RECEIVE BASKET FOR CHRISTMAS DINNER

Enough Money Contributed to Look After the Remaining Families.

BE NONE TO SPARE.

All Peterborough families will have some taste of Christmas cheer, it was said to-day by relief officials when asked if they had been successful in getting baskets for all the 614 families on the city's relief rolls.

There will be no baskets to spare and just enough to go around after a great deal of manipulating, Relief Officer Metheral said. This morning there were still 45 families of which no baskets were available but it was considered that sufficient money had been received in donations to prepare baskets for them.

Besides the 75 families they started out to supply with Christmas hampers the Salvation Army has assumed 44 other families during the past two days, when it seemed that some families would not receive baskets.

Private citizens also have come forward during the past 24 hours. One family in the city will send out eight baskets and others have been almost as liberal.

Walter J. Oke collected $100 for Christmas baskets which with the $40 received by Mr. Metheral will go toward making purchases for families still without baskets.

The 56 single men in the city, however, can not be supplied with Christmas cheer, Mr. Metheral said, since there is not sufficient to include them. Some of these single men will be taken into private families for Christmas dinner.

Donations received by Mr. Metheral for Christmas cheer were: A Water street resident $10, Mrs E. R. Medd $10, J. W. Gravestock $10, D. V. Ketcheson $10.

False Alarms

RIDGETOWN, Ont., Dec. 24 (C.P.)—Joe Dillot was sitting in the barber shop. He had received one-half of his haircut. His father dashed in. "Joe, drive me home quick. I just got a telephone call that chicken thieves are in my barn."

Joe hopped from the chair. A policeman joined the two. They drove to the home of Mr. Dillot, Senior, at a terrific pace. Stopping some distance from the barn, they sneaked up.

A cow had invaded the chicken quarters and stepped on a chicken.

MITCHELL RE-APPOINTED.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 24 (C.P.).—Herb Mitchell has been re-appointed manager of the Windsor Bulldogs, International Hockey League team, after being relieved of his duties two weeks ago. Jack Arbour had been temporary manager of the squad. J. D. Chick, director of the club, made the announcement.

HARPELL GUILTY; MACAULEY WINS HIS LIBEL SUIT

Judge Reserves Sentence Till Tuesday to Allow Prisoner Christmas Free.

JURY ADVISES CLEMENCY.

Charge Falls Flat Sun Life President "Faked His Books."

MONTREAL, Dec. 24.—Vindication of his good name was won yesterday by Thomas B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life of Canada, as a jury under Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields found James J. Harpell guilty of defamatory libel. The trial occupied five days and arose out of articles attacking Mr. Macaulay and the Sun Life published in Harpell's magazine, "the Jurnal of Commerce," and out of passages in a book called "Industry, Commerce and Finance."

Sentence was reserved by the Chief Justice until Tuesday with the consent of the Crown to permit Mr. Harpell to retain his liberty on bail over Christmas. Calixte Cormier, defence counsel, announced he intended to appeal but the court ruled it had no power to grant bail pending appeal but could continue the former bail if the sentence was reserved.

Throughout the whole trial the white-haired financier sat in the coutrroom and followed proceedings closely. When the verdict was announced his friends and relatives gathered around him with their congratulations.

Much of the internal organization of the Sun Life and many of its investments were reviewed in the course of the trial. Mr. Macaulay himself was called to the witness box for the defence and questioned about the dealings with Samuel Insull and his [illegible] in a syndicate organized by I[illegible] Son and Company to u[illegible] stock of the Middle West Utilities Company. Practically all the other important officers of the Sun Life testified at one time or another.

Only once during his long sessions in the witness box did Mr. Macaulay [illegible] into his testimony. When finished questioning him he asked permission to add a word or two and said:

Character on Trial

"While Mr. Harpell is technically on trial it is really my character that is on trial. Never in all my life have I used one dollar of the company's money improperly or for my own purposes. Never once did I allow consideration of personal benefit to weigh with me in deciding on the investments of the company."

The jury took an hour and 40 minutes to reach its verdict of "Guilty, but we recommend him to the clemency of the court." Just before they retired they were told in the judge's charge the truth of every statement in the alleged libel had to be proved to justify acquittal and not merely the truth of a part of it.

Aime Geoffrion, K.C., for Mr. Macaulay, told them no evidence had been produced to prove a single statement in the article complained of. Evidence the Sun Life had lost money on one or two bad investments was no evidence Mr. Macaulay was "a crook," as the investments were passed upon by other officers of the company.

During the stock market boom of 1929, said Mr. Cormier, there was only one man out of the million policyholders of the Sun Life who had the courage and the foresight to criticize the company for investing in common stocks. That man was Harpell, and the stand he took then had been justified by experience since. In fact, he contended, Harpell had performed a service of greater benefit to life insurance than any other man in 25 years.

$200,000 CANDY ON EXPORT LIST

Dominion Also Sends Out Over Million Turkeys—$48,000 in Toys.

IRON, STEEL PICKING UP.

OTTAWA, Dec. 24. — Canada's contribution to the Chrismas gaiety of other nations included:

More than 1,000,000 turkeys.

Candy valued at $200,000.

Dolls, toys and sports goods valued at about $48,000.

These figures were given in a special review published by the Department of Trade and Commerce dealing with Christmas trade exports from Canada.

Bright spots noted in the review included the marked improvement in the iron and steel industry, the decrease in commercial failures, and the steadily mounting volume of Empire trade.

Production of pig iron in November amounted to 14,149 long tons, the highest level since April, and the same as in November of last year. Steel production amounted to 37,088 tons in November, which was the highest production recorded for any month of this year with the exception of March, and compares to the 28,000 tons produced in the corresponding month last year.

BAPTIST CHURCH ENTERTAINMENT

Play Presented at Annual Function and Attendance Prizes Awarded.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 24 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The annual Baptist Christmas entertainment staged in the Church Hall, Campbellford, proved a great success in every way; a very large attendance being registered. The program consisted of carols, recitations, dialogues and a three-act play entitled "All Wool and a Yard Wide." Those taking part in the play were: Flossie Dunk, Muriel Montgomery, Marguerite Reid, Ottlene Reid, Mozo Blake, Don Scott, Douglas Lloyd, Bill Hollings, Irene Blair and Fred Pettifer. The accompanist was Miss Thelma Hollings.

Twelve prizes were given for regular attendance at the Sunday School during the year, those receiving these being: Billie Moore and Margaret Blake with perfect attendance; Charles Shaw, Billie Oliver, Betty Shaw, Viola Hicks, Jean Shaw, Helen Montgomery, Glennis Shaw, Bobby Blake, and Vernon Shaw.

VETERAN REEVE IS RE-ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Reeve John McIntosh is Returned By Acclamation in North Monaghan.

NOMINATIONS HELD.

Work of Township Council During Past Year is Commended.

John McIntosh was re-elected reeve of North Monaghan by acclamation at the township nominations Friday afternoon in May's school.

Deputy-reeve George Patton and Councillor John Barnes were proposed for the deputy's chair.

And for council, with three to be elected, the nominees were Robert Dobbin, John Barnes and William Whitfield, whose terms as councillors are expiring, William Stevens and James Milby.

Evidences of an election began to bud when William Stevens signed his qualification paper after James Milby had intimated that he would be in the field. Nominees are required to declare their intentions before nine o'clock this evening.

Yesterday's post - nomination meeting of ratepayers was a comparatively mild affair with a pronounced sentiment of approbation of the council's record this year. The municipal craft seemed to have reached a friendly haven after the twelve months' buffeting of tempests that have been general over a wide area.

Echoes of the assessment that produced a voluminous sheaf of appeals and came close to reference to the county judge rumbled at times, but they were somewhat faint and hollow as of thunder that has passed down the horizon. Then, there were recollections of the wood camps that were opened to give employment; direct relief as an added financial problem was mentioned here and there; the country's debenture issue to pay for the provincial highway levy stirred a breeze of criticism.

Hy Wood was on the job again and stirred up an occasional light ripple, but in the final reckoning the consensus of the majority was favorable to the council's administration against unprecedented difficulties. And on the right side of the account was the item of a reduction of $7,000 in taxes.

Finally, the aspirant candidates promised a further check on ex-

CHRISTMAS NOTHING TO NUDISTS DETAINED UPON PIERS ISLAND

Pope Pius Announces A Year's "Jubilee"

VATICAN CITY, December 24 (C.P.). — Pope Pius XI. announced a year's "jubilee" observance of the 19th centenary of Christ's passion, death, and resurrection to begin April 2, 1933, to-day in a Christmas message to the world.

The Pope sent best Christmas wishes and prayers for "Peace, tranquillity, mutual confidence, friendly relations, greater assistance wherever were the greatest needs, sufficient remunerative work, and less unfavorable and uncertain general conditions of life."

This was expressed particularly at a moment when, he said, there were "so many divisions and conflicts among peoples and states, not excluding the horrors of war and civil war and the consequent continuance and worsening of a universal financial and economic crisis without precedent in history."

Canada's "Uncriminal Criminals" to Get Extra Ration —Apples, No Turkey.

FEW VISITORS ALLOWED.

VICTORIA, Dec. 23. — (C.P.) — Christmas on Piers Island, Canada's newest penal colony, will be little different from the ordinary day to the 592 members—304 men and 288 women — of the Sons of Freedom Branch of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, familiarly known as Doukhobors, who are serving a three year sentence for participating in nude parades in the vicinity of Nelson and Grank Forks last May.

These simple, harmless folk, Canada's "uncriminal criminals," will be served an extra ration. Turkey? No, just nice juicy apples. Their religion teaches killing of any living thing is contrary to the will of God. Hence the extras apple. December 25 is not their Christmas.

SEVEN CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

Father, Crippled Ex-service Man, Wife and Baby Only Ones to Escape.

ALL SERIOUSLY HURT.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Dec. 24 (C.P.).—Seven of the eight young children of an unemployed man were burned to death when trapped on the upper floor by a fire which destroyed the family's tiny two-room house to-day.

The father, Luke Weir, a crippled ex-service man, and his wife, who were sleeping downstairs with a four months old baby, were seriously burned and were taken to a hospital.

The tinder-like interior of the dwelling flared up so rapidly that by the time firemen arrived it was impossible even to attempt to rescue the other children, their ages ranging from four to 13 years, who were sleeping, crowded together, in the upper room.

De Laval Message To Ratepayers

The De Laval Company, Limited, has made application through the City Council, for an increase of full taxation on the fixed amount of $60,000.00 of its assessment, and all other rates inclusive of school, pavement and other local improvement taxes to be paid on its full assessment. The Company application is not for exemption, as the foregoing makes plain.

The Council endorsed the application. It is now for the ratepayers of the City to approve.

The Company ORIGINALLY AGREED TO EMPLOY 75 PEOPLE. NOW IT EMPLOYS 194. It has had as high as 400 on the payroll.

The Company ENGAGES TO INCREASE ITS FACTORY PAYROLL 50% WITHIN TWO YEARS FROM JANUARY 1ST, 1933, OR AS MUCH SOONER AS CONDITIONS PERMIT.

The Company ORIGINALLY AGREED TO PROVIDE 45,000 SQUARE FEET OF FACTORY SPACE. IT HAS CONSTRUCTED OVER 150,000 SQUARE FEET.

The Company has expended in FACTORY WAGES $4,546,482.00, and its OFFICE PAYROLL HAS AMOUNTED TO $630,000.00—A GRAND TOTAL COMPANY PAYROLL OF $5,176,482.00.

The Company has afforded employment in other Peterborough industries, in the aggregate, of more than $1,083,000.00. THE TOTAL AS AFFECTING PETERBOROUGH FACTORY PAYROLLS THEN IS $6,259,482.00. More than $500,000.00 has been paid by the Company to the railways here. More than $850,000.00 has been paid by the Company to our Customs House people.

WHEN $7,600,000.00 is put into circulation in a city and community, it becomes lifeblood to every citizen in it. It is a revolving fund that never is eliminated so long as industry survives. Industries are the insurance policy against business decadence.

Contingent upon the approval by the ratepayers of the City, on the recommendation of the Mayor and Council that the Company's application for increased taxation be granted, additional lines of manufacture will be entered upon, thus affording the 50% increase in payroll as above mentioned. THE COMPANY'S PAST PERFORMANCES HAVE ALWAYS EXCEEDED ITS PROMISES. It is relying on the good business sense of the ratepayers of Peterborough, to express their confidence in the Company's further progress, by voting YES on the De Laval By-law on January 2nd, 1933.

Thank you. THE DE LAVAL COMPANY, LIMITED.

LAKEFIELD SCHOOL CONVERSAT PROVES ONE OF YEAR'S TREATS

Three Act Play, Choruses Given—Life Saving Parchments Presented.

SPORT MEDALS AWARDED,

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 23. (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual High School conversazione held on Thursday evening made a new high record this year, a record which it would be very difficult to surpass.

The Town Hall was packed to its utmost capacity for the event, a response to the invitation which was highly gratifying to the staff of the school and the officers and members of the Literary Society, under whose auspices the entertainment is put on. At its beginning in 1913 the conversazione was a social event for the pupils of the school and a re-union with old pupils who gathered again in the school rooms to greet teachers and friends but in the nineteen years that have elapsed since its beginning, many changes have taken place and now it is a community event, which the community attends and anticipates with greatest pleasure.

The opening number was a chorus by about thirty pupils, directed by Mrs. N. M. Stinson, B.A., "There is a Land" was the title and its theme was patriotic. Matilda Moore was the pianist.

The curtain rose again and two of the fourth form boys, Dominico White and Hugh Morrison came on the stage in the uniform of the school and led off with the yell of the Lakefield High School.

Three Act Play

"The Arrival of Kitty" was the title of the three-act play which kept the audience roaring with laughter. The scene of the play is laid at the Halcyn House, Catskill Mountains and the comedy of errors race a merry course with an all star cast, in which each performer was exceptionally fine. The leading part was taken by Russell Elliott who, to win the girl he loved and overcome the objections of his uncle, masquarades as Kitty Bender, a rather notorious actress. The impersonation was splendid and made the biggest hit of the play was full of hits and the confusion, which resulted in the arrival of the real "Kitty" made the barrel of fun run over. Mattia Moore as "Aunt Jane" scored a real hit in a difficult part and her impersonation of that excitable lady was remarkable. Hugh Morrison as "William Winkler" was excellent as was Dominico White as "Tingle Paugh" manager pro tem of the Halcyn house. The part of "Benjamin Green" a more or less willing bridegroom, was well taken by Clifford Hurl, whose portrayal of the rather exhilarated Benny was admirable. Charlie Tanner as "Sam" the colored man, was a scream and every appearance was greeted by loud applause. It was a real hit. Mary Walsh as "Jane" for whose sake "Bobby Baxter" donned feminine attire and masqueraded as "Kitty" was delightful and well worth winning. Vivian Hendren as the real "Kitty" was very good, playing the part of the sophisticated young woman who can't be fooled by promises or excuses, in a finished manner which was well worth while.

Edith Spence, as Suzette, Aunt Jane's maid was exceedingly good also. A small puppy played a brief part but returned to the stage on his own to receive a "hand" from the crowd.

A chorus of nine young girls sang two choruses between the acts, the first was of the ballad type relating to the sad story of "Dorothy May" and the second an old friend re-vamped "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet", with green substituted for grey. The girls were pretty and very dainty with their large green crepe paper bonnets and parasols. The group members were Cora Charlton, Kay Wannamaker, Assunta White, Ethel Brooks, Muerita Jory, Patricia Quigley, Mildred Miles Madeline Charlton, Nora Webster.

Mrs Stinson was the director and Matilda Moore the pianist. Miss Bessie Dunn, B.A., who was the director of the play, which scored such a remarkable success, was presented with a remembrance and also Mrs. Stinson, who directed the music.

The second part of the program was of a very different character to the first part but quite as interesting. Mr. J. W. Ridpath, chairman of the School Board, was in the chair and addressed the audience briefly, voicing the appreciation of the Board to the staff of the school whose efforts had done so much toward establishing a remarkable record in the mid summer examinations this year. The attendance in the High School has increased nearly 100 pupils and is an institution of which Lakefield is justly proud.

Medal Presented

Reeve Tanner presented the medals to the four pupils in High and Public School (two to each school), for the best essays on Fire Prevention during the annual campaign in early October. This contest was under the direction of Fire Chief Allan Clark and sponsored by the Firemen's Association all over the country. The winners for the High School were Muerita Jory and Meriam Brown, and for the Public School, Grace Marshall and Phyllis Bolton. Mr. Clark explained the matter of the essays to the audience in a brief speech. Reeve Tanner made the presentation and took the opportunity to pay a well merited tribute to Fire Chief Clark, who, he said, needed no eulogy, as he is known widely as an efficient and enthusiastic officer who was asked to speak at the annual Fire Chief's convention held in Halifax during the summer on "Fire Prevention."

Life Saving Honors

The next item was the presentation of three parchments for conspicuous bravery in life saving in the Otonabee River at Lakefield during the past summer. The presentation was made on behalf of the Royal Humane Society by Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., who explained the circumstances and the immense risk run by the rescuers. The first to Kenneth Junkin, who on May 29th last jumped into the river to rescue Garnet O'Neill who had been tipped from a canoe and not being able to swim was going down for the third time when Kenneth reached him.

On August 30th, Madeline Morin, a little girl of the village, was bathing in the river at the foot of Burnham street, got beyond her depth and was in grave danger of drowning when Miss Odell Watson, who was on the bank, leaped in, fully dressed, and swam to the rescue, saving the life of the child.

On Sept. 1st, Freddy Mason, five year old son of Mrs. R. L. Mason, fell off the Lakefield dock into deep water and would have drowned but for the prompt action of Joe Blewett who plunged in and swam to safety with the child.

Rev. A. W. MacKenzie, M.A., D.D., was called on to present the sports trophies. Dr. Mackenzie, the well-known headmaster of The Grove has done much to promote friendly rivalry in sports, between the two schools and a closer co-operation which has been a valuable contribution to the young life of the community.

The Senior girls' championship cup for sports was presented to Edna Higgins and for the Junior girls to Assunta White. Dominico White won the cup for the Senior boys and Arthur Kingdon for the Junior boys.

The Mackenzie Cup for the mile race, presented by Dr. Mackenzie was won by Harry Nicholls.

Dr. Mackenzie paid a tribute to the entertainment and to the staff pupils of the High School for their record and at the growing success of his aim to bring closer unity between the two schools; this year an inter-school sports day was inaugurated and carried successfully through. Though The Grove may have beaten the High School in football, the High School went far ahead in the matriculation results, making a record which was quite remarkable in all Ontario. In closing, the speaker suggested the need of a home of its own for the High School as the capacity of the present accommodation is taxed at present.

Mr. Ridpath remarked that the Board has the ground but not the building.

Graduating Diplomas

The last item was an innovation and a very delightful one, the graduating class of 1931 and 1932 received their diplomas and the valedictory address was given by Douglas Smith.

J. F. Harvey, B.A., who presented the diplomas paid a tribute to the work of the pupils, who could not be better in academic and all round work.

The graduating class of 1931 consisted of Clayton Bullock, Roger Davis and Robert Spence.

The graduating class of 1932 was: Verna Moore, Pearl Walker, Lulu Smith, Ada Riel, Madeline Allen, Josephine White, Lilian Mason, Myla Bogue, Fred Hampton, Ralph Moore, Douglas Smith, Roy Dunford Margaret Cheyne.

Russell Elliott on behalf of the pupils read a brief address which expressed the appreciation of the pupils to Mr. Harvey for his help in their development, mentally, morally and physically and a gift was presented by Dominico White.

19 CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED

would be on the ballot sheet.

Others who it is said may be candidates are ex-Alderman Joseph Crowe and Alderman E. Melville Turner.

Veteran municipal officials prophesied that the crop of candidates would likely total close to a dozen by the time the count of those who have qualified is made to-night.

Nominations were:

Daniel J. Holland
George Benton
Maxwell R. Sloan
William A. Richardson
Joseph Henderson
Louis Yeates
John A. McNabb
James C. Ellis
Andrew Brown
Frederick O. Goodfellow
Joseph S. Bell
Walter J. Oke
James Hamilton
Joseph Crowe
Malcolm McIntyre
E. Melville Turner
Thomas E. Sargent
Dr. J. M. O'Brien
Dr. Ralph Honey

While there was a great deal of speech-making nominations passed off without even the slightest cracking of fire-works. One candidate did state that his main aim in standing for election was "to keep a wigwam over my head." Ex-Alderman Crowe made a characteristic speech and James Ellis quoted a little poetry.

The Council Chamber was filled by an interested audience which heard the addresses.

GEORGE BENTON, who is a native born citizen of Peterborough, announced his intention of allowing his nomination to stand. It was the first time he had ever come before the electors, he said, but as a result of requests from numerous ratepayers he had taken a deep interest in municipal affairs during the past year. If elected to the council he gave the promise "I will do whatever possible in the interests of the citizens at large, having consideration of the times and conditions through which we are passing."

MAX R. SLOAN announced his intention of running for office, stating that he had already announced his platform in The Examiner. It would be announced again, and he would stand back of it.

Mr. Sloan is a native born son of this city, being son of George Sloan, a resident of this city for the past 50 years, and has lived here all his life with exception of three years overseas with the 3rd Battalion.

ALDERMAN DAN HOLLAND would be a candidate for [illegible]tion. He said that if he had [illegible] value when elected twice previously, his value to the ratepayers should be greater now, in view of his experience on the Council. He said he was born here and that all his savings and interests are in the city. In view of his office and managing experience, he deemed that his services might be of some real benefit to the city.

JOSEPH HENDERSON said he was a large property owner in the city and he hoped to be able to save a "wigwam." "If elected I mean to strive for economy, and I don't mean maybe," he said.

JAMES C. ELLIS said it would be the third time he has stood for election. He said he was out to help the down-and-outs and the others would would be down and out if things didn't improve. "I can talk on municipal politics, but I'm not going to to-night," he said. "Come over and see me if you desire to talk city affairs."

JOSEPH S. BELL said he was a considerable taxpayer and since it was more difficult to pay taxes, he considered that he would stand for Council. "Things are getting so serious that everyone must give municipal affairs some keen thought," he said. He considered that a splendid slate had been drawn up. Economy, he said, would be his whole endeavor.

WALTER J. OKE said he would not be a candidate.

JOSEPH E. CROWE said he had come to the meeting to nominate a real candidate to the Council, and "he in turn nominated me, and that's how things stand," he said. He expressed pleasure at the interest shown and at the large number of young men that had come forward. He spoke of past days and the progress the city had made. "If you're short a candidate to-morrow night I may throw my hat in," he stated. He told the new candidates that they would prove just as good men as those now in the Council.

THOMAS E. SARGENT said he was pleased at the large turnout which proved the new and unusual interest in municipal politics. He spoke of the importance of relief expenditures and the curtailing of other forms of expense. He also expressed satisfaction with the number of young men who were coming forward as candidates. In view of the younger men he left that veterans like himself should stand back and let them see how they could conduct the city's business. He withdrew his candidature.

ALDERMAN J. McNABB in announcing his intention of seeking re-election, gave an account of his stewardship during the past year as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

When he was appointed chairman of that committee, he state, he accepted the position on the clear understanding that he would have a free hand to undertake certain changes which he considered were necessary for the proper administration of the Fire Department. Today Peterborough Fire Department was an organization of which the city might be justly proud.

During the recent visit to this city of Fire Marshall Heaton, Mr. McNabb said he had made the statement that Peterborough Fire Department was the finest organization of its kind in any city of the same size in the whole Dominion of Canada. There had been only three minor breaches of discipline among its members during the past year, stated Ald. McNabb.

Regarding the finances of the department, he remarked that with the co-operation of the fire chief, it had been found possible to lop over $3,000 off this year's estimates, and even at that the year had concluded within the budget.

Regarding the street lighting question, Alderman McNabb said that if the ratepayers were called upon by the local Utilities Commission to pay the disputed $4,000 additional charges, he would "fight to the last ditch." The charges were already too high, and anyway the local commission had no business in calling upon the ratepayers to pay the bill when the Hydro Commission had decided otherwise.

"As I again appeal to you for your support at the polls," he concluded, "I do so with the pledge that if elected I will follow a program of rigid economy consistent with efficient administration. I do not intend to make any rash promises. No man can foresee what the future holds."

ANDREW BROWN, in stating that he did not intend to allow his name to stand as a candidate, said that he withdrew in the assurance that there was a wonderful slate of candidates from which next year's council could be selected.

ALDERMAN JAMES HAMILTON with eight years' service on the Council to his credit, stated his intention of again running for office.

He spoke of his past record in the Council, stating that he had acted on various committees including the Board of Works, of which as chairman he had worked harder than any other man on the Council with possible exception of Aldermen Stocker, who "works night and day."

He agreed with the remarks of the previous candidates regarding the need for strict economy, stating "we are entering a period of lower wage standards."

MALCOLM McINTYRE, a former member of the City Council who was last year beaten in a run for the office of Mayor, while not definitely committing himself, stated that he would be willing to stand again on his past record of service.

DUMMER COUPLE 50 YEARS WED

of the remembrance of the Old Land."

Mrs. Wheeler was born at Cobourg, but moved into Dummer as a girl when her father, William Sneigrove, also a Wiltshire man, moved up beyond Warsaw to the very place she and her husband are occupying.

"I met my husband when he was a young man working for the farmers around here, and we were married by the Rev. Mr. Allen at the old Bible Christian church in Lakefield," Mrs. Wheeler said.

These kindly jubiliarians of Sunday were surprised that a newspaper should take the interest in their anniversary to drive out from Peterborough.

"You are not going to put all that in print about us," Mrs. Wheeler remarked, smiling and only mildly protesting. "We have been living here thirty-three years, and we like it here. We have splendid neighbors, and when some friends say they don't see how we can live so far from the city we can only tell them that we like to be here. There is a great deal of traffic past our house, especially in summer when so many cars go up to the lake and back. We have neighbors nearby, and it is quiet and pleasant."

Mr. Wheeler said that he had never been ill, and his wife that he had never taken any medicine. Warsaw seemed a busier village in the old days when it had a chair factory and sawmill.

"I still have several chairs that were made in the old factory," Mrs. Wheeler said.

They have one daughter, Mrs. Silas Harding of this city, but their only son, William H. Wheeler, died in July 1930 at the age of thirty-four. The shadow of that grief has not passed from them, but against this sorrow and on the brighter side of their matrimonial account has been the happiness of living as one without a quarrel.

The Wheeler home is about four miles north and east of Warsaw.

CHRISTMAS NOTHING

Albert, the colony prospered to such an extent that additional land was purchased at Brilliant, B.C., during the war, and eventually the larger part of the sect removed to the coast province.

While reports to the registrar of joint stock companies in British Columbia show the sect numbers but 5,300, authorities place the total population in Canada at nearly 20,000, with 12,000 in British Columbia. These are divided, however, into three branches, 12,000 orthodox Doukhobors who recognize Peter Verigin, son of the original leader, as their head; 7,000 independents and 750 members of the Sons of Freedom, classed as recalcitrants. It is this latter group that has given the law officers of the Dominion so much trouble in participating in nude parades.

The group at Piers Island range in age from 17 to 80 . There are, also, probably 100 children placed in homes in Victoria, New Westminster, and Vancouver.

Plenty of Water, Wood.

Piers Island, about 250 acres in extent, with plenty of pure water and fir timber available, lies about one mile off the mainland of Vancouver Island, near Sidney, about 20 miles from Victoria. Being Federal prisoners, a mild form of penitentiary discipline is enforced, and no visitors are permitted to land at any part of the island without written permission of the authorities.

Two large single-storey dormitories, H-shaped, house the nudists. They are more than 300 feet apart and separated by a wire enclosure wherein exercise is taken by the inmates. At each end of the dormitories are a kitchen and infirmary. The buildings are constructed of dressed lumber. There is plenty of light and ventilation. Each section has its own community kitchen and cooks. The buildings are lighted by lamps and heated by stoves, the younger men cutting firewood, while their elders are permitted to remain idle.

There is no difficulty in arousing them. They are up early and retire early. There are no beds, each dormitory having two-tier bunks with warm blankets ensuring comfort as the climate is quite mild.

Diamonds, when placed in pure oxygen, will burn at a temperature of 850 degrees Centigrade.

About $400,000,00 worth of gold is produced each year.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FROM THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

Christmas is very much in evidence this year in Campbellford. There seems to be more private Christmas tree illuminations than ever before. One of the most outstanding of these is the decoration of Ernest Collard, whose house is situated on the hill overlooking the town. As ever, Mr. Collard has gaily decorated the front of his house with electric lights which at night can be seen from a great distance and adds that touch of season's cheer which makes the happy holiday spirit.

Old Man Weather is again playing tricks on hockey fans. A steady rain all Friday following two soft days made ice impossible for the clash last evening between the Maroons and the Petes.

Mr. and Mrs. James MacMullen had as their guests on Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Eileen and Ormel of Mount Pleasant.

Mr. G. A. Ironside was a business visitor to Peterborough on Friday.

Many students are now home for the Christmas vacation, including Miss Dorothy Henson of Victoria College, Toronto; Mr. Maynard Watson of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto; and Miss Ruby Townsend of Victoria College, Toronto.

KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR

HASTINGS, Dec. 29. (Examiner Correspondence). —While crossing Bridge at the Royal Hotel corner, Mrs. Thomas Kirk was knocked down by a car driven by Mr. R. Walsh, local driver, Mr. Walsh was backing up from the Beavis store when the accident happened. Mrs. Kirk was accompanied by her two children who fortunately escaped serious injury. When inquiring at the injured lady's home The Examiner was informed that at the present time the extent of Mrs. Kirk's injuries are not known.

A KEEN FIGHT ASSURED.

One of the most interesting features of the coming municipal elections will be the four-cornered battle for one vacancy on the Utilities Commission.

This contest finds E. R. Shirley, electrical engineer and member of the commission for the past six years, attempting to retain his position against a trio of new aspirants for the office, E. G. Patterson, former works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, E. B. Fowler and John J. McCabe.

Two of these aspirants are by no means unknown to public life, both Mr. Patterson and Mr. Fowler have given good service as members for some time of the Board of Education. Mr. McCabe, while new in the arena of municipal politics, is a life-time resident, a former lacrosse star and a citizen with a large circle of friends.

In short, the contest shapes up as a wide-open affair in which anything can happen, for when four men, all of them highly respected and all widely known, enter into a political battle of this nature, the trend of popular favor is sometimes very difficult to predict and may often take an unexpected turn.

This Utilities fight will make an important contribution to the excitement of the municipal election.

CHRISTMAS.

Once again we are on the eve of the festival of Christmas, the most gladsome and significant anniversary of the year.

It comes on this occasion with the world still suffering from the effects of an economic dislocation, with many people destitute and with a general sense of insecurity prevailing, and yet all these distressing conditions fail to check the joy of the Christmas time and serve but to increase the spirit of good-will that in inherent in mankind.

One writer has said that the ageless genius of Jesus inheres in the fact that he symbolizes the supremacy of spiritual values in the midst of material enterprises and material possessions.

It would seem that on this occasion there is more than the usual need to listen once again to the voice of the Prophet out of Nazarene as He stresses the danger of letting things material obscure things spiritual.

To again quote from the same writer, Glenn Frank, "this Christmas as of the Great Depression is a call to a new venture in political, social and economic statesmanship, a venture in which we shall test every policy and every process of politics, business, industry, finance, education and kindred basic human enterprises, by the contribution it makes to the maintenance of spiritual values and the satisfaction of human needs."

On this anniversary of the birth of our Saviour it is more than ever essential to put first things first.

AN IMPORTANT POINT.

There is one angle to the request of the De Laval Company and the Raybestos Company for a fixed assessment for the next ten years that strikes The Examiner as being of great importance.

By reason of the Imperial Conference, trade pacts and the action of the British Government in imposing tariff on many commodities, there will undoubtedly be an influx of American companies into Canada as soon as the business skies clear.

Under the laws of Ontario, municipalities are limited in the concessions they can offer to industries seeking sites, practically the only legal concession being the granting of a fixed assessment.

Naturally this limitation puts the municipalities of the province under a handicap when competing with industrial centres elsewhere in Canada in the securing of new industries.

Under these conditions it would be folly for an Ontario municipality to further handicap itself by acquiring a reputation among industrial executives of not playing fair with its own manufacturing plants.

For example, the turning down of the two companies' request at this time would most injuriously affect this city's chance of securing more factories.

Once the news went round that an industry like the De Laval, for example, which had contributed millions of dollars in wages and lived up to all its promises, had been rewarded by having its application for a modest concession rejected, heads of other industries seeking locations would immediately cross Peterborough off their list of prospective sites.

In short, the setting up of the idea that Peterborough was willing to give generous treatment to secure additional factories, but had no hesitation in giving shabby treatment to such industries once they were landed, would be absolutely fatal to this city's industrial growth.

Keen competition for new industrial plants is certain, and Peterborough must see to it that her hitherto sound reputation for square dealing with industries is maintained.

Endorsation of the by-laws is an essential step in that direction.

Another point should be kept in mind.

These by-laws do not mean, as some people seem to think, more taxation for the public to carry. On the contrary, they involve a measure of taxation relief inasmuch as the De Laval Company will henceforth pay taxes on $10,000 and the Raybestos on $15,000 more assessment than they do now and will therefore be heavier taxpayers under the new arrangement.

NO TIME TO DROP THE PILOT.

With one year of his term in the Council still to serve, Ald. Fred. Tuggey, without resigning from his present position, has seen fit to contest the mayoralty against Mayor Roland Denne, Peterborough's chief magistrate for the last five years.

The Examiner believes that the majority of the people will feel that the present is a very doubtful time to talk about dropping the pilot.

These are indeed troublesome days with all governments, and it would be a most dangerous experiment for Peterborough to discard under the existing circumstances a municipal leader who throughout six years has shown admirable qualities of leadership, and who in season and out toiled long and faithfully in the public interest.

The Examiner has not always seen eye to eye with Mayor Denne; with some of his decisions on public issues we have disagreed, but despite that fact we believe that he has given this community five years of excellent service as mayor, and we would regret most deeply the loss of his ability and experience at a time when they are most urgently needed.

It is Ald. Tuggey's privilege to enter the mayoralty contest, just as it is his privilege to retain his seat in the Council and still be a candidate for mayor, but the wisdom of his decision on both these points is likely to be questioned.

There are things about Ald. Tuggey that The Examiner respects, among them his willingness to take the unpopular side of a question when that side represents his sincere convictions, but we do not believe that his election as mayor would contribute in the least to better conditions locally or to a stronger municipal government; more than that, his success at the polls would mean a heavy loss in the disappearance from the Council of a capable, experienced, hard-working mayor whose love for and interest in his home city have been demonstrated on innumerable occasions.

A Tuggey victory would, of course, involve such a loss; on the other hand, a Tuggey defeat would leave Mr. Tuggey still a member of the Council for another year, inasmuch as he has declined to put his fortune to the touch by risking everything on the mayoralty contest.

When economic storms are raging and the ship of state is in distress it pays to have an experienced pilot at the helm, and that, The Examiner believes, will be the opinion of the majority of electors.

IN PROPORTION.

Britain paid her debt instalment to the United States on the due date, but Britain has no intention of reverting to the debt arrangement in force before the Hoover moratorium of last year. Also, Britain is prepared to okay complete remission of the debts owed her if there is a corresponding remission by the United States.

* * * *

These points were made by Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain in explaining the situation to the House of Commons. They are important. They show that a new arrangement is vitally necessary. The payment to Washington leaves the British budget with a deficit of £29,500,000, which will be met by recourse to treasury bills and partly by sinking fund. Mr. Chamberlain warns, however, that such a device can be used only once. Any further payment will have to be taken out of current revenue and "the taxation in this country is sufficient to prevent us from acquiescing in the payment of inter-governmental debts which leave us with a liability over that which we receive."

This is putting the situation pointedly. We take it to mean that Britain, henceforth, will pay the United States, or be prepared to pay, in exact proportion to the amounts she receives from the nations owing her. Everyone knows that taxation in the Old Land is almost equivalent to confiscation. How, then, can John Bull be expected to impose still higher levies to pay war debts in excess of the return from war debts owing him? That is why Mr. Chamberlain's statement is so reasonable.

* * * *

It is hoped that before another instalment comes due, some entirely new arrangement will have been made. In this connection we note that Colonel E. M. House, who used to be President Wilson's right hand man in the business of diplomacy, has written an article for the January issue of "Foreign Affairs" in which he confirms an earlier announcement that President-elect Roosevelt plans an international conference on tariff reduction, a conference, the colonel holds, which may prove "a turning point in world history."

In his acceptance speech in Chicago last June, Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he had such an idea in mind. We are glad to know that it has not been forgotten in the rush of events.

There is need for a meeting of this kind, even if, on the face of it, the difficulty of concrete accomplishment seems to be great. Certainly one finds it hard to see how the present situation can continue forever. The nations are simply cutting one another's throats in a trade way, while, at home, the populations stand in idleness. Mr. Roosevelt, Colonel House points out in his magazine article, has already indicated that Uncle Sam can only expect payment of the war debts "if we permit imports by lower tariffs."

* * * *

The Roosevelt plan to "liquidate the war" will be awaited with keen interest. A world torn by manifold problems, is looking for a Moses to lead it out of the woods. If the new President of the United States is able to produce in this direction, all mankind will rise up and call him blessed.—Border Cities Star

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Examiner's best wishes for a merry Christmas are extended to the whole community.

The municipal pot was slow to come to the boil, but apparently it is going to make up for it now.

Reeve John McIntosh of North Monaghan, who has served twelve terms in that capacity, goes back for another. The apple of the North Monaghan voter's eye is apparently a McIntosh.

Four candidates are in the race for the Utilities Commission, and it will probably develop into a memorable contest.

With a contest in every field and two by-laws to vote on Peterborough electors will have every reason to turn out on New Year's Day.

It's no wonder Al Capone thinks he should be out of jail if he reads about the kind of people who are.—Montreal Star.

Quotations For To-Day

The sublime and ridiculous are often so nearly related that it is difficult to class them separately. One step below the sublime makes the ridiculous, and one step above the ridiculous makes the sublime again.

By MARSHALL MASLIN

FROM A MOTHER TO A DAUGHTER

IN PRECOTT'S old book that tells of the conquest of Mexico by the man Cortez you will find, if you look, the "advice of an Aztec mother to her daughter." And as you read it, it may occur to you that the world has changed slightly in 400 years, that it changed but little, until lately. She worshipped bloody gods, that Aztec mother; she believed in a religion that required human sacrifice; but the details of her motherly instruction were essentially what a mother might have told her daughter 50 or 60 years ago in this country or in England.

She called her "my beloved daughter, very dear little dove." She reminded her that she had borne her in her own body, placed her into her cradle, with her own milk had nursed her. Therefore:

"See that you receive our words and treasure them in your breast. Take care that your garments are such as are decent and proper.... When you speak do not hurry your words from uneasiness, but speak deliberately and calmly....Neither mince when you speak, nor when salute, nor speak through your nose....Do not be nice in the choice of your words. In walking, my daughter, see that you behave becomingly, neither going with haste, nor too slowly; since it is an evidence of being puffed up to talk too slowly, and walking hastily causes a vicious habit of restlessness and instability....And when you may be obliged to jump over a pool of water, do with decency, that you may neither appear clumsy nor light....Walk erect, with your head slightly inclined,....nor, on your way, make fantastic movements with your feet....When you are in the street, do not go looking hither and thither, nor turning your head to look at this or that.

"See likewise, my daughter, that you never paint your face, or stain it, or your lips with colors in order to appear well, since this is a mark of vile and unchaste women .... When it shall please God that you receive a husband and you are placed under his authority, be free from arrogance, see that you do not neglect him, nor allow your heart to be in opposition to him.. ..Hear his allegory, which I shall now tell you, and preserve it, and take from it a warning and example for living aright. Here, in this world, we travel by a very narrow steep and dangerous road, which is as a lofty mountain ridge, on whose top passes a narrow path; on either side is a great gulf without bottom, and, if you deviate from the path, you will fall into it. There is need, therefore, of much discretion in pursuing the road....My dear daughter, whom I tenderly love, see that you live in the world in peace, tranquility, and contentment, all the days that you live. See that you disgrace not yourself, that you stain not your honor, nor pollute the luster and fame of your ancestors."

And, I suppose, the Aztec maid who was given this advice from her mother, whispered to her friends: "Mother is SO old-fashioned and sentimental. I guess I can take care of myself."

SOMETHING TO EXPLAIN

Dear Sir:—

In regard to the prices the consumer has to pay for his goods, it is ridiculous. Coal is landed in Montreal for five dollars a ton and retailed at fifteen dollars a ton. Wheat is bought for thirty-four cents a bushel and bread is selling at seven and nine cents.

I have seen the time when wheat brought one dollar and better and bread sold for five and then take hides: seventy-five cents for a cow hide and shoes four and five dollars a pair.

Now I think there is room for a Government investigation on this matter and a lot more as there is a negro in the fence some place.

Yours truly,
Citizen.

AN UNWISE RESTRICTION.

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—I understand that the Charity Board has made a rule that anyone receiving relief is barred from attending places of amusement. There is no doubt that abuses have occurred which prompted this move, but, in the opinion of the writer, the measure is a little too drastic.

Children are not debarred from their playgrounds. The City has provided places of recreation for them and rightly so. Why then should the poor housewife whose nerves are frayed by an incessant round of duties and worries and the importunities of a houseful of children, not have a little recreation, say once a week, to brighten her rather drab horizon?

Man or woman does not live by bread alone and something more than the mere necessities of life is necessary to maintain the morale of our poor people in these trying times.

"Citizen."

ASLEEP AT THE SWITCH

To The Editor of The Examiner:

A news item in your paper the other day was headed "Reeve Tanner on the job."

I feel you should have named it "Asleep at the switch.' Last summer Mr. Tanner was reported as having referred to certain resolutions which were presented by our farmer delegation as, "Barnyard resolutions."

The foreman of the jury being a farmer, no doubt Mr. Tanner again felt that his dignity had been hurt. "What a cruel world."

While no doubt it is the duty of our Grand Juries to inspect and report to the court the condition of the buildings, yet we ratepayers feel it is the duty of our representatives to awaken to their responsibilities and not allow such things to have to be reported as was the case by Mr. Brethen as foreman of the jury. And now when the taxpayers were making representations to have the Grand Jury dispensed with, we find one that has proved itself efficient, and that it has given to the county a service that may have saved what might have been a tragedy.

Possibly we might well ask ourselves if it might not be wise to extend the Grand Jury's duties farther. They might have warned the chairman of finance a few years ago and saved the council of that day piling up a deficit of something like thirty-seven thousand dollars, twenty-three thousand of which is supposed to be on our tax bills in a year such as this.

Yes, Mr. Editor there may be other chairmen "both in the past and present," whom a foreman such as Mr. Brethen might arouse to his duties.

Anxious Ratepayer.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A CHRISTMAS EVE OF PEACE

ON THIS DATE, in 1813 was signed the treaty of Ghent which ended the war declared by the United States against Great Britain. Not that that meant peace in Canada. There were no cables or wireless to send the news and it was not until February that the opposing forces were notified that the war was ended. It had been a trying time for Lower and Upper Canada (the latter especially) but the character of the people, especially in Upper Canada, was strengthened from a national point of view by the severe strain to which it was subjected. Men and women alike were elevated above the conditions of a mere colonial life and the struggle for purely material necessities and became animated by that spirit of self-sacrifice and patriotic endeavor which tends to make a people truly great. Canada has every reason to be proud of its record in that war. Twelve distinct invasions by superior forces of the enemy were defeated and the invaders driven out of the country, making it a victorious war for us.

Another Christmas eve of high importance was that of 1866. That evening as the great bell of Big Ben was striking the hour of 7, the delegates from Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick put the finishing touches to the draft of the act of union and then made their way as best they could in a dense fog from the Westminster Palace Hotel to their various lodgings in old London. It was on that day that Leonard Tilley had his vision and submitted the name "Dominion" for the new Canada, instead of the "Kindom" which John A. had proposed. The great New Brunswicker found his inspiration in the Psalm which spoke of "dominion from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth." What a prophecy of the Dominion of Canada!

BETWEEN BOOK ENDS

GOD'S ANGRY MAN" by Leonard Erhlich, 1932.

"God's Angry Men" is a fiery novel of the days precipitating the American Civil War. Mr. Erhlich takes for his hero the indomitable John Brown; presenting a study which is soundly based on biography. Indeed the whole story "moves scrupulously within a frame of historial fact." Brown and his whole extraordinary clan come to life in these pages; the dead, the living, the mad, the ancestors, the children of wrath and flame. It is a packed book, ful of character and incident, full of vividness and excitement. But over it lies the long shadow of that iron personality, John Brown. The story begins in Kansas at the time of the Pottawatomic massacres and hews a fairly straight path through to the end, occasionally cutting back to earlier events, but running a doomed and fateful stream.

The prose of the novel is vivid and rhythmic. Wal Whitman has set his seal on the author and passages in "Deep in the Remembering Blood," "Though Faint, Yet Pursuing" and "O! to Struggle" show it. Despite a few moments of obscurity, this is a remarkable and able first novel. It's author is someone to watch.

Apropos to the publishing of Theodore Dreiser's third autobiographical volume, "The Stoic,' we confess that we have attempted four or five of his books but never had sufficient perseverence to see them through. Life is too short—and frequently sweet—for one thing. People who sympathize with our difficulties tell us that we should try his earlier books, "Sister Carie" and "Jennie Gerhardt"; that these were really pretty good. If they were, he should have stopped with them. As Don Marquis has said, "Many of his enthusiastic admirers tell me that while they admit he can't write, he has something tremendous to say, and represent him as a great clumsy gigantic genius, who in spite of his clumbsiness, manages to get this something said. I don't find what he has to say worth what his sufferings must have been in getting it written and my sufferings in getting it read. All I can get out of his books is a sense of a vast accumulation of commonplaces, dully presented." There are critics who claim that Posterity will cherish Dreiser's works as truly balanced presentations of our age. We can imagine only one more unfortunate thing—to be judged by the words of our popular song hits.

Yearly, these festive days send many bookmen to their copies of Charles Dicken's "Christmas Carol", "The Chimes", "The Cricket on the Hearth", and "The Pickwick Papers." But may we quote a private madness—which pleaseth us mightily—listen—

Dec. 24, 1667 (Christmas Eve) By coach to St. James, it being about six at night; my design being to see the ceremonys, this night being the eve of Christmas, the Queen's Chapel. I got in almost up to the rail and with a great deal of patience staid from nine at night to two in the morning in a very great crowd; and there expected but found nothing extraordinary, there being nothing but a High Mass. The Queen was there and some high ladies. All being done, I was sorry for my coming and missing of what I expected, which was, to have a child born and dressed there and with a great deal of do; but we broke up and nothing like it done. And there I left people receiving the Sacrament; and the Queen gone and the ladies; only my Lady Castlemaine, who looks prettily in her night-clothes. And so took my coach which waited; and drank some burnt wine at the Rose Tavern door while the constables came, and two or three bellmen went by, it being a fine moonshine morning; and so home round the City, and stopped and dropped money at five or six places which I was the willinger to do, it being Christmas day, and so home and there find my wife in bed and Jane and the maid making pyes. So I to bed.

Dec. 25, (Christmas Day) Lay pretty long in bed and then rose, leaving my wife desirous to sleep, having sat up till 4 this morning, seeing her maids making mincepies. I to church, where our Parson Mills made a good sermon. Then home, and dined well on some good ribbs of beef roasted, and mincepies, only my wife, brother, and Barker, and plenty of good wine of my own, and my heart full of true joy; and thanks to God Almighty for the goodness of my condition this day. — From Samuel Pepy's Diary. —G. BANK OF COMMERCE MAINTAINS STRONG LIQUID POSITION AS SHOWN IN ANNUAL STATEMENT

Dividends For Year Ending November 30th Total $3,300,000.

DECLINE IN DEPOSITS.

TORONTO, Dec. 24 (C.P.)—After payment of all dividends for the year and providing for bad or doubtful debts, the Canadian Bank of Commerce wa sable to carry forward to the credit of profit and loss account, $519,499.76, the bank's annual statement for the year ending November 30, last reevals. Dividens for the year totalled $3,300,000, the rate having been cut from 12 to 10 percent for the last half of the year.

Profits for the year totalled $4,279,424 added to an amount carried forward of $855,683, the statement revealed. These were distributed among dividends, $3,300,000; taxes $550,000; donations and subscriptions $40,000; pensions $255,607; and written off bank premises $150,000, leaving the net balance of $519,500.

The statement revealed the bank continued to maintain a strong liquid position, it was said in an accompanying summary. Total liquid assets were more than 58 percent of the total liabilities to the public, an improvement over the preceding year.

Liabilities include $6,936 in unpaid dividends and the $750,000 applied to Dividend No. 183 of December 1.

Total deposits during the year showed a decline of less than seven percent in spite of large bond issues by various governments, and stand at $469,457,000, the statement showed.

Non-interest bearing or commercial deposits showed the greatest decrease, while interest-bearing deposits were slightly higher, and bank deposits about 26 percent below the end of the preceding year.

Outstanding items among the assets are total gold and silver coin amounting to $25,521,000, Dominion notes amounting to $36,940,000 and foreign currencies, notes of and cheques on other banks and balances due by banks amounting to $42,070,000. Security holdings have risen from $130,388,000 to $138,458,000. Call and short loans in Canada have declined by $9,486,203 to $313,195,965, and those elsewhere by $5,772,774 to $38,612,400. These sums, together with the government deposit for the purpose of the circulation fund, make up total quick assets of $314,047,685.

New Dan'l Boone

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 24 (CP) —Minus the coon-tail cap, the flink lock rifle and the rock salt with which Old Dan'l Boone, the famous trapper, was wont to invade the wilds, a new Dan'l has come to the fore.

He is James (Sandy) Sandiland, Majordomo of the Town Hall here. In two days Sandy has trapped 40 mice in the town hall, and while the fur from his efforts isn't much, it's a proud record.

Sandy was born within sound of Bow bells, and prefers tea, marmalade and bloaters to rock salt and venison.

MODERN FAGAN IS DISCOVERED

Mother of 12 Year Girl is Arrested—Tells of Daughter's Theft.

PAIR TOURED PROVINCE.

HAMILTON, Dec. 24 (C.P.)—The story of a modern Fagan was unfolded in Police Court to-day when Mrs. Eda Evans, Toronto, appeared on a charge of stealing about $45, the property of some person or persons at present unknown.

The accused elected to be tried summarily and pleaded guilty. She was remanded for sentence until next Friday.

The story told by Constable Preston was that local police officers were called to a downtown store yesterday where a 12-year-old girl was held on suspicion of stealing money from customers' purses. After going to the store, the officers went to an hotel where the mother of the child was picked up and taken to the police station.

She told the officers that the little girl had been sent to the Ontario Hospital at Orillia following a series of thefts. When the youngster was discharged from the hospital, the thefts continued, until one day she came home with $17.

On this occasion, said Constable Preston, the father of the child thought that this was a much easier way of making a living than driving a milk wagon, which was his occupation. He quit his job and remained at home to look after the other children, while the mother and daughter commenced a tour of the province, commencing at Montreal. Trips were made to Ottawa, Kingston, London, Kitchener, Stratford and Hamilton. The proceeds of the robberies were sent to the father after expenses had been deducted, according to the officer.

The mode of operations used by the child is said to be that she entered wash rooms and retiring rooms in stores and removed money from purses.

Veteran Politician New Head Of Chile

(By H. P. Braham, A.P. Correspondent)

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 24 (A.P.) —Arturo Alessandri, 64-year-old veteran Leftist politician, became president of Chile to-day for the second time in 12 years.

The inauguration late this afternoon before a joint session of Congress was to be followed by a State procession to Moneda Palace, the Presidential residence, for a reception this evening.

The new President was elected October 30 by an overwhelming majority over four other candidates for a full six year term, to succeed the republic's last constitutional President, Juan E. Montero, whose administration was overthrown by a Socialist-Military revolt June 4, and who was elected for a similar term a year ago. (Senor Alessandri actually is the sixth President of Chile in seven months).

Queensboro Couple Are 53 Years Wed

QUEENSBORO, Dec. 24. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— Mr. and Mrs. John Moore are celebrating the 53rd anniversary of their marriage on Sunday. They were married on Christmas Day, 1879, by Rev. Henry McDowell, Methodist minister at Fraserville, where Mr. and Mrs. Moore lived until 1903, when they moved to Queensboro. Mr. Moore was born in Peterborough county, near Lakefield, and Mrs. Moore who was Celia Young before her marriage, was born in Madoc township.

There are four sons and one daughter living, also twenty-four grandchildren. William Frederick and Albert Newton at Sulphide, Archie Purcevil, Walter Scott and Mrs. William Caniff, of Madoc township. One son Harry and one daughter Tille are dead. Mrs. Charles McCaw of Niagara Falls is a sister to Mrs. Moore.

INDIAN PARLEY DRAWN TO CLOSE

Native Princes Ceremonially Garbed Make Scene Colorful One.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(A.P.)—After more than four weeks of arduous work grappling with complex problems in building a constitution for India, the third Indian round table conference ended to-day with a plenary session at which a large measure of success was announced.

The session took place with Lord Sankey, the Lord Chahcellor, in the chair and Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for India, delivering the closing address in behalf of the government and outlining the outcome of the conference.

The scene was a colorful one with the representatives of the Indian princes ceremonially turbaned comprising a striking group as they faced the spokesmen of the Sikhs, Parsees, depressed classes and Moslems, the head of whose community, the Aga Khan, has been one of the conference's hardest working members.

The conference ended with agreements reached on a large number of points, notably in the solution of the franchise problem, although there remained division of opinion on others, notably certain aspects of finance and the distribution of the governmental powers.

The conference was heralded as successful as a whole, however inasmuch as in addition to definite accomplishments it brought out a large volume of representative opinion for the guidance of the government whose detailed proposals will now be embodied in a white paper.

Grain Review

CHICAGO GRAIN EXCHANGE.

(By John P. Bouchan, Associated Press Market Editor.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 24. — (A.P.) — Corn, the United States' most valuable grain, is giving some notable signs of a revival of speculative interest. One of the reasons put forward is that rural offerings of corn have dried up almost completely, and that corn shipping demand here has suddenly become active, with the market cash basis strong.

So far, however, rural holding back of supplies had had little effect on prices of corn future deliveries. Compared with a week ago, corn futures this morning were off about as much as wheat, corn showing ⅞-1¾ decline and wheat a setback of 1½-2⅛, with oats ⅛ down to ⅛-¼ up, and provisions varying from 32 cents lower to a rise of 17 cents.

On the other hand, export buying of corn has failed to develop as yet to any large degree: This is associated with advices that heavy shipments from Danubian countries have been re-enforcing Argentina's outflow of corn to European importing countries.

Brisk milling demand for wheat in the United States reflects dearth of country sales of wheat as well as of corn. Shippers and cereal manufacturers absorb arrivals of oats.

Irregular actions of the hog market are mirrored in provisions.

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24 (C.P.) — Wheat traders prepared for the holiday to-day after a week of upward prices, and stocks were reported to be held in strong hands, the weak holders were out of the pit following the drastic break of December 16 when values tumbled to 38 cents per bushel.

To-day values were 3¼ cents above the record low and showed net gains for the week of 1c to 1⅞ cents. At the close Friday, the December future was quoted at 41¼; May 43⅛ to ¼, and July 44¼ cents.

Export trade has not broadened sufficiently to be a factor in the climb, but the slack has disappeared from the market with the great bulk of Canadian supplies now held by elevator interest and the government stabilization agency. Farmers are hauling wheat to market in very limited quantities to-day.

Trade at Atlantic ports has slowed up, following closing of Montreal port but at Vancouver activity continues. A big winter's trade is predicted for the Pacific port.

Coarse grain markets showed little activity during the past week and prices drifted within a narrow range. A little domestic business in oats and barley is noted but the export demand is dull.

Cash wheat markets are firm with the grain in strong hands. No. 1 Northern is trading at the December price while No. 2 Northern is 1¾ cents less and No. 3 Northern 4⅞ cents under the No. 1 grade.

VETERANS PROTEST

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 24.—(CP) —Protest against a proposal to employ soldier pensioners on civil service work and deduct from their salaries the amount of their pension was voiced at a meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Pensioners' Association. A formal resolution is being forwarded to the Dominion command of association.

INJURED IN CRASH.

SIMCOE, Ont., Dec. 24 (C.P.).—Mrs. D. Irvin Little, Detroit, is in hospital suffering from injuries received when the automobile in which she was riding turned over and skidded into a ditch near here to-day. The car was driven by Mrs. Marion Marks, sister of Mrs. Little. The injured woman's husband was also in the machine.

Point of View

LONDON, December 24 (C. P.). — Drunk or sober, much depends on the point of view.

Dr. Cyril Burt, Professor of Psychology in London University, told how a nurse was offered a mixture which included cayenne pepper but no alcohol, and was told it was whisky. Drinking it, she showed all the signs of intoxication.

The same nurse later was given a fairly heavy drink of alcohol disguised as a non-intoxicant. She carried on bravely without a blink or a stagger.

Rescuers resumed pumping air through, in the hope that some of it might reach the miners, but were unable to learn whether they were successful.

Granny 101 Misses Christmas Festivity

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 24 (C.P.)— Christmas festivities at the home for the friendless this year will lack the central figure of the past nine years. For Granny Williams, 101 born on Armistice Day, 1830, is in hospital and her birthday celebration must take place there.

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, generally known as "Granny," became a resident of the institution in 1923. In 1924 she was stricken with blindness but this only added to her appreciation of what others do for her and made her more than ever a friend to all.

Nine Christmas and birthday joint celebrations have found her the life of the party, but injuries suffered recently sent her to hospital and it is not likely she will return.

Prince Uses Plane To Join Royal Party

LONDON, December 24 (C.P. Cable). — The Prince of Wales flew from Windsor to Sandringham today to join Their Majesties and other members of the Royal Family for the Christmas holiday. Prince George will be the only absentee from the re-union, being held captive at York House by a severe cold. The Duchess of York is travelling to Sandrinkham to-day, her children having gone with Their Majesties on Thursday.

There had been a possibility of the Prince of Wales having to remain with his brother at York House, but he left his private lodge at Sunningdale, near Windsor, just before noon to-day by plane.

Their Majesties invariably spend Christmas quietly with their children. To-day they will attend the distribution of Christmas gifts ot the tenants on the estate, and tomorrow will be present for the morning service of the Sandringham Church.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

TORONTO, Dec. 24.—(CP)—The following wholesale prices on fruits and vegetables were supplied by White and Co., today: Domestic fruits—MacIntosh Reds, No. 1, per bushel $1.50 to $1.75; MacIntosh Reds, No. 2, per bushel 75c to $1.00; Spies, No. 1, per bushel $1.00 to $1.10; Spies, No. 2, per bushel 50c to 75c; Imported fruits—Texas Grapefruit, per case $5.00 to $5.25; California oranges, per case $4.25, $4.75; Domestic vegetables—Beets, 11 qt. basket 15c; carrots 11 qt. basket 15c; green onions, per doz. 20c; cabbage, per doz, 25c; hothouse tomatoes, per lb. 15c to 16c; brussel sprouts, per qt. box 8c to 10c.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA LEADS.

ADELAIDE, Australia, Dec. 24. — (C.P. Cable).—South Australia took the lead over Queensland to-day in a Sheffield Shield cricket match when they scored 352 in their first innings. Queensland had scored 134 in their first innings and continued on to-day to knock up 101 for six wickets.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)— Foreign exchange steady. Great Britain in dollars, others in cents, Great Britain demand 3.32 7-8; France 3.90¼; Italy 5.11½; Belgium 13.84½; Germany 23.83½; Montreal 87.62½.

After the leaves fall from rose bushes in the autumn, says the Ohio State University, it is well to rake up and burn the leaves, thus preventing mildew and black spot from being harbored all winter in the fallen leaves.

Coming and Going

POMEROY, O., Dec. 24 (C.P.) —Horton Brown catches them coming and going.

For four years, as Probate Court Deputy, he issued some 500 marriage licenses.

On January 1 he will switch over to the clerk of court's office, and in this post he will hand out divorce papers.

SKATERS DROWN AS ICE BREAKS

Over 30 Children Are Hurled Into Harlem River—At Least One Dead.

FOUR IN HOSPITAL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—At least one boy was drowned and a boy and a man were rescued today in an inlet of the Harlem river ship canal at the northernmost tip of Manhattan when the ice broke under them.

Two policemen and two civilians who joined in the rescue work were soaked to the skin and had to be taken to a hospital.

The tragedy occurred in a strip of ice-covered water north of Inwood Hill Park. About 30 children were reported to have been sliding and skating on the inlet when the ice gave way, tumbling them into the water. Many of the children scrambled to safety and aided in pulling their companions out.

SCHOOL BOARD ACCLAMATION

number an even dozen before 9 o'clock to-night, the time for qualifying, had passed.

Those who have qualified are: Joseph E .Bell, George Benton, Fred O. Goodfellow, Alderman James Hamilton, Joseph Henderson, Malcolm McIntyre, Alderman J. A. McNabb, Max R. Sloane, Dr. J M. O'Brien, Alderman Dan Holland will be sure to qualify, and it is expected that there will be others.

J. E. Smith told The Examiner that he would not be a candidate for the Board of Education. "Since no one else has qualified except the old four, I am not going to qualify," he said. This adds to the probability of an acclamation for the Board.

Twin Ewes Produce 33 Lambs In 8 Years

Twin ewes owned by C. E. Moore and Sons, of Smith Township, have produced thirty-three lambs in eight years, a record in fecundity which the owners believe may successfully challenge comparison throughout the county.

These twins are ten years old, and are grade Leicester-Suffolks. By way of repetition it should be noted that they are themselves twins. One of them has borne twins seven times and triplets once, and the other ewe has had six sets of twins, one of triplets and a single lamb. Thirty-one of their progeny lived their allotted span, whatever that may be for the average grade sheep, and two were lost by accident. Sheep breeders will especially appreciate this productiveness, and possibly some one has had twin ewes that surpass it.

TORONTO CHEESE.

TORONTO, Dec. 24. —(C.P.) — The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day with dealers buying large, colored paraffined and government grades at 9¾c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the folowing prices: New large 11c; twins 11¼c; triplets 11¼c; old, large 17½c; twins 17¾c; triplets 18c.; medium, large, 15c; twins 15¼c; triplets 15c.

EXCHANGE RATES

Exchange rates at the close today were: Pound sterling in Montreal 3.79¼, U. S. Dollar in Montreal 1.14. Pound sterling in New York 3.32 7-8. Canadian dollar in New York 87¾.

Plenty Of Fowl On Local Market

This morning's market was not quite as large as that of Wednesday, but there were countless numbers of fowl on sale.

Turkeys were 15 to 18 cents a pound; ducks 15 cents; geese 15 and chickens 12 to 15 cents a pound.

Potatoes were 60 cents a bag; pork 5 to 7 and 6 to 8 cents a pound, at different stalls; eggs were 30 to 38 cents a dozen; butter 23 to 25 cents a pound, cream 25 cents a pint.

Rabbits were 25 cents apiece, and canaries were offered at $5 each.

The Golden Text

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life. —John 3:16.

There is But One Rightful Monarch Where Has He Been Crowned King?

By H. W. L. MAHOOD.

SURELY at Christmas tide there ought to be many signs of His coming to the throne. Amazing it is that the evidence of His arrival are so hard to discern. Even Christmas church services give impression of entertainment and program rather than of worship due the great King. Listen to the common comment: "Didn't the choir sing well? His solo was excellent. The organ recital was in good taste. The carols sung by the soprano soloist were very fitting. The crowd was large." Beyond this but little comment was made by the listeners. Thus congregations met, heard the recitals of the most sacred carols, and anthems, and chants, and dispersed. All this is only the trappings, the clothes, the outside of Christmas church services. Wherein the worship? People do not come to this King to be entertained. He waits to be worshipped. Coming to Him we kneel. We pour out our hearts. We confess our sins. He who has not always sins to confess never worships. If Christmas services do not move all the membership of the churches to confession of sins they are a failure and not a success.

The Christ is to be found at Christmas time. The shepherds found Him. The Wise Men found Him. The angels sang His advent. Who the angels? What more fitting than that they should have been human. What heavenly choir could chant His arrival with the zest of redeemed men and women and children? The members of this choir may have looked as glorious as beings who had never sinned. But their voices were human voices. They sang with the joy of those who had a direct interest in the birth of a Saviour. These singers told where to find Him. Who knows where to find Him as well as those who have come to know a Saviour God. Of Him the prophets had spoken, and on Him men had believed before His coming in the human. The test note of Christmas services is in the finding of the new in this Saviour God. This the human angels discovered. Of this they sang, "Glory to God in the Highest." Again we ask where has He been crowned king? Ours is a guilty age. Never in the history of the human race has there been such a profound conviction of guilt as there has been during and since the Great War. The deepest note in the heart of the German is guilt. The sense of guilt is none the less searching in the heart of the French. Guilt will not let the British conscience rest. And the American cannot shake off the conviction that he is also guilty. Listen to Lady Macbeth: "My hands are of your color, but I shame to wear a heart so white. I hear a knocking at the south entry—retire we to our chamber. A little water clears us of this deed. How easy is it then! Your constancy hath left you unattended. Hark! more knocking. Be not lost so poorly in your thoughts." Then Macbeth speaks: "To know my deed, it were better not to know myself." Deeper than in the consciousness of Macbeth and Lady Macbeth is the conviction of guilt in the hearts of the participant nations in the Great War.

One thing only will ever remove this disturbance from the hearts of all concerned. God will never let a guilty individual nor a guilty nation alone until sin is confessed sincerely, and as publicly as was done the wrong. Where the sense of guilt has become a cry of anguish and a plea for mercy, the time is ripe for world-wide evangelism. Individual wrong-doing means a guilty conscience. National wrong-doing, as well, overwhelms the individual with a sense of guilt.

This sense of guilt means that God is coming to the world with His mercy. Jesus came. It was not man that came. It is God who is always coming. If God waited to forgive us until we came, we would never be forgiven. The first sinners hid themselves from God. That every sinner has tried to do. Guilt hides. Mercy finds and calls, "Where art thou?" Having heard His voice and discovering He is near, we are drawn by a voice laden with mercy. Neither men nor nations ever can come to themselves before the sense of guilt is removed. A sense of guilt and repentant nations are the significant signs that the true monarch is coming to His throne—not a visible throne. That will never be. His kingdom and throne is in the human heart. His is not a temporal throne. It is an eternal one established forever and forever.

There is a sense of guilt other than this. That the Christmas time should be capitalized by business is a tragedy. It is crucifying the Saviour rather than crowning Him.

Why should merchants drag this holy festival into the market place? Why should it be used for the purpose of speeding up business, instead of intensifying our devotion to the One born in Bethlehem? To use Christmas thus is to make it a veritable nightmare of toil to thousands and tens of thousands of folks. This is not only a blunder of merchants in the marts of the world—it is sin. The conscientious cannot yield to the temptation without carrying about a burden of guilt. Then to think of men who lay claim to being believers in the Christ becoming so blind as not to see the sinfulness. This tendency is as subtle, as deceptive, as damaging as any other sin you can mention. The Christ has not come to His throne in the civilized business world. Nor will He until business hides behind His cross. The cross means self-denial. This self-denial must become the way of the Christian business man at Christmas time, and at other holy times.

CHRISTMAS GIVING

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

At this season of the year many are busy with preparations for Christmas festivities. We love to think of the birth of the babe Jesus in the little town of Bethlehem, and to hear the sweet story of the appearing of the angel to the mother, Mary, when she was told, "That holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." To no other than the spiritually-minded Mary could this mesasge have come. Her ears were attent and listening, and through her purity there has come to us God's greatest gift to humanity—the Messiah.

Not on one day only, however, but every day, may the gift of gifts, the Christ, appear. Years ago a little girl on a warm summer day offered a wilted red rose to one who she saw was depressed and discouraged. The rose perished; but the real gift, the pure love of a little child, has never faded.

With the materialist, gifts too often represent an exchange of things given from a sense of obligation or duty. All the beauty of giving may be lost in this kind of barter. How comparatively meaningless it becomes, once the true message of giving is learned. Those gifts of gold, of frankincense and myrrh offered on one memorable day to the infant Jesus, were a tribute of faith and humanity. This is a beautiful lesson in the fine art of giving.

The material observance of Christmas is but a poor counterfeit of gift-giving unless the heart gives an offering of good will to man. But why wait until the approach of a day designated by the calendar to make a list of things to give to others? Why not have a Christmas of the heart the whole year through, and give of the true spirit of Christmas each day? The fine art of giving is the making manifest of this eternal Christmas.

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR DECEMBER 25.

CHRISTMAS comes but once a year, and when it does, it brings good cheer." Yes, sir! But even before there was any Christ in Christmas, there used to be a big holiday around this same twenty-fifth of December. The old Romans used to turn all their slaves loose for a whole day to celebrate. I suppose the poor folks made the best of the time while it lasted, but it must have been pretty tough when they woke up the morning after, still slaves. Then there were others who used to keep the day in honor of the "Unconquered Sun." They knew the turning point had come for the sun, because the days were getting longer. They knew spring was on the way with another seed-sowing and another crop, and so they celebrated. Well, when the Saviour had come and really put Christ into Christmas, these things faded out. His coming brought time and lasting freedom and real light into the world.

We sing and talk a good deal at this time of the year of the Saviour's birth in Bethlehem. But there's something more important about His birth than even that place and time. Here's another rhyme: "Though Christ in Bethlehem a thousand times be born, If He's not born within thy heart, thy soul is still forlorn." That's the chief thing. There was that old miser Scrooge in the "Christmas Carol" who hated Christmas. What a change there was in him, after the dream had shown him what a miserable skinflint he was. He got the Christmas Spirit, and it made a good man out of him. Well! that's just another way of saying the same thing that's in the rhyme. The Saviour Who was born in Bethlehem was the one who put Christ into Christmas, and to have the Christmas Spirit all the year round, you've got to have the Christ in your heart. So Merry Christmas! to all my boys and girls.—Young Canada.

Cathedral Musings

AND Joseph saw that the heavens and the earth were silent and motionless and he knew that the presence of God was upon the face of the earth. While he and the woman waited in the cave, a great Light came into the darkness and hovered over Mary.

And the Light became smaller and more dense in whiteness until it enveloped Mary. And as Joseph and the woman watched in the silence, the Light was gone and there came the cry of a baby's voice, and an angel appeared and said unto them, "At this hour, in humility of spirit, to a Virgin in the Temple there is now born the Son of God, conceived by the Holy Spirit through the Word of God, and His name will become Jesus, for that is the name of God into which the fire of spirit and the power of the Word is given."—From the ancient Essene (Rosicrucian) records.

Bethlehem—place of all places!

Looking south from the roof of a hotel near the Jaffa Gate the hills of Bethlehem seemed to lean against the evening sky. My thoughts were far back among the scenes of the past. Suddenly, I was brought back. An aeroplane, two, three of them came circling the city.

It was Sunday, September 1, 1929. Arab and Jew had been in bitter strife over the "Wailing Wall" and other things. I had just come back from the "Wall" where I had interviewed different groups of Arabs and learned at first hand their hatred of the Jew—the old quarrel of Sarah and Hagar was still on, and although nearly 4,000 years had passed it had not lost the deadliness of its intention.

Down at Hebron and up at Galilee the fight was still on. In Jerusalem the British troops were keeping the peace.

At Bethlehem a regiment was quartered. On many a hill throughout the country a Tommy and his rifle were the emblems and facts of peace—without them there would have been a great massacre—thousands would have died.

As the aeroplanes passed toward the north my eyes went back to Bethlehem, and the long ago. That "Peace on earth and goodwill to men" seemed to be so far, far away. These men were straining to knife one another—and there was Bethlehem where the Prince of Peace was born—why had He not conquered?

As one thought the heart grew sore with a great sense of defeat. Turning from gazing towards Bethlehem, I looked down into the street. Two Arabs, stalwart fellows, were approaching the Gate to pass through.

The guard stopped them and a couple of soldiers ran their hands over their clothes and withdrew two murderous looking knives, tossed them into a basket, patted the disgruntled losers on their backs and said, "Sorry, old chaps."

There was the secret. Bethlehem was winning.

Both Arab and Jew claimed Abraham: but their branching roads had carried them far apart. Both rejected Jesus Christ so there was no union for them at Bethlehem.

But here were the soldiers of a people who believed in Bethlehem and they had come a long way to prevent these men from butchering each other and to restore peace.

Rachel gave Bethlehem a grave, Ruth put it in literature, David placed it in history: but Jesus Christ is weaving it into the golden story of the world's salvation.

LAID VEILS ON ALTAR.

It was customary, at certain places in mediaeval times, to lay on the altar three veils and remove one at each return of Christmas matins. The first was black and symbolized the time of darkness before the Mosaic Law; the second white, typifying it would seem the faith of those who lived under that law of partial revelation; the third red showing the love of Christ's bride the church, in the time of Christ, flowing from the Incarnation.

God's Gift to Men (Christmas Lesson) ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 2:1-20

When the Roman Governor Augustus ordered all of his subjects to go to their native towns to be enrolled for taxation, Joseph and Mary were required to travel from Nazareth to Bethlehem, a journey of from 70 to 100 miles each way, possibly made by riding a donkey.

When they arrived at Bethlehem the inn was crowded and "there was no room for them in the inn". So they found shelter in the stable of the inn, and here the baby Jesus was born and here he was wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger.

Near Bethlehem some shepherds were guarding their sheep that night when an angel appeared in glorious light to tell them of their Saviour's birth. Then other angels came singing, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased."

As soon as the angels disappeared the shepherds went with haste to Bethlehem to see their Saviour. They found the babe with Joseph and Mary in a manger in the stable and worshipped him and returned sharing the news with friends.

GOLDEN TEXT—John 3:16.

BETHLEHEM

Wise men of old, their eyes fixed on a Star
Brighter than all in Heaven, journeyed far
To find the meaning of that wondrous light.
Eager to read the radiant omen right,
Leaving all else, caring for naught beside,
They climbed the hills and crossed the valleys wide,
Forded the stream, threaded the pathless wood,
Bravely the perils and the pains withstood
That wore their strength and spirits at each stage
Of that immemorable pilgrimage.

But once they halted, when at Herod's gate
Their holy quest in simple words to state,
The chief priests and the scribes interpreting
To Herod and the Jews their new-born King.
(Unwanted there, alas!), then on they pressed,
Heeding no obstacles, seeking no rest,
Until at last, in the deep winter night
Among Judea's hills—enthralling sight—
Surpassing any ever viewed by them,
They found the Heavenly Babe of Bethlehem.
The glowing Star o'er the rude stable stayed
By power divine: the blessed Mother-Maid
Prostrate and meek, adoring her sweet Son
With Joseph and the mute beasts looking on.

Stranger than all their dreams, the lowly shed
Framing that picture, with the Star o'erhead,
Proclaimed their journey's end. Now were their eyes
Filled with the ecstasy of Paradise.
Their weary limbs from further fare relieved,
Their willing hearts with boundless faith, believed.
Freely their gifts from secret store unrolled
They offer, myrrh, and frankincense and gold.
No richer token King to King may give
Save one, his love and fealty while he live,
Nor this they grudged, wise Magi from afar,
Who ne'er forgot the Infant and the Star,
But serving humbly Him they first adored
Now sing for aye the glory of the Lord!

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

By Ven. R. C. Blagrave, D.D.
Rector of St. John's Anglican Church

It may be that many, when Christmas is over, will breathe a sigh of relief that they are through with all the fuss of it and life can again take up the even tenor of its way. And yet this does not mean that any of us would wish to forego the joy which preparation for this season brings. For in spite of many activities it brings a joy without which the world would be poorer indeed. It offers opportunity of sending greetings to friends and receiving from them assurances that friendship is not forgotten, opportunity of family festivities, of seeing the expectant soul of the child rejoice in the visit of the mysterious stranger, and above all, of pouring out our tokens of love upon those less fortunate than ourselves.

But this concentrated goodwill has its origin in something which far transcends the earthly elements of our mortal nature. And it goes back to a time long ago when the angels somewhere between earth and heaven sang the holy song of "Peace on Earth and Goodwill Among Men." The spirit of Christmas has only survived because its meaning and value answer the deepest instincts of the heart and evoke that reverence for itself which brought silence and ghostly greeting even in the trenches.

The birth of Jesus Christ was the advent of the Divine Lord into the toils and trials, loves and pains of human experience. Life with its failures and frustrations is not shut off from the heavenly reality, but is redeemed from futility because "God was the Christ reconciling the world unto Himself." This is the assurance and joy of Christmas.

Simple Story Thrills the World

By Rt. Rev. Denis O'Connor
Bishop of Diocese of Peterborough

It is just the simple story of the birth of a Babe in Bethlehem, yet the world thrills yearly to its telling. The angels sang their hymn that night above a hillside cave while shepherds watched their flocks on neighboring slopes. For the Babe who was born was the long expected of nations. As He who was born of Mary is true man, so, too, He is very God. From the dawn of recorded history had been promised a Redeemer who would repair the ravages of man's primeval fall. Across the dreary centuries the prophets had heralded His coming. "Behold a virgin shall conceive and shall bear a son and his name shall be called Emmanuel" God with us. "And thou, Bethlehem, art not the least among the princes of Juda, for out of thee he shall come who shall rule my people Israel." And now the promise is fulfilled, the blessed hope is realized, man's quest for God is over. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt amongst us." Come, let us adore Him! May He on this anniversary of His birth bring to all who read these lines the blessings that He knows best how to give and the peace and joy of a Merry Christmas.

CHRISTMAS MEMORIES

By Rev. David Wren, M.A., B.D.
Minister of Trinity United Church

As we sit by our desk, we muse of the days now gone, of the home, the gay voices of brothers and sister and friends now silent, the tree with its lights, the stockings hanging at the fireside, the giving and the receiving of gifts.

There was the little country church, too, decorated with greens, there were the Christmas carols, the earnest upturned faces seeking anew the Christ Child.

The associations of Christmas are winsomely beautiful—they are poetically tender. Christmas has become the sweetest of all festivals recognized by the Christian church. It will ever be associated with the name of Jesus. There have been other names in history—Caesar, Charlemange, Hildebrand—yet few of us know when their birthdays were. It matters little about Caesar—it means much for the Christ. It is His birthday we celebrate. His manger was to be the centre of the world's life. We will at last gather at the manger for humanity's problem will be solved there. What a day is ours! The world has been swift—by one of the greatest hurricanes of history the foundations of civilization have been laid bare. This Christmas time we renew the past. The past will be dangerous if we live by it alone. Our past must be but a foundation stone upon which to build new truth.

It should make us ready to see more clearly the Star leading us to the returned Christ. Out of the days that are gone we have gained the Christmas spirit of love and self-giving which came to earth in a new way so long ago when Christ was born in Bethlehem.

This Christmas in this year of grace will be the best year if we are able to lay at His feet the rich gifts of happy, useful, loving lives for the dawning of a better day of goodwill among men.

PEACE ON EARTH GOOD WILL TO MEN

By Rev. A. T. Barr, B.D., D.Ph.
Minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church

The old, old message of Christmas! Almost hackneyed doesn't it sound! Is there really anything new in it? Well, there is. Especially at this time, when so many face difficult, trying days. A particular aspect of that ancient Word, that floated over the plains of Bethlehem, comes to us; it is the relationship of goodwill to peace. Surely it has a special force this Christmas of 1932!

We had long believed that one of the most striking inversions in all English literature presented itself in these simple words: Peace on earth, goodwill to men. For, if you reflect for a moment, surely it is obvious that peace on earth must follow goodwill to men; that the one is a direct and primary consequence of the other. And not only so, but progress likewise is founded on this same goodwill; progress that means the better life for all, a better world. Too true is it that love—the love that men sometimes call goodwill—after all "makes the world go round."

"Goodwill to men"—well, that's the message of Christmas! Years and years have passed and we have heard it. Has it always meant much—or little! How often it has evoked a purely passive attitude—a sort of social outlook, which has come to us, incidentally, and easily, to mellow the festive atmosphere of the season. We have persuaded ourselves that we loved our neighbor—in a sort of a way. It has been a more or less passive liking, going, perhaps, the length of an exchange of gifts, or a greeting: Merry Christmas. Take our neighbor, Smith, for example. We have forgotten for the time being that his dog is a nuisance, or that his daughter practises on the violin just when we want to read The Evening Examiner. We have wished him a Merry Christmas over the fence, and almost succeeded in deceiving ourselves that our fellowship was something wonderful. And, as for Aunt Jane, we have forgotten our grudge that she got a bigger share of grandfather's money than we thought she was entitled to, and so we sent her a present with "Good Wishes" attached. We have tipped the postie, etc., and have worked up a sort of conviction—more or less temporary—that this is goodwill, this is the Christmas message in operation.

Really, we have got to see that Christmas goodwill is a far bigger thing than this! It is far greater than this easy passive attitude of mind so many are so comfortably willing to accept, this "just-as-good" substitute for the real thing. Goodwill is essentially active. It is a strong, vital, driving force which sends its disciples up and down the world, not merely doing that good which lies close to their hands to-day, but seeking opportunities continually to do good. It makes a man give all that is in him to his job, to his ideals, to his fellows. It is faith, hope and charity, all in one; it is the force that makes the world go round.

So here's a message: Get goodwill—and goodwill will bring peace. If we, in this year of grace, 1932, can but learn to tackle all our problems, face all our difficulties, overcome all our hopelessness, with goodwill, then no power on earth can defeat us. We must take this "Spirit of Christmas" and make it a far bigger thing than we have hitherto. It must become our mental and spiritual background for the whole year through. In church affairs, in politics, in industry, in commerce, in sport, it must have its place—active goodwill. So, the best way to enter the New Year will be for you and me to go cheerfully at the task of building better, broader, bigger lives on the cornerstone, upon which we have engraved the words, "Love thy neighbor as thyself"; "Peace on earth, goodwill to men."

WHAT CHRISTMAS IS

By Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, M.A., B.D.
Minister of Murray Street Baptist Church

Christmas is essentially a thing of the spirit. We do not see Christmas with our eyes. A Christmas that can be seen is not Christmas. It has to do not with the world that is seen, but with the world that is not seen. If Christmas is not concerned with something more than tangible gifts of gold and silver, silks and satins, toys and trinkets, it is a misnomer. It is not what we see with our physical eyes, but what is behind the visible things that makes Christmas real and genuine. The most real things in the world are those that we do not see. Many things there are that are not seen, but who can deny they are real? These things cannot be demonstrated and proved, but the things that are the greatest are the things that it is not possible to prove.

The folk who are able to see behind and beyond the external at this Christmas season will have a Merry Christmas. Those who gaze upon their gifts on Christmas day and see not merely things but see love, thoughtfulness, kindness, generosity and life calling to life, will be the happy people. When we behold our gifts on that great festal day and see an individual trying to express his love, a lover attempting to deliver his or her burning message, a child endeavoring to say, "Mother, I love you," we shall be the happiest among men.

Earthly things have their place in the Christmas celebration, but that place in a true celebration is secondary. Heavenly things are primary. When these are given their rightful place in the observance of the greatest day of the year joy and happiness abound. The secret of a Merry Christmas is to be found within, not without, because Christmas is a thing of the spirit. May it truly be said of our celebration that Christ is in our Christmas.

GOD'S GIFT TO MEN

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL.

This third Christmas in a period of world-wide distress of unemployment and its attendant poverty will be strangely different from any other Christmas these needy millions have ever experienced.

But the joys of Christmas never need be limited or conditioned by our circumstances however changed these may be. Christmas joy is perennial and unconditional. Suppose, for example, that bereavement has come to your home since last Christmas, removing from your family circle a loved one who will be greatly missed this Christmas. Instead of mourning your loss in such a way as to make Christmas a day of inexpressible sadness, suppose you think of it rather as your loved one's first Christmas in heaven, and celebrate it joyfully as such in the communion of saints.

Christmas and the Unemployed.

Christmas this year must of necessity be different, also, to millions upon whose homes the shadow of unemployment has rested during a great portion of this year. The plenty of former years will be absent; savings for such times as these will be depleted and there may even be dire poverty instead. Some who have helped the poor at Christmas in former years will have to accept the charity of others this year. How shall these be able to enjoy this Christmas?

Two alternatives present themselves. The day may be made one of intolerable sadness and sourness by lamenting the absence of material things enjoyed at Christmas in other years, or it may be made a day of peace and blessing by entering into a new appreciation of the spirit and mission of that first blessed Christmas. For was it not to lowly shepherds in Bethlehem's fields that the angelic hosts brought heaven's first Christmas greeting, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased"?

Was it not to a dreary stable that these poor laboring men of the fields were directed to seek for the new-born Christ child? "Ye shall find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, and dying in a manager." Should not the memory of the poverty of that first Christmas hallow the straightened circumstances in which many among us must celebrate Christmas this year?

Christmas and Poverty.

What possibilities this Christmas will have for a chastened and suffering world to enter into a new fellowship of sympathy with the shepherds of the first Christmas, and with the manger cradled Christ child of swaddling clothes, and with those parents whose poverty forbade their offering a lamb at his presentation, and required, instead, their offering two young pigeons, which was the sacrifice required of the very poor!

Christmas this year holds unusual possibilities of a new appreciation of "the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich."

Christmas Sharing.

For those in better circumstances Christmas this year should suggest the special need and joy of unselfish sharing of our blessings with the poor whose lot our Lord shared that first Christmas and for 33 years as the carpenter of Nazareth. Christmas meant his willingness to share our humanity, our infirmities, our poverty and even our sin. Christmas made the angels share heaven's joys with the humble poor at their work in the fields. It also made the shepherds share with their neighbors the good news as they "returned glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen." Let's make it a "Merry Christmas" by making it a sharing Christmas!

The Saxons began their year on the 8th of the Kalends of January (25 December), which is now our Christmas day, and the very night before which is now holy to us was called by them Moedrenack or the Night of Mothers, because, as we imagine, of those ceremonies which were performed that night.

The pumpkin is purely American. Europeans do not cultivate it.

VETERAN REEVE IS RE-ELECTED

penditures in 1933, consistent with sound economy, and ratepayers, who spoke, urged that next year's drive on the tax rate be advanced as far as conditions permit.

Reeve McIntosh was nominated by Torrance Lillico, seconded by A. M. Laing.

Other Nominations

Nominations for Deputy-reeve were:

George Patton, proposed by R. T. Lillico and A. M. Laing.

John Barnes, proposed by J. T. Parkes and Jas. Milby.

For Council, three to be elected:

William Stevens, proposed by A. Cummings and A. Pagett.

Jones Barnes, proposed by W. H. Wheeler and A. Barnes.

James Milby, proposed by E. T. Monk and J. T. Parkes.

Wm. Whitfield, proposed by R. T. Lillico and A. M. Laing.

Robt. A. Dobbin, proposed by R. T. Lillico and A. M. Laing.

This year's council has been composed of Reeve McIntosh, Deputy-reeve Paton and Councillors Dobbin, Barnes and Whitfield.

Motion For Acclamation

Towards the conclusion of the meeting Harry Castle moved that the council be returned by acclamation and Melville Johnston seconded it.

Bruce Johnston, presiding as clerk of the township, put the motion, but because it was not unanimous, Mr. Johnston did not call for any negative opinion, and therefore did not declare whether or not the motion carried. He remarked that in any event it was only an expression of opinion, and was in no sense binding.

Council Is Appreciated

The general sentiment of the ratepayers was reflected in expressions that the council had passed through unusually trying conditions this year, and had don as well as could be expected in the circumstances, with results in economy that were quite satisfactory.

Reeve McIntosh in reviewing the council's administration pointed out that the levy for county purposes was $14,441.41 this year as compared with $17,184.87 last year. For work done up to a few days ago residents of the township had received in wages $11,064.90 in connection with improvements at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

Replying to Hy Wood's statement that he believed the assessor had received certain instructions from the council in regard to his work this year, Reeve McIntosh said he was willing to make a declaration that he had not discussed the question with Mr. Waterman, and he felt confident that none of the members of the council had done so. The council had felt that Mr. Waterman was well qualified for the position by reason of his experience of four years in the council.

Reeve McIntosh promised that he would endeavour to give the affairs of the township the same careful attention as in the past.

Deputy-reeve Patton

"When I was elected last January it was my intention to keep down our expenses as much as I could" George Patton said. "I think we did, and if I am elected again I will try to do the same again. I would like to see the taxes lowered again next year. The reason the county council issued debentures this year to pay for our share of the cost of provincial highways was partly because there was an overdraft of $25,634.12 from 1931. If we hadn't to pay that we might not have had to issue the debentures. The county council did not levy enough for two years."

Reeve McIntosh explained that the county had a debenture debt of $62, 625, and the sale of debentures this year was not a departure from the county's practice. The deficits that had resulted during the last two years in the county's budgeting were overdrafts on road work.

John Barnes

Mr. Barnes said that the council had experienced a difficult year, and that conditions required from the ratepayers their consideration for those who were trying to conduct the municipal affairs in a proper manner.

"Municipal work is no place for the political differences you find in our federal and provincial governments. We should all think of one another as ratepayers. That thought should be in the minds of the electors and of those who go into the council. Eleven years ago I didn't get a vote in the rural section of the township. Last year I got eleven votes, but I can show that I did nhe honest and square thing for those living in the farming section of the municipality. I'll leave it to the other members of the council whether John Barnes has been all that he should be to those living out there. I tried to do my best. I think I am honest, and the person who is honest can't go astray if he works according to that."

Referring to the problem of unemployment, Mr. Barnes said that the council had to keep in mind the obligation of the ratepayers to pay their taxes, and also the need of helping those who could not get work.

"It has never been the idea to give a man enough that would enable him to sit at home and do nothing. As I came along today to this meeting I passed nine houses on one side of a street. Four of them were vacant, two families were on relief, two others had old people who are being helped, and in the other was a man working on part time.

There has been comment about paying rent out of relief. The government allows only one and a half times the taxes on a house to be paid in rent, and this shall not exceed $15 a month. There is also a dollar a month for light. This may sound big to some persons, but when you realize that 60 per cent of relief must be spent for food, and 40 percent for light, fuel, water and medical attention there is not much left of the 40 percent for rents."

Mr. Barnes said that the present conditions required men of courage at the head of municipal affairs, and that the funds provided for relief must be conserved.

James Milby

Mr. Milby said he would serve the people to the best of his ability if elected, and would show no discrimination as between the rural and suburban sections of the township. He had to leave the meeting early, and for that reason was called on among the first speakers.

Robert Dobbin

The theme of Mr. Dobbin's address was that the people had to give more thought to the situation which confronted them. Farmers were in the same boat with the residents of the suburbs, and it was only by the fullest co-operation that they could work out their economic salvation as a municipality. The council of this year had tried as best it could to give the ratepayers good local administration, and Mr. Dobbin promised that if he were returned for next year he would be guided by the same desire.

William Whitfield

Mr. Whitfield stated that he didn't think any member of the council had met Mr. Waterman about the question of his work as assessor. "In regard to relief, the council was spending the people's money. They didn't want to throw it away, and at the same time they don't want any person to go hungry. I think we should try to look on the brighter side of things. Times are going to come back again."

Like the other nominees Mr. Whitfield promised the ratepayers his best service if re-elected.

William Stevens

Mr. Stevens asserted that the council had erred in appointing the assessor. The position had been customarily advertised, but this year's council had not done so.

"There were many appeals put in, and it was a blessing in disguise for we found out who were our friends and who were not", Mr. Stevens said.

The Ratepayers' Association had requested that the four for nominations be changed, but no action had been taken on this petition, Mr. Stevens continued. They had also asked for the two-instalment plan of tax collection, but this had been laid aside. Mr. Stevens said that if elected he would earnestly endeavour to serve all the ratepayers.

Bruce Johnston said that tax collections in June and December would be an aid to him. The council had passed the by-law, although many of the farmers were not in agreement with the proposed change. Adjustment of the assessment roll would have to be a preliminary step, and that would take another year.

Assets Questioned

Mr. Wood contended that the council in drafting its statement of assets and liabilities should not include an item of $5,081 for water mains because they had been paid for by the property owners on the streets on which the mains were laid. The township had not paid a cent. Hence, Mr. Wood said, this asset was wholly fictitious. Sidewalks were estimated as an asset of $36,732, but they were paid for only by the people living in the suburbs.

Mr. Johnston confirmed Mr. Wood's opinion that a ratepayer was not required to vote for more than one candidate.

"Prospective councillors should keep out of the ballot box. I saw one in a booth showing a man how to mark his ballot", Mr. Wood concluded.

Mr. Whitfield—I know Mr. Wood is referring to me. A ratepayer who couldn't read asked me to help him, and I only told him to vote for who he liked. I didn't show him. I just told him.

Mr. Wilford—It is the duty of the returning officers to give whatever assistance is necessary in a case like that.

Bruce Johnston, also replying to Mr. Wood, said that the council had discussed with E. B. Fowler, auditor, the matter of the assets that had been mentioned.

"Mr. Fowler made enquiry in Toronto, and we understood that he did not get any definite information. "He thought the council was best qualified to determine what should be written off in the way of assets."

Mr. Johnston expressed the opinion that the sidewalks and water mains were actually assets of the township, but this point was not further debated.

Thomas Hunter and Joseph Madill spoke cursorily of the municipality's affairs.

Thomas Hunter

"County Clerk Elliott always made the county pay as it went without issuing debentures", Mr. Hunter said. "I thought the county council did wrong in the first place in accepting the provincial highway. The people shouldn't be called upon to pay the 20 per cent."

That was just a bait to get the county into the system, Mr. Hunter continued. The province borrowed the money to build the highways, and now had to pay additional exchange to their creditors. As to an expenditure of $3,000 on the Chemong bridge to Ennismore, he stated that it was altogether too much, and the county would be better off without Ennismore.

Seventy-five percent of the farmers were only two jumps ahead of the bailiff, Mr. Hunter said, and some wit in the audience quickly remarked that the bailiff was already two jumps ahead of many of the suburban residents who couldn't get work.

Mr. Hunter suggested that the suburban sections should be incorporated with the city. If that were done, the township's equalized assessment would be reduced, and also the cost of clerical work for the municipality.

Interest on Overdraft

Bruce Johnston stated that the financial report showed $1,955 outstanding taxes from 1931, and $13,736 of this year's taxes not yet paid. Unpaid taxes at the end of last years were $10,000, and $600 had been paid in interest this year on the township's overdraft at the bank.

"We're going to have an overdraft again" the clerk stated. "There are ratepayers who are unable to pay just now. The council doesn't wish to step in and sell a man's stock or machinery. They wish to be reasonable in the present conditions but on the other hand it is their duty to collect taxes that are due. In the suburban section you find ratepayers who are trying to pay for their home. If they get behind the council doesn't want to take their place. My duties as clerk are a lot different from the time when the salary was $100. The responsibility is greater, and I am called upon to handle far larger sums than any clerk who preceded me. We are going to have another overdraft at the end of this year. The council can't help the unemployment situation. They have been criticized by some people who complained that they were not getting enough relief from the council. We levy a certain amount for relief but our ability to pay is limited. We had an overdraft of $14,000 at one time early in the year. The responsibility of administering relief is a big task.

Mr. Hunter—Is it fair to collect taxes on December 15 and let others go until the end of the year. Taxes are just as much a debt as a payment you have to make to the bank.

Mr. Johnston replied that this was perhaps a matter for the discretion of tax collector, due to the fact that some persons didn't have the money on the day taxes were payable.

Harry Castle complained that the council should have adopted some measure of restriction on buildings.

"A man builds a house that costs him three thousand dollars, and someone puts up a salmon can on one side of him, and a sardine can goes up on the other, and the first thing his house is empty," Mr. Castle remarked.

Mr. Johnston replied that the council had approved the idea of restriction, but the by-law had not yet been passed.

Credit to Council

Melville Johnston—The members of this year's council have worked hard. Mr. McIntosh and I don't see alike very often, but I don't think anyone has worked harder for the township than he has. I like to give credit where credit is due. With all the relief, and the cost of wood cutting that has been carried on without raising the taxes I think the council should be sent back. Save the cost of an election and spend it for relief."

Joseph Madill said the county council should have helped Monaghan to make employment. This could have been done on the county road, and it would be better to have men working than receiving charity. Nine out of ten men would rather earn their bread. Monaghan should have received some consideration from the county because it had more unemployed than all the other townships in the county put together.

Work Cutting Wood

Reeve McIntosh reported that 847 cords of wood had been cut in Cavan last winter as unemployment relief, and 600 cords near Burleigh. Fifty-five men were employed, and they were taken by trucks to the camps.

"The men worked well at both camps. We sold all the hardwood to one man who is paying us $400 a month until it is all paid. We also sold some around Oshawa and Bowmanville. I think we'll break even on this, and the wood-cutting will not cost us a cent."

Mr. Hunter said the suburban section should be joined to the city.

"The city doesn't want us now under any circumstances", Hy Wood replied. "They were willing to take us in at one time, but we weren't satisfied with the concessions they offered.

Reeve McIntosh was first elected to North Monaghan Township Council, forty-six years ago, and at the end of his first two years service in the ranks he was elevated to reeveship for the years 1897-98.

After a long interval he came back as reeve in 1915 and 1916. He was defeated by Harold B. Rye in 1917. He was re-elected to the office of reeve during the years 1918 to 1921 inclusive. For the past four years Reeve McIntosh has been at the head of the township council, thus making twelve years during which he has held that office.

MOUNT JULIAN.

At the euchre party, held in Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson's home last week, Mr. Stanley Northey and Mrs. John Thompson won first prizes. The consolation prizes went to Mr. Edward Bronson and Miss Isabel Reid.

Those who attended the Christmas concert from a distance were: Rev. W. F. Riding, Mr. Norman Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown and children, and Miss Bertha Earnshaw of Apsley, Miss Leta Lytle of Deer Bay, and Miss Viola Redpath from Young's Point.

Mrs. Charles Blezard and little daughter Ann, of Toronto, are spending the season's holidays with Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson.

Messrs. William McCauley and Jack McFadden spent Wednesday in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. John Booth, Messrs Frank Booth, George Booth and Joseph Northey attended the funeral of the late Frank Crowe on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilson and children, and Mrs. Norman Wilson of Apsley visited Mr. and Mrs. John McCauley on Sunday.

Mr. Harold Matthews of Dummer visited relatives here on Sunday.

Mr. William Hubble spent a few days visiting in Coe Hill recently.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

Each Employee Given Fine Large Turkey

The employees of the Peterborough Canoe Company were given a pleasant surprise by their managers, C. H. Rogers and W. A. Richardson, this week. After issuing a letter explaining that their fall program having been completed a temporary lay-off for a short time was necessary, but assuring them of their belief that better times were on the way, they were planning for a return to work right after the New Year; and in extending their Christmas greetings, presented each employee with a turkey. Under present conditions, needless to say the men grettly appreciate the efforts of the managers on their behalf, as well as the generous and practical gift with good wishes.

ARTICLES REQUIRED

A woman with very small means had asked us to try and get a high chair. She would like it for Christmas Day, if possible, so that the youngest member of the family might sit in it comfortably for Christmas dinner.

We have also been asked to procure flat irons in a home where the electric light has been cut off.

Please telephone The Examiner and we will call.

DONATIONS TO FUND

The Examiner acknowledges with many thanks donations to its Relief Fund: $5 from Miss Mayme Montgomery, $1 each from five Friends, $1 from a subscriber at Hall's apples and home-made candy from H. Huston, Otonabee, $1.50 from Mother and Son, warm mittens from a Friend, new baby garments from a Friend, and a box of candy from another Friend.

CHILDREN'S SHELTER TREE

The annual Christmas tree at the Children's Shelter was a pleasant event of the week. A feature of the program, which was presided over by the president of the Children's Aid Society, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, was a very enjoyable program provided by the children at the home, under supervision of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Nigh. Santa Claus, assisted by J. Ellis, distributed gifts, and brief addresses were made by the Rev. A. E. Moorhouse and C. A. Salmonsen.

CHRISTMAS CAROL CHOIR

A number of men and boys of St. John's Choir sang carols last evening at various institutions of the city, including Anson House and the Children's Shelter. Later, refreshments were served at the rectory, with F. G. Mann in charge of the program.

SHARED THEIR RELIEF

The real spirit of Christmas is abroad in Peterborough, and every effort was being made throughout today to provide for the six hundred odd families who are on relief lists.

At one house this morning where a basket was left by one of the organizations engaged in the distribution of Christmas Cheer, the householder tendered her grateful thanks while declining the good things that the parcel contained. "We have been already looked after", she stated, "and are well provided for except for potatoes". She made the suggestion that the package should be left with her neighbour also in straitened circumstances through no fault of her own or her breadwinner.

In every instance the distributors of Christmas Cheer have been impressed by the deep gratitude and thankfulness with which the necessities of life have been accepted.

IN MEMORIAM.

HENRY.—In ever loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mary Ethel Fowler, beloved wife of George Henry, who passed away Dec. 24, 1926:
A loved one from our household has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
—Sadly Missed By Husband and Daughters, Pearl, Margaret and May.

MONCRIEF. — In loving memory of Mrs. L. Moncrief (nee Sophia Ingram), who passed away, Dec. 24, 1931:
Only a memory of bygone days,
And a sigh for a face unseen,
But a constant feeling that God alone
Knows just what should have been.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
All earthly trials and troubles are past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Until God took her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by her sister, Annie E. Ingram, Newry, Ireland.

COONEY. — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister Mae, who passed away on her birthday, December 24, 1928.
A life made beautiful by kindly deeds,
A helping hand for other's needs;
To a beautiful life there came an end—
She died as she lived, everyone's friend.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers.

Single Men To Leave For Camp on Tuesday

Peterborough's quota of 50 unemployed single men to work on the Minden-Dorset road this winter have been selected, and early Tuesday morning they will entrain for the trip to the Government camp in the north.

The men were chosen by Hugh Robertson, of the Government Employment Office here, and today were being outfitted with clothes by A. G. Metheral, relief officer. Mr. Metheral said the men were all eager to be off. The party will go by train to Huntsville and then by truck the 20 miles into the camp on the new road.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TREE HELD AT CAVAN "LITTLE RED SCHOOL"

Seventh Line Scholars Delight Audience With Varied Program.

PARTY AT 'CONTINUATION.'

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, December 24. — The "little red school house," on the Seventh Line of Cavan, which has seen sixty years since its building, and from which many former pupils have gone out to life callings, in professional and other lines, meeting with success and prominence, was gay with Christmas trimmings for the annual concert and tree on Tuesday evening, seating capacity being taxed to accommodate the audience.

The background for the young artists who provided an excellent program, was tastefully arranged with a big "Welcome" sign over the nicely draped curtains of the window over the fireplace, tall red candles in brass holders burning on the mantel, and in each window red candles were burning, also inviting to the "gay doings" indoors. Drapings of red and green, with evergreen boughs, red balls, and the beautifully trimmed tree with its ropes of tinsel, added to the beauty of the interior and the Christmas atmosphere.

Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., was the chairman, extending a warm welcome on behalf of the popular and efficient teacher, Miss Frances Jones, the pupils, and the trustee board, the opening chorus by the school, "Hello Everybody," starting the program off with a vim, a recitation by a little lad, Howard Gillies, following. The motion song, "A Long Way Off from Here," was very pretty, and after Cameron Elson's recitation, "Santa's Visit," four little girls, Elaine Argue, Hope Douglas, Jean Gillies, and Kathryn Elson, seated in small rockers, and nursing big dollies, sang "Hush a Bye," to the pleasure of the listeners.

The Christmas story in Biblical dialogue and interspersed with familiar carols, was a fine number, and one of the high lights of the evening was the mention of the fact that Whitfield's school had been awarded the silver chime presented by Martin Chenhall, musical supervisor of the schools of Cavan and Millbrook, 17 in all being in the competition, to the scholars singing best the chorus with which they reached the highest points, two other schools Cedar Valley and Fallis Line, coming just one point each behind the winners.

Recitation.

Among pupils who gave recitation numbers were Russell Williamson and Jack Nelson, the two-part song by six girls, "The Christmas Spirit," and the dialogue, "Christmas at the Ruggles," with Barbara Argue as Mrs. Ruggles instructing her nine young hopefuls how to act "genteel" at Miss Bird's Christmas dinner party, being all well given and warmly applauded. A pantomine by five senior girls, wearing white and silver, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," was gracefully performed and made a strong appeal, while the "Kitchen Orchestra," in which practically all kinds of culinary "instruments" were played, with the singing of a medley of choruses, was an outstanding success as the performers finally marched off singing "Good Night, Ladies."

An action song, "Johnny Smoker," by the juniors, was also one of the most popular selections in a good program throughout, and the dialogue in which many of the familiar Mother Goose characters were portrayed as "living models," with Norma Gillies as the "Old Lady who lived in a Shoe," taking the leading part, kept interest keenly occupied. Roberta Bothwell, as the Christmas Angel in dainty white organdie, brought home the lesson of unselfishness at the Yuletide season very happily as a fitting conclusion to this number.

Preceding the arrival of Santa Claus (William Williamson) in his well-known, red, fur-trimmed costume, and long white beard, the pupils sang "Make Ready for Santa," the distribution of gifts from the tree being the big event for the scholars, while the rest of the audience enjoyed a generous treat of home-made candy and red-cheeked apples. The vote of thanks to the teacher for her untiring efforts in making the concert such a success, was voiced by H. S. Argue, seconded by W. Williamson, and heartily endorsed by all.

Continuation School.

The Assembly Hall of the Millbrook Continuation School, was the scene of an enthusiastic gathering on Wednesday evening, the occasion being the annual concert and Christmas tree of the three rooms of the public school, L. W. Smith representing the school board acting as chairman, and decorations being in keeping with the Yuletide season.

Parents and friends were specially interested in the excellent performance put on by the scholars from the primary room, Miss Betty Montgomery, teacher; the junior room, Miss L. Orchard in charge, to the senior room of which the teacher is B. B. Dawson, who explained that the program was prepared in a very short interval of time, with the minimum of practices, hence any defects might be kindly overlooked.

The chairman's words of welcome preceded the evening chorus, "Santa Claus is coming," by the pupils of the primary room, and a recitation, "The Christmas Tree," by Hugh Williams, after which the first class sang, "I Hung up My Stocking," and Russell Kennedy followed with "A Christmas Kiss."

The dialogue, "A Minister's Mistake," added to the good humor of the listeners, those taking part including Mary Smith, Jean Fisher, Billie Deyell—all from the primary room; the little tots also giving the action recitation, "Joy," Jimmie Deyell, Stanley McIvor, and Francis Ticknor, being the participants.

A song by the younger pupils, "Christmas Arithmetic," and a recitation, "Front Teeth," by Laureen Richards, led up to a fascinating Star Drill by the senior girls, and Gloria Dawson won plenty of applause with her reading, "'Jes 'Fore Christmas," likewise Ruth Lunn, who gave "Christmas Stocking," and Gordon Jones, who had a delightful musical recitation.

The pantomine, "Silent Night," proved very popular, four senior girls in white and silver, making appropriate motions while in the background the massed scholars sang the verses; the senior pupils also contributed the dialogue "Packing the Christmas Hamper," the characters being: Mr. Peters, of grumpy, grouchy ways, Ken. Kidd, Mary, his housekeeper, Audrey Garside, Arthur, his disinherited son, Lloyd McMahon; Arthur's wife, Kathleen Davis, Mr. Peters' cook, Belle, Joan Deyell; and Tim, the mischief maker, who, however, by putting Mr. Peters' one thousand dollar cheque in the hamper for the Salvation Army's Christmas relief work, brought inadvertently about a reconciliation between father and son, this part falling to Freddie Ridge.

A closing chorus, "The First Nowell," with Miss Montgomery as the accompanist of the evening, brought an enjoyable program to a close, the distribution of gifts from the laden and lovely tree completing a successful and happy annual gathering.

CHRISTMAS TREE

Solos, Recitations, Tableau Makes Fine Program at Bridgenorth.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BRIDGENORTH, December 23. — The Christmas entertainment and treat of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church was held on Friday evening, December 16, with a large crowd of scholars, parents and friends.

After a few opening remarks by the pastor, Rev. Rolph Wright, Mr. A. B. Mann ably filled the position as chairman for the evening.

The program, consisted of recitations by Peggy Blewett, Amy Bell, John David Wright, Betty Blewett, Elmer Telford, Burritt Mann, Maurice Telford, Dorothy Telford, and Evelyn Bell; a little exercise, called Christmas Wishes, by the primary class, all having the letters, and posted them to Santa Claus; solos by Maxine Kidd, Art Phillips, a drill by the juniors, (Fulfillment of Prophecy), Dialogue by Hazel and Clare Telford; Pantomime (O Zion, Haste!) by the Young Ladies' Class, this being very effective, the girls all in white gowns and tinsels; sketch (Work for the Boys), Dialogue, named "Gossip," by Mrs. Wright's class; sketch (Book Agent), by three of the Sunday school teachers; reading, Leitha Kidd; chorus by the young men's class (Tenting to-night). This took the form of a camping scene, all seated and lying around the fire place; reading, Mr. Wright, and lastly came the beautiful pageant "The Glory of the Star."

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a very pleasant and profitable evening, and everyone received a bag of candies.

A goodly thing it is to meet

WARSAW

The Shawl parade on the last afternoon of the W. I. convention, caused a great deal of interest. Over 60 entries had been made, but when it came to producing the shawls there were over one hundred. Miss Collins arranged the parade and the Bride Brodeur of the Mail and Empire, and the Homemaker of the Globe, were the judges.

All shawls were entered under Paisley, plaid or dress, and each class was well represented. As it was an exhibit of shawls only the ladies were not expected to wear costume dresses. However, three did wear old-fashioned gowns. Many wore the shawls to show off the shawl; others wore them as the natives who made them, wear them. Some of the plaids were fastened with Cairngorm brooches; there was a large variety of these shawls, showing many different tartans.

Among the dress shawls were some of the modern long fringed painted silk ones, lovely Spanish lace ones, Shetland, white Kashimin embroidered, Indian silk embroidered, Shetland, and many others, for no two were alike. Among the Paisleys, there was a great variety, some machine woven, some hand made. The special among these was a beautiful hand-made one owned and worn by Mrs. Thompson, president of the Westwood Branch W.I. This shawl is four yards long and two wide. In the centre it has the characteristic plain black, with the design running into it. The outer side is beautifully, solidly embroidered, in the typical Paisley designs. The underside shows the rough ends which distinctly marks the hand work.

The special shawl had to be entered under the Paisley, but is really a different type, though the original Paisley may have gotten the idea from that type, though the design is different. It, too, has the plain back in the centre, with the design running on to it. However, throughout the shawl each seperate piece of black cloth, which is mostly invisible on the outside. Irregular as these pieces are, they are sewn and embroidered together into one perfectly flat piece. In many of the pieces there are insets of some other color—blue, green, fawn or gold, cloth not over one-eighth of an inch wide, forming an irregular oblong design. The edge is of pieces of cloth about two inches long, blue, green, fawn, black, red, and about one-half inch wide, embroidered together, with black thread, about two-thirds of their length, and frayed to form a fringe the other third, and this embroidered to the body. It is a perfectly square shawl, and much prized by the owner. It is a type of shawl which Queen Victoria often gave as a wedding gift.

MILLBROOK

A brief history of Christmas Carol singing was given before a group of Institute women, the topic being most seasonable, and of much interest, the speaker telling that while Yuletide and music are inseparably linked together, it was long centuries ago that carollers and troubadours first began "wafting sweet melody on the midnight air of Christmas Eve."

"The custom has continued through the ages, and still groups of singers bring joy to the homes of shut-ins and sick and aged folk by the singing of familiar hymns and carols that belong especially to the Christmas time. The idea of having a community tree is carried out successfully in many places, and there is no more suitable site or occasion for the singing of carols than round such a gaily-trimmed reminder of the Yuletide season. The folk of the neighborhood, young and old, gathered about the Christmas fir, with its many-colored lights, made possible in this age of electricity, singing the carols that bring to mind the real reason for Christmas as they tell of the Saviour's birth, is a happy means of creating a community spirit and drawing all hearts together in a common interest that cannot well be omitted, and means much in the life of the smaller centres."

"We remember also what a prominent place these songs have in the day school and Sunday School concerts of the season, and if you really want to foster the Christmas spirit have a community entertainment taking in as many as possible of the young folk, and some of the more elderly ones too. As a preliminary to the program have everybody gather about the lighted tree in the town or village square, and sing the familiar favorites like "Silent Night," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "The First Nowell," etc. Then, it may be, out of the 'nippy' air (for let us hope the weather will be keen and frosty, just the right kind for such an occasion), let the carollers lead the march into the hall, and continue the singing of Christmas music in the warm and well-lighted interior, with its Yuletide decorations, before the other acts of the evening are presented."

"You will easily see that a chorus or two by the children will be the best way to begin the Festival, and if these are followed by a pretty, and jolly, Christmas play, or operetta, your program is complete and exactly suitable."

"And now, before I close, may I bring a message of personal responsibility in the peculiar circumstances of this Christmas tide to give to the expression 'good will to all' a deeper meaning than merely one of repetition? How may we, through our actions, individual or collective as Institute members, really make this Christmas one of good cheer and happiness to those less fortunately placed than ourselves? "Give a man a job" is a good slogan this year, and one we should all as homemakers try and carry out in actual practice. This is a much better plan than just handing out charity, or even than equipping soup kitchens, and if at all possible I would suggest that you try and give at least one man work of some kind round your homes, paying him reasonably, this present week and so help him to earn a measure of Christmas cheer for his own household. It will probably surprise some of us what odd jobs can be found for some unemployed if we just set ourselves to look them out and have things done now that perhaps we were putting of 'until a more convenient season.'

"Let us honestly try to bring everyone in our respective circle of influence into the spirit of happiness and good cheer, and so give a real meaning to the phrase we say so glibly, 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'"

LIFFORD LINE

At Christmas time Institute workers and other flower lovers, have plants bestowed upon them, and the problem of how to keep these plants healthy the year-round is a special one. The solution of the problem lies naturally in giving thought and using common sense.

Take the matter of bulb growing for example. A thoughtful observer will notice that in the autumn top growth is checked, and because the ground at the surface is colder than lower down, root growth is encouraged. That, with some bulbs, there must be a chrysalis period of from six to eight weeks, and that plants must be given leisure to send up stem and foliage, make their flowers, etc.

All plants do not flourish in the same type of soil, and all plants do not require the same amount of water as others, nor as much at one season of the year as at another, nor on dull wet days, as on bright, warm, sunshiny ones.

Much depends on the selection of house plants, because those available may be divided into two distinct classes. There are some which should be distinctly considered of "florist type," that is grown by florists for "special season" work, and not guaranteed by them to be for permanent use. Others are of a more permanent character, and hence better suited as house plants. The list of these permits of considerable choice. A favorite Christmas gift plant is the cyclamen, whose flowers will last in good condition for weeks in a cool room where direct sunlight does not strike them. If not allowed to become dry at the root, and if not given more water than they need, they will keep on blooming until it is warm enough to put most plants out-of-doors. Do not allow bright sunshine to strike the plants at any time during their existence, except during very dull winter days, when they will enjoy what sun they can get.

Cactus, the fashionable plant for decorative purposes, requires good drainage and sandy soil. Cacti love heat. These plants require to be thoughtfully watered, as they are a desert plant, accustomed to a rainy season, when they store up moisture for the drought which follows. The Christmas cactus is a permenent houseplant, but some experience difficulty with its culture. One person will insist that it must be kept very dry, while another vows it must be fairly moist. The truth of the matter is that the plant is usually grafted upon the broad-leafed pereskia, a plant which requires more water, and is able to withstand more than the Christmas cactus were it upon its own roots. If the cactus is ungrafted water must be very carefully considered or rotting will follow.

A plant which is given for its bright berries is the Jerusalem cherry. It is unfortunately beloved by the red spider. The evidence of this pest's presence is the discoloration of the leaves, and the remedy seems to be a washing of the leaves. However since prevention is better than cure, the cleansing of the leaves should be a habit. Avoid direct sunlight while the plant has its berries, or the dropping of these may be hastened thereby. After the berries or "cherries," have dropped, gradually withhold water until the growth matures somewhat. The shoots should be pruned back to within an inch or so of the main stem. When all danger of frost has passed put the plant outdoors until time to repot and prepare for indoor duty again.

The poinsettia is sometimes not the joy its recipient at Christmastide expects it to be. It will get along with less water than many other plants. While its leafage is not great the stems are plentifully charged with a milky sap. While not to be over-watered yet it must never be allowed to suffer for want of water. As soon as the leaves and bracts begin to fall, gradually withhold water until the soil becomes "dust dry," for the plant now needs a rest, and the best way to cause it to become dormant is to lessen the water supply and put it in a cool (not freezing) place, where it will not wilt entirely until May or June, when it may be set outdoors.

and regained first place in the Scottish League First Division race to-day by winning 4-0 over the strong St. Mirren squad. Celtic dropped two points behind the leaders with a loss to Aberdeen in a one-goal game.

Celtic also gave way to Motherwell, who went into second place, only a point behind Rangers, with a 3-1 verdict over Kilmarnock. Rangers 35 points, Motherwell 34 and Celtic 33.

Hearts dropped back a place, losing to Partick Thistle 1-2. Hamilton lost to Dundee 1-2, and St. Johnstone picked up only a point when Third Lanark held them to a 2-2 tie.

In the Second Division, Hibernians lengthened their lead over Queen of the South to five points. The leaders defeated Dundee United 2-0, while Queen's drew 2-2 with Leith Athletic.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

Bethany High School.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, December 24. — A splendid program was given by the pupils of the High School recently for the Christmas closing event, when the pupils and teacher of the Public School room were guests for the entertainment hour.

The opening selection, "Oh, Canada," was given by 12 seniors, followed by a French play taken by Beverley Dawe and Arthur Patterson, the French version, and Jack Hannah, Ralph Preston and Ronald Gillies, the English version.

Other numbers included an Irish Lilt, by Pauline Thorndyke, Irene Weatherilt, Helen Rowan, Loraine Jackson, Madeline Whiteside, Jean Smith, Letty Vanderyagt; Wand Drill, by five boys; recitation, Letty Vanderyagt, in Dutch language, and interpreted in English.

Prizes Awarded.

The awarding of the various prizes was an interesting part of the program. The first prize for an essay for the second form, was won by Pauline Thorndyke; poem, 1st prize, Helen Rowan.

First prize for Latin, Beverly Dawe, Form II.

First prize, French, Loraine Jackson, Form II.

Form I—1st prize for essay Letty Vanderyagt; Botany, first prize, Ralph Preston; Latin, 1st prize, Irene Weatherilt; French, 1st prize, Jean Smith.

Play Presented

The next item on the program was a play entitled "Happy Christmas After All," by the 12 pupils, at the close of the first act, of which Helen Rowan recited "Ma Normandie." Each member of the cast protrayed his or her part very well, indeed.

Refreshments of sweetmeats and fruit were served during the intermissions which finally closed with the National Anthem.

Juniors Entertain

Immediately following the High School entertainment, the pupils and their guests together with the principal, Miss Tanner, were asked to assemble in the Public School room, and were entertained for the remainder of the afternoon session at a concert prepared by the juniors under the supervision of Mrs. Carscadden, teacher of the Public School.

The scholars acquitted themselves in splendid form, reflecting great credit on the efforts of the teacher, the program opening with the usual opening exercises, and a speech by Malcom Lowes followed by a chorus by the school, "Glad Christmas Bells," recitation, Charlie Weatherilt; song, "The First Nowell," and a march, followed by a recitation by Yvonne Rowan; mouth organ solo, Harry Foster; recitation, Ralph Rowland; short play in costume, "The Vegetable Garden," recitation, "Teddy Mairs," followed by carol singing. Pauline Jamieson gave a humorous recitation between the carols, "Good Christian Men Rejoice," solo, Albert Denne, was splendidly rendered, with Ruth Rowland at the organ; recitations were given by Orville Muirhead, Bernice Mairs, Lauretta Rowan and Betty Stevenson, Doreen Smith, Charlie Morton and Isobel Jackson; monologue, Ronnie Patterson; mouth organ solo, Harry Foster.

The two-part songs, "Joy to the World," and "Silent Night," by these young singers were most remarkable and sweetly rendered. The exercises, the Rag Dolls, caused much merriment for the audience. "The Carols," "My Task," "Love at Home," in two-part song, and "He is Knocking," were very special numbers.

Candy and nuts were served and the gifts were distributed from the well laden Christmas tree, followed by "Away in a Manger," and the Evening Prayer.

BALLYDUFF, Dec. 24 (Examiner Correspondence) — The initial Christmas entertainment for this season in our locality was held at Ballyduff on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the public school and Presbyterian Sunday School with Miss Henders, teacher, and her assistants in charge of the program.

The program: A two-act playlet entitled "Christmas Secrets" introducing the element of mystery, was followed with keen interest and much enjoyed by all.

Fern Gray contributed an appropriate recitation.

A dialogue "Farm for sale" received warm ppplausee from tha crowd.

Verdun Lethangue gave a pleasing Christmas reading.

"Christmas in Mother Goose Land," was a most interesting dialogue especially for the junior members.

Several pupils participated in the much enjoyed dialogue, "Cure for the Rheumatiz."

"Poor old Maid," was the theme of an entertaining song by the pupils. The boys who were not to be surpassed by the girls put on a drill of their own in very clever manner.

A dialogue "Aunt Serena as a Christmas Present," created much enthusiasm and hearty clapping.

"The Day after Christmas" was the title of a dialogue which introduced ideas of which those present hitherto had not been thinking.

"Santa's Helpers," was a bright song among the concluding numbers. It was followed by gay "Christmas Carols," by the school.

Mildred Gray in pleasing voice gave the closing address expressive of appreciation of the presence of the guests, and extending the compliments of the season to them.

The National Anthem brought the delightful program to a close.

George Chapman gaily attired in red and white impersonated jolly old St. Nick in an efficient manner, leading the attention of those present to the inviting Christmas tree.

Ember goose is a Hebridean name for the loon.

Dotted motifs are appearing in the later models for evening gowns —silver dots on black, black with gold dots.

TO-NIGHT is the Eve of Lighted Candles!

* * * * * * *

Perhaps you have never heard of this custom—a significant and decorative one, which was started in Boston.

* * * * * * *

It is based on the tradition that a candle burning in the window of a home will light the footsteps of the Christ Child to the house, and He will dwell herein during the coming year.

* * * * * * *

Since an unbounding Love is the great attribute of the Master of Christianity, this beckoning light typifies a summons to that beautiful tender spirit of affection which centres about a home and radiates to everyone who steps within its portals, or who comes in contact with a member of the household.

* * * * * * *

Here in Peterborough we see homes and places of business beautifully decorated for this Christmas season, and the radiant lights contribute their share of beauty to the scene.

* * * * * * *

As you pass by places where you see much has been done in preparation for Christmas by decorating, especially the exterior of the home, you will get a great deal of enjoyment out of it.

* * * * * * *

Its beautiful significance should be understood by passers-by where the practice is observed.

* * * * * * *

And so, if you haven't done your part toward helping to bring cheer to others, and if you have never kept the Eve of Lighted Candles, let us put at least one lighted candle, even if it is an electric candle, in the window, and join with the families in foreign lands and in our own country who celebrate the Eve of Lighted Candles in this decorative way.

* * * * * * *

But just a word of warning—if you put a lighted candle in the window, be very careful to see that there is nothing near the flame which might catch fire.

* * * * * * *

It would be much better not to have a candle at all, rather than have a fire in the home, especially at this time.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL

It is continually demonstrated that a player may bid like a fool and play his cards like an expert, or vice versa. The hand that follows was just dealt and played at The Cavendish club, New York. Certainly the bidding was awful, but the play was excellent—or accidental, although the squeeze obtained can be made against any subsequent play of A-B, after the opening diamond lead.

Y's Hand.

Spades J 8 7 5 4 2
Hearts A 10
Clubs A K Q
Diamonds A 9

Z's Hand

Spades A 3
Hearts Q 4
Clubs J 9 8 5 4
Diamonds K J 10 7

A's Hand

Spades K Q 10
Hearts K 7 3
Clubs 7 6
Diamonds 8 6 5 4 2

B's Hand

Spades 9 6
Hearts J 9 8 6 5 2
Clubs 10 3 2
Diamonds Q 3

Bidding went as follows: Z, Pass; A, Pass; Y, 1-Spade; Z, 1-No Trump; Y, 3-Spades; Z, 3-No Trumps, holding the contract.

The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. Wanting certain entry in his own hand to play the long club suit, dummy's Ace won the first trick, and dummy won the next three tricks, by playing off its clubs. A had to discard on the third club, and he let go his lowest diamond.

The 9 of diamonds was led from dummy. B's Q fell to the declarer's K. On the two clubs led by the declarer A discarded one heart and one diamond. Dummy's two lowest spades were discarded. B discarded his lowest heart and his lowest spade. No matter what happened, B could not hope to win a single trick.

Z had won seven straight tricks—five clubs and two diamonds. Next he took in his J and 10 of diamonds, giving him the nine tricks that he had bid. A followed suit on the first diamond, then he had to discard on the second diamond. He held only the K-3 of hearts and the K-Q-10 of spades. A felt that he had to let go his 10 of spades, and preserve the guard to his K of hearts. The fact that A let go so high a card as the 10 of spades, and guarded his hearts as much as possible, rather plainly located the missing K of hearts in A's hand.

Z had two ways whereby he could play the remaining cards so as to lose only a single trick. He could discard another spade from dummy, leaving in that hand only the J-8 of spades and the A-10 of hearts; he could discard the low heart from dummy, leaving therein the J-8-7 of spades and the lone Ace of hearts. As the cards lay it may no difference which he did, Z could lose only one spade trick, by laying down his Ace of spades and another one. Thus forcing the winner of that trick to lead a heart. As A held the K of hearts, two hearts in dummy and two hearts in the declaring hand would have given the declarer the last two tricks.

However, the declarer elected to play the hand the other possible way. He discarded dummy's heart when he saw A hold on to his heart guard and let go the 10 of spades. The tenth trick went to the declarer's Ace of spades, and a spade lead at the eleventh trick gave A his one and only trick. A led his lowest heart. Dummy's Ace won the trick, and its good J of spades won the last trick.

If played at spades only five-odd could have been made, as A must have won two trump tricks. How it happened that Z did not bid clubs, instead of no-trumps is hard to understand. The same kind of strategy at clubs would have given the small slam that he made at no-trumps. Possibly a small slam might have been bid as clubs. No sane bidder could have ventured a small slam contract at no-trumps.

What Today Means to YOU

by MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN"

If December 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 11.45 a.m., from 5.30 p.m. to 6.45 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 2.30 p.m. to 3.30 p.m.

Influences operative in this date are not conducive to the ultimate success of ventures begun. It would seem advisable to postpone for some days the putting of any new plans or ideas into operation. This does not mean that ideas and inspirations received, and plans formulated on this December 24th will prove of no avail. Simply, it seems advisable to delay for a period, acting upon them.

Born on this December 24th, the child will be a healthy normal child, and will most probably lead a rather routine life. In his early teens, the child will possibly show a decided aptitude in one of the arts, probably writing or painting. He may or may not follow the inclination as a life work, but it should remain with him as a hobby. An idealistic and dreamy mind, inclined to highly fantastic and imaginative wanderings. Not a practical youngster.

If December 24th is your birthday you will in all probability enjoy a long and eventful life, one that will lead you through all sorts of experiences in all parts of the world. You have a nature that constantly demands that you be doing something new, something interesting, and preferably, something creative. You do not have the patience to carry out routine duties nor to follow other people's commands and plans. Rather, you create yourself, put your ideas into practice and when they begin to take firm root, on you must go to something else.

Yours is a free and easy nature. You make friends quickly, wherever you are. There is something within you that hold them even though you do not see them for years at a time. You are extremely fair in your dealings with others and are the type of person who will ask no one what you would not be willing to do for yourself. You take love lightly; you believe that marriage would bore you, and probably you would be restless if you felt that you had to lead a settled married existence. Whether a man or woman, you enjoy children but do not crave to have any of your own. You probably prefer to be called Aunt of Uncle by all the kids in town.

"CAPRICORN"

If December 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11.15 a.m., from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. and from 11.30 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8.30 a.m. to 9.45 a.m. and from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Conditions within the home should be harmonious and peaceful on this December 25th. Great comfort should come to those who are able to be with their families. The atmosphere will not be hilarious, but generally helpful. A let down and resultant tendency to gloom may be apparent in the later day.

The child born on this December 25th will be able to glide happily and successfully through life. Luck will always seem to be on his side. A bright and sunny disposition will assure him many friends, both men and women. He will probably make a good deal of money and his name will stand for things worth while both within his community and beyond its limits.

Born on December 25th, you do not have the qualities that make for popularity. You are extremely proud, not too democratic, and not a little aloof. You are very sensitive and your feelings are easily hurt; you must learn not to wear them on your coat sleeve. You are inclined to be nervous and fidgety, seldom composed and at ease, even when by yourself. You have great desires and ambitions which you should like to attain, but as you express these, you at the same time have the feeling that they are way beyond you and that you probably will never reach your goal. In other words, you are lacking in self-confidence.

If December 25th is your birthday, you are inclined to be a religious person. You are spiritual. If you should become interested in some religious faith or movement it would not be at all surprising that you should devote your life to it. You will no doubt marry, though not very early in life. If a man your marriage will most probably be one of convenience rather than of deep love. Your married life should be a most happy and fruitful one. Your happiest moments will be spent in companionship of your mate. You will most probably not have many children; you may feel the need and desire of adopting a child.

"CAPRICORN"

If December 26th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6.30 a.m. to 7.45 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12 a.m. and from 4.45 p.m. to 5.50 p.m.

Without striving too hard on this date, things will seem to come your way. Influences operating will tend to bring about emotional unstability. People will seem to swing on the slightest provocation from one emotional extreme to the other. Those in love will probably run into stormy seas. Look out for broken engagements on this date

Born on this December 26th, the child will probably be sturdier than most youngsters. He will exhibit more independence and initiative than most children. He will be extremely responsive to kindness and affection and the right kind of encouragement given him in his early years will do much to get him properly launched in life. The child may show signs of undue sensitiveness.

If December 26th is the date of your birth, you are the type of person who has no fears about the future; you do not worry about the possible "rainy days" ahead. On the other hand, you are careful to live today rightly, to lay a very good foundation in the present, so that you may continue building well tomorrow. This is sound philosophy. You have a great deal of confidence in yourself; but in no sense at all, are you conceited or egotistical. You simply know very definitely your own abilities; and in keeping with that, you face the situation very squarely, and at the same time know beyond question your own limitations. Having in your own consciousness determined your boundaries, you set yourself to work on the right track, headed in the right direction, and at the proper speed, and by constant effort you see to it that YOU GET THERE. You can handle adequately any job you put your mind to, and without seeking changes in your work, you in all probability will have a varied and interesting business career.

People like you; they come to you without your seeking them. They often seek your advice and aid. The latter you never withhold if you have assured yourself that it is for a worthy purpose. An understanding husband or wife.

MAY your Christmas be one of Health, Happiness and Contentment. May your fireside be a scene of family joy; and in the New Year may your larder never be found empty for lack of means.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS AND THIS LAST

By E. M. Cook

The first Christmas like every Christmas since was ushered in with evidences of great gladness. Not all rejoiced even of those who knew something of the purpose of His coming. Neither do all rejoice to-day and the reasons are still much the same. Rightly understood, however, there is no reason why everyone should not rejoice over the event with exceeding great joy. "When they (the Wise Men) saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy." Christmas is a portent and prophecy of great good to all peoples for "Unto Him shall the gatherings of the people be." "Let us also celebrate the attractive power of One, who, from the moment he entered into this world, has stirred human society to its very depths, has laid his hand upon every class, compelled the most powerful to consider him, drawn the most humble to worship him, revealed the beauty of purity, satisfied the demand of wisdom, and has been the meeting place for the human race."

A statement often made in jest is "Once a man, twice a child," but it is also suggestive of possible beautiful truth. The greatest good and the purest joy possible for human kind can come only to the unsophisticated and childlike in heart. Only so is it possible to enter the Kingdom of Heaven. Man, with his love of power, wealth and authority, even ostentation in religion, has not yet glimpsed the significance of God incarnate in the Babe of Bethlehem. But there was one in Jerusalem, Simeon, an aged man, waiting for the consolation of Israel, who, when the Child was brought in, rejoiced in spirit for his prayers were answered. The consolation of the present and the promise of the future were brought to him in a little child but who could read its meaning but one of childlike heart? The aged and the children meet at Christmas around the Child.

Another truth often seen in life is that the intuition and simplicity of the pure in heart and the patient searching of the wise scholar lead the same truth and satisfaction. This is not strange for Truth dwells with those who are humble of heart. And so at that first Christmas we see Mary, the youthful, simple, pure virgin of Nazareth, to whom was given the secret and honor of the incarnation, and Anna, the very aged widow, who spoke of the Child to "all them that were looking for the redemption of Israel," and also the Magi from the East, who, when they "saw the young child with Mary his mother they fell down and worshipped him." To-day, in the Oxford Movement, we see what many have always known, men of learning and culture along with others of place and honor recapturing the simple gladness, purity and abandon of primitive Christian faith because they too have found God in Christ.

There were others at that first Christmas much concerned about the Child, those who represented the two extremes of a class and caste divided society,—the king and the shepherds. The latter were overawed by the suddenness and strangeness of the revelation that came to them but their fear was quickly changed to joy. The angels' message was 'good tidings'—'great joy'—'to all people'—'a Saviour, the Anointed Lord'—'peace and good-will.' All the circumstances of Christ's coming, the nature of His after life, and the spirit and subject matter of his teaching, constitute a message of hope and salvation to all the poor and sad and enslaved everywhere. The message of the Book of Revelation is the teaching of a man who had had time to ponder long upon the Person and teaching of Jesus Christ until he saw the terrible implications of that teaching as applied to the realism of a force controlled civilization.

"And with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And man, at war with man, hears not
The love song which they bring;
O hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And ye, beneath life's crushing load
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the climbing way
With painful steps and slow,
Look now for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing;
O rest beside the weary road,
And hear the angels sing."

In knowing and following Christ men will lose nothing but their chains. In the great slave emancipation movement men were inspired as they accepted his leadership and in the earlier days of the Labor movement in Great Britain men cheered the name of Jesus. So in times of religious revival bondage of evil habit they sang

"The Lion of Judah shall break every chain
And give us the victory again and again."

Even the meek Mother Mary sang "He hath shewed strength with his arm, He hath scattered the proud, He hath put down the princes, and hath exalted them of low degree."

Word came to the king about the Child but not from heaven. He also showed great interest but for other motives. He scented [illegible] and danger and reacted by craftiness and cruelty. The slaughter of the innocents began a terror continued ever since between enthroned injustice and helpless innocence. Much of this awful slaughter has been caused because of a misunderstanding of the nature and purpose of the Child. Christ is not against any king or authority as such but only against tyranny and insolence, cruelty and injustice, unmercifulness and indifference.

Last of all word came to the church and then not by angels but from the king. The church still, on occasion, is of service to the State, as in the time of war. On many occasions it has gone solemnly into conference, as at this first Christmas, over this Christ Child, while the angels burst into song. We often deliberate and issue a statement when we should be singing doxologies. To the king on his throne, to the banker in his counting house, to the merchant concerned about his merchandise on down to the despondent man without work and income let it be said that there is nothing to fear about the coming of the Christ Child. Only note this:—

"Though Christ in Bethlehem a thousand times were born,
If He's not born in thee thy heart is still forlorn."

This too must be said that his coming into the heart has terribly unexpected possibilities and perhaps this is why we fear him for the most of us are moral cowards. When he comes in the king may no longer value his crown but like the king in "Why the Chimes Rang" lay the crown on Christ's altar. To the banker he might say "Sell all that thou hast and give to the poor and come follow me.

Whatever or wherever our place the truth is that when Christ is born in the heart we are no longer afraid of the brotherhood of man even if that should result in a classless society.

"God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ our Saviour
Was born on Christmas day,
To save us all from Satan's pow'r
When we were gone astray;
O tidings of comfort and joy.

Now to the Lord sing praises,
All you within this place,
And with true love and brotherhood
Each other now embrace;
This holy tide of Christmas
All other doth deface.
O tidings of comfort and joy."

Marlboros and Falls Win Senior O. H. A. Decisions

DUKES SCORE ANOTHER WIN ON HOME ICE

Kitchener Defeated in O.H.A. Senior Game 4-1 Despite Fine Effort.

NATIONALS LOSE OUT 4-2.

Cataracts Score Twice in Third Period to Win Game at Niagara.

(By the Canadian Press)

Ably supported by the addition of Jack Shill from their junior team, Toronto Marlboros had today stretched their winning streak to six straight games. Weakened by the absence of "Pud" Kitchen, their brilliant defenceman, the Dukes, with Shill scoring half their goals, defeated Kitchener Empires, 4-1 at Toronto last night.

Niagara Falls Cataracts broke their tie with Hamilton Tigers for second place, by downing Toronto Nationals, 4-2, last night before 2,000 falls fans, and in doing so kept within striking of the rampaging Dukes.

Kitchener matched stride for stride with the fast skating Dukes for the first two sessions, but tapered off in the last period and Marlboros ran in three goals for their winning margin.

Score In Second

The first period was scoreless and it was not until near the end of the second period that Shill clicked for the first marker of the game. Jimmy Primeau carried the puck down the ice and slipped a pass across in front of the goal, and Shill coming in fast bulged the net with a difficult shot.

Johnny McNeill increased this lead, when he took another of Primeau's passes to outguess Berner in the Kitchener nets and poke the disc into the net. Whitey Farrant followed this up with another goal after taking a pass from Bob Davidson to make the score 3-0.

Red Mitchell finally penetrated the superb defence set up by Andy Goldie in the Marlboro nets, firing a long shot which found its mark. After this break, Empires threw their whole team forward on the attack and Shill broke fast to coast in on Berner for his second counter of the game.

Star Regulars Absent

Chuck Roth, the clever centre of Kitchener and Lederman, their sterling defenceman were absent. Schiebel filled Roth's shoes very capably at centre ice and received plenty of assistance from Hock and Bobby Fellbaum.

As this was Shill's second game in senior ranks, he will be unable to return to the junior Dukes, but judging from his performance last night, he should experience little trouble in holding his own in the faster company.

Play At Fast Clip

Niagara Falls came back after their defeat in Hamilton on Tuesday, to show some of the remarkable speed of which they boast. Nationals also have their share of speedsters and as a result, the team put on a sparkling display [illegible] Cataract fans. Harvey McLeod gave the Sea Fleas the lead, when he rushed by himself and backhanded one past Esseltine, Maxie Kaminsky duplicated this shortly after the second period got under way when he worked his way past the National defence to score by the backhand route. Gordie Peterkin gave the homesters a lead when he captured a pass-out from George Hastie to slip the disc behind Goalie Ronnie Geddes.

Before the period ended Huggins had tied the score on an individual rush. The game was decided in the last period when Kaminsky and Kalbfleisch scored after snaring the rebound from "Chet" Steel's shots.

MORE VALUE FOR THEIR MONEY, IS DEMAND OF U. S. SPORT FANS

Old Sports Ballyhoo For Crowd Getting Only Hollow Shell in 1932.

DEMANDS QUALITY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (A.P.) — The old sports ballyhoo, surefire crowd getter of a few years back, was only a hollow shell in 1932.

No longer the gullible creature of the golden era of 1921-28, Mr. John H. Fan, vintage of 1932, demanded full value for his money and scanned extravagant claims with a critical eye. He still was eager for amusement, but he demanded better quality and cheaper rates.

This turn toward a little discrimination on the part of those who pay the freight, was the outstanding development of the year in the opinion of many sports experts of U. S. who contributed to the 1932 Associated Press poll.

It was reflected, many observers pointed out, in a general scaling down of admission prices as well as in concerted efforts by promoters of both professional and amateur sports, to give the public what it wanted.

In a general way, the experts called attention to ten specific trends in sports during the year:

1.—Better short "sh'," meeting the demands of more discriminating fans.

2.—General economy in operations and reduced ticket prices.

3.—Rules legislation to safeguard or improve football and basketball.

4.—De-emphasis of college football with the accent on team pay.

5.—Decline of minor league baseball.

6.—Greater individual participation, especially in less-costly sports.

7.—Increase in golf play.

8.—Slump in professional boxing.

9.—Development of more interest in girls' athletics.

10.—Progress in some professional sports, especially wrestling and football.

Goalie Is Injured In Madoc Ice Tilt

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Dec. 24. — Wednesday evening saw the first hockey game of the season at Madoc skating arena. An exhibition game was played between Madoc's stalwart and the Tweed team. Many of the prospective players of each team were tried out with a view to selecting the season's teams. During the first few minutes' play, Clinton Nickle, substituting as goalie for Tweed, was unfortunate enough to be knocked out by a flying shot from Henderson's (Madoc) stick. Striking him full in the face, smashing the bridge of his nose, Nickle was carried off the ice to the dressing rooms in an unconscious condition. Dr. Eagleson was hastily summoned and rendered first aid, after which Nickle was taken to the doctor's Surgery and his wound dressed, a stitch being required to close it. He was able to be removed to his home, where he is reported to be recovering as rapidly as can be expected. Resulting score, 3-2 in favor of Madoc.

Do Big Leaguers Believe In Santa?

TORONTO, Dec. 24 (C.P.) — Christmas means just added labor for hockey's big leaguers this weekend, but don't think the boys are not in favor of a visit by Santa Claus. They have written to old St. Nick to make 1933 arrangements along these lines:

Toronto Maple Leafs.—A general 'flu epidemic among the Americans when they hit Toronto, or Toronto hits New York.

Montreal Maroons. — Another sharpshooter like Baldy Northcott.

Ottawa Senators.—Just a few more home games.

Montreal Canadiens. — Wings, wings, so the Flying Frenchmen can fly.

New York Rangers.—Continued good health for Messrs. William and Frederick Cook and Mr. Frank Boucher.

Chicago Black Hawks.—A watchful vigil over the personal safety of Charlie Gardiner.

New York Americans.—More of the Leafs and less of the Rangers, Bruins, Canadiens, Maroons, Senators, Hawks and Red Wings.

Boston Bruins.—Added power for the powerhouse.

Detroit Red Wings.—Somethings —"there must be something," says Jack Adams.

Black Hawks carry the heaviest Christmas burden. They meet the Leafs at Toronto to-night, then move on down to Detroit Sunday for combat with the Wings, who just a week ago surprised Border fandom by trouncing Boston. New York Americans play Canadiens at Montreal, and Boston visits Ottawa in the other Saturday contests.

Sunday night Maroons play the Rangers at New York.

Harvard Is Beaten By McGill 5 To 2

MONTREAL, Dec. 24 (C.P.)—The Crimson of Harvard to-day had bowed to the Red of McGill.

The two colleges last night played a second of a home-and-home exhibition hockey series, McGill winning 5 to 2. The first game, played at Boston last Saturday, resulted in a victory for the Canadian University by 4 to 2, and the round was McGill's, 9 to 4.

The New Englanders presented a well-knit defence, but only indifferent scoring punch. Each team scored in the first period. Captain Bob Saltonstall tallying for Harvard after Kenny Farmer had put McGill one up.

The Canadians were not headed after that. In the second period they punched in three goals; Nels Crutchfield, Robertson and Farquharson netting. The third period saw Milton Pruyn score Harvard's second goal and Jack McGill rapped in the concluding tally.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, as the folks what read this breezy household journal and the few what was at the rink know the lid was pried off of the local hockey season Tues. nite when the Campbellford lads hooked up with the local talent in a exhibition fracas. The game was a pretty fair opening fixture, both teams stepping on the gas as if they was in extra good fettle. Mister Wright's athaletes just did manage to cop the verdict by the odd goal in 9, as our soccer friends put it, but it was a tight squeeze, for they didn't have nothing, if anything, over the gang from our eastern suburb. In fact, the Campbellford crew was in front with about 10 mins. to go, and the boys had to put on a garrison finish to get in front, Mister Ted Lebarr galloping through the opposition to notch the winning marker. Mister Wright uncovered some good material, and if it can be turned into a team, there being quite a difference between the 2 things, why the Petes oughta give us a lotta entertainment during the winter nites. They open here next Fri. nite against Bowmanville, and the fans better put that date down in their note books because it should oughta produce a real snappy game of this here 1933 brand a hockey. The Bowmanville gang generally plays their best hockey right here in Peterborough, and the home fellows better not under-rate the Rubbertown galaxy.

The new rules didn't make much of a hit Tues. nite, although of course the teams ain't got on to the knack of forward passing like they will later on. Looks to me as if the amateurs might just as well go the whole hog and adopt the professional code with forward passing in all 3 zones. As for that new body - checking, everybody - behind - the - blue - line rule, I've seen riots caused by less than that. The idea that every invader whether he is in the play or not can be bumped off ain't the kind of thing that goes to make peaceful hockey. The bird that is 25 feet away from the puck and gets stood on his ear by some husky defender is quite likely to forget hisself and come up swinging, which will cause considerable wear on the hinges of the penalty box door. However, they've made the rules, so let them get bumped off by them.

Nothing much more of note this week. My old college chum, Mister Lefty Grove, has been acclaimed champ thrower of the American League for the past season, making 4 times in a row for the elongated left-hander. Mister Grove may not be as popular as some, but when it comes to whissing a horsehide covered projectile past a batter they still gotta take their hats off to the southpaw.

Another feature of the week was Mister Strangler Lewis, the aged grappler, tossing 2 grunt and groaners in succession on the same bill. Mister Lewis laid Mister Leo Pinetski, the Polish mountain, and Mister Sammy Stein, the Jewish rassler, like a coupla rugs, and whether that was under orders or not, it was enough to make the ancient 1 look like about the best of the crop.

Well, Mac, here's wishing you and all the customers the very happiest kind a Christmas, and don't forget the folks which ain't so lucky.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Scout News and Notices

Members of 6th Peterborough (St. Peter's) Troop are all hard at work, it is learned, in studying for their ambulance badges. They are receiving first aid instruction under capable direction of Bob Flint, a member of the Troop Committee, who served in the War with an ambulance Division.

Scoutmaster Ernest Wolff has brought the entire troop through the tenderfoot stage, and is now pushing them ahead on the proficiency badge work. The ambulance badge is one that every scout should have. First aid knowledge can be put to good practical use almost every day.

It is the unflagging interest of such Scoutmasters that is keeping the organization on its feet. Recently the S.M.'s of St. Peter's and St. Luke's Troops got into a huddle, and an inter-troop meeting resulted over in the Scout headquarters.

Other troops might hold similar meetings with decided mutual advantage. There is nothing like getting to know the other fellow and to appreciate his point of view. An interchange of ideas is also made possible under such a system of meeting.

There has been some talk lately of the formation of a Scout Association Hockey League. Such a league did operate here some few years ago, but it died a natural death. This would seem to be a good time to revive interest in such sport among the boy scouts. The organization needs something of the sort to knit it together into a more complete whole.

Request for contributions to this column from Scoutmasters of the various troops, has gone practically unheeded, and it is hoped that it is not indicative of suspension of activity.

Any items of Scout interest will be gladly received for this weekly column, although contributors will bear in mind that "copy" must be in by not later than Thursday night of each week.

And now here's hoping every Boy Scout and Wolf Cub a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

VICTORY OF SOMERVILLE IS FEATURE OF 1932 SPORT YEAR

Such is Opinion of Canadian Sports Writers in Vote to Determine Dominion's Greatest Athlete of Year.

(By Elmer Dulmage, C. P. Staff Writer)

Toronto, Dec. 24.—Sports writers of Canada today presented C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., with a Christmas present — The title of Canada's greatest athlete for 1932.

Somerville

They found no difficulty in naming the silent linksman to the ranking position among Dominion athletes on the strength of his triumph in Septermber in the United States amateur golf championship. Other victors and near-winners in international sport competition were mentioned but none threatened Somerville's supremacy.

Wide-Open Field

Requested by the Canadian Press to submit choices this week, the newspaper writers took in a wide field as they picked out favored stars from as widely separated plaes of endeavor as boxing's battle pits and the football gridiron. But 43 of the 63 voters called Somerville.

The result was a distinct turnover from the choice by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada early this month of Alex Wilson, Montreal middle distance star who finished second in the 800 metres at the Los Angeles Olympic games. Wilson received only four votes in the poll of sports writers.

In the country-wide vote, Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver, fighting Irish welterweight who has feasted on plenty of champions and ex-champs without ever annexing a title for himself, placed second with five votes. Wilson and Dupcan McNaughton, Vancouver's Olympic high jump champion, each received four.

Others Mentioned

Seven other were mentioned, each getting a single ballot. They are Howie Morenz and Lionel Conacher, hockey players; Frank Turville, all-eastern backfield star of Hamilton Tigers, Canadian football champions; Torchy Peden of Victoria, king of North America's six-day bicycle racers; Horace (Lefty) Gwynne of Toronto, Olympic bantamweight boxing champion; Winnipeg's Frankie Battaglia, challenger for the world middleweight ring title and Giant Bobby Pearce of Hamilton, Australian who won his second straight Olympic single sculls title last summer.

The writers were permitted to vote for either amateur or professional athletes.

Colonel Adalberto J. Tejeda, former governor of Vera Cruz and storm centre of the difficulties between agragarians and the federal government, who is now seeking the presidency of Mexico on the radical Socialist ticket. Colonel Tejeda recently conferred with General Plutarco Calles, Mexico's strong man, at Mexico City.

BARNSTORMING DURING SUMMER IMPROVES HOCKEYISTS' PLAYING

Northcott, Dutton, Thomson and Ripley Going Great Guns This Schedule.

SOFTBALL OR BASEBALL.

CALGARY, Dec. 24 (C.P.)—As a baseball team Red Dutton's "Pucksters' may not compare with the New York Yankees, but last Summers barnstorming through Alberta towns seems to have made better hockey players of most of them. The squad, composed of professional hockeysts played baseball or softball, just as the opposition asked. Performing in their colorful hockey sweaters of nearly a dozen varieties, they drew many followers of the Winter sport to the bleachers along with the fans who wanted to see them play ball.

Against Albertas senior amateur softball champions the pucksters played 16 innings to a scoreless tie. Baldy Northcott was on the mound and fanned 15 men. During the full game he allowed only one hit. He has shown greatly improved form this year with the high-scoring Montreal Maroons, and is now well up in the point-standing.

Behind the Plate

Red Dutton, manager of the team, was catcher in many of the games and in the rest he played second base. Although not as spry as he was a few years back, Dutton holds a regular berth on the defence of the New York Americans.

Tiny Thompson, Boston Bruin goal-keeper, shed his hockey pads and played first base. His Summer of baseball may have improved his form, for this year he is playing far better than he did last.

Paul Thompson and Vic Ripley, both members of the Chicago Blackhawks, were on the team and both are going just as good if not better this season than they did last. Thompson is right up with the leaders in the American section of the National Hockey League.

Gainor Much Better

Another member of the pucksters who is getting more goals this year than he did last is Dutch Gainor. ven though he was in the Doldrums all last season with the New York Rangers, this year on the Ranger farm, the Springfield Indians, he is very close to the top of the Canadian-American point standing.

Other minor leaguers who played on the Pucksters are doing just as well as Gainor. These include Sam Timmis, lanky goalie of the St. Paul Greyhounds, Lorne Carr, forward of the Buffalo Bisons, Stew Adams of the Syracuse Stars, Joe McGoldrick, defence star of the New Haven Eagles and Red McFarlane of the Cleveland Indians.

On a baseball diamond this aggregation might not even score a run in a game with the Boston Red Sox, but they are now all giving top-notch performances with their various hockey teams. Doubtless baseball is responsible for it.

TEXAS "WONDER" KNEW RULES CONCERNING AD ENDORSEMENT

Avery Brundage Defends Charges Against Amateur Athletic Union.

CAPITALIZE ON PUBLICITY.

(By Charles Dunkley—A.P. Sports (Writer).

CHICAGO, Dec. 24 (C.P.).—Maybe the Greeks were right after all. Avery Brundage, president of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union, sighed to-day as he read the latest episode of the Mildred "Babe" Didrikson case.

"You know, the ancient Greeks kept women out of their athletic games," he recalled. "They wouldn't even let them on the side lines. I'm not so sure but they were right."

Defends A.A.U.

With that he sailed in to defend the A.A.U. and its rules of amateurism which have been bombarded heavily since Miss Didrikson was suspended on a charge of professionalism, and then reinstated.

"I'm tired of all these charges that the A.A.U. rules were too ambiguous," President Brundage said. "The entire situation is covered in Rule Five in two and a half pages, which set up the whole amateur definition and rules of disbarment. Miss Didrikson knew all about it a year ago. At least the club to which she belongs down in Dallas, Tex., wrote us when the subject of advertisement of a certain milk concern came up.

"Originally, the rule called for disbarment when any amateur athlete endorsed bats, skates or similar articles. Later some of our star swimmers started endorsing a certain brand of cigarettes and the rule was modified to provide that no product of any kind could be endorsed.

"The whole story of the Didrikson case has not been told. I regret to say that she is a girl who delights to see her name in the papers and she is attempting to capitalize on her present publicity. She has been badly advised."

Miss Didrikson, the one woman track team of Olympic fame who was supposed to have arrived in Chicago from St. Louis yesterday, was among the missing to-day. She failed to arrive in Chicago, at least, the reporters and photographers failed to find her, and she was reported to-day to be "on her way west" to make a series of motion pictures.

Presentations Made Friday Night Club

A real festive atmosphere permeated the Friday Night Supper Clubs dinner hour at the Y.M.C.A. last evening, where a special menu that included turkey, was dished up for the occasion.

On behalf of the club members gifts were presented by Graham Eastwood to the young ladies who assisted at the tables throughout the season. Suitable response was made by Miss Edyth Cottrell.

C. A. Salmonsen and G. H. Roper were also the recipients of gifts from the club, the presentation being made by Terry Hall.

From the big Christmas tree, toys were handed out to the club members contributing much to the fun and enjoyment of the evening. The toys were provided by the club and are to be donataed for distribution to needy children.

The Hoodoos, high rock farmations along Bow River, near Banff, Alberta, are one of the interesting sights in Rocky Mountain Park.

(By C.J.P.)

Merry Christmas, Folks! The Sports Department of this paper is extending hearties wishes for a happy Xmas to athletes of the city and district, as well as to fans and followers of the various games, and to all those who read our stuff. This is one time, at least, when we're all in agreement; so Merry Christmas, folks!

* * * * * * *

Here's a letter we received yesterday which might be of interest to hockey teams of the surrounding district: "Dear Sir—The annual meeting of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association will be held in the Iroquois Hotel, Galt, on Saturday evening, December 31st, at eight, for the purpose of organizing, drawing up rules and making plans for the coming season. As you already know the O.R.H.A. has now an associate affiliation with the Ontario Hockey Association, and competes for the Premier George S. Henry trophy.

* * * * * * *

"We are anxious to have your delegation present and take part in the organization, as we are desirous of having a representative slate of officers and executive members. We need workers who will organize their district thoroughly, already several leagues have signified their affiliation.

* * * * * * *

"Let's make this a banner season for this young organization which has but one point in view, and that is endeavouring to give the rural boy an equal chance to develop his sporting ability with fair competition of his own calibre. Rural sport is in for a big season, but co-operation is needed in all sporting activities. Remember the time, place and date and bring along somebody whom you want elected as an officer. An amendment to our rules will also be welcome. Start the New Year right, yours in sport, Lorne Johannes (signed), secretary O.R.H.A."

* * * * * * *

Up this way in Ontario, it seems to us that the rural teams are pretty well matched, and the players aren't thrown in against unfair competition. The only kick we have, and this applies to plenty of cities like Peterborough as well as the villages and hamlets—and that is keep natural-ice groups apart as much as possible from those with artificial rinks. And in the O.H.A. playdowns, if at all possible, group winners which have been playing on natural ice should first meet t oeliminate each other, giving them so much more time and practise before eventually being tossed in against a team of players with four or five months ice-work behind them.

* * * * * * *

The Peterborough Intermediates didn't play the Maroons in Campbellford last night, being notified in the afternoon that the ice was out and the flood in. Tough luck, Maroons, who were figuring on a practise game and a good gate. The Petes hope to be back on ice the first of next week and continue their hard drilling with the O.H.A. opener just a couple of leaps and a bound ahead. And the juniors also want another good week's workout before they'll figure themselves set to start their '33 campaign. Come on, ice, get hard.

* * * * * * *

Amateur hockey is sweeping the Eastern States, drawing crowds up to 11,000 in place like New York, Boston and towns in the midwest like Chicago and Detroit. They have juveniles, junior and senior city leagues on a scale comparing with Toronto or Montreal and outdrawing them by far. Many of the star teams are built around Canadian players, while Canucks for the most part coach in these loops. This is the reason for the C.A.H.A.'s recent order to Canadian amateurs to quit the States or be barred from the Association for a year. * * * * * * *

However, the U. S. officials and the Canadian-born hockey players over there are not worrying much over this order. They claim it is nothing new, and why should the boys return? They're getting more hockey than they would in the overcrowded Canadian leagues, it's plenty close, played under the best of circumstances and before crowds that even the N.H.L. clubs envy. Recently a crowd of 12,000 witnessed an outstanding amateur performance in Madison Square Garden. And a North Bay hockey official, writing to a Toronto paper yesterday, asked them why force the boys to come home and live on their parents in times like these when they've got work in return for playing hockey across the line. That pro-amateur question won't stay unanswered, regardless of the A.A.U. of C.

* * * * * * *

Seven Cowan A. C. fighters and another local boy are taking part in Bill Wellman's introductory boxing show in the Norwood Armouries next Tuesday. Here's the lineup: Jack McIlmoyle vs. Joe Burt; Joe DeNoble against McCarthy; Ray Harding vs. Gord Puffer; Reg. McMillan and Art Gundale; Scotty Keith against Hennessey; Fred Spencer and Kid McCoy; Bat Nelson vs. Jack Chamberlain; and Dutch McIlmoyle going on in the final against George Smith of Campbellford. This card should go over okay in Norwood.

* * * * * * *

Sport fragments: Chapter 8 of the Episode of Babe Didrikson includes her sudden re-instatement by the Southern Amateur body, which had suspended her after she threatened to turn pro; and her refusal now to be re-instated; the story will be continued . . . . It seems on a recent vote that Sandy Somerville is considered the hotcha by sports editors in the matter of being Canada's outstanding athlete in the past year . . . . Jack Johnson, Mike Donlin, Szybyzko, Tom Sharkey, Ryan and Billy Papke (he K. O'd. Stan Ketchel) and other famous sport stars of yesteryear are shown at the Capital tonight in the picture Madison Square Garden.

A LOVE STORY THAT FIRES DRAMA WITH THE HUMAN SPARK!

LONDON HOLDS UNBEATEN MARK INTACT TO-DAY

Tecs Vanquish Stars 2-1 In Latter's Attempt to Regain League Lead.

SPARKLING DISPLAY.

TORONTO, Dec. 24. — (CP) — London Tecumsehs' unbroken record of wins before home-towns is still intact today, despite the determined attempt of Syracuse Stars to mar it. Vanquishing the Stars 2-1 last night, London successfully thwarted Syracuse's big to regain possession of the league leadership, which they relinquished to Tecumsehs during the past week.

The win increased London's margin to three points, but whether this is sufficient to enable them to hold the lead during their approaching week's layoff is problematical, as Syracuse are down for three games during that time and may pick up sufficient points to forge to the front.

Sparkling Display

There was little difference between the teams as they put on a sparkling display before a capacity crowd of 3,500 fans. A goal in each period constituted the scoring and despite the heavy bumping, the game was fairly clean. Eleven penalties were handed out, Syracuse drawing six of them.

Harold Hicks staged a solo sortie after six minutes of play to beat Benny Grant for the first goal and gave the Tecs a lead which was increased in the next period when Tory Gregg scored on a pass from Eric Pettinger.

London played careful hockey after gaining this lead and the visitors stormed Herbie Stuart's citadel with three and four-man attacks. Sparky Adams finally found an opening in the hitherto impregnable Stuart Armour after 16 minutes had been played in the final frame. This marked the first time Stuart had been beaten in four games.

JIMMY SKUNK SHAMES PETER RABBIT

The more Peter Rabbit brooded over his lack of a white coat in winter like that of his cousin, Jumper the Hare, the more convinced he became that Old Mother Nature was not fair. Little Mrs. Peter was shocked. Yes, sir, she was shocked, when Peter called Old Mother Nature unfair, for little Mrs. Peter, like all the other Quaddies, believed that Old Mother Nature gives to each that which is best for them. So little Mrs. Peter was quite upset and begged Peter not to say a thing when others were about. Peter just grumbled and wouldn't make any promises.

So Peter made things very uncomfortable in the dear Old Brier Patch where usually there is such an air of comfort and happiness. He quite disgusted little Mrs. Peter as he brooded and brooded over something which all the brooding in the world wouldn't change one particle. Wasn't it silly of him?

One morning Jimmy Skunk happened along. Of course, he saw right away that something was wrong with Peter. His eyes twinkled "Good morning, Peter," said he. "You seem to have something weighing mighty heavy on your mind. Anything the matter with Mrs. Peter?"

"No," replied Peter.

"Anything the matter with any of the children?" asked Jimmy.

"No," replied Peter.

"Anything the matter with yourself?" asked Jimmy.

"No-o," replied Peter, hesitating a little.

"My, my, my, this is serious!" exclaimed Jimmy. "Nothing the matter with Mrs. Peter, nothing the matter with any of the children, nothing the mater with himself, and yet here is my old friend, Peter Rabbit, looking as if the world were upside down and he had quite fallen out of his place in it. My, my, my. I think I shall have to go consult Old Mother Nature and see if she can find out what the trouble is."

"Anything the matter with any of the children?" asked Jimmy

At the mention of Old Mother Nature blurted out the whole thing. He told Jimmy just what he thought of Old Mother Nature—how unfair he considered her. "Jumper and I are just alike excepting in size. We have the same enemies. Why should he have the protection of a white coat in winter and I not have it?" he concluded.

Jimmy shook his head reproachfully. "Peter," said he, "I'm ashamed of you. I certainly am ashamed of you. You are the very last one I would have suspected of thinking Old Mother Nature doesn't know what she is about. I certainly am ashamed of you. You know just as well as I do that she never gives a thing to any one unless it is really needed. She has given Jumper the Hare a white coat in winter because he needs it. Without it he would have nothing, but those long legs of his to get him out of danger, and you know very well that Old Man Coyote and some of his other enemies can run quite as far as he can. Now you are so small that you can slip into all sorts of places, hollow logs, holes in the ground, and under old stumps, bramble-tangles, places of safety that Jumper cannot possibly get into. And here you are moping about filled with envy because Jumper has something you haven't and don't need. Shame on you, Peter! Shame on you!"

Peter hung his head. Suddenly he saw the truth. He saw that what Jimmy Skunk has said was so. He had no real need of a white coat, while Jumper had. He lifted his head and looked Jimmy Skunk straight in the face.

"Jimmy," said he, "I'll beat you across to the Green Forest, and on the way we'll forget that there ever was anybody so silly as I."

Helping Himself

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.)—George White went into a downtown store. He stole "For Sinners Only," the book which tells of the work of the Oxford Group.

"I was attracted by the title," he said. "And a man who would steal a book like that is either crazy or drunk."

After hearing of White's family, the Magistrate was touched. "All right, I'll give you a chance. Remanded for sentence. And take the book with you. I'll pay for it."

Wishing all a Very Joyful Christmas, and may your New Year abound with Health and Happiness

R. McCULLOUGH HEADS LEGION

Officers Elected For 1933—Committee Named for Distribution of Christmas Hampers.

GOOD YEAR'S WORK.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 24.—Featuring the annual election of officers for the year 1933 of the Campbellford Branch, Canadian Legion 103, Reg. McCullough was elected president for the coming year 1933. Reg. McCullough was elected president for the coming year. Other officers are: First vice president (Warkworth) John Mallory; second vice president, E. H. Lewis; secretary (acclamation) G. A. Ironside; treasurer, (acclamation) A. G. Thompson; executive, Major J. M. Bygott, J. D. McEachern, G. H. Free; auditors, (acclamation) C. P. Shepherd, G. H. Free. Committees and other members to the executive will be appointed at the January meeting when the installation of the new officers will be held.

The meeting was largely attended and presided over by J. D. McEachern and F. Clark, retiring president and vice president.

A donation of $8 was handed to the Legion from the Percy W. I. by K. Zufelt and gratefully acknowledged by the meeting. Matters relative to the relief question were discussed and in this connection the secretary was authorized to write a letter of appreciation to Mrs. H. T. Cowell and members of the Sunshine Club for the gift of $16.18 from the proceeds of the sacred conert and also for the many donations of fruits collected by them and handed to the Legion. This will be used in their relief program.

In this connection a committee consisting of Major J. M. Bygott, G. A. Ironside, A. H. McKeel, C. Kellogg, G. C. Bromley and C. B. Williams was appointed to look after the distribution of Christmas hampers.

Reporting on the year's work, Mr. McEachern stated that approximately $4,500 had been handled by the local branch of the Legion this year for the relief of ex-servicemen, out of which $2,897.71 were pension awards. In addition to this the membership now stands at 109.

CHINESE "TONG" AIDS U. S. POLICE

Cooperation With Authorities to Find Slayer Averts Family War.

FIRST MOVE OF KIND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 14.—For the first time, a family group, or "tong", has openly co-operated with the authorities in Chinatown here to cause the arrest of one of its members, wanted for murder. And there has not been, and probably will not be, any "tong war" as a result of a killing here last month.

Not long ago, a killing in Chinatown meant retaliation by the family group of the man killed. This sort of thing would go on until some other group could bring the warring elements together and arrange a financial settlement.

The present case dates from Nov. 1, when a blackjack game was in progress on Stockton Street. A quarrel broke out between two members of the most powerful in Chinatown, made up of the Quons, the Jungs, the Chews and the Lews or Lows. Wong Woo Lip intervened. Lew Mong June, the authorities were told, invited Wong to step outside. When the police arrived, Wong was lying dead on the stairs. Lew was not to be found.

Then the Chinatown Peace Society met. The Chinese talked it over. The Grand Jury indicted Lew. Leaders of the four families promised co-operation. Lew was arrested in New York with their aid, and his trial starts on Jan. 9.

A police expert said there probably will be a financial settlement of about $7,000 no matter how the trial comes out.

BRITISH ARE BUILDING ON FIRM GROUND

Charles Shaw, Manager of Ovaltine, Returns From European Trip.

COMPANY PROGRESSING.

Britain is Facing Her Great Problems With Steadiness.

With confidence renewed by contact with the sturdy and unshaken spirit pervading British business, Charles Shaw, general manager of the Peterborough branch of A. Wander Limited, recently returned from a trip to Europe where he visited the company's headquarters in London and Paris, and also in Berne and Meuenegg, Switzerland.

"A dominant impression from my trip," Mr. Shaw said, "is that the British people are building on the economic structure that has been established throughout the years. The foundation is deep and broad, and one realizes that they are old in an experience that has been gained in centuries of living and meeting the changes which time brings about. There is faith and assurance that Britain is the heart of the Empire, and although their problems are tremendous they are facing them with a steadiness that has a tonic effect on one coming from a younger country.

Business Is Growing

"The business of A. Wander Limited is growing. The evidence of this progress is found in the reports which I heard at the different headquarters I visited. Our Chicago organization is expanding, and the company has added new poultry and dairy farms to their properties in England and on the continent. The company has not followed the crowd and we are profoundly grateful for the volume of business this year, and pleased to be in a position to work along with the wholesalers and retailers in assisting them in a small way to share in the prosperity which it has been our privilege to enjoy."

Mr. Shaw stated that A. Wander Limited is an organization that strives to operate according to the golden rule, and looking back over its growth since 1865, with the eleven factories comprising its chain, and selling activities in fifty-four different countries, experience proved that it paid to carry on business along those lines.

"It is quite noticeable that where the Wander organizations exist in different parts of the world there is an accompanying prosperity for the farming industry because in all the plants of the company a great quantity of fresh eggs and fresh, full cream milk are used as well as a large quantity of malted barley for the manufacture of malt extract. It is from these products that the supremacy of Ovaltine has been gained."

Be Grateful

Speaking generally about present day conditions and attitudes, Mr. Shaw expressed the conviction that people individually are not sufficiently grateful for what they have received. A spirit of gratitude created a channel for the reception of other benefits, a philosophy and a fact that had been demonstrated by realizations and results.

From that personal application, Mr. Shaw broadened his observations.

"It is admitted that nations are built around their industries, and an industry which manufactures its products from raw materials obtained from the farming industry in their pure form is truly an asset in the building of a stronger and healthier people in a natural way.

The first strength of any nation depends upon the thought and spirit of the people, and if this is fostered and nurtured with right thoughts it will bud and blossom as the rose, and glow, full-orbed, into noontide glory. And when all is said and done this is true success, and true success is only achieved along these lines. There is business to be had in every country for the management of industries who are humble enough to accept the golden rule and live it in their daily lives."

Reports Are Read At Trinity W.M.S.

The annual meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held in Reid Street Hall recently when after a brief Christmas program in which the Mission Band took part, the reports of the various groups were presented.

Reports from the Living Link Mission Circle and from the Elizabeth Parker auxiliary showed these two branches to have had a very successful year.

The following are the officers: Hon. Pres. Mrs. J. K. Moore; President, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham; 1st vice president, Mrs. Wren; 2nd vice president, Mrs. A. Bookhout; 3rd vice president, Mrs. S. D. Carver; treasurer, Mrs. Edmondson; recording and press secretary, Mrs. Kimberley; Strangers secretary, Mrs. McMoran; Supply secretary, Mrs. Kearns; Temperance secretary, Mrs. Morrison; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Seabrooke; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Stanley; Literature secretary, Mrs. J. Lillico; pianists, Mrs. Fife and Mrs. Switzer.

The report from the Women's Auxiliary gave a brief resume of monthly activities and showed a splendid spirit prevailing throughout the work of this organization. The retiring president, Mrs. S. D. Carver, thanked the members for their splendid co-operation during the past two years.

The pastor, Rev. David Wren, also expressed his appreciation of the work done by this Society.

Christmas Service All Saints' Church

On Christmas night the service in All Saints' church will be largely of a musical character. The full choir of some fifty voices will be heard in Christmas music of a high order. They will be assisted by a string quartette composed of the following musicians: 1st violin, Mrs. Percy Hooper; 2nd violin, Mrs. J. A. Foster; viola, Mrs. Roy Rome; cello, Tom Smith.

The shortened form of Evening Prayer will be the order of service, with a brief address by the Rector the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson. The musical portion of the service will embody the following program: "All My Heart this Night Rejoices"; "Hark What Mean Those Holy Voices"; "Holy Night"; Orchestra, "Romance," Rubenstein; Carols, "Sleep Holy Babe"; "When Christ Was Born"; "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

The choir with orchestra and organ will also give several choruses from Handel's Messiah.

Christmas Day Hours At Local Post Office

On Christmas Monday, December 26th, the general wicket, insured parcel, and registration wickets will be open from 8.00 a.m. until 12 noon. The money order, savings bank and postal note wicket will be closed all day.

There will be one delivery by letter carrier. The lobby of the office will be open from 7.00 a.m. until 6.00 p.m.

All out-going mails due for despatch will be closed at the regular hour.

There will be one collection from the street letter boxes, commencing at 8.00 p.m.

There will be no delivery of mail by the rural route couriers.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St Paul's Presbyterian church yesterday forenoon distributed to 75 families baskets of Christmas cheer. Of that number 65 were allocated by Relief Officer Metheral. The preparation of these packages was systematically accomplished and the good work fulfilled in short order.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 96

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service, Inc.)

Now what went in in the city below, the watchers aboard Gridley's expedition never knew. A long time they waited after the parachute floated to earth. Then a great crowd was seen to move from the palace down toward the harbor. A little later, with set sails a single ship moved out to sea toward the fleet, from Sari. Then Tarzan of the Apes knew his plan had succeeded. The dirigible followed above the Korsar's ship and Ja's flagship moved forward to meet it.

Thus was David Innes, Emperor of Pellucidar, returned to his own people. The dirigible dropped low above the flagship of the Sarian fleet. Greetings were exchanged between David and his rescuers—men from another world whom he had never seen. He was unharmed and great was the rejoicing aboard the ships as they turned back across the Korsar Az toward their own land. Tarzan and the O-220 followed long enough to obtain from David explicit directions for reaching the polar opening to the outer world.

©1931, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

As the fleet beneath them began to get under way, Jason Gridley made his decision. Tarzan was saying to him: "Our adventure is successfully over. Back to civilization from the earth's core is our next move. But first we must fulfill our promise and take Jana and Thoar to Zoram." Gridley shook Tarzan's hand in warm congratulation, and smiled as he replied: "My friend, give my regards to the outer world, for I'm not going back." "Not going back? Why?" exclaimed the ape-man, incredulously.

"This expedition was my suggestion. I feel responsible for the still missing officer. With David Innes' help, and native Pellucidarians, I shall attempt to find him." Nothing would change the American's mind. So the O-220, overtaking the fleet, signalled it to heave to. By this time Jason had assembled his guns and ammunition, ready to be lowered to the flagship. Reluctantly, he bade his adventurous companions good-bye. Then he turned to The Red Flower of Zoram. Before he could speak, she addressed Thoar. "Good-bye, my brother," said Jana. "I go with Jason. He is the man I love." THE END.

CITY TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR ARREARS OF TAXES

CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

An Elizabethan Christmas Dinner

By GERTRUDE MARCH

By GERTRUDE MARCH

We may tell, when we sit down to our Christmas dinner and view the temptingly browned turkey, and accompanying cranberry sauce, creamed onions, golden turnips, celery hearts, fluffy mashed potatoes and gravy, followed by the flaming plum pudding, succulent mince pie and coffee, that here we have the feast of kings—the dinner of dinners. But this meal, so carefully planned and so happily suited to the modern palate, is but frugal fare compared to the feast which was served at the manor house of a great English squire during the time of Queen Elizabeth.

Dinner Served in Great Hall

From accounts which have come down to us of those lavish extravagant days, it is not difficult to secure a mental picture of the great hall where the dinner was served. We know something too of the guests, their manner of dress, the menu, and the manner of serving. After the time of Queen Elizabeth, the Puritans abolished the Christmas feast altogether, and the day became one of fasting. Still later, the dinner was again restored to favor, but it has never again become the sumptuous affair that it was in the England of the 1560's.

Because of its riotous luxury, the Christmas feast in its supreme form belonged to the owners of the manor house, the castle and to the royal court itself. To be sure, after the great meal was over the broken pieces were distributed to the servants and to the inhabitants of the village, and sometimes country squires would open their houses to all the folk who lived nearby. For the time being class distinctions would be forgotten, and all would share alike in celebrating this most popular of English holidays. But on the whole the Christmas dinner in all its glory belonged to the classes—not the masses.

The hall of those days constituted the main part of any great house. Bedrooms and servants' quarters were tiny, and it was not until later that the "withdrawing" rooms, where the family might retire and escape from guests and servants, became popular. Finally, they so encroached upon the hall itself that to-day this room has become one of least use. Therefore, we find the tremendous stone-floored hall the scene of the Christmas dinner of 1560.

Traditional Decorations

The walls were hung with ivy, holly and mistletoe, all emblems of great antiquity in relation to the Christmas celebration. It is said that mistletoe was used largely for decoration because it was believed only happiness could enter under it. This accounts for the traditional kiss under the mistletoe—or at least partly accounts for it. The Christmas tree was absent from the manor hall, as it was not popularly used in England until the time of Queen Victoria. Candles in brass or pewter illuminated the room, and the great Yule log kindled from a faggot of the log of the year before, burned brightly in the huge fireplace. Long tables were set to accommodate the hosts and their guests who were seated carefully according to rank.

Costumes were Elaborate

Thoe host was dressed as gorgeously as his lady. He wore earrings and jewelry which, oddly enough to us, found greater favor with the men than with the women. The great starched ruff was in favor, and the host and men guests all wore them. The doublet, a jacket of sorts with huge detachable sleeves, was slashed to show an undervest of another color, and was embroidered in a herringbone pattern. Colors were gay, and the stuffed breeches, tightly laced at the waist, stood out about a foot from the body. The men wore long clocked silk stockings, and with them shoes with ribbon rosettes. Most of the men of the Elizabethan period wore their hair rather long, and brushed straight back, and nearly all wore beards and mustaches. Those who have seen Shakespeare's plays are familiar with the dress of the time. Each gentleman probably carried a case of toothpicks and a napkin. In case you might be tempted by this ancient custom, however, a modern book on etiquette informs us that toothpicks should be reserved for moments of utter privacy.

The lady guests at dinner, and the hostess all wore the starched and wired ruff. They also wore false hair, usually yellow, wired and high above their heads. From this tower of hair were suspended chains and tassels of gold and jewels. The gowns were cut square across the bosom and the sleeves were large. The waist fitted tightly, and the skirt was full and long. Colors were gay. Combinations of yellow, gold, orange and green were were popular. Crimson was a color that might be worn by royalty alone. Each lady wore about her waist a golden girdle with dangling ends to which were suspended a looking glass and other accessories.

Ceremonial March

After the guests had been seated, the head cook entered the hall carrying a boar's head upon a silver or gold platter. The head was decorated with sprigs of bay and rosemary, and a lemon was in the mouth.

The reason for the use of a boar's head is obscure, but it may have been introduced at dinner on the birthday of the Christ, who made all fish clean, to mark the emancipation from the law of Moses which had pronounced swine as unclean.

In any case, the bearing in of the boar's head was heralded by trumpets. Minstrels followed the cook and sang words appropriate to the occasion. Servants followed the minstrels and all marched about the hall.

Well Dined and Wined

Sometimes the guests sat down to dinner as early as three o'clock in the afternoon, and occasionally it was twelve o'clock before the last drink of cider, eggs and spices was drunk. Course followed upon course, served upon the great trencher plates of the time, and goblets were frequently replenished. One old writer has said, "Drink Always before the thirst, and it will never come upon you," and this advice seems to have been carefully followed. The first drink of the day, taken early Christmas morning, was called frumenty, a concoction of wheat broth, almond milk, milk, egg yolks and venison or mutton broth, and it is not unreasonable to assume that this popular drink was served at intervals all day.

Menus Knew no Bounds

One menu of the time included brawn with mustard, boiled and roasted capon, boiled and roasted beef, roasted pig, chewets, a savory mince pie roasted, roasted goose, swan and turkey, and a haunch of venison, as well as a venison pie.

Probably the most notable item of the feast as far as appearances were concerned, was the roasted peacock which appeared upon the table with all its feathers on and with the beak gilded. The peacock was skinned with the plumage carefully preserved, and was then roasted. When it was partially cooled, the skin and feathers were sewn on. So noble a dish was it considered to be that it was presented to the most distinguished lady guest, who was expected to serve it. How the lady so honored managed to do this is not recorded, but it is said that the peacock meat was very dry, and it took the gravy made from cooking several rams to make it palatable.

Bread was served with the dinner. Potatoes had not yet been introduced into the English diet. Mixtures of vegetables and fricasees of various kinds, dainties from Constantinople, Syria, Egypt, and Babylon were included in the lavish display of food. For dessert, there were custards, and the plum pudding which has evolved one of the main dishes of a modern English Christmas dinner. The early plum pudding was made by thickening beef or mutton broth with brown bread. To this mixture was added partially boiled raisins, currants, prunes, mace and gingerbread. When all of these ingredients had been boiled for some time together, the result was served in a semi-fluid state to the guests.

Merry-making Lasted Twelve Days

The Christmas feast was certainly the high light in the old English celebration of Christmas. There is an Italian proverb used in describing a busy person, which says, "He has more to do than the ovens in England at Christmas." From such of the old menus as have been handed down, we can believe in the truth of it. The Christmas holidays lasted twelve days, and the time was spent in feasting, merry-making, singing, and in taking part in games, and quaint plays concerning the nativity.

One writer says that during this twelve-day period no work was accomplished. If the guests ate even a small share of every course presented at dinner, one cannot wonder at the fact that no work was done. There might be some cause for surprise in the fact that the partakers of such a Christmas dinner were able to make merry again during the holidays.

Several Reeves Been Returned By Acclamation

One Of The Biggest Municipal Contests Of The Year Is Expected In Otonabee Township, Where 22 Candidates Were Nominated.

CHANDOS, ENNISMORE RETURN OLD COUNCIL ACCLAMATIONS LIKELY IN TWO VILLAGES.

Municipal nominations throughout the county yesterday produced a list of candidates whose names have a familiar ring in the County Council.

John McIntosh has already been returned by acclamation in North Monaghan. Ennismore conferred the same honor yesterday on Daniel Hickson; and there may be no contests in Norwood and Lakefield, where Reeves W. H. Montgomery and C. S. Tanner may be unopposed when the statutory time for declaration of qualification closes at nine o'clock this evening.

Reeve Allan B. Mann of Smith was also given a nomination, and Deputy-Reeve Herb. McConkey may also be included among the elect this evening if George Mullen retires from the field.

Acclamation in Chandos.

Reeve Russell Hales of Chandos was unopposed in his township, but in Otonabee Reeve McIntyre has a fight on his hands against Ernest Deyell and possibly W. A. Anderson.

Reeve C. F. Steenburg, of Belmont, will have opposition in Fred Fry, who qualified to-day. Frank E. Breckenridge and W. E. Griffith were adso nominated, but Mr. Breckenridge has declared that he will not be a candidate and it is not expected that Mr. Griffith will qualify.

Reeve Frank Leahy of Douro will be opposed by ex-Reeve John Leahy and Howard Quinn was also proposed, but in that sector it looks like a renewal of last year's race between the two Leahy entrants.

Roy Brown is reported definitely in the field against Reeve Vernal Windsor, and Richard Sanderson

S. AFRICA BARS EXPORT OF GOLD

National Government Under Hertzog Announces Adherence to Gold Standard.

ELECTION LOOMS.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Dec. 26 (C. P. Cable).—Prohibition of the export of gold from the Union of South Africa and the announced adherence to the gold standard by the National Government was the outcome of to-day's special meeting of the Cabinet under Premier J. B. M. Hertzog.

Faced with increasing popularity of the Labor Party and the intention of Tielman Roos to form a new Coalition Party, Mr. Hertzog's Government is in a precarious position and it is not yet known whether it will go the country in another general election.

To-day's resumed session of the Cabinet meeting was a vital one in view of the expected declaration of policy regarding the gold standard.

Mr. Roos, along with the South African opposition party, stands for devaluation of the pound, and in this contention has received much support.

The Government decided to-day, however, that it would adhere to the gold standard. But to meet the situation arising from unlimited sale of currency across the exchange in the past few days, which according to reliable figures has resulted in flight of more than one million pounds sterling, the Cabinet decided to take power under an emergency act to withdraw sovereigns from circulation and prevent the export of hoardings.

Premier Hertzog, undeviating in support of the gold standard, argues its abandonment would depreciate gold to its pure commodity value and thereby benefit the mines at the expense of the rest of the country.

HOLIDAY TOLL OVER 400 LIVES IN CANADA, U. S.

Motor Accidents Account for More Than 200 of Appalling Total.

NINE DIE IN ONTARIO.

Poison, Brawls, Shootings, Fire All Play Part in Heavy List

(By the C. P.)

Death cast its grim shadow over Yuletide celebrations in Canada and the United States, with a toll of nearly 400 lives lost in accident of all kinds. A mining blast at Moweaqua, Ill., accounted for 54 of this total, the miners being trapped 600 feet below the level of the earth. Motor accidents accounted for more than 200 deaths, while thousands were injured in similar crashes. The Canadian toll was nearly a score.

Nine lives were taken in Ontario, with automobiles being responsible for five of these. Two persons were burned to death, and an aged man fell downstairs and broke his neck. The Ontario list follows:

William Bevens and Stanley Latimer, Gananoque, were drowned when their automobile pinned them in the bottom of a ditch; Mr. and Mrs. Owen Graham, Markham, were burned to death; Mrs. J. T. Dalby, Oshawa, was killed when she stepped from a safety isle; William Cameron, Toronto, was killed as he crossed a street; Thomas J. Dawson, delivery boy, died from injuries resulting from an automobile-bicycle crash, and James Chapman, Toronto, was killed by an automobile which failed to stop. George Cairns, aged musician, died when he fell downstairs.

LOCUSTS SWEEP OVER ARGENTINA

Swarm 350 Miles Long, 5 Miles Wide Eat Cotton, Maize, Tobacco Crops.

FARMERS IN PANIC.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 (C.P.).—The Chicago Tribune to-day publishes the following special cable from Formosa, Argentina: "The advance of a dense swarm of locusts, estimated to be 350 miles long and five miles wide, down the banks of the Barmej River, has caused a panic of desperation among the farmers. The insects are completely cleaning up the cotton, maize and tobacco crops, despite frantic efforts to stem the living avalanche of destruction.

"Available supplies of arsenic dust and other locust-killing products are exhausted, and the farmers have directed a desperate appeal to the authorities for assistance.

"Juan Sponer, a farmer, and his wife of San Salvador, in Entre Rios Province, committed suicide by hanging when they found their fruit orchard and linseed crop had fallen prey to a swarm of locusts.

"They left a letter says that 'All our capital is gone and three years' labor lost. Therefore we prefer to die rather than begin the struggle again'."

Firemen Repaired Thousands of Toys for Needy Children

Taken just prior to distribution on Friday last, the above picture by The Baker Studio, gives some idea of the vast amount of toys that were donated by generous-hearted citizens in response to the Firefighters' Annual Appeal on behalf of "less fortunate" kiddies, and also of the amount of labor and skill that was put into the work by the members of Peterborough Fire Department. In the background is Fire Chief George Gimblett and nine of his staff.

22 CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED IN OTONABEE

Elections in Township of Otonabee Are Certain Next Monday.

SIX FOR REEVE.

Six Also Nominated for Deputy-Reeve and Ten for Council.

Twenty-two candidates for the five seats in the township council were nominated by the ratepayers of Otonabee at Keene yesterday afternoon.

Six for reeve, six for deputy-reeve and ten for council was the numerical result of the annual municipal nominations, attended by a crowd that packed the village hall to clusters around both doors.

Elections are a certainty for next Monday, and the only doubtful aspect is the number of candidates who will qualify up to nine o'clock tonight.

The list of nominees and their proposers as recorded by J. J. Moore, township clerk, was as follows:

For Reeve:

George Fife—by M. Walsh and Alex Huston.

Fred D. McIntyre—by R. Plunkett and Leonard Clancy.

Ernest Deyell—by S. A. Lancashire and J. R. Jackson.

Henry Reid—by Albert Speirs and Harry Elliott.

W. A. Anderson—by Sam O'Brien and Henry Borland.

Percy Davidson—by M. O'Keefe and F. A. Eason.

The Weather

Christmas Day (Sunday) was the warmest Christmas Day this section of Ontario has ever experienced—at least for many years. The temperature was up to 53 degrees, and the weather was like a day in spring. On Monday the highest point reached was 42 degrees. Even that figure was only equalled in 1922 and 1923. Lowest last night, 20 degrees. Heavy white frost and rain or snow not far away.—W.P.

Cheaper Whoopee

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (A.P.)—Bargains in Hoop-la beckoned New Yorkers to-day as they sent boiled shirts to the wash in preparation for New Year's eve.

For $40, which Park Avenue once sniffingly regarded as a nominal sum, you can take your girl to dinner and ring in the New Year in the grand ballroom of one of the grandest hotels.

For $16, which in the old days might only have got you arrested as a vagrant without visible means, you can take her to a lesser grill room and be gay.

DOMINION MAY BARTER SOVIET 100,000 CATTLE

Canada Expected to Take in Exchange Goods Not Made in Empire

RUSSIAN OIL MENTIONED.

OTTAWA, Dec. 27. — (C.P.) — Negotiations between Canada and Russia now going on may result in the sale to Russia of 100,000 head of Canadian cattle, chiefly dairy cattle, according to information obtained from persons connected with the negotiations. In government circles however, it was indicated that no announcement would be made until negotiations were in a more advanced stage.

In the consideration of any exchange arrangement, it is generally understood that this country will give thought only to the possible entry of such Russian goods as are not manufactured or produced in any of the Empire nations.

Officially, this matter is in an embargo state so far as Ottawa is concerned. Some discussion on the subject is said to have taken place between Mr. Bennett and the British Government during his stay in London.

Emanating from private sources, dealers in railway supplies in Montreal and western cattle producers are said to have been "sounding."

Senator Irving Todd Is Taken By Death

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Dec. 27. — Senator Irving R. Todd died at his home at Milltown, N.B., to-day.

Hon. Irving Randall Todd has been a member of the Senate for more than 14 years. He was summoned to that body on March 7, 1918.

The late Senator Todd was born at Milltown, N.B., the son of Charles F. Todd and his wife, Anna M. Porter Todd, both of whom were born in Canada. He was educated at New Brunswick High School and Hallowell Classical Institute, Milltown. On June 30, 1882, he was married to Frances E. Boardman, daughter of Charles E. Boardman, of Milltown.

ALLAN B. MANN IS RE-ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Gordon Fitzgerald and Herbert McConkey Will Not Contest Reeve ship.

NOMINATION QUIET.

Acclamation For Old Council in Township of Smith is Likely.

Acclamations are probable for all five members of this year's Smith Township Council.

Although interest in municipal affairs has never been as keen in Smith as at the present time, as proven conclusively yesterday afternoon by the large gathering of ratepayers that crowded the court house for the township, still the rank and file of the voters appeared satisfied with the services rendered them throughout the year by their council. There was little talk of a needed change and almost no criticism. In fact it was one of the most unexciting nominations in recent years for Smith Township.

Allan B. Mann was tendered an acclamation, although two others, Gordon Fitzgerald and Herbert McConkey, were nominated for the same office. Fitzgerald withdrew and McConkey will stand for re-election as deputy-reeve.

Seeks Re-election

If an election does occur, George Mullen, ex-deputy-reeve, will cause it. Mullen and Herbert McConkey were the only two nominees for deputy-reeve. McConkey announced that he would seek re-election, but Mullen told The Examiner that he was doubtful if he would allow his name to go on the ballot sheets.

Six were nominated for councillors, but two, Herbert Darling and Howard Beavis, immediately withdrew, leaving only Stanley Higgins and the three former councillors in the ring. Although not certain, Higgins told The Examiner he had little desire to run and thus force an election when the ratepayers appeared so well satisfied.

It seemed likely that if Higgins did not qualify, and he appeared in no mood to do so, that Mullen would not, although he seemed less inclined to pass the honors so freely back to the old council.

Nothing contentious came before the meeting, although there was

Contest For Council In North Monaghan

Along with Reeve John McIntosh, George Patton, deputy-reeve, has been returned to office by acclamation in North Monaghan Township. However, a stiff battle looms for the three seats in Council with five candidates in the field. The candidates are: John Barnes, R. A. Dobbin and William Whitfield, who are seeking re-election, and William Steven and James Milby.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 27. — (C.P.) Diplomacy is a part of the makeup of "Dancing 'Dan" Maloney, a frequent defendant in East Windsor police court on drunk charges. Held in the county jail for trial, he sent a note to Chief Mainsonville extending wishes for a "Happy and prosperous New Year" and asked for a remand so he could "look after my personal affairs before serving time."

The court to-day remanded Dan on two drunk charges and allowed him liberty. "I always come back' said Dan, smiling, and the court attendants smiled confirmation.

11 QUALIFIED FOR ALDERMEN 7 FOR BOARD

Four Also Qualify for Seat on Utilities Commission.

MAYORALTY CONTEST.

The acclamation that seemed so promising late Saturday afternoon for the four members of the Board of Education seeking re-election was rudely shattered when J. A. McKone handed his qualification papers into the hands of City Clerk S. R. Armstrong.

With McKone in the field assuring a battle for the four seats on the Board, two others, William Tinker and J. E. Smith, who had previously decided not to enter the ring, immediately decided that if there was to be a contest they must be in it. They qualified also, making seven candidates for four seats on the Board.

Eleven candidates are in the crowded ring of the City Council contest. Up until late Saturday, nine of the 19 nominees had qualified, but later Alderman Dan Holland and James C. Ellis qualified, bringing the number of candidates to eleven, which is something of a record in recent years for Peterborough.

John J. McCabe qualified for the Utilities Commission, bringing the number seeking the single seat for the Commission up to four.

In the Mayoralty race, of course,

Must Keep Peace For Six Months; Give $1,000 Bond

Judge Imposes No Fine But Orders Defendant To Pay Costs Of Prosecution—Publisher Enters Notice Of Appeal And Is Released On $6,000 Bail.

NO PROOF TO SUBSTANTIATE STATEMENTS MADE ABOUT SUN LIFE HEAD, IS RULING.

MONTREAL, December 27 (C.P.). — James J. Harpell, publisher, was to-day sentenced to three months in jail for criminally libelling T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company. Sentence was imposed by Chief Justice Greenshields before a crowded court room.

Harpell was found guilty of defamatory libel against Mr. Macaulay last week after a trial which lasted five days. The alleged libels appeared in Harpell's magazine, "The Journal of Commerce," and in a book called "Industry, Commerce, and Finance."

A motion by defence counsel for postponement of sentence was rejected by Judge Greenshields.

Judge Greenshields, before passing sentence, said Harpell in the witness box had announced he believed Mr. Macaulay to be a crook, thief, and swindler.

"Not a scintilla of proof has been produced to substantiate such a statement," said Judge Greenshields. Continuing the Judge said Harpell had published an atrocious libel about a man who had occupied an honorable position in Montreal business for 50 years.

Keep Peace Six Months.

Judge Greenshields in addition to sentencing Harpell to jail for three months, ordered him to enter into a bond to keep the peace for six months and get a bondsman to provide a guarantee of $1,000. If the bonds were not forthcoming a further six months would be added to the jail sentence.

Judge Greenshields said no fine would be imposed but Harpell would have to pay the costs of the prosecution.

Enters Appeal

MONTREAL, Dec. 27 (C.P.)—Notice of appeal was filed to-day by counsel for James J. Harpell, convicted of criminal libel against T. B. Macaulay of Montreal, and Harpell was released on $6,000 bail.

PORK SERVED AT COUNTY GAOL

Thirteen Prisoners at County Gaol Enjoyed Their Yuletide Fare.

POEM TO GOVERNOR.

Pork, carrots and potatoes rounded off with Christmas cake and dessert of nuts, oranges and candy constituted the Yuletide fare which was served to the inmates of the county gaol on Sunday.

It was a variation of the usual Christmas menu at the gaol, which has previously consisted largely of goose and plum pudding, but it was wholly appreciated according to the Gaol Governor, by the thirteen prisoners, including the solitary woman and the condemned man.

Pork was served in place of goose and Christmas pudding was entirely eliminated from the menu on the grounds of economy, it was stated, and the prisoners owe the privilege of having Christmas cake to the bakery that donated it. Nuts, candy and oranges were kindly donated, as is the usual custom, by the Salvation Army.

"In the County Gaol up on the hill,
They have a new cook by the name of 'Bill,'
Who scours the plates, and kindred toil
And sweats to make the kettle boil.
He scrambles 'mush' and he bakes stews,
You can take it or leave it—two ways to choose.
And 'vags' heard eating his soup declare,
That none but the knave deserve the fare."

The above lines were written by one of the recent "guests" of the County, and were forwarded with the prisoner's compliments to the Governor.

TAKING NO CHANCES

HAMILTON, O.—Charles Krause 30, former reformatory inmate, walked into police headquarters and said: "I'm out of work, out of money. Take me back before I steal something or do something I shouldn't." Police said Krause, a parole violator, would be placed beyond temptation.

YOUTH IN GAOL AWAITING TRIAL

Numerous Collisions Occurred in City Over the Holiday.

ONE CAR STOLEN.

One youth is in county goal awaiting trial and another is suffering from severe cuts about the head, as a result of an escapade early Sunday morning in which police allege they drove a stolen car into collision with a car driven by J. R. Braund, 718 George street. Although escaping injured, Mrs. Braund, who was a passenger in her husband's car, suffered severe shock.

The youths were: William Lee, 20, resident of the Norwood Road, just east of the Liftlocks, and Leo O'Rourke, aged, 223 Euclid Avenue.

O'Rourke was found bleeding in the car, which police state had been stolen from J. J. Driscoll, 700 Erskine Avenue, by Constable Joe Wheeler, who investigated the accident shortly after midnight Sunday morning.

While the constable was attending O'Rourke, who was later removed to St. Joseph's hospital, Lee, it is alleged, disappeared from the scene.

After an extensive search Lee was located late Sunday afternoon by Sergeant Wm. Wigg in an Ashburnham residence, which police describe as a blind pig. He was charged with the theft of a car in police court yesterday and was remanded for trial.

The accident occurred on Armour Road near Caddy street. Mr. Braund was driving south when the car driven north by Lee crashed into his car. Police allege that Lee was intoxicated. Police are undetermined whether to charge the youths with reckless driving, drunk in charge, or theft of a car.

Knocked From Bike

George Whatley, 515 Chamberlain street, was knocked from his bicycle when struck by a car driven by W. J. Donovan, 48 Aylmer street, at 10.15 p.m. Saturday and received a cut on the forehead. The accident occurred near Choate's hardware on Hunter street east.

NOMINATE THREE FOR REEVESHIP IN DOURO TWP.

Eight Are Nominated for the Four Places on Council Board.

VERBAL CLASHES.

Retiring Reeve Gives Account of His Year in Office.

Possibility of a three-cornered election fight for the office of Reeve of Douro Township Council, looms up as a result of the nomination yesterday afternoon of Reeve Frank D. Leahy; John Leahy and Howard A. Quinn. The probability however is that the latter who was also nominated for council will not aspire to any higher position, but will be content to again take a seat in the Township Council.

In the event of Councillor Quinn withdrawing from the contest for the reeveship, it will leave a straight contest between the two Leahys—Frank D. who has headed the Township Council during the past year and who was for eighteen years Township Clerk, and John J. who up to the time of his defeat at the polls last year had been reeve for five successive years.

When John J. Coughlin the township clerk declared nominations closed yesterday afternoon, there were eight nominations for council, including the four retiring members. After the formal business had been concluded, the clerk appointed to be chairman of the meeting that followed, when the candidates all had the opportunity of addressing the ratepayers.

As usual keen rivalry between the two Leahy's manifested itself, while there was also a passage at arms between William Hayes one of the retiring councillors and Austin Allen who has three times previously been before the electors.

Nominations were as follows:

For Reeve

Howard A. Quinn—W. E. Wood, Paul Maloney.

John J. Leahy—Roland Bradfield, John Mcmurray.

Frank D. Leahy—Thos. J. Fitzgerald, Wm. H. Allen.

For Council

FIGHT LIKELY CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL SEATS

Mayor H N. Carr and Reeve C. H. Davidson Returned By Acclamation at Nominations.

LARGE NOMINEE SLATE.

Considerable Interest Shown at Meeting Which Was Largely Attended.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 27 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Mayor H. N. Carr and Reeve C. H Davidson were both elected by acclamation to the 1933 Campbellford Council last evening at the nominations held in the Regent Theatre. But for Deputy-Reeve, councillors, Public School trustees, and Water and Light Commission Board, the prospects of a fight loom unless the nominees follow the general wish of the public and save the expense of an election by giving the 1932 body an acclamation. The nomination sheet is as follows:

Mayor.

H. N. Carr, acclamation.

Reeve.

C. H. Davidson, acclamation.

Deputy-Reeve.

E. C .McKeel, N. Alex MacColl.

Council.

C. E .McKeel, Neil Thompson, A. D Bennett, F. F. Long, John O'Sullivan, J. R. Battisby, John Gay, C W. Palliser, W. J. Abernethy, J. L. Dorie, R. Cole.

Commission Board.

James Blue, A. J. Meyers.

Public School Trustees.

(Three to be elected.)

Dr. O. C. Watson, Dr. H. O. Richardson, Dr. H. B. Longmore, J. H. McArthur, W. R. Loucks.

C. E. McKeel was also nominated for the office of Reeve, but declined to let his name stand, and Hilliard Jones withdrew his name also from the list of councillors.

Considerable Interest.

The meeting, which was presided over by Clerk J. F. McGregor, was well attended and considerable interest shown in the affairs of the town by those attending. Mayor Carr gave a review of the town's finances, pointing out that the budget sheet this year was short about $1,600 of being balanced, the heavy relief expenditures accounting for a large portion of this, and the severe financial stress that many people find themselves in to-day. In all, $3,165.38 was spent on relief this year. In this respect he paid a great tribute to the chairman of that committee, J. R. Battisby, who had handled a remarkable situation splendidly. It was difficult to say what the tax rate would be next year, he stated, but pointed out that it greatly depended on the taxpayers themselves, and asked them to refrain from requesting the Council to do work that in any way could be held over until better times prevailed.

C. H. Davidson.

declared his intention of standing for Reeve for the coming term and as chairman of the Band Committee stressed the need of that organization in town and the good work it does.

N. Alex MacColl

declared himself in the field for Deputy-Reeve, and as chairman of the Finance Committee stressed the economies that the town had

Soft Hearted

NUMILLVILLE, N.J., Dec. 27 (C.P.).—Whatever else he may think, Frank Egbert can't accuse his wife of holding a grudge—long. Christmas night she had him and Miss Yvonne Davis arrested because they were "too friendly." In default of $500 bail each, they were locked up. "What's happened this time?" asked Mayor Jones when Mrs. Egbert appeared next day at the police station. "I've been thinking," she said. "Here's bail for both of them."

BLAME THIEVES STATION FIRE

Lack of Water Hinders Simcoe Brigade — Town Thrown in Darkness.

LOSS $100,000.

SIMCOE, Ont., Dec. 27.—(C.P.)—Widespread search was under way to-day for two men who are believed to have set fire to the Canadian Pacific Railway station here after they were surprised while trying to break open a box containing $1,500 worth of furs.

The station was gutted early to-day with loss estimated at $100,000. Lack of water handicapped firemen. Simcoe itself was thrown into darkness when the flames spread to the Hydro sub-station, located in the station, and enveloped the transformers.

Fred Doyle, railway employee, noticed the pair trying to force entrance to the valuable furs in the express shed. The prowlers fled as he telephoned police. When he returned the shed was in flames. Doyle gave the alarm and succeeded in saving some railway records.

Unable for an hour to raise sufficient pressure from the hydrants to battle the blaze, firemen stood helplessly by while the station fell prey. A certain amount of express stored in the shed was destroyed. Value of the sipments could not immediately be determined. Port Dover and Oakland were also without light when the transformers were hit. Arangements will be made to bring power from Brantford to-day.

HASTINGS HAS TWO IN FIELD FOR REEVESHIP

Thirteen Were Nominated for the Four Seats on Council Board.

SIX FOR COMMISSION.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Dec. 27.—Hasting's ratepayers ran true to form on Monday at the nomination meeting in the town hall. It being a holiday there was a large crowd of interested voters. An election has been assured by the two nominees for the reeveship, both Dr. J. H. Hess, reeve of 1932 and G. B. Stevenson, who resigned his seat on the Hydro Commission to contest the reeve's chair declaring that they were in the field.

Thirteen were nominated for the four seats on the council board. Messrs A. G. Parker, Ed Fleming, H. G. Fairman, J. J. Perault the old council and the following new men: J. Doherty, J. R. Chapman, T. O'Grady, A. M. Brooks, S. Hatherly, Wm. Lynch; T. H. Lynch, L. E. Kelley, W. N. Beavis.

How many of the nominees will let their names appear on the ballots will not be known until Tuesday night, but an election is certain.

For Hydro Commission six were nominated for the one seat, namely, W. J. Warner, A. G. Parker, L. E. Kelley, J. E. Taylor, Dr. W. E. Wilson and A. M. Brooks.

For years it has been the custom to hold a meeting in the hall at night, but on account of a concert on Monday night the meeting followed nominations. Town clerk was appointed chairman.

Overdraft Shown

Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess was the first speaker called and dealth with the financial statement which showan overdraft of $3,875.00 this year and last year was $2,900.00, a difference of a little over $900.00, but against this were uncollected taxes of over $2,100 which when paid would considerably reduce the overdraft.

The reeve dealt on the present financial statement of the counties' council and thought it was time that municipalities stopped asking for grants. In touching on the Hydro question Dr. Hess said that Walter M. Fowlds the chairman of the commission would explain and he would not take up the time, only just on the subject of the lineman who was engaged during the past year and was the cause of considerable argument.

Dr. Hess explained that his son, E. M. Hess applied for the position of lineman at $300 which Wm. Killingbeck who was the man previously on the job also applied for. After Mr. Hess' appointment Mr. A. J. McKinty came to Dr. Hess and asked of his son would give the position to Mr. Killingbeck which they said they would, Mr. McKinty returned after interviewing Mr. Killingbeck and informed Dr. Hess that he did not want the job. This was one of the big arguments of a hectic meeting.

Councillor A. G. Parker was the first councillor to take the floor and dealt with the financial statement, there was very little for the council to do as they had no money to spend, but as chairman of the property committee he had no alibis to offer for his year's work and would do the best he could with the ratepayer's money.

H. G. Fairman, chairman of the street's committee was the next speaker and dealt with the money expended on the streets. The major portion of the money spent was put on Homewood avenue, a new street that was opened up in the growing summer colony and was a permanent job.

Fireworks Started

Councillor J. J. Perault said that the other members of the council had explained the matters quite thoroughly and there was nothing left for him to say, but was willing to answer any questions. This started what proved to be the spark to start the fireworks. Mr. J. E. Taylor inquired why gravel was not taken from the town pit and not Flem-

NOMINATE THREE FOR REEVESHIP IN DOURO TWP.

William Hayes—Michael Casey, Vincent Maher.

Howard A. Quinn—Michael Ryan, John McMurray.

Robert Bolton—Bart Leahy, Pat McMurray.

John D. O'Shea—Alphonsus Condon, Bart Leahy.

Austin Allen — Michael Ryan, John W. Condon.

Michael Whibbs — Michael G. Leahy, Alphonsus Condon.

John E. Galvin—George Whibbs, Thos. J. Fitzgerald.

The 1931 Township Council was composed of Reeve F. D. Leahy and Councillors Mahoney, Hayes, Galvin and Quinn.

F. D. LEAHY, the retiring reeve giving an account of his stewardship stated that at the last nomination he had promised to bring the taxes down. He had done that, he said quoting the figures, on the township and county rate. Outstanding taxes at December 14, he pointed out amounted to $5829.46, with 5 per cent interest included.

Reeve Leahy referred to "a flying visit" which Mr. Fellowes, the government engineer had paid to the township one day last summer. He had condemned everything the township had done on the roads.

Regarding county bridges he said there was a clause in the act stipulating that the township and county should share "fifty-fifty," on expenditures. He presented A. E. Chalmer's report as County Engineer giving details of maintainance on county roads and construction and maintainance on county bridges, with particular reference to McCall's bridge and Chemong floating bridge. A government grant of fifty per cent was obtained on all bridges in the county, for which Reeve Leahy gave much of the credit to the 1932 County Council.

Reeve Leahy read over the county budget for 1932, which he brought down as chairman of the Finance Committee.

He was subject to interruption from John J. Leahy, who told the reeve, "It was all right for you to go into the council this year and find everything prepared for you, and then talk about the economies you have effected."

The "road superintendent question"—one of the contentious questions concerned with the affairs of the municipality during the past year was discussed by the reeve.

He promised in asking for support at the polls that he would work in the next term with just as much interest and concern in the interests of economy as he had done in the past. He could see, he stated, where several little economies could be undertaken next year.

JOHN J. LEAHY, said I told you last year that lower taxes for this township does not rest with the County Council.

"Well what are they there for?" asked someone from the rear of the hall.

Mr. Leahy—Will you come up to this platform and discuss municipal politics Frank?

"Yes," was the retort, "I will if you can't."

"You say the taxes are down. I say they are not and I'll show you," continued Mr. Leahy proceeding to review county matters over the past few years. It was all right, he said, for last years' County Council to talk about the economies they had effected. They forgot that things were all in order for them when they went into office, he shouted thumping the table, to emphasize his remarks. The County Council cut out 8½ per cent of their own sessional allowance, he said, but it had cost them more to administer the county business than before. He referred to special meetings of the council during the past year, to which Reeve Leahy retorted, "When you were in the council you used to go out every week."

"Didn't you know that I was County Road Superintendent for a term following MacFarlane's death," he shouted.

The announcement was met with a certain degree of merriment. "You didn't tell us that last year John," someone bantered.

Where Rate Reduced?

Mr. Leahy said he would defy any member of the County Council to show where they had reduced the rates in the last year.

Subjected to frequent interruptions Mr. Leahy challenged his hecklers to come to the platform, "I don't give a snap of the fingers for any man in the township on municipal affairs," he challenged.

Mr. Leahy criticised the half mill cut on the 3 mill rate for county and suburban roads and the paving construction that had been done during the year by Suburban Area Commission.

As a member of the 1931 council Mr. Leahy was criticised for the fact that "The Examiner" was not given access to committee meetings.

"Who kept The Examiner out?" Mr. Leahy said.

"Ed Elliott of course," was the retort. "He is suposed to be your servant and not your master."

Mr. Leahy proceeded to criticise the appointment of the County Road Superintendent charging that the appointment had been made behind closed doors, with the Clerk and Treasurer standing over the committee with a whip." (laughter).

Mr. Leahy also charged that the cuts in salaries that had been made in the salaries of the Gaoler, Turnkey and other officials including the court stenographer had been illegal, and that no government grants in respect to those salaries had yet been paid by the government and would not be. He mentioned that the court stenographer had issued a writ against the county for the recovery of the salary reduction and that the council had been forced to pay the balance by "dipping into their pockets" and had also had to pay the costs that had accrued.

Mr. Leahy demanded to know why men of the township employed on statutory labor had been "fired" during the past year, and why the weed inspector had been paid ten cents a mile to go "joy riding" around the township. There had been life long residents of the township, he said, branded unjustly as crooks. Accused unrightly of padding pay rolls.

"I am in the field for the reeveship and I intend to stand," Mr. Leahy concluded in appealing for suport.

HOWARD A. QUINN said he was glad to be able to come before the ratepayers with such a good record of economy. A great deal of real Scotch economy had been practiced during the past year. He was pleased at the honor of being nominated for reeve, but had not decided whether or not to run for the office. He claimed a great deal of the credit for any economies that had been made, stating he was the only councillor who was also trustee of school section, where the school section was entirely without a tax rate.

It was the first time he had received a nomination for the reeveship and he had not yet decided what to do about it. He would, however, be out either for reeve or for council, he announced, in appealing for support of the ratepayers.

WILLIAM HAYES reviewed the past year's work of the Township Council, touching upon the cuts that were made in the sessional allowances, etc. He also discussed the question of weed cutting, and other matters out of which arose a heated discussion between the speaker and Austin Allan, a prospective councillor.

"I come before you for the fourth time and if you consider I am worthy of your support I shall be glad of it," he concluded.

JEREMIAH MAHONEY in asking for further support claimed that the past year had been handled economically. It was the first time he had been at a nomination meeting, he said where the ratepayers had "kicked" at reduced taxation.

JOHN E GALVIN, said it was beyond his understanding that there should be any kicking when there had been a reduction of taxation in the township. He could not understand how John Leahy could get up and say there had been no reduction of taxation.

"You have nominated a good slate," Mr. Galvin told the electors, "and if you see my name on the ballot and you wish to vote for me, I shall appreciate it," he said.

Inflation of currency, Mr. Galvin said would have increased the price of the farmers' products. It was a question he had desired to discuss but he did not propose to do so in view of the lateness of the hour.

AUSTIN ALLEN who in his own words had been "three times before the electors and three times beaten," made criticism of the past year's work of the council.

Mr. Allen and Michael Whibbs who followed him to the platform, both asked for the support of the electors, as also did Robert Bolton, who has served on the council for four years.

TWO SEEKING REEVE'S POST FOR SEYMOUR

Robert Innes and W. J. Duncan Nominated at Monday's Meeting.

IN CAMPBELLFORD.

Election Likely For Township Offices Although Acclamation Sought.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 27 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Although there was a general feeling at the Township of Seymour nominations held yesterday in Campbellford for an acclamation to be given the 1932 council for the coming year, no such action was taken on the part of those nominated, and unless some of the nominees fail to qualify by nine o'clock this evening an election on January 2 will be assured. Those nominated for the various offices were:

Reeve.—Robert Innes, W. J. Duncan.

Deputy Reeve.—W. J. Duncan, W. S. Milne, John Currie.

Council.—W. S. Milne, Thomas Fry, Frank Lee, Hector Arnold, William Rowe, Robert Bateson.

Deputy-reeve Duncan signified his intention of standing for election for the reeveship if an election was held, and Reeve Innes declared that although he did not want to cause an election, he was in the field for reeve. Four other nominees for reeveship withdrew their names: Alex Hume, T. J. Horkins, George Vanvolkenburg and John Currie.

Mr. Currie, however, stated that he would let his name stand for deputy reeve if an election was held although he would not be the cause of one. A 1932 councillor, W. S Milne, will seek election in this of-considerable discussion on the advisability of Smith Township returning to the old system of statute labor. Caution was advised on this question until it was more closely studied and the Government was approacher to learn the grant of 40 per cent would be contanued under statute labor. A vote was taken but only six of the more than 150 present favored returning to statute labor for road work. However, more may be heard of the matter.

Results of the nominations were:

For Reeve

Allan B. Mann—George Gow and W. J. Grant.

Gordon Fitzgerald—H. Sanderson and Wm. Brown.

Herbert McConkey—M. A. McWilliams and Wilfred Nichols.

For Deputy

Herbert McConkey—Bruce Fitzgerald and Alex Elliott.

George Mullen—Clayton Sanderson and J. G. Mann.

For Councillor

Harry Fowler—R. J. Tully and George Westlake.

Charles Westlake—J. H. Lewis and Harry Milburn.

Frederick Armstrong—Isaac Sage and W. J. Pearson.

Stanley Higgins—Vivian Milburn and J. Gordon Mann.

Herbert Darling—M. A. McWilliams and Harry Ferguson.

Howard Beavis—Wm. Brown and Howard Baptie.

Very Large Gathering

So large was the assemblage of ratepayers that the County Council Chamber, which always formerly more than served to seat all those attending the nomination meeting, proved altogether inadequate and the meeting adjourned to the court room. Even the capacity of the court room was hardly more than sufficient.

Percy Udy, veteran township clerk, who served as chairman, stated that it was by far the largest gathering of ratepayers to attend a nomination meeting in Smith in his memory. Ex-Warden R. N. Scott compared the gathering to his time on the council, when so few attended nominations that it was often difficult to get sufficient names for a proposer and seconder of the nominees. All speakers expressed their satisfaction with the interest the ratepayers were showing in the township affairs as attested to by the large attendance.

Allan B. Mann, reeve, thanked the ratepayers for their support and confidence of the council throughout the year. It was the first time in 30 years, he stated, that the taxes had been reduced as they were this year. He considered it a remarkable record for the township in the face of present financial difficulties that 80 per cent of the township's taxes were paid.

Speaking of reductions that the council had instituted, he stated that the road supervisor had been cut from 60 cents an hour, teamsters and laborers' wages were reduced accordingly and $50 had been cut from the clerk's salary.

He considered that the cost of road maintenance could be further reduced, because as he said, "I think the roads are in much better shape than our pocket books." No money had been borrowed from the banks by the township, but for schools at the present time the township is overdrawn about $4,000, due chiefly to the fact that some taxes are unpaid.

Reeve Mann emphasized the seriousness of the increased number of hospital bills for indigents that the township had been called upon to pay. Telling of relief endeavors, he said that five men were now employed cutting wood and a small camp has been built to house them. The most they can receive is $6 a week, paid in supplies.

Much criticism, he said, had been levelled at him for his work in the County Council. He had voted to cut county officials salaries 20 per cent but they were cut only 10 per cent. "I believe it is in keeping with the times to cut them further, and I still think I was right and vote that way again." He urged that all come out boldly with their criticism but "don't go around behind my back and air your grievances."

Denies Allegations

He declared emphatically that contrary to allegations made, he had not received one cent for the wood cut on the 8th line. He advocated that the road be further cleared up.

The tax rate he thought could be further lowered next year, and he expressed his apreciation of the services of Mr. Udy.

Herbert McConkey, deputy-reeve, said he did not agree with Mr. Mann on some things. The township rate had been cut a half mill and a debt of $20,000 had been wiped out, and he deemed he deserved some little credit.

Although this year the township had borrowed no money from the bank, he considered that next year some would have to be borrowed. He deemed it unwise not to spend money on the roads, as this was one method by which farmers had some opportunity to earn money, and he declared emphatically that he was opposed to borrowing money to lower the tax rate. "I don't like paying interest," he said.

Ex-Warden Scott asked Mr. McConkey why he had voted for the extending of No. 7 Highway and voted against Mr. Mann on the question in County Council.

Mr. McConkey explained that he supported Reeve McIntosh's motion to ask the government to build the two mile stretch of road south of the city between No. 7 and No. 28 Highways, but that he was opposed to the extending of No. 7 Highway eastward. He considered that the two-mile strip work would have assisted materially in giving employment to many unemployed men in the county.

Frederick Armstrong, Harry Fowler and Charles Westlake, all said they would be candidates for re-election.

Gordon Fitzgerald said he did not know whether or not it was wise to sell debentures for highway construction, that perhaps it was better for the county to pay its way. He pointed out that the county's cost of Widows' and Mothers' Allowance had been reduced from 20 to 10 per cent making a saving this year of $7,000.

He considered that the township could not maintain its road at a rate of only 2½ mills, since previously it had been 3 mills and in later years it had been found necessary to raise it to 4 mills.

Mr. Mann said that the schools last year had had a shortage of $6,-100 which had had to be met this year, and if that amount had not been paid despite the non-payment of taxes the township would have had a couple of thousand dollars in the bank.

George Mullen said he was glad taxes were down and he hoped they would be kept down. "We can't pay dollar taxes with fifty cent pieces," he said. If he was a candidate and was elected he would try and lower the taxes, he said.

Both Men Withdraw

Herbert Darling and Howard Beavis both announced that they had no notion of running for election.

Defending himself from some criticism expressed by Ex-Warden Scott of the foolishness of him voting in opposition to Reeve Mann in the County Council, Deputy Reeve McConkey said, "I have the interest of Smith at heart and always have had. It would be very foolish of me to vote the same way as the reeve votes if I consider that he is wrong."

Vivian Milburn, ex-councillor, pointed out that the council should not be criticized too severely since if the taxpayers would study their tax bills closely they would see how small a proportion of the taxes the Township and County Council really controlled. "If the men you elected did not spend anything you would still have more than half your taxes to pay," he said. He said the school boards had more money under their expenditure control than the councils, and urged that more interest be taken in school matters for that reason.

William Brown raised the question of the advisability of returning to statute labor. Mr. Udy said that few would be able to vote on such a question since it was not properly understood.

T. H. Graham, road superintendent, said he was opposed to statute labor. "In normal times, it was found very difficult to get the farmers out to do their statute labor, of course now they find it difficult to pay their taxes and are eager to do statute labor."

He said that under statute labor the roads would go to pieces.

The meeting adjourned after a vote was taken which returned only six in favor of statute labor.

SEVERAL REEVES BEEN RETURNED

was nominated in opposition to Reeve Leeson.

Asphodel is also promising a contest between Reeve Rork Ferguson and Gordon Girven. Adam Humphries was also proposed, but is not regarded as a likely contender; and in Dummer Richard Tedford and Reeve McDonald are the candidates.

Galway and Cavendish is the only municipality unheard from this morning. Reeve Austin Jackson was its repre sentative to the county last year.

George Patton Returned

Deputy-reeve George Patton of North Monaghan shares with Reeve McIntosh the confidence of the township's ratepayers. Councillor John Barnes was proposed for this position, but Mr. Barnes decided to remain a candidate for council and is seeking re-election.

Three were nominated for the reeveship of Lakefield, but it was believed to-day that Reeve Tanner would be returned again by acclamation. Arthur Burrows and Norman A. Moore were proposed yesterday for the reeveship.

A glance over these returns from the nomination meetings show that there will be no infusion of new blood comparable with last year's copious injection.

Possibly, many of the rural ratepayers have become disillusioned like George Fife of Otonabee. In urging William Devlin to be a candidate for the township council, Mr. Fife said at Keene yesterday, in his own racy phrasing: "Come on, Billy, stay in there. We might as well have an election. They'll only spend the money some way else."

At any rate the surge of dissatisfaction and the demand for a change of personnel in the county council that passed over many of the townships fourteen months ago seems to have abated, and the frankest comments, possibly reflecting the minds of ratepayers, were heard at Keene on the holiday.

Reports this morning from Harvey were to the effect that Reeve Hugh Given and ex-reeve Harry Parker had been nominated there.

The Examiner tried to telephone to Reeve Jackson of Kinmount this morning, but the entire telephone board in the village was reported closed.

A very successful Christmas dance was held last evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music under the auspices of the Major Bennett Chapter I.O.D.E. The crowd was one of the largest of the season, numbering almost five hundred. The hall was packed with guests, who danced to excellent music played by George Broadley and his Country Club orchestra. Decorations were very effectively arranged in Christmas colors. The windows were draped with green and white, their black centers studded with silver stars. The central electroliers were shaded with red streamers and the orchestra platform, with a glistening gilt background, had two large Christmas trees. The regent of the chapter, Miss Frances Jennings, was in charge of general arrangements, and the decorations were done by a committee headed by Miss Shirley Pettit and Miss Dorothy Henderson. Patronesses were Mrs. G. A. Macdonald, Mrs. T. N. D. Kelly, Mrs. B. W. Harvey, Mrs. F. J. A. Hall, Mrs. M. Comstock, Mrs. J. R. Marshall and Mrs. E. H. Howson.

HOUR-GLASSES, suggesting the passage of time, are featured in the menus given to-day for a New Year's luncheon and for refreshments for a New Year's Party.

* * * * * * *

Here is an hour-glass luncheon menu: Tomato puree with hour-glass garnish, crackers; minute steak, hour-glass French fried potatoes, string beans, hour-glass carrots; hour-glass salad, toasted hour-glass slices; hour-glass ice-cream and cakes, coffee, candies.

* * * * * * *

For the New Year's party refreshments, omit the first two courses. For light refreshments, omit three courses.

* * * * * * *

For the soup, sprinkle any preferred recipe of tomato puree with tiny hour-glasses cut from green peppers. Shape them by cutting wee double triangles without severing tips at centre where extra width is allowed.

* * * * * * *

For the Minute Steak: Cut thin slices of roast beef in hour-glass shape, having each large enough for a serving. Heat through in hot melted butter.

* * * * * * *

Do not allow the pieces to be in the pan long enough for them to become mis-shaped. Serve with a tiny sprig of parsley each side of the centre where the "waist" of the glass comes.

* * * * * * *

For the French fried potatoes: Cut slices of potato into the hour-glass shape and plunge in cold water. After a few moments, remove dry on towel, put in frying basket. Immerse in boiling fat and fry until light brown.

* * * * * * *

For the Hour-glass salad: Use equal parts of chopped apples and celery. Add one-quarter part white grapes cut into quarters, and one tablespoon minced nuts and one tablespoon mayonnaise to each cupful of the above mixture.

* * * * * * *

On lettuce leaves arrange two tablespoons of the mixture, shaping with the hands into hour-glass form. Put a little mayonnaise each side of the "waist" of the hour-glass and put a radish rose by each mayonnaise portion.

* * * * * * *

For Dessert: Cut any ice-cream into wedge-shaped slices, and put tips of two pieces together when laid on serving plate to form hour-glass shapes. Have wedge-shaped small cakes frosted red or green, put one of these wedges with tips touching on each plate.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

THE BODY DEFENDERS

I have spoken before about the two kinds of cough; one kind is helpful as it clears out any mucous in the windpipe and bronchial tubes, and the other does nothing but irritate the bronchial tubes thus causing exhaustion.

The body has a number of defences against any trouble that may attack it.

For instance, if an object gets up the nose, or there is any irritation there causing mucous to gather, air is drawn through the mouth and this air is forced out through the nose carrying with it by a sneeze any object or mucous in the nose.

If too much food or an irritating food is eaten the stomach immediately objects, and the food is quickly forced up and out of the mouth again. If the material doesn't immediately irritate the stomach, the glands in the stomach wall pour out so much watery mucous that the material gets dissolved, a sort of nausea develops, and the stomach then throws up the material.

If the harmful material gets down past the stomach and small intestine, the large intestine in which are the wastes from the food, immediately gets busy trying to rid the body of it quickly. With its long muscle fibres (which look like the braid down the side of a soldier's trousers) it draws the wall of the intestine back behind the offending material, and then with its circular fibres it pushes the material downward and out of the body. It is the fast or violent working of these muscles that we call 'cramps.'

If a wound or cut occurs, little blood vessels appear in the clot which fills the cut or wound, and then a hard material forms a scar, and the space is filled up again.

If an object approaches the eye, the lid closes in the fraction of a second. If the little object does get into the eye, the tears begin to flow, and this extra water usually washes the object away.

There are many other processes throughout the body which form what might be called the body "defenders" as they work promptly and effectively when any need arises.

Truly that body of yours possesses wonderful methods of defending itself.

What Today Means to YOU

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN"

If December 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9.45 a.m. to 10.30 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 5.15 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10.15 p.m.

You will feel particularly free from worry and troubles on this December 27th. You may perhaps have that sense of being completely detached from your various problems and difficulties. For that reason, you may anticipate that proper meditation on your various affairs will undoubtedly lead you to make right decisions. Romancing on this date will be of a serious nature rather than light and flippant.

The child born on this December 27th will be of a serious turn of mind. They will early seem to be aware of the problems of life; they will be seekers after Truth. Keenly alive, both mentally and physically, they will be great readers and students. They will leave their mark on the world.

If December 27th is the date of your birth, you will look beyond personalities to the big and important things of life. Never more than slightly concerned with your own aims and ambitions, joys and sorrows, you are constantly striving to aid others, often individuals, most usually groups or classes of people. You are of a gregarious nature and will have uncommonly fine friends scattered wherever you may wander. Your work may carry you into many out-of-the-way places. You are an organizer and are happiest when at the head of a large group, leading and directing them. You would do well as a college president or in some similar capacity. As a politician, championing a righteous cause, you would have many followers. You radiate honesty and sincerity. To see you simply, is to be on your side, even before you have had the opportunity to speak your mind in your own eloquent and convincing way.

Women born on December 27th are usualy working and striving to do some good to others. They are self-forgetful. If you have a home, and you probably have, you know how to run it, and run it well; harmoniously and with a minimum of effort.

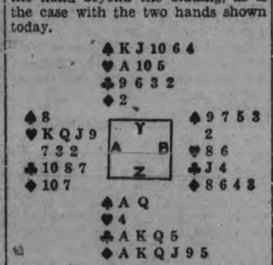
ALL IN THE BIDDING

It is hard to say whether perfect bidding or perfect play is the more important. Perfect bidding merely puts a pair in position to obtain the best possible score. Many hands also require perfect play to obtain the maximum score. A poor bidder frequently finds himself in the wrong declaration. Super play may pull him through without serious loss. Sometimes there is nothing to the hand beyond the bidding, as is the case with the two hands shown today.



Being certain of eight tricks at diamonds, and practically sure of ten. Z made an opening bid of 2-Diamonds. Having better than the one quick trick needed to show a biddable suit, Y overcalled with 2-Spades. Z shifter to 3-Clubs. Y bid 4-Clubs. Z went 5-Spades, Y bid 5-No Trumps, to show his heart stop. Z bid 6-Diamonds. Y bid 6-Spades. Knowing that his partner never would bid no-trumps without at least one diamond, and with odds of about 10 to 1 that neither adversary could win a diamond trick, Z bid 7-Diamonds, ending contracting.

The opening lead was the K of hearts. Dummy's Ace won the trick. After the declarer had taken two rounds of trumps, with both adversaries following suit, he spread his hand, claiming a grand slam without further play. He must win six diamonds, four spades, by overtaking his own Q with dummy's K, one heart and three clubs, even if that suit did not break.

The above hand occasioned some excellent, if unusual bidding. Because he had a 4-3-3-3 distribution between suits, Z made an opening bid of 1-No Trump, rather than 1-Heart. Y first showed the longer of his two suits, by bidding 2-Diamonds. Z now showed his best suit with a bid of 2-Hearts. Y shifted to 2-Spades. Z supported with 3-Spades. To show that he held only four spades, Y bid 3-No Trumps, Z showed his good tops in a short suit (an unusual bid) by declaring 4-Clubs. Now satisfied of the advantages of No-trumps, Y bid 5-No Trumps, and Z ended with 6-No Trumps.

The opening lead was the 7 of hearts, although the declarer had bid that suit. B's Q was taken by the declarer's K. It would have been useless to have false-carded with his Ace. Z saw an almost certain small slam, and a possible grand slam. He wanted to find how diamonds lay. Z led his J of diamonds. A put his Q, as B might hold a stop to the suit. When dummy's K won the trick and B followed suit, Z claimed one trick over his small slam. He must win four spades, two hearts, two clubs and five diamonds.

Sometimes I am asked why I frequently fail to state whether or not bidders are vulnerable. I always state the score when that should make a difference. As Z was taking only an excellent business risk in bidding the grand slam it was justifiable, even thuogh he happened to be vulnerable as he really was.

Board of Education—W. W. Staples, south ward; J. E. Anderson, north ward; Russell Lamb, east ward, elected by acclamation.

Hydro Commission—John McCrae; P. C. Pickering; Fred R. Wilford; Dan McLean.

Ex-Mayor Bert McLean was chairman, during the after-meeting, when the different candidates addressed the large gathering present.

Ops Township

The nomination meeting of Ops township council was held in the Town Hall, Lindsay yesterday afternoon, with a very large attendance. The following are nominees for the different offices:

For Reeve—Sam Endicott, Walter J. Reed, Thos. H. Reeds.

For Council—George H. Pogue; Walter J. Reed; J. E. Terrill; John G. Endicott (old council) and Clement Parkes, Thos. Hutton, John Hancock and Richard B. Smith.

Caledonians Hold Christmas Concert

Members of the Caledonian Club staged the annual Christmas tree for their children last Friday night in the Woodmen of the World Hall Over fifty children were entertained, and with parents and friends the hall was filled to capacity for this jolly yuletide celebration.

A willing band of workers, including Mesdames D. Anderson and G. Nimmons (convenors), F. Castle, J. Wyllie, J. Brown, R. Hendry and Messrs. J. Blair and R. Graham, had the hall in readiness for their small guests, who arrived at 6.30, full of anticipation which was surely fulfilled.

Decorations were in red and green. Garlands of red and green streamers were interlaced overhead, while every light was shaded with pretty red shades. Two lighted Christmas trees, gay with tinsel and each topped with a silver star, made a beautiful background for the platform. Two long tables were laid for the children. Red streamers and candlesticks with red candles were the decorations, while at each cover was a gay cracker.

R. Gilmour, a great favorite with the young Caledonians, made a happy choice as chairman, and inspired confidence in the little folks, many of whom made their first appearance on the public platform. Santa Claus (R. Hendry), attired in the traditional suit and a pack on his back, duly arrived amid happy cries from the children, delivered with a delicious zest which was infectious. After briefly addressing them, Santa called each name and presented each little guest with a toy and a stocking filled with fruit and sweets. The members were fully repaid for their labors at the satisfaction expressed by the little ones.

Games were played until the children were tired. Afterwards the parents partook of refreshments and spent some time in dancing, and thus another Caledonian Christmas tree was brought to a happy conclusion.

The following was the program: Piano solos by Isabel Gilmour, Rosamund Castle, Rae Borland, Edna Borland, Freda Castle; songs by Hugh Castle, John Quinn, Chrissie Anderson, Mary Anderson, Sadie Anderson, Jim Brown, Agnes Thomson, Jean Hutton, George Clyde, Andrew Brown; recitations by Mary Storey, Hugh Clyde, Barbara Gilmour, Robert Clyde, James Stillwell, Robert Quinn, George Sherratt, Ernest Castle, Margaret Beggs, Olive Hutton, William Beggs, Jean Castle, John Clyde, Jim Cummings, Albert Bethune.

Freda Castle, dressed in a Royal Stewart tartan kilt, with matching accessories, delighted the audience by dancing the Highland Fling, accompanied on the bagpipes by Piper A. Milne. Freda is a pupil of Alec Burgess, one of the members.

SERVICE CLUBS ASSIST NEEDY

Lindsay Couple, Mr. and Mrs. J. Reynolds, Celebrate 60th Anniversary.

MINISTER CALLED.

LINDSAY, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—The local Relief Association, assisted by a Service Club, comprising members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, brought cheer and happiness to many needy families on Christmas. Several hundred baskets, packed with good cheer, were distributed on Saturday, to say nothing of toys, etc., for the children. Special Christmas meals were also provided at the Armories, and the work was carried out so satisfactorily that very needy families in the municipality, as well as transients, were well looked after.

On Christmas Day, as well as on Monday, Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds observed the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding by holding a reception. Many of their relatives as well as scores of their friends, visited the home of the venerable couple and tendered their congratulations. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, the bridesmaid, Mrs. William Lee, of Oshawa, the only living person who played a part in the happy event, outside a sister of Mr. Reynolds (Mrs. A. Armstrong of Lindsay) were prominent at the reception. Mr. Reynolds is in his eighty-third year, while Mrs. Reynolds is seventy-eight years old.

Friends in Lindsay and Peterborough of Condductor Fred Horner, of the Port Hope-Toronto C.N.R. express, will regret to learn of the sad death of his daughter, Helen, which took place in Toronto. The deceased, who was in her twenty-second year, was laid to rest to-day in Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay.

Francis J. Leddy, son of Mr. John Leddy, of Ops Township, but now in Saskatoon, has been awarded the Rhodes Scholarship. This scholarship entitles Mr. Leddy to a course in Oxford University.

Rev. J. Johnstone Black, B.A., B.D., of Barrie, has been extended an official call to become pastor of the First United Church, Lindsay, to succeed Rev. Dr. T. E Holling, whose resignation goes into effect next June.

Omemee

Miss Jessie Lamb of Hastings arrived home on Thursday evening for the Christmas vacation.

Messrs. N. Clemett and Graham of Peterborough visited Mr. and Mrs. F. Clemett on Wednesday.

Mr. Broderick of Toronto called on Dr. McPhee on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Hill and Horace were visitors to Peterborough on Thursday afternoon.

LATEST MAKE-UP MATCHES FROCKS

Paris Experts Oust Old Edicts —Wear Any Color if Powder, Lipstick Right.

(By Diana Merwin).

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (C.P.). — Smart New Yorkers are returning from Paris with suddenly altered complexions—their make-up shaded to match their frocks instead of their hair and skin.

The old edicts of "blues for blonde" and "no pinks for redheads," have been tossed into the discard by a new school of beauty experts, who are insisting that any woman can wear any color, if she chooses the right powder, eye shadow and lipstick. New Yorkers who have adopted the new rules are returning from Paris with make-up kits which include green and purple eye shadow, blue eyelash paint and orange rouge.

"You won't look like a patchwork quilt," one famous stage beauty told a friend in discussing the innovation. "You'll look better than you ever did before, and what's more, you can wear any color—though it takes a lot of careful choosing."

REBELS ON RAMPAGE.

ATHENS, Greece, December 27 (C.P.). — Reports were received to-day that Bugarian revolutionary bands, besides trying to blow up the European express train yesterday, invaded Greek territory and attacked frontier guards.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS AS DANCE NUMBERS.

There are frequent complaints from lovers of good music at the tendency of jazz orchestra leaders to turn standard gems into dance selections, but the limit in this direction was surely reached early Sunday morning when a dance band in an American city was heard over the radio playing a series of favorite old Christmas carols in fox trot tempo.

The thought of half-drunken merrymakers dancing to the strains of "Silent Night," "Once in Royal David's City" and "Oh Come All Ye Faithful," the glorious music of those fine old Christmas numbers distorted into dance rhythm, and the whole thing made more hideous by a few raucous attempts on the part of the dancers to sing some of the words, will be shocking to all people of good taste, whether deeply religious or not.

Jazz band leaders have murdered most of the classics by the liberties they have taken and it is surely not too much to ask that they keep their sacrilegious hands off our religious music.

It is to be hoped the attention of the United States Federal Radio Commision has been called to this particular offence and that all danger of a repetition has been averted.

THE CHRISTMAS BROADCAST.

Canadians who listened the round-the-Empire Christmas broadcast yesterday morning and thrilled at the magic that made possible this rally of Empire countries in Yuletide greetings that encircled the globe and that allowed millions of British subjects to hear a Christmas message from the lips of their beloved King are probably unanimous in the opinion that Canada's National Radio Commission made good in this, its first efforts in the broadcast field.

The Canadian arrangements for this splendid achievement were in the hands of the Commission and with splendid co-operation from Canadian radio stations and telegraph and telephone companies the Dominions part was most capably taken care.

It was a broadcast amazing in its scope and in the fresh revelation it made of the far flung nature of the great Empire. Listeners the world over heard the program start with the chimes in London, heard messages from the British Isles, heard greetings exchanged with the steamer Majestic in mid-Atlantic, heard Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver speak for Canada, heard Christmas messages from Australia where Christmas of 1932 had already passed into history, heard a typical British touch in greetings from the captains of the Australian and M.C.C. test elevens, heard from Capetown, South Africa, as to the Christmas celebration there, heard Captain Latta of the Empress of Britain at anchor in Port Said tell of the Christmas experience of the round-the-world tourists and finally heard an impressive message by His Majesty the King.

Gratifying indeed was the announcement following the broadcast of the intention of Canada's Radio Commission to arrange daily broadcasts from the Motherland whenever programs of sufficient interest are offered and to inaugurate in the near future its own program of Canadian broadcasts.

"BUY BRITISH" VICTIMS IN U.S.

(Dale Cox, in Cleveland Plain Dealer)

One of the Cleveland industrial groups easiest to convince that the "'Buy American" movement is the need of the hour is the automobile parts group. It has been hit harder, perhaps, by the "Buy British" movement than any other local industry. When an industrialist has been roundly swatted by the "Buy British" movement he isn't a good prospect for selling the idea that "Buy American" is selfish, narrow-minded and short-sighted.

Prior to the current "Buy British" movement, several Cleveland auto parts manufacturers were selling their products in England in considerable volume. The parts were being used by American automobile manufacturers with English factories and by the British manufacturers themselves. But now the British insist that ever auto part that can be made in Britain shall have preference over an imported part.

Some Cleveland parts manufacturers are circumventing British patriotism by sending over their products only partly processed. The British supply the final processes and the part thereby becomes a British product.

A prominent Cleveland export official tells me of the interesting case of an American automotive parts manufacturer who has a plant in Great Britain to serve the British market. Because of the high British taxes on industry, this manufacturer could make his parts here, ship them to England, pay the high British tariff and sell the parts 50 per cent. cheaper than he can sell the parts made in his British factory. But he's combating British patriotism when he sends over American parts.

As long as other nations promote nationalism by making the purchase of domestic-made goods a test of patriotism, it is wasted effort to oppose any "Buy American" movement here.

THE MUNICIPAL BATTLE LISTS.

It looks as if the electors of Peterborough will have sufficient municipal fare to keep them busy next Monday when they will be called upon to make their choice among the aspirants for the various vacancies in the public service.

Not only will there be an election for the mayoralty and a four-cornered fight for one position on the Utilities Commission but seven candidates are to battle for four places on the Board of Education and eleven citizens are offering themselves for the five aldermanic berths. With two industrial by-laws to be passed on by the ratepayers as well the New Years' menu is more lavish than has been the case for some years and one of the largest votes on record should ensue.

All four retiring members of the Board of Education, James Dutton, I. P. McNabb, E. F. Reid and Dr. A. Moir are standing for re-election, while the new candidates are John A. McKone, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and former member of the Board, J. E. Smith and William Tinker. This field is large and capable enough to arouse considerable interest among the electors. It is certain that Mr. Tinker's emphatic declaration on Friday that the cost of education must be sharply reduced has already made an impression and several of the other candidates are likely to be equally definite in their promises pointing toward the same end.

Eleven have entered the aldermanic race and seven of these are candidates who have yet to win their spurs in public office. Three members of the present council are again in the field, Ad. Dan Holland, Ald. James Hamilton and Ald. J. A. McNabb, while ex-Ald. Malcolm McIntyre, a veteran around the council circle, is again seeking re-election. The seven new candidates, several of whom have had their names on the ballot paper in previous campaigns, are: Dr. J. M. O'Brien, James C. Ellis, Joseph Henderson, George Benton, Fred O. Goodfellow, Max R. Sloan, and Joseph E. Bell.

With such a large field the aldermanic race should be a very interesting feature of the election-day program.

IT IS DIFFERENT OVER HERE.

The Socialist party in the United States must be given credit for its determination to stick to its name, despite appeals made before the recent election that some other title not so likely to alarm the people should be selected.

In this respect American Socialists are more honest than their brethren on this side of the line who are disguising their Socialistic aims by adopting "Co-operative Commonwealth Federation" as a name more likely to find favor.

When the C.C.F. was launched last August it was proposed to call it the Socialist party of Canada, but the suggestion was over-ruled because of the fear that many people who might otherwise be attracted to the new party might shy off from the Socialist label.

Norman Thomas, the Socialist candididate for the United States presidency, was made of sterner stuff.

When the proposal was made to seek another name for his party, we are told by the New York Times, Mr. Thomas admitted that some such effort to organize a catch-all party it might be possible to gather in temporarily a larger if nondescript support but he asked what would happen as soon as the new adherents found that their particular grievance had been partially met in some other way or had gradually disappeared under the play of economic forces.

They would inevitably drop out, he said, leaving the party looking weaker than ever.

No doubt the Socialist party under a new guise might be able to rally to itself a number of dissatisfied and desperate farmers but, argued Mr. Thomas, if something happened to push agricultural prices up to their old level this agarian reinforcement would promptly melt away.

Furthermore the Socialist leader declared that it would not be honest to attempt some other and indefinite flag for the Socialist ensign which his party flies.

It seems to The Examiner that Mr. Thomas has read a sharp lesson in political practice and in common honesty to Canadian Socialists who have furled and hidden their party flag and are endeavoring to build up a "catch-all" party by enlisting all the protest voters under the important sounding name of the C-operative Commonwealth Federation.

NATURAL, BUT—

The London branch of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees has passed a resolution expressing its opposition to the railway bill now before the Senate of Canada. It will mean, the Brotherhood says, a drastic increase of unemployment in Canada if the economies contemplated by the measure are put into force.

The attitude of the railwaymen is a natural one, but it does not in any way alter the situation that something has to be done about the transportation problem. It is rather mystifying, also, to read the C.B.R.E. suggestion that consideration should now be given the employees by making effective a substantial reduction in interest and dividend payments, rather than by making further staff reductions. The Canadian National is owned by the people of Canada. So far as we are aware, it has never paid a dividend. On the contrary, its deficits run into the millions and these have to be paid out of the public treasury. The Canadian Pacific has paid dividends over a long period of years, but the dividend was passed in 1932, if we remember correctly, and in 1931 we believe that it was cut in two. How, then, is it possible to carry out the London suggestion?

As we remarked not long ago, everyone sympathizes with the railway workers in the present situation, but is the Government justified in allowing the Canadian National to keep on piling up huge losses merely to keep railway workers at their present jobs? It would be just as reasonable to insist that every employer of labor in Canada maintain his pre-depression staff, no matter how bad his business happens to be at present.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Those Christmas ties are a bright spot in the picture during the week after.

And now we can settle down to the important task of deciding what candidate to vote for.

The Christmas spirit must be carried through the coming year if we are to make a success of our relief efforts.

Voters would be well advised not to promise their support too readily. Picking out the best men available is a vital duty in view of the problems that will have to be faced next year.

When one of the aldermanic candidates said his aim was to keep a wigwam over his head he was doubtless trying to put the Indian sign on some of his opposition.

That's the worst thing about those grain speculators, they run for cover just when we need them.—Farmers' Advocate.

THE TWO BY-LAWS

Editor Examiner,

Sir,—There are two By-laws to be voted upon at the time of the municipal elections on January 2nd and we wish to give some reasons why the Council is submitting these By-laws and why they should be supported.

The Raybestos Company By-law

In June of this year officers of the Canadian Raybestos Company approached the City Council and said that they were considering erecting additional buildings for their factory. Under the present uncertain circumstances they hesitated to do so, but said that if they were given a fixed assessment on terms to be agreed on they would recommend their directors to erect a building 60 by 150 feet and another one 60 by 35 feet. They also said that they expected to add other lines to their present production and that with the new buildings they would soon be in a position to give increased employment. The City Council is anxious that work should be provided wherever possible, and were willing for that reason to grant the request of the company. As, however, it would cost from $600 to $750 to submit a By-law to the electors at that time the Council agreed to submit the By-law at the time of the next municipal election and to recommend the electors to endorse the By-law. The Council is now carrying out that promise. The fixed assessment proposed is $35,000, except for school taxes and local improvement rates, which is an increase of $15,000 in the assessment of the property of the company for general municipal purposes. The Council is relying on the electors to make good the promise made to the Raybestos Company, and asks the electors to vote for the By-law.

The DeLaval By-law

One of the products which the DeLaval Company has been making in their Peterborough factory is milking machines, not only for the Canadian market but also for export to the United States. These milking machines have been for several years one of the principal products of the factory. Altered circumstances have resulted in the Company having vacant space in their parent factory at Poughkeepsie, New York, and it was proposed that the manufacture of these milking machines be taken to Poughkeepsie, as the bulk of the product went to the United States. This would be a serious setback to the Peterborough factory and cause a loss of employment here, not only now, but in the future as well, because once this business was transferred to the United States factory it would most probably be returned there. Apprized of these facts the Council made efforts to keep the making of these machines here, and also asked whether some new lines could be added if the company were given a concession. The DeLaval Company has developed a new product, a combine milking machine for use in large dairy farms, and it was agreed that if the company should be given a fixed assessment of $60,000 (except for school taxes and local improvement rates), the making of the milking machines would be continued here, that the manufacture of the combine milking machines would be added, and that another and additional development now under way would probably be given to the Peterborough factory to make. The company agrees that it will increase its factory payroll from 50 to 75 per cent within two years, or sooner if possible and the By-law provides that if the company should fail to give the additional employment as agreed the fixed assessment shall cease and full taxes will be paid for all purposes.

The proposed fixed assessment is an addition of $10,000 to company's assessment for general municipal purposes. The guaranteed increased employment means that from 95 to 145 more employees will be engaged in Peterborough by the company over $5,000,000 in wages, the company has given work to other factori. in the city to the amount of over $1,000,000. The retention of the manufacture of the milking machines and the addition of the new lines, and the increased payroll of 95 to 145 employees, are very important matters for Peterborough, and we ask the electors to vote for this By-law.

THE BROWSER

LOUISA MAY ALCOTT had a birthday the other day. She would have been a hundred, and the Browser dreamed that Louisa looked down from a gilded heavenly cloud and murmured to a cherub: "Just imagine those children down there on the earth are still reading those books I wrote so long ago. But nobobdy at all is reading those books I wanted to write and somehow, never did."

A fine person, Louisa. She enjoyed this world, she knew how to tell a story, and she liked children. But she had a vague and visionary father and she got started writing children's stories and "they" wouldn't let her write any other kind....like the character actors in Hollywood who want to play heroes but the "box office" won't let them ....Once she referred to her stories as "moral pap for the young," but she wasn't really a cynic or a hypocrite and don't you be thinking she was....Just weary of her pedestl, that's all.

How different Louisa May Alcott was from the modern Edna St. Vincent Millays and Dorothy Parkers. And how different her father, Bronson Alcott, and his friend, Ralph Waldo Emerson, are from such writers as Hemingway and Lawrence and Joyce and Faulkner.

Alexander Woollcott isn't too enthusiastic about Hemingway. In McCall's last month, he made a few remarks about the ugly words Hemingway used in his grand bull-fight book....But Wm. Faulkner's pretty bad too. Sometimes he makes you sicka thestummick because in his books everything's twisted, people live in nightmares, maggots crawl and men fall into such grotesque positions when they die. You read his "Light in August" if you're not convinced.

And then read Barrie's little book "Farewell, Miss Julie Logan" (who had such a lovely husky voice) and compare the two men. "In this white wastrie of a world." says Sir James, "the dreariest moment is when custom makes you wind up you watch."....Not for the Browser, however. His dreariest moment is when he has to get up in the morning. It reminds him of the war days when tough top-sergeants made him get up at 6 o'clock in the dawn to do calisthenics for his health in the frozen moonlight.

That same Alexander Woollcott thinks that most of Oscar Wilde's stuff was just so much sen-sen.... Gosh! remember when you wore stiff white collars and took sen-sen to parties and thought Wilde's "Picture of Dorian Gray" was Great Literature?

Mary Austin has been made a Special Deputy Sheriff of Santa Fe county, New Mexico .... Hendrik Van Loon flipped a coin to see whether the Book of the Month club or the Literary Guild should publish his "Geography" and the Book of the Month won....(The Browser knows a toughy who thinks it lost.)

H. G. Wells has objected because Mary Austin quoted something he told her 25 years ago—and that page will be out of the second edition.

Mark Van Doren's "Anthology of American Poets: 1630-1930" is a good book even though two or three critics sneered politely at Van Doren's inclusion of too many poems by himself....But if the Browser were a poet he'd put all of his poems into his anthology, too, because every chicken thinks she lays very fine eggs indeed and egotism is what keeps us going.

Ella Winter Steffens—she's Lincoln Steffens' wife—says that John Spivak's "Georgia Nigger" is a "better book than 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' because it employs not one scrap of false sentimentality," but what made Mrs. Stowe's book so powerful was that same "false sentimentality" as it is sometimes called.... but which is frequently just strong emotion that is not ashamed of showing itself....The Browser will trade you two tons of "stern realism" for half an ounce of "false sentimentality" any day .... and now that he has finished Prescott's "Conquest of Mexico"—at last—he's reading Archibald McLeish's "Conquistador", which ought to win a Pulitzer Poetry Prize—and he's a very happy

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 1

Jere Kane leaned against the rail intent upon watching the beehive of activity as the big white liner was warped into dock. The crossing from Honolulu had not been an unpleasant one, but neither was it comparable to some of the past.

Although he had watched this particular operation in hundreds of ports throughout the world, it was his first landing at San Pedro and he was anxious to observe the performance at this gateway to Eden. But once the gangplank was raised from the dock he lost all in erest in everything but getting ashore.

Fortunately, and for this he uttered up a prayer of thanks, there were no customs officers to argue with, a fact which makes landing from Hawaii peculiarly pleasant. He flipped a coin to the steward who was taking care of his luggage, snapped a few brief directions, and then hurried to the boat train which would carry him into Los Angeles.

Scarcely more than an hour later he was registering at the Embassy when a gruff voice hailed him familiarly. He turned, ready to retort harshly that he didn't care to be bothered for the moment, only to find himself gazing into the smiling face of Ben McQuarrie, his old friend, the inspector of detectives in New Orleans.

"What in the world are you doing in Lo Angeles?" he demanded.

"The Peace Officers' Association is meeting here and I couldn't resist the temptation to come out," MacQuarrie replied jovially. "You know," he added confidentially, "I've always wanted to visit Eden in hope that I might find the right Eve."

"Still the bachelor Adam on the hunt, eh?" Kane laughed. "Well, I understand the woods out here are full of women."

"Yeah," the inspector grinned, "I suppose so. But tell me, where have you been for the past year?"

"Wandering around over the face of the globe, trying to forget," with mock severity. "By the way, MacQuarrie, how did Judy Banning make out in her trial. I left New Orleans before the trial started."

"You know the unwritten law and how juries in the south regard it," the other returned.

"Came clear, eh? I'm glad of it, honestly, I never would have felt right if that girl had been convicted. If there ever was a man who deserved being killed that man was Martin Banning."

"Right you are. But let's forget business. How about dinner with me tonight?"

"I should be delighted. But I must change. You know, Los Angeles is a stickler for formality."

"Dinner at eight," McQuarrie said. "By the way, there will be another at our table, Chief Lee of Los Angeles."

Kane had anticipated a dreary stay in this City of Eden when he disembarked at San Pedro. His train did not leave until the next morning and he was anxious to get home. But his old luck was still playing in his favor; the world seemed somewhat brighter.

In his room he disrobed and stepped under a tepid shower. It was a good four hours until dinner, so he enjoyed an easy ablution, splashing about and even indulging in an old habit of singing in the bath. That task finished, he slipped into his robe and slumped into a chair to peruse the afternoon papers which the bellboy had left for him.

There was the usual Hollywood ballyhoo to be found in the newspapers. He glanced through it—he couldn't for the life of him explain why he did it—and presently his eye fell on a small paragraph concerning two old friends, Helen Dudley and Rodolf Holmes, and their new picture.

That paragraph conjured up a vision of the last case on which he had worked before sailing on a world cruise. The murder of Martin Banning had provided front page gossip for every newspaper in the United States, not so much because of him but because of his famou wife, the former Judy King, a once famous musical comedy actress. Helen Dudley and Rodolf Holmes were her guests at her New Orlean home at the time of the tragedy.

Even now, as he had then, he could not help but admire the pair. They had even gone so far as to cast guilt on themselves in a desperate effort to protect the distracted wife.

Well, she had come out of it all right, so MacQuarrie had informed him. That was a consoling thought.

It was a few minutes before eight when he descended to the lobby to find the inspector and a distinguished looking gentleman awaiting him. After the introduction, this man, whom it had developed was the justly famous chief of police of Los Angeles, turned to him.

"I understand you are quite an amateur deteetive," he said.

"Don't call him an amateur detective," MacQuarrie warned jokingly. "He'll hop all over you. If memory serves me right, he is a student of criminology."

"Amateur is right," Kane laughed, ignoring the inspector's chiding jest. "But," he added, "not very successful."

"Don't let him make sport of you," MacQuarrie contradicted. "Jere Kane has solved some of the most baffling cases ever brought to the attention of the New Orleans department, and," he gave Lee a playful poke in the ribs, "he works in such a way that the department always gets credit for what he does."

"I wish I had a man like him to depend on," Chief Lee declared fervently. "Perhaps then the newspapers wouldn't ride us so hard."

"You'll never bribe me to give him up," the inspector said. "New Orleans needs him just as much as does Los Angeles."

After which they went in to dinner. From their table they had a good view of the dining room and its colorful lot of diners. Lee pointed out a dark, sleek man sitting on the opposite side of the room. "That's John Gilbert," he said.

At intervals, he pointed out others. Edmund Lowe and his wife, Lilyan Tashman. Constance Bennett and her husband, the Marquis. William Powell and his wife, Carol Lombard. And a host of other motion picture celebrities who were availing themselves of the Saturday night festivities in the dining room.

Suddenly, the orchestra swung into the lilting strains of "Le Marsellaise." The hum of conversation, which had sounded like the buzz of a million bees, hushed. Every eye turned toward the door.

Kane glanced in that direction to ascertain the cause of this unexpected reverence. MacQuarrie turned, too, and looked over his shoulder. "What a woman!" he gasped.

She was tall and exotically dark. Her hair was drawn back tightly into a little knot at the nape of her neck. They were close enough to see a pair of flashing sloe eyes, rose-hued features and an amused smile playing about her soft, full mouth. A clinging black gown, daring decollete, revealed the lissomeness of her well-formed body.

"That's Nanette LeRoi," Lee whispered, almost in awe. "She's the new importation from France that everyone is raving about. She's the reigning Eve of this Eden."

The actress swept toward her table behind a coterie of assistant managers, maitres and head waiters, with imperial bearing. Nor did they leave her until she had made herself comfortable and had ordered her dinner. Nor until then did the orchestra cease its rendition of the French air and swing into one of the popular dance numbers.

"Richard Bailey discovered her while he was in Normandy shooting some scenes for his new picture," Lee explained.

"Bailey is one of your foremost directors, isn't he?" Kane asked.

"He has a long list of hits to his credit," the chief confirmed, "all big money makers. He ranks with King Vidor, Cecil de Mille and Frank Borzage."

A puzzled expression darkened his countenance. He looked expectantly about, seemingly searching for someone.

"What gets me," he went on at last, "is that she is here without him. It's the first time she has ever gone anywhere without him."

Others in the room must have had the same thought, for Kane could see knowing glances and nodding heads and covert conversation. "Just an overgrown country village," he said to himself. "Everyone knows everybody else's business."

They dabbled at their food for nearly an hour. The chief punctuated the meal with vapid comments about Hollywood and its people. MacQuarrie showed keen delight in his remarks, but Kane was only mildly interested. He was more concerned with the unusual woman who sat almost opposite them.

The waiter was bringing their check when a bellboy appeared at the table and announced in a low voice:

"Chief Lee, you are wanted on the telephone."

That official rose. "A man can never have a moment's peace," he laughed, "in this Eden of paradise." Then he left them.

He was gone but a few moments. Kane saw him coming across the room with quick step. A frown was on his face. Back at the table, he turned and studied Nanette LeRoi indecisively. Apparently still at a loss to know what to do, he addressed his companions:

"Would you gentlemen care to go for a little automobile ride?"

"Going to take us for a ride, eh?" MacQuarrie laughed. "All right with me. How about you, Kane?"

Jere Kane sensed someth ng in the air. "I should be glad to," he agreed.

After settling for the check they made their way outside to the chief's car. He snapped some directions to his driver. A moment later the car slid out into Vermont avenue and turned toward Hollywood. They turned into Wilshire boulevard, then wheeled into Western avenue and sped on to Hollywood boulevard, thence to Highland avenue. At Highland the car swerved to the north and headed for the hills on the edge of the city.

Throughout that long ride not a word was spoken. The chief centered his attention on the driver's attempt to race through the early night traffic. MacQuarrie contented himself with enjoying the sights, particularly as they raced past the studios on Western avenue. Kane was more interested in their destination and was silently awaiting the beginning of a big adventure, if there was to be one.

The car labored up a steep hill and presently was brought to a halt in front of what Hollywood is pleased to call a small bungalow. It sat bac in a grove of palm and eucalyptus trees, almost hidden from the street. Lights twinkled through the trees into the night.

"This is the home of Richard Bailey," Lee informed them.

He climbed out of the machine and motioned for them to follow him. At the door he rapped loudly, persistently, with the castiron knocker. Padded footsteps sounded inside and then the door was opened slowly.

An ashen-faced old man eyed them suspiciously. His face lighted as he recognized the chief.

"In the den, sir," he said succinctly.

He led them into the room. The scene was one of wild disorder. Chairs were overturned. The carpet was badly ruffled. A small table, on which sat a decanter and four small glasses, was pushed back against the wall.

In the center of the room lay Richard Bailey, a gaping wound in his temple.

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE.

WINNIPEG, December 27 (C.P.)—Weakness at Buenos Aires and Chicago gave a fractional dip to wheat quotations in the wheat market here to-day. Lightness of offerings featured early trade. Houses with seaboard connections gave a fair amount of support to the market during the morning.

At the mid-session period prices were holding ⅛c lower. Decemoer sold at 41⅞c, May at 43½c, and July at 44⅝c.

Spreaders were in the market, buying Winnipeg July against sales of Chicago July. Export trade over the holiday was disappointing, one the feeling toward the market appeared to be friendly.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.— (A.P.) — Setbacks in wheat quotations at Buenos Aires led to early downturns to-day in the wheat market here. Absence of rains in drought districts of domestic winter wheat teritory south-west failed to act as an offset. Opening unchanged to 1-8 lower, Chicago wheat futures underwent an all around sag later. Corn started at a shade decline to 1-8 advance and subsequently held near the initial range.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 27 (C.P.)—Toronto Stock Exchange listings in the opening session of the week merely held their ground though a few fractional advances were registered for the day. Trading continued on a small scale.

Food shares were inclined to firmness in the early trading when Dominion Stores moved up to 17 but it closed unchanged at 16¾ after absorbing several substantial blacks. Loblaw "A" was a little stronger at 11⅝.

In the interlisted group C.P.R. at 15½ showed a gain of a half point; Bell Telephone was unchanged at 9¼, Ford was weak at 6¼, and International Nickel was a fraction firmer at 8⅝.

A better tone ruled in the steel group with Dominion Bridge and Steel of Canada both registering half point gains. Walkers Common picked up a fraction to 5⅝ and the financial shares showed no change except in Royal and Canada Permanent, which were up two points each.

Among the implement stocks, both Cockshutt Plow and Massey Harris scored small gains.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(A.P.)—Stock trading dragged lazily into the late dealings to-day with prices of most leading shares down fractionally. They had recovered a shade from their lower levels, reached earlier in the day. American Tobacco "B" continued down more than a point while substantial fractions were lopped off Liggett and Myers and Reynolds Telesues. U. S. Steel, Amecrican Telephone, Standard of California, Public Service of New Jersey, Case, New York Central and Southern Pacific were slightly lower. Allied Chemical and Air Reduction were up a point. General Electric, General Motors and Santa Fe were steady. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 27. (CP)—The stock market drifted in holiday fashion here to-day with prices closing slightly below the best levels of the day. But the market leaders were either unchanged or higher.

Canadian Pacific was comparatively strong, moving up ⅛ to 15½. Brazilian closed ¼ higher at 9⅝ while International Nickel and Montreal Power lost initial advances to finish unchanged. Nickel at 8½, the latter at 30⅝. Dominion Steel and Coal B was ¼ higher at 1¼. Royal Bank picked up a point at 131.

Shawinigan and Canadian Car were among the losers. The power stock eased ⅛ to 9⅞. Car preferred improved slightly to close ⅛ lower at 10¼ after touching 10. The common was off ⅛ to 3⅛. St. Lawrence Corporation eased five cents to 35 cents.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Dec. 27 (C.P.).—Mining Market operators came back from the Christmas festivities feeling very bullish and it was the best market the Standard Exchange has experienced in some weeks. A feature was the churning of the Lindsley shares. Falconbridge forged ahead from 1.75 to more than $2, on a report that dividend payments would be resumed. Sudbury Basin and Ventures moved ahead several points. The big copper issues, Noranda and International Nickel continued slow but stronger.

Among the gold shares Teck advanced 18 to 388, a new high point for the summer and fall, while Hargreaves at 359 was up 20. McIntyre, Lake Shore, Dome, and Hollinger were all up a little.

Among the cheaper golds San Antonio and Siscoe were the leaders, Antonio advancing 9 points to 77 and Siscoe 15 points to 119. Granada at 1.11 was up three points.

C. N. R. EARNINGS.

MONTREAL, December 27 (C.P.)—Gross revenues of the Canadian National Railways for the week ended December 21, were $2,352,733, as compared with $3,119,430 for the corresponding period of 1931, a decrease of $766,707, according to an official statement.

CANADIAN SEALRIGHT COMPANY IS GIVEN ORDER FOR 40 MILLION CAPS

Silverwood Dairies Place Big Order for Bottle Caps.

PLANT IS REAL BUSY.

One of the largest bottle cap contracts in the Dominion is being handled by The Canadian Sealright Company here for Silverwood Dairies Limited.

The order recently obtained is for forty million caps printed in two colors, and is a follow up to a previous contract handled by the Canadian Sealright Company for the manufacture of ice-cream cartons for the Silverwood Dairy.

Samuel Whitehouse, manager of the Canadian Sealright Company, established here in 1927 as a subsidiary of the Canadian Nashua Paper Company, Limited, told The Examiner the present year had been one of the busiest in their five year experience in the manufacture of Sealright products. He looked forward to the coming year with entire confidence. Orders at present on hand, he said, assured work for the two cap-making machines and the four operators for some months to come.

The present contract from the Silverwood Dairies, Mr. Whitehouse explained was valued highly by his firm. It was obtained in face of keen competition from three rival firms engaged in similar business in Canada.

The Examiner was privileged to take a tour of the Sealright plant with Mr. Whitehouse. The familiar milk bottle caps are made from Canadian board, and are manufactured on the two ingeniously designed presses in two colors at the rate of 50,000 per hour. The annual output of the two machines for the year averages 250,000,000 caps.

The Silverwood contract is being executed in a variety of designs for the various brands of milk and cream bottled by the dairy, such as homogenized milk, cultured buttermilk, Jersey milk, table cream, whipping cream and super milk, etc. The designs were all executed by the Sealright Art Department in Peterborough.

The caption "Sealright Sanitary Service" is stamped on every Sealright product, which as Mr. Whitehouse explained, is the company's guarantee of absolute cleanliness. Immediately before being boxed in the tubular containers the milk bottle caps come from the machine, after having travelled through a sterilizing bath of boiling wax.

HOLIDAY TOLL

minutes later; Howard McLeod died in Halifax as a result of a crash; at Glace Bay, Richard McIntyre was helping a man to his home. McIntyre fell and died shortly afterwards.

Fred Woods, Halifax, was struck by a passenger train, and William Roche, Lockport fisherman, was drowned as he attended his lobster traps.

At St. Eustache-Lucien, Que., six-year-old Lucien Beauchamp died when he was struck by an automobile. Numerous injuries were reported in other motor crashes while at Quebec, Arthur Langlois, his wife and two children were reported recovering after eating poisoned meat.

Police at Winnipeg were hunting for a motorist who injured three persons during a wild drive through crowded streets. The man smashed into a motorcycle on which two soldiers riding, and later struck David Ranson, nine.

At Vancouver, David Black, police court clerk clerk, leaped to his death from the roof of the police station.

Factors

Poison liquor, brawls involving shooting and stabbings, train mishaps, drownings, fires, and other causes swelled the mounting figure. Despondency led to several suicides.

In Newport, Ark., authorities said the Walter Ballew family of five, including three children, died from eating Christmas cake, in which the mother, by mistakle, used some poison which had been kept about the place to combat cotton insects.

Of the total auto deaths of 169 for the country, California reported 20 and Michigan 12. There were 300 persons injured in traffic crashes in the Pacific Coast State, and 175 more in Michigan.

Six poison-liquor deaths occurred in New York and one in Wyoming. In the Western State three other persons were seriously ill from the same cause.

Miscellaneous accidents and tragedies accounted for 83 deaths. Four died in week-end shootings in Kentucky, one man in a quarrel over a quart of whiskey. Texas had nine deaths from shootings and stabbings.

Florida had the only aviation fatality, a parachute failing to open.

CAR PLUNGES IN RIVER

OTTAWA, Dec. 27.—When the car in which they were driving crashed through the guard rail of Champlain Bridge and snapped off one of the light standards, William Woffinden and Leonard Johsson, of the R.C.H.A., Kingston, were hurled into the Ottawa River, late yesterday.

Woffinden was severely cut about the face and head, and is now in hospital, while Johnson, driver of the car, is being detained pending an investigation.

County Debentures Are Sold For 99.5

Sale of the county's $35,000 debentures has been arranged by the special committee to which this matter was referred at the recent meeting of the County Council. The Citizens' Bond Corporation is taking the issue at slightly under par, 99.5 net, including the cost of printing and other incidentals.

The special committee was composed of Warden Montgomery, Reeve Leahy and E. A. Peck, county solicitor. Mr. Peck said this morning that the price was a very good one and should be satisfactory to the council and the ratepayers.

The debentures are to cover a Provincial highway levy. Bids were received by the council and one was accepted at $101.20, but the tender was so conditioned on account of the declining bond market that it left the bidding company a loophole through which they could withdraw. When they turned back the council's acceptance the special committee was authorized to dispose of the debentures at the best price they could get.

bidge street at 8.30 p.m. Saturday evening by a car driven by T. W. King, 470 Driscoll Terrace. Easterbrook is said to have driven in front of the car in trying to skirt some ice on the roadway.

T. T. Tully, farmer, drove his car into collision with a car driven by John Crane at the corner of McDonnel and George streets on Friday afternoon. Mr. Crane was driving south and Tully made a left hand turn from George onto McDonnel, hitting the other car about the middle of the intersection.

After investigation by police, William Godfrey, Leahy's Lane, today reported an accident which occurred on Friday afternoon at 4.50 o'clock at the corner of Park Hill Road and Armour's Road. Godfrey admitted knocking Harvey Starr, 860 Water street, from his bicycle. Starr was picked up from beneath Godfrey's car and it was found that he had several fractured ribs. Starr was riding up the hill and Godfrey overtook him. Godfrey states he failed to see the cyclist.

Hit-and-Run Motorist

It is alleged that a hit-and-run motorist struck a cyclist at the corner of George and Hunter streets late Saturday night. Police are on the lookout for the motorist.

Proving that it pays to lock your car, a thief made two unsuccessful attempts to steal locked cars on Park street, south, early Sunday morning. In the case of one car, owned by Howard Chambers, 633 Downie street, the thief cut away part of the glass in the right front door, but was unable to open the locked door.

Three men were locked in the police cells Saturday night on charges of being drunk and disorderly. After their ardour cooled through the night in the cells, they were released early Sunday morning to go home and enjoy Christmas dinner with their families. Chief Newhall may lay charges against them.

In view of the number of accidents in which bicycles figured over the week-end, Chief Newhall today issued the warning that a thorough checkup of all bicycles will be made and charges laid against owners who have not provided their vehicles with lights or reflectors. He also warns motorists to drive slowly and carefully over icy pavements and have their cars in full charge at all times.

through a representative of Soviet Russia interests, some authorities on prospects for barter arrangements. Russian oil is mentioned as the chief export from Russia.

Minister Hopeful.

Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, when questioned about the report, admitted that he had been working on a proposal to exchange Russian oil for Canadian cattle for several weeks. "I am quite hopeful something of definite value will come out of it," the Minister explained, "but the negotiations have not yet advanced to the point where a definite statement can be made. Further important details have to be worked out. However, I expect a statement will be made in the not too distant future."

According to well-informed interests here, a company would be organized in Winnipeg to deal with Russia if the negotiations are successful. Russia wants cattle to stock her farms so that the demand would be chiefly for dairy breeds and would be mostly heifers and cows. In order to improve the herds five per cent. pure-bred bulls and heifers would be taken.

SERVICE STATION ROBBED

HAMILTON.—Two men held up the attendant at a gasoline station here early to-day and escaped with $80 in cash. No trace has been found of the bandits.

SCREEN ODDITIES
by Captain Roscoe Fawcett

While many writers and directors believe that the truly artistic picture must end in tragedy the public as a whole does not subscribe to that belief. The average person likes to see a motion picture end happily regardless of the tragic nature of the plot related therein. Opinion differs, however, in various sections of the country. In certain towns a tragic ending may be used without detriment to the popularity of the film but in other places a happy ending must be given the same picture. For this reason both happy and unhappy endings sometimes are filmed and the exhibitor may use the one he desires for his clientele.

An ape measuring forty feet tall and with a girth of twelve feet appears in "King Kong." The ape, supposedly a survivor of prehistoric ages, is taken to New York City for exhibition purposes. There, fascinated by the memory of a sight of Fay Wray, it breaks loose and goes in search of her. It climbs tall buildings, peering into windows and when it finds her, climbs with her to the top of the Empire State Building. A squadron of army planes is called out to battle the ape and rescue her.

He saw service in the Greeco-Turkey war where he went to fight for his native land although a naturalized Canadian.

Post Office Settles After Christmas Rush

Contrasting strangely with the bustle and excitement of the past week or so, a strange calm settled over the Post Office here to-day and harrased postal workers had begun to settle down once again to the normal routine of everyday business.

At noon racks and shelves were almost entirely bare of mail, everything having been cleaned up with the exception of a few misdirected pieces of mail that were shelved for directory service.

Postmaster Charles Lacheur commenting on the fact that over 500,000 pieces of letter mail (both incoming and outgoing) had been handled during the past week, stated that it represented an unusually heavy amount. That it had been handled with such dispatch and expediency, he attributed largely to the splendid co-operation that had been received by the general public who had regarded the request of the Post Office Department to "mail early."

With the completion of the Christmas Monday mail delivery, Mr. Lacheur stated that the twenty auxiliary postal workers concluded their brief period of service. The employment was given to ex-servicemen with dependants.

To the Bank

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 27 (CP) Although it was the day after Christmas at least one man went to the bank to-day. He was William A. McCaw, arrestrested in possession of illegal liquor. When McCaw's name was called in court it was announced he was camping outside a bank waiting till the opening hour to withdraw $100 to pay his fine. As soon as the bank opened, he got the money came down and paid the fine.

Scrapped With Wife Wanted To Tell Chief

Having quarrelled with is spouse, an intoxicated husband stormed the police station late Saturday in order to tell Chief Newhall "all about it." The sergeant on duty tried to reason with the inebriate, who insisted that he be taken to lay his grievance against his wife before the chief or be locked up. He was locked up. Early Sunday morning, he was in a peaceful mood and was released to return home to make peace with his family and eat Christmas turkey.

Attempt Made To Rob Brewery Warehouse

The stout walls of the brewery warehouse apparently withstood an attempt Saturday night to storm its interior on the part of someone anxious to get at its huge store of liquid refreshment. The attempt at breaking into the brewery was made through the plant of Merchants Press, which is part of the same building. Unable to gain their goal after having broken into the printing establishment, the thief or thieves smashed several things in the printing office, but apparently carried nothing of value away.

Largest Music Hall Blazes Open To-Night

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (C.P.).—The music hall, first entertainment unit of the quarter-billion-dollar Rockefeller centre—the structural miracle that blossomed in an economic drought—will blaze open to-night on three bustling sides—49th and 50th Streets and Sixth Avenue.

Like most new things in the world of the theatre, it will be the largest entertainment centre of its kind in the world. Modern to the minute, it will accommodate 6,200 persons on the main floor and in its three "mezzanines," as S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel, director of entertainment, prefers to call them.

Two hundred and fifty police officers, foot and mounted, have been detailed for to-night's opening, and special traffic lanes will be kept open as far north as Central Park, nine blocks north.

Further to handle the opening night attendance there will be 250 doormen, ushers and pages.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC WORST FOR SOME YEARS

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—(CP)—The influenza epidemic which is at present sweeping many parts of Ontario is more serious than for the past several years, but is a very light form of the disease and nothing to occasion much alarm, health authorities and doctors today said.

"I don't think there's much to worry about," said Dr. J. M. Robb, Provincial Minister of Health.

Dr. G. P. Jackson, medical officer of health for Toronto, said "The best way to beat it out is simply to take a mild laxative and go to bed for 48 hours. In most cases it is gone at the end of that time."

"People with bad colds who refuse to keep to themselves should be locked up," another prominent physician said.

Harpell vs. Maacauley Trial

The libel action taken by T. B. Macauley, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company, against James J. Harpell, publisher of the Canadian Journal of Commerce, doesn't seem to be worrying the latter as he sits in the Court at Montreal with one of his lawyers Calixte Cormier. Inset shows Mr. Macauley as he gravely watched the proceedings of the Court.

55 SINGLE MEN GIVEN DINNERS

Enough Funds Left Over to Buy Christmas Dinners.

OVER 600 BASKETS.

Not only did all of the more than 600 families on the city's relief rolls receive a large basket of Christmas cheer on Saturday, but the citizens were so generous in their contributions that it was found late Saturday afternoon that there would be sufficient funds to provide Christmas dinners also for the 55 unemployed single men.

A. G. Metheral, relief officer, and his staff, set out late Saturday night when it was found that there was a surplus in funds, to distribute meal tickets to the single persons. They worked on the job of distributing the meal tickets until noon Sunday.

The meals were purchased from the surplus funds by arrangement with local cafes. Turkey was chief on the menu.

Prevailing "Flu" Is Not Of Serious Type

Although there is much influenza prevalent in the city, a well-known local physician, who has a wide practice, told The Examiner to-day that it was not a serious type and there was little cause for alarm. He said that the "flu" had reached perhaps greater proportions than last year, but the cases he had were not serious.

Many stores, offices and factories reported to-day that a large number of their staffs were ill with "flu," and some organizations were having a difficult time to carry on because of small staffs.

RELIEF WORK IN CAMPBELLFORD

Canadian Legion and Rotary Club Look After the Needy at Christmas.

FOOD AND CLOTHING.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 27 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Showing the spirit of Christmas, which is so prevalent at this time of the year, Campbellford has taken particular care that the less fortunate citizens, many of whom are experiencing hard times this year for the first time owing to the severe economic conditions and the lack of employment, did not go short of the wherewithal that makes the season one of good cheer.

Supported by many voluntary contributions from individuals in the community, the different organizations have taken care of those extreme cases where the need is great and working together have seen that there was no overlapping of their efforts.

The Campbellford branch of the Canadian Legion carried out their usual program of giving to those families of ex-service men and their dependents, a Christmas hamper consisting of fowl and vegetables and all the trimmings to enable them to enjoy a real Christmas dinner. In their efforts along this line many contributions were received including over one hundred sealers of fruit collected by the Sunshine Club under the direction of Mrs. H. T. Cowell; a quantity of fine cabbages donated by C. W. Palliser, local florist; bags of potatoes from another generous citizen and a quantity of nuts and candy given by the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Major J. M. Bygott was in charge of the committee that handled the collection and distribution of these hampers.

The Campbellford Rotary Club, assisting with this work of Christmas cheer, confined their efforts to the children more particularly, providing toys and candies and clothing to those in urgent need.

About $200 was spent by the club on clothing alone; this being augmented by several contributions, and it is felt that the children of town, which every effort has been made to cover, should at least be fairly well equipped for the winter. About 150 parcels were distributed by this organization. C. B. Williams and E. C. Dolman taking a great share in the responsibility of this work, although every member of the club was pressed into service and many non-members volunteered their assistance.

NORWOOD CONCERT IS WELL ATTENDED

Cantata, "Echo of Song" is Highlight of Program at St. Andrew's.

NORWOOD, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — The annual Christmas entertainment of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on Thursday evening. The main part of the program was a Christmas contata entitled "The Echo of a Song." The story of the contata is centered around a happy family Philip and Jean Shipley and their children Jack, Grace, Peggy and Margaret.

Everyone is preparing for Christmas but as the day approaches every one feels the urge to spend Christmas with Grandpa and Grandma Shipley in the old home.

The "Christmas merry makers" with their carols and song bring back happy memories and they finally decide to spend the day with their lonely Grandparents who receive them with open arms.

Every one is made happy through the Echo of Song. The solos, duets and choruses throughout included the entire school.

Cantata cast; Sprit of Love, Jean Webb; Philip Shipley, Mel Ennis; Jean Shipley, Evelyn Godin; Jack Shipley, Billy Godin; Grace Shipley, Frances Beldock; Peggy Shipley, Lois Rodgers; Margaret Shipley, Mar. Meldock; Grandpa and Grandma Shipley, Trevor Robb and Ollie Ferguson.

Between acts splendid recitations were given by junior members of the school.

The closing number was a splendid drill by thirteen girls prettily gowned in white and silver. Santa Claus arrived at this time to the enjoyment of the kiddies with candy and presents for all.

Ninth Line Concert

The Ninth Line day and Sunday School concert held on Friday night was greeted with a full house who enjoyed a fine program put on by the pupils consisting of songs, recitations, drills and dialogues. Selections by the Sunday School orchestra. Recitation by Mrs. K. C. Murphy and Miss Metcalfe and a duet by Messrs. David and Arnold Ferguson were well received.

Short address were given by the Rev. Mr. Cleland, Rev. Mr. Downing and Messrs. G. A. Brethen, Thos. Patterson and E. N. McDonald.

Mr. Golden Andrews superintendent was presented with a fountain pen and an address expressing the Sunday school's thanks and appreciation for his services.

HASTINGS HAS TWO IN FIELD FOR REEVESHIP

ing's also in regards to the cutting down of the hill near his residence which left his well useless, some hot words went between Councillor Fairman and Mr. Taylor and when the latter referred to the clerk getting a raise of $26.00 the past year, it brought the veteran clerk of the province to his feet for more fireworks. Clerk Wilson explained that he issues a good many permits of different types for which he is entitled to charge 25c each for, but he makes no charge whatever, also of other different work he is entitled to charge for and does not. He is the lowest paid clerk in the province for the amount of work done, but would give the job to Mr. Taylor any time he wished for it.

Councillor Fleming, the last member of the old council to speak was also the target on the gravel question. G. B. Stevenson contestant for the reeveship spoke very briefly, stating it was a pleasure to see such a large turnout of voters showing the interest they were taking in municipal affairs. He was placing himself in the hands of his mover and seconder and friends for election. In regard to the Hydro he left that for Mr Fowlds.

Samuel Hatherly stated he would not cause an election but if there was one he would likely sign up.

Councillor Fleming was of the opinion that the money saved by not having an election could be used for relief.

L. E. Kelley, Wm. English and J. R. Chapman made short addresses, the rest of the nominees were not present.

Walter M. Fowlds, chairman of the Hydro Commission gave a very clear and concise report on the workings of the local commission since the first of the present year when the commission was elected. Shortly after taking office the power rate was cut from 5.9 the first rate to 4.9 and 3.9 to 3.3 the second rate, this cut had meant a big saving to the power users.

Cut Minimum Rate

The minimum rate was cut from $2.50 a month to $2.00 to domestic and commercial users which meant a saving of over a $1,000 to users of the village. Mr. Fowlds went into the financial condition of the local commission at the present time which showed it to be in a very flourishing condition, with a surplus on hand of over $3,600 and every possibility of having the rate again reduced at the end of the Hydro year which is the end of June. He also explained the hiring of E. M. Hess as maintenance man in place of Mr. Killingbeck. Mr. Fowlds stated that he interviewed Mr. Killingbeck before calling for tenders.

TWO SEEKING REEVE'S POST

fice if polls are held, otherwise he will remain in the council.

New Names Submitted

For councilors, three new names were submitted: Hector Arnold, William Rowe and Robert Bateson, the first two being non-commital, and Mr. Bateson not being present to make a statement.

Following the nominations there was much discussion at the meeting regarding road expenditures in the township, which it was felt should be decreased considerably to enable the lowering of the tax rate. The meeting was presided over by Clerk Wesley Stephens.

Giving his report for the year, Reeve Innes stated that all salaries in the township had been cut, including the members of the council. In his particular section of the township 1,470 yards of gravel had been laid at a cost of 69½c a yard, the total road expenditure being $1,278.47. Salaries in the county had also been cut from 5 to 15 per cent. and a very much lower estimate set for road expenditure, this being reduced from $15,000 to $9,200. He also gave a review of the road work in the county, pointing out that paving had been cut out of the program with the exception of two places.

In the township itself it had been the heaviest year in many on the purchase of steel pipes and in addition one bridge had been built, but Mr. Innes thought that in the future much of this expenditure could be cut. Although he knew there was much agitation for statutory labor to again come into force he questioned the advisability of this but thought that savings could be made in next year's road expenditure.

Tax For Schools.

Deputy-Reeve Duncan, in giving a brief resume of the year's work and speaking in connection with the Counties Council, stated that although there was much said regarding road expenditures, much of the counties tax was for schools, the total this year being $82,863.19 in school grants, and this was nearly as much as the county road system cost. The county rate was up one mill this year, the reasons for which was the taking off of the business and income tax, making the tax higher in the rural municipalities, a large overdraft and the high cost of the administration of justice. County debentures this year were over a million dollars and the levy was up some, being set at $16,696.67.

Councillor Milne was of the opinion that the road expenditures this year could be cut considerably and that the majority of school rates were up too high. Speaking for his section of the township, he stated that 1,609 yards of gravel had been laid at a total cost of $1,606.65, the gravel being placed at 62 cents a yard.

Councillor Fry stated that he was at the back of any better system of road work. In his particular section of the county, 1,855 yards of gravel had been laid at a total cost of $1,328.37, averaging at 83 and a half cents a yard.

Councillor Lee praised the work of the road superintendent during the past year. In his township section 14,240 yards of gravel had been laid, costing $12,017, averaging 72 cents a yard.

Alex Hume and T. J. Horkins, along with G. Vanvolkenburg, were all in favor of an acclamation for the 1932 Council, expressing their satisfaction with the work done during the past season. Mr. Hume was in favor of the reduction of the road expenditure, and also advocated the passing of a by-law authorizing the payment of taxes up to December 31 without interest.

Mr. Horkins spoke strongly in regard to the question of old age pensions, giving it as his opinion that the public should know who are receiving these as a matter of common British justice.

CHRISTMAS TREE

St. Andrew's United Scholars Present Jolly Program in Marmora.

MARMORA, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — Another good crowd witnessed the presentation of the annual Christmas program in the Town Hall on Friday evening for which St. Andrew's United Sunday School is responsible.

The program throughout was most praiseworthy and Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth proved an ideal chairman. Santa Claus seemed to be gayer than ever, dispelling all thoughts that he had been hit by Old Man Depression. He assisted in the awarding of the lengthy number of prizes for regular attendance and in the distribution of oranges and candies. The program was as follows: choruses, "O Radiant Morn", "The Bells Are Ringing", school; song, "Jolly Old St. Nicholas," boys of Primary class; action song, "Silent Night," girls of Primary class; violin solo, Herbert Heumann, accompanied by Miss M. Litt; song, Richard Kouri; recitation, Eric Bedore; recitation, Phillip Hipson; piano solo, Douglas Airhart; play, "Way Down East," Charles Hollingsworth, Stanley Pearce, Bessie Wilkes and Marion Loveless; drill, Mrs. H. ELECTION SURE FOR HAVELOCK

Richard Sanderson Has Hat in Ring Against His Opponent, Reeve Ernest Leeson.

4 NEW MEN FOR COUNCIL.

(Examiner Correspondent)

HAVELOCK, Ont., Dec. 27.— An election is almost an assured fact in the village this year with Reeve Ernest Leeson and former reeve, Richard Sanderson as aspirants for the reeve's chair.

A smaller crowd than usual turned out at the nominations held yesterday from 12 o'clock noon until 1 p.m., the only noticeable difference from other years was the presence of more of the younger men of the village and fewer older men.

The old council composed of Messrs. Alfred Spencer, Harvey Gordon, Ernest Seeney and John Howe were all nominated with Joshua Parcels, Bruce Longmuir, D. M. Rylott and Frank Parcels as new nominees. After the nominations closed on motion of Ernest Leeson and Richard Sanderson, Edward Fennell was made chairman of the gathering. Mr. Leeson was the first to take the platform and said he was sorry that a larger crowd had not turned out but that it was no doubt on account of the inopportune hour. He pointed out that the financial statement showed assests over liabilities and this would be applied on a large deficit that had been carried over from previous years. The tax rate had been raised but a policeman had been hired and the park board paid its allowance of one mill that had been neglected in 1931. He touched lightly on county council work, showing the tax rate had been lowered by three mills and the provincial road grant had been increased.

R. Sanderson

Richard Sanderson former reeve then spoke and said in part as follows: "I didn't intend to come out this year but after the campaign that was carried on against me last year and all that was said about the financial statement I thought it was my duty to come out again. After all that was said almost half the number of voters were in my favour." It will be remembered Mr. Leeson went in with only four of a majority.

"The statement was carried all over town and even yet the people talk about that 'terrible statement', 'the black statement'. If there is any one can find anything crooked about it then I will pay the cost to have a chartered accountant go over it. Mr. Fennell got it out without the names of the reeve or clerk appearing on it and I didn't know about the deficit in 1931 and the surplus for 1932. Why shouldn't there be when debentures were issued to take careof it. The county rate has been lowered and they have less road to maintain in the village. I don't think it is good business to have $300 worth of tile on hand."

At a later juncture Mr. Leeson said he had not told the people there was anything crooked about the statement but that it did not convey to the people the necessary information.

Councillor Seeney

Councillor Ernest Seeney with four years' experience on the council spoke briefly and said that he had learned a lot from his last year's experience and if re-elected would stress economy. Harvey Gordon a member of the council for the past five years said he was willing to serve for another year and asked the Hydro Commissioner F. J. Hooper why the street lights were turned on so long before darkness fell and left on so long after sunrise. Mr. Hooper later on said this didn't cost the village anything extra since they had a fixed rate of so much per light.

Joshua Parcels greeted with hearty applause as he took the platform a new nominee said he wouldn't cause an election but will be in the centre of things if there is a fight promised.

Bruce Longmuir the next new member to take the stand said the council last year was composed of good men and they started off stressing economy but didn't cut salaries. He couldn't see any reason why the assessor should receive $125, nor the auditors $40. He told of the poor reception given the unemployed railwaymen at the council meeting when they had a petition for a maximum mileage of 2,600 miles.

Alfred Spencer, veteran councilman spoke briefly and said he would run if the people wanted him. John Howe was the only member of the old council not present. D. M. Rylott and Frank Parcels the other two nominees were both absent.

Fred J. Squire, nominee for Hydro Commissioner was not present. F. J. Hooper criticised the poor management of the clerk who rented the hall to the Albion club and had forced the ratepayers to hold their nominations in the noon hour.

Nominess Absent

Neither Wm. Copp nor Alex Kennedy new nominees for the school board were present. Bernard Smith an old member of the school board addressed the gathering and said he regretted that the chairman, Mr. F. J. Squire was not present. The council said a lot of things last year but this year they don't say anything about the board. We couldn't cut the salaries on account of the grants. He had not yet decided whether he would stand for election or not.

Alex Leeson, a member of the board for past two years said the teachers salaries would have had to be cut $200 for the ladies and $300 for men to effect a savings of $2,600 on account of the way the grants were based.

Bert Wannamaker was accorded acclamation for the term of one year to replace Fred Post who has left town. J. W. Ketchen, another old member was absent also. W. S. Davidson said he wouldn't cause an election and said that good clean criticism was to be encouraged but that if he got in there would be no criticism.

John Kinnaird another new nominee was in favour of a soup kitchen in the basement for the school children who had long distances to come. William Bullied said he was completely surprised at being nominated but didn't say whether he would run or not.

Harvey Gordon replied to Bruce Longmuir's statement about the unemployed railwaymen's deputation to the village council and said it was none of the council's business and the matter should be settled between the men and the brotherhoods. Mr. Hooper spoke at this interval and said the result of the men's action with the deputation had been that Grant Hall had issued a bulletin saying these men were no longer considered C. P. R. employees after the end of the year and wouldn't be able to speak as such.

FIGHT LOOMS FOR COUNCIL

practised this year. The election estimate was up a little owing to three elections in the past year, but office supplies, salaries, printing, interest, fire protection, and grants were all under estimate. The one big over-estimate was the relief expenditure, which in itself could not be avoided. The tax situation was more encouraging, he stated. To the end of 1931, $1,700 were unpaid, while to the end of the present year only $1,200 were outstanding. The debenture situation was gradually getting better. The debentures on two streets in town will be cleared up this year, and within the next three years severa more disposed of. Many of these large town expenditures, he pointed out, the Council had no control over. "Next year's rate would depend on what grant the Water and Light Commission Board gave the town," he said.

Commissioner Benor.

outlined the work of the Commission Board, stating that the total net receipts were down and also the balance to the amount of $7,000. On the power plan, however, $2,500 had been expended in necessary repairs and other necessary work to the amount of $1,500.

In regard to the building of the new storehouse, this had only cost $521.19, but this expenditure had been kept down owing to the splendid help rendered the Commission by the Council. A conservative estimate of next year's expenditures was placed at $2,700, and he saw no reason why the board would not make a substantial grant to the town.

George O'Sullivan, chairman of the Board of Education, reported for that body, stating that in all there were 762 pupils attending Campbellford schools; a distinct increase over last year. These were made up as follows: Public sihool, 470; Separate school, 80; High school, 214. The finances of the Public school were: Receipts, $16,917.69; expenditures $15,815.98; balance on hand, $1,101.71. Of the High school total receipts were $33,564.62 with a balance on hand of $4,691.93. Both schools had been given excellent reports from the inspectors, and the year had been very satisfactory.

Councillor Thompson will stand for re-election. As chairman of the Road and Bridge committee, he stated that the estimate had been exceeded slightly this year, by $134.30, but this work was necessary, nearly every road in town having needed fixing. He saw, however, a saving on road work next year.

Councillor Battisby will allow his name to stand if the Council is conceded an acclamation, but if an election is held he will not guarantee running. He gave a brief outline of the relief work as chairman of that committee, pointing out that he had studied the situation for the past three years and felt at present with the increased demand it was too much for one man to handle.

Councillor Bennett will stand for office if there is an acclamation, but if an election is held he is uncertain. As chairman of the Police Committee he stated that their expenditure this year was in excess by $96.00, but much of this had been expended on the re-decoration of the police office. He stated that he was in favor of two policemen for the town, despite some severe criticism to the contrary.

Councillor Long will stand for re-election. The Fire Committee, of which he is chairman, had kept within its estimate, he stated, and the local department during the pulp mill fire had been praised for its work by Chief Gimblett of the Peterborough Fire Department, which, he thought, was a boost for the brigade.

Councillor McKeel will stand for deputy reeve if there is an election and for councillor if an acclamation is given the council. As chairman of the Industrial committee he gave a report of the year's work and the different industrial concerns that had been approached regarding locations, but deplored the fact that the Council had refused to allow a grant of $300 to the committee to work, and had also refused to put up $100 with the Water and Light Commission for the use of the committee.

Councillor John O'Sullivan will be in the field for councillor, stating that he was out to fight the game fair, and not to cater for votes. His committee, the Property Committee, had asked for no grant and received none, yet the Council had allowed them to spend $250 during the year on town beautification, money which he considered well spent.

Commissioner Blue declared his intention of standing for re-election to the Water and Light Commission Board.

A. J. Meyers notified the public through Clerk McGregor that if nominated for the Commission Board he would stand for that office.

SERVICES ARE WELL ATTENDED

Large Congregations Are Featured at Campbellford Churches on Christmas Day.

SPECIAL MUSIC HEARD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 27 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The Christmas festival was marked at Campbellford by very large congregations attending all services in the various churches. The season of rejoicing opened with Midnight Mass at St. Mary's Church, with a more than usually large number of worshippers. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. C. J. Phelan.

At Christ Church (Anglican), Holy Communion was celebrated at 8 and 11 a.m., with a large number of the congregation receiving the Sacrament. The church was beautifully decorated for the festival and seasonable music including anthems, carols and a solo by Mrs. F. deF. Free featured both services.

Two splendid sermons on the Christmas theme were preached by the Rev. T. H. Floyd. In the morning he took his text from St. Luke 2, verse 7: "And she brought forth her first born and wrapped Him in swaddling bands, and laid Him in a manger," stressing the four points of the Christmas message: How Christ came; when Christ came; where Christ came; and why Christ came.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church very large congregations attended both services at which the Rev. J. C. Robinson preached on the love that surrounds the season and shows Christian expression in the human race. Special music featured anthems by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Gwen E. Lewis; soloists being Miss Helen MacDonald and Miss Kathleen Connor of Port Arthur.

In the absence of the Rev. R. C. Tait, who was taken to Kingston Hospital on Saturday night severely ill, the Rev. H. P. Seymour of Belleville conducted the Christmas services at St. John's United Church and preached two messages appropriate to the occasion. Special music and anthems were rendered by the choir which was assisted at the evening service by the church orchestra.

"Lo, the star," was the theme around which the Rev. L. M. Smith preached at the morning service at the Baptist Church. In the evening he took for his text, "The Wise Still Go to Bethlehem," both the dising featured by appropriate Christcourses centering around the thought of the birth of Christ. Good congregations attended both hours of worship, the services bemas music rendered by the choir.

MADOC

The United, Presbyterian and Anglican Churches in Madoc are uniting for the observance of the week of intercession and prayer with which the New Year will be opened. There will be meetings in the various churches and an interchange of meetings will be effected.

The members of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge and the I.O.O.F. at Madoc gave a very successful and enjoyable bridge and euchre party in their rooms on Wednesday evening last, the proceeds of which were donated to the fund for relief and Christmas cheer. The party was a success both socially and financially the proceeds amounting to twenty-three dollars. Prizes for the evening were won by Mrs. Golan and Mr. W. Roote for euchre, and by Mrs. James Watson for bridge. The capacious rooms were filled to capacity. Dainty refreshments were served after which a few hours were spent in dancing.

The proceeds were donated to relief and Christmas cheer through the relief committee of the Madoc Women's Institute.

INDIAN TRAPS FISHER ALIVE

Animal Now Scarce in Algoma Dies During Trip to Sault.

CAUGHT IN LAIR.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 27.—(C.P.)— John Tawab, Indian trapper of Batchbhawana, is out the price of a live fisher, but he has the pelt, an unusually fine one, as a Christmas present. He trapped the animal, now very scarce in Algoma, near Pancake Lake. With the adroitness of the skilled trapper he tracked the animal to its lair, set two traps, carefully placed, at the mouth, and going behind the big rock under which ran the tunnel, dug down to the inner chamber of the animal's quarters. Here he made a small fire. When the fisher attempted to escape by way of the entrance the cleverly set traps secured it by both fore and hind feet.

The animal was placed in a knapsack and Tawab made an attempt to bring it to the Soo, realizing that the animal alive, would me much more valuable than dead. Heavy drifts near the Carp river prevented him from getting through, and before he could again attempt the trip the fisher died.

HOPE VANISHES TRAPPED MEN ALIVE IN MINE

Thirty-nine Bodies Recovered Since Gas Blast Saturday.

FIFTEEN MISSING.

Rescue Squads Bore Air Shafts Into Death Tunnel in Vain.

(By Milburn P. Akers, A.P. Staff Writer.)

MOWEAQUA, Ill., Dec. 27 (A.P.)—Hope was stricken from Moweaqua's vocabularly to-day as this village of 1,400 moved to bury its dead—victims of a coal mine disaster.

No longer was there a vestige of belief that the remaining 15 men trapped some 700 feet underground could still be alive. Saturday 54 miners were entombed after an explosion loosened an avalanche of debris, clogging avenues of escape. Already 39 bodies have been unearthed.

As to the others—"not even a miracle could save them now." That was the way John Millhouse, director of the rescue squads, put it.

Late last night workers hacked through shale, rock, and coal to open up the north wing of the mine, where it was believed the 15 were trapped. By noon to-day, Millhous said, sufficient fresh air would have seeped through to make it safe for squads to go into that section.

Crushed or Poisoned

The explosion apparently had its greatest effect in the north wing of the "T" shaped mine, he said. The men there, he believed, either were victims of poison gas or had been crushed to death.

The bodies of the 39 were found in debris at the intersection of the "T" and in the south wing.

Over the Christmas holiday expert rescue squads toiled ceaselessly, burrowing through debris in the hope of reaching someone alive, someone who could guide them to others who might still be alive.

Obituary

MRS. GEORGE COPPING.

MONTREAL, Dec. 27.—(C.P.)—Mrs. George Copping, well known in the Quebec eastern townships, is dead, aged 88. Mrs. Copping was born at Rodeen, Que., and lived there until she came to Montreal on the death of her husband several years ago.

She leaves two sons, Gray Copping, Peterborough, Ont., and Meldin Copping, Chapleau, Ont.; and two daughters, Mrs. A. C. Barker, of Moncton, N.B., and Miss C. M. Copping of Montreal.

Her two sons arrived from Ontario and took the body to Rodden for interment.

MRS. DAVID GODFREY.

The death occurred on Saturday afternoon last of Ellen Phalen, the beloved wife of David Godfrey, of 307 Bethune Street, in her 63rd year.

A native of Ennismore Township, Mrs. Godfrey was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Phalen. Besides her husband, she is survived by four daughters: Mrs. J. A. Quigley and Mrs. J. J. Rody of this city, Mrs. Thomas Hetherton of Saskatchewan and Miss Viola at home; also one brother, Edward Phalen of this city.

The funeral was held this morning from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and to St. Peter's Cemetery.

DENNIS MEAGHER.

Dennis Meagher, one of the oldest residents of this city, passed away on Christmas Eve at the advanced age of 93 years.

The funeral was held this morning from Lane and Eano's Funeral Home to the Church of the Sacred Heart and to St. Peter's Cemetery.

The late Mr. Meagher was a native of Ireland. He came to this country as a young man twenty-six years of age, and had resided and worked in Peterborough all his life. For the past thirty-years he had lived in retirement at his residence on Lansdowne Street. Besides his wife, he is survived by four daughters: Mrs. J. P. Uhl of Rochester, N.Y., Mrs. J. P. Dorris of Toronto, Mrs. J. McGinty of this city and Miss Margaret at home. Two sons, one of whom was killed overseas during the late war, predeceased him.

MISS LILLIAN SIMONS

Her many friends in the city were shocked by the announcement of the death of Miss Lillian Simons, R.N., which took place at half past two o'clock on Saturday afternoon at her home at 311 Rubidge street.

The deceased a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Simons, was born in Peterborough and received her education at St. Mary's Convent. She was a graduate of nursing at St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester, N.Y. Up until one year ago, she was district nurse for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. She was also secretary of District No. 6 of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario. She was a devout member of the parish of St. Peter's Cathedral and was greatly interested in St. Peter's Dramatic Club, staging and managing many a beautiful play for that society during her lifetime. Among the sick and needy of the city she was loved for her Christian character and her kindly unselfish and charitable disposition. She found her chief delight in ministering to those in need and was ever ready, in all types of weather to rush to the aid of the sick.

At St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, where the funeral service was solemnized at ten o'clock, the Rev. P. Costello alluded to the outstanding characteristics of the deceased her devotion to duty and solicitude in the care of the afflicted and the needy.

Father Costello also spoke on the prevalence of sudden death and the necessity to be ready at any moment to answer such a call.

The funeral Mass was solemnized by the Rev. C. Carroll, with the Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore as deacon and the Rev. P. J. Kelly of Hastings, cousin of the deceased, as sub-deacon.

Officiating at the graveside were the Rev. Father Kelly and the Rev. Dr. J. B. Masterson.

Pall-bearers were Dr. D. C. King, Dr. H. Young, D. W. N. Hayes, G. White, N. E. Phelan and C. Lacheur.

Survivors in the family are three sisters: Mrs. F. A. Shannon, Miss Annie and Miss Nell, at home and three brothers, James at home, and Dan and Dick Simons, of New York City.

MIDNIGHT MASSES LARGELY ATTENDED

The Midnight Masses celebrated on Saturday in the three Roman Catholic churches of the city were very largely attended. The Cathedral was packed to the doors, with many unable to attend the special service.

His Excellency, the Rt. Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough, was the celebrant at the Cathedral, with the Rev. P. Costello as High Priest; the Rev. C. Carroll as Deacon of the Mass, and Rev. Mr. Gregory Wolff as sub-Deacon. The Rev. J. Finn and the Rev. Dr. J. B. Masterson were Honorary Deacons. The Children's Choir sang Christmas carols before the Mass and the music for the service was rendered in splendid voice by the Cathedral choir, led by J. Minicolo, with Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M., at the organ. The students from St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, served in the sanctuary.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart, Midnight Mass was celebrated by the Rev. C. J. Maloney, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. H. Fleming, C.S.S.R., of Toronto.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception, the Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan celebrated the Mass.

Weddings

MOORE—BRYCE.

The marriage was solemnized on Saturday, December 24th, of Margaret Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bryce, to Mr. Norman Adams Moore, son of Mrs. W. J. Moore and the late W. J. Moore, of Toronto, the Rev. C. V. McLeon officiating.

Owing to the recent illness of the bride, the ceremony was very quiet, with only the immediate families present.

SARGENT—SANDERS

The wedding was quietly solemnized at 10 a.m., Dec. 26, at George Street Church Parsonage, by the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, of Bertha M. Sanders, daughter of Mr. E. Sanders and the late Mrs. Sanders, McKellar street, to Frederick Bruce Sargent, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Sargent, Otonabee.

The young people, who were unattended, left by motor for a short honeymoon and on their return will reside on Stewart street.

OLD PROBLEM THE WAISTLINE

Clothier Claims Men Lost Theirs in Days of Old-fashioned Bar.

LOOKS FOR IMPROVEMENT.

CALGARY, Dec. 24 (C.P.) — In the last few months many articles have appeared on the subject of just where the correct waistline for ladies is located. Authorities on the subject seem to vary widely in their opinions. The persistence of these articles, however, shows that much importance is attached to the matter.

If the whereabouts of ladies' waistlines is so all important, why is it that in the case of men it is absolutely neglected? A Calgary men's clothier sums it up this way:

In the old days of the open bar, with its polished mahogany and shining brass rail, it was very common to see men whose waistline could not be located at all. In fact their chest in many cases, had slipped so badly that it could not be recognized as such. When prohibition came, one naturally looked for an improvement in chests. This did not materialize, he said, and he had been pondering on the matter trying to find a reason for it.

Suspenders for Belt

It will be remembered, he said, that about this time, men started abandoning the old-time suspenders for the belt. Men not having any regular waistline, the clothing manufacturers were at a loss to know just how high to cut the trousers and where to place the belt loops. The result was more of them were placed too high. That meant tightening up the belt considerably above the fallen chest. Soon the trousers began to sag, and to prevent this the "fallen chest" was expanded to meet the emergency.

In regard to the correct waistline for ladies, he said it did not really matter, inasmuch as they had succeeded in keeping their chests well above the line.

The clothier looked for a big improvement in 1933 in men's waistlines, especially if there was the rush back to suspenders he anticipated. He predicted that by the end of 1933, fifty per cent. of the men will be wearing their chests above the waistline.

This, he though, would add considerably to the general comfort on Christmas Day.

City Churches

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

"The greatest men the world has ever produced had their birth, invariably, in small towns and villages. We usually link the big cities with the names of leaders in all ranks of life; and this has often proved the reverse of actuality."

Couched in these terms, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning enumerated the names of saints of the church and rulers in business and political life who were born in small towns, of humble parentage. The text used by the preacher was: "And thou, Bethlehem ..... out of thee shall come a Prince."

Dr. Barr pointed out that, though born in a lowly manger, Christ had a great mission to perform—the redeeming of mankind, for which purpose he came into the world, lived among men, died on the cross, rose again from the dead ;and now lives, and sits on the right hand of God the Father. The Christmas season, said Dr. Barr, should leave us in the mood to lead better lives, and remember His many blessings to us from day to day.

The music was suitable for the Christmas season: Carol, Star of Bethlehem"; quartette, "When the Sun,' by Mrs. Munro, Miss Pattison, George East, and John Anderson; and anthem, "There Were Shepherds,' by the choir.

Handel's "Messiah."

The evening service was choral, the usual sermon being superseded by a historical sketch of the lives of three great composers — Haydn, Mendelssohn, and Handel. The ideals of these three musicians, said Dr. Barr, were of the highest nature; they lived near God, and from this source and the Scriptures they drew their inspiration to compose the great masterpieces of music which have been handed on and produced to the present day.

The speaker drew the lesson for his hearers that without God in our lives, without a closer walk, and the inspiration of prayer and the Word, we will not have the peace of mind which inevitably follows fellowship and communion with Him.

Prior to the rendition of the "Messiah," two carols, and a quartette ("Bethlehem," Mrs. R. G. Coleman, Miss Cullen, W. H. Grieves, and John Fowler), were sung by the choir, in addition to hymns by the three composers mentioned.

Those taking the solos in the first part of the oratorio were Mrs. Bruce Munro, Miss Jessie Pattison, Stanley Willis, George Coleman, Jr., and George East. The choruses by the choir were "And the Glory," "O Thou That Tellest," "For Unto Us," "Glory to God," and concluding with the glorious strains of the "Hallelujah" chorus. Choir and soloists, including Martin B. Chenhall, Jr., 'cellist, gave a splendid rendition of the work under the able leadership of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., the choirmaster and organist.

The Sunday School observed a special program of music in the afternoon, under O. M. Steer and Harry Taylor, the superintendents.

RUMOR BARTER SYSTEM BETWEEN CANADA, SOVIET

OTTAWA, Dec. 27 (C.P.)—Confirmation could not be obtained here to-day of reported proposals to establish a system of barter between Canada and Soviet Russia. Montreal reports said Premier R. B. Bennett investigated the possibilities of resuming trade relations with Russia during his visit to Great Britain. It is not likely an official statement will be issued until the Prime Minister's return later in the week.

Bill Cook of Rangers Leads N.H.L. Snipers

COOK PASSES NORTHCOTT IN SCORING RACE

Veteran Ranger Star Tops Maroon Sniper by a Single Point.

"RED HORNER BAD MAN.

MONTREAL, December 27. — For the first time in the present campaign a player from the United States section of the National Hockey League has taken the lead in the race for scoring and points honors.

Figures issued last night by President Frank Calder show that Bill Cook, veteran right wing scoring star of the New York Rangers, is now leading all other snipers. With nine goals and the same number of assists, he has compiled 18 points, which gives him a lead of one over Lawrence "Baldy" Northcott, of the Montreal Maroons.

A Close Race.

The race between the various sectional leaders is extremely close. Marty Barry, Boston Bruins' left winger, who holds second place in the United States division, is tied with Paul Haynes of the Montreal Maroons, who is second in the Canadian section. Each has compiled 16 points. Northcott, Barry, and Bun Cook, Bill's teammate and brother, all lead the league in actual goals scored, 12.

Stewart is Fourth.

Nels Stewart, sold by Maroons to Boston Bruins, is fourth in the United States division, while Ralph "Cooney" Weiland, traded to Ottawa by Boston, is fourth in the Canadian division. All three have 13 points. Frank Boucher of the Rangers is tied with Stewart for fourth place. Howie Morenz holds third place in the Canadian division, and Bun Cook has the same position in the United States section.

In penalties, Red Horner and Ching Johnson of Toronto and the Rangers respectively, lead the pack. Horner has accumulated 49 minutes with the timers, and Johnson 48 minutes.

JOHNNY GILBERT HEADS JOCKEYS

Sets Up Record For North American Jockeys at Jefferson Track.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Johnny Gilbert has set up a new modern record for North American jockeys.

The cool, stolid youngster from Pittsburg, Kas., hung up a triple at Jefferson Park yesterday and ran his total winners for the season to 208, the best mark any North American riding star has achieved since Vincent Powers rode 324 in 1908.

Until Gilbert flashed under the wire with Jack Biener in the sixth race to complete his triple, the 2007 winners L. Hardy booted home in 1927 stood as the modern record.

Gilbert now has distanced his little rival, Hank Mills, and is a virtual certainty to clinch riding honors for the year. Mills, with 194 winners to date, would have to ride a triple on each of the five remaining racing days to catch up, assuming that Gilbert failed to add

SCHMELING IS NOT POPULAR WITH GARDEN

Contend Teuton Heavyweight is Afraid of the Boston Sailor, Sharkey.

WANTED TEN PER CENT.

(By Sam Robertson—C.P. Staff Writer).

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Mere mention of the name of Germany's heavy-hitting Max Schmeling will start a first-class argument these days in the boxing salon at Madison Square Garden.

When Der Maxie signed to meet Max Baer in June, and thwarted the Garden's attempt to secure him for a bout with champion Jack Sharkey, he immediately became as popular around the hallowed halls of the New York sports palace as a teacup at the brewmaster's picnic.

James J. Johnston, vice-president of the Garden, and director of its boxing precincts, avers the German is afraid of the "silent" champion from Boston. Dempsey was the same way with Harry Wills, says James.

"He found out years later he could have stiffened Wills with a single punch, but at the time I tried to make the match a team of mules couldn't have dragged Jack into the ring with the black man."

The New York press boys who speak the Johnstonian words to the public have coined a new name for the dark-browned Maxie. They call him "Max-¼-imilian," the pun being on Schmeling's balk when the Garden sought his valued services for a 10 per cent. cut on the gate.

The crafty Teuton, who apparently has a cool business head as well as a cooling-plant in either mitt, collects 30 per cent. of the gate when he meets California's Mr. Baer.

Among the many words of verbal abuse Director Johnston has piled on the Schmeling brow are these:

"We know Manager Joe Jacobs does what Schmeling tells him; therefore we know where to place responsibility for the Baer contract ...it clearly indicates Schmeling is afraid of Sharkey...therefore we would be wasting precious time giving him further consideration as a contender for the title.

"Sharkey always insisted Schmeling took the easy way out in 1930 (when Max claimed Sharkey fouled him, and lifted the championship for Germany). Now I realize Jack was right.

"The fellow they crossed up is Sharkey and I feel sorry for him. They made him promise to give Schmeling a return bout if Jack won the title, and Jack wouldn't let us sign anyone else for June. Now he's out in the cold."

Less Than $100,000 Gate.

Johnston surmises the seat sale for the Schmeling-Baer set-to will be something less than $100,000. But Jack Dempsey has shown of late that his head is more than a hat-rack. When he turned promoter and signed the two Maxies, getting the jump on the Garden crowd, he predicated a $250,000 gate.

If he decides to take the bout to Chicago, the floating population there for the World Fair should swell the gate to an even greater figure. The fight should also draw well in one of New York's big ball parks.

BOWLING NOTES

The winners of the prizes in the C.G.E. Shop Bowling League turkey roll conducted last week at the Duffus Recreation Academy divided one hundred and ten pounds of fowl, which included some very large turkeys.

Reg. Mclavey hit a fast pace on Saturday night at the Duffus Alleys in a friendly game of ten pins when he broke the maple for a count of 266. He spared in the first frame, then chalked up eight strikes in a row to spare in the last frame. This score apparently should stand as a record for some time locally.

J. E. Smith of Aberdeen Avenue worked the five pins of a three-game total of 688 on the Y.M.C.A. Alleys in the final turkey roll on Saturday to carry off a large turkey. Lorne Richardson, with a single of 288 took second prize and V. R. Henry was the lucky blind score winner.

The latest development which is hindering the formation of the Inter-Alley League for another season is the fact that the W. H. Bradburn trophy which is emblematic of league honors in this loop cannot be located. Duffus team who won the cup last year never had the trophy presented to them and several of the bowlers who have competed in this league during the last few years, claim that they have no idea where the silverware is at the present time.

Middle-Aged Mother Receives Art Degree

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 27 (A.P.)—A feeling that university training was essential to understanding her children, two of whom were college students, prompted a middle-aged mother to strive to obtain a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Minnesota, and to-day she proudly exhibited her diploma. She is Mrs. Susan Evans of Minneapolis.

Watching, as she received her degree from president L. D. Coffman, were her four children—Charles, 21, and Marion, 19, both students at the university, John, 16, and Joseph, 14.

Mrs. Evans started as a freshman 10 years ago, but the press of household duties precluded regular attendance and she had to resort to summer school.

White Sox Manager Must Play Or Quit

CHICAGO, Dec. 27. — A Notre Dame schoolboy's ambition to play first base may end the White Sox managerial career of Lou Fonseca. Here's the situation:

Fonseca holds a contract to manage the White Sox for a second year in 1933, but he has been informed that his tenure of office depends not only on results with a team reinforced by three former Philadelphia stars, but his ability to play regularly at first base, his old post. If he can't play the position regularly he has been advised that he will be ousted.

Along comes the Notre Dame schoolboy, Billy Sullivan, Jr., son of the famous old White Sox star of yesterday, with the announcement that he's going after onl yone position next year—first base. Young, capable and willing, Sullivan is no idle threat, and if he succeeds in forcing the manager to the bench the pilot's job may fall to Jimmy Dykes, or possibly "Sad Sam" Jones, the pitcher.

Over four hundred plants in Canada make non-alcoholic carbonated beverages, almost every town having its soft-drink plant, and total production from the aerated waters industry was valued at $13,064,353 in 1931.

O'DOUL IS CROWNED BATTING CHAMPION OF NATIONAL LOOP

"Chuck" Klein, However, Walks Out With the All-Around Honors.

"LEFTY'S" MARK IS .368.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., A. P. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Although Frank O'Doul, Brooklyn's port side outfielder, won the National League's 1932 batting championship by the proverbial mile, it was his teammate, John Henry Frederick, and young Charles Herbert Klein of Philadelphia, who really showed the boys how to paste the pellet. Frederick, who did most of his work as a pinch hitter, created a complete upheavel in the records for that kind of batting by hitting home runs in six different pinches The old major league record was three, held by Hamilton Hyatt of the 1913 Pittsburgh Pirates, Fred Williams of the 1928 Phillies, and Clifford Crawford of the 1927 New York Giants.

In Third Place

Klein's batting average of .348 was good only for third place, 20 points behind O'Doul and two behind Bill Terry, the Giants' clouting manager, but he drove his hits to all corners of the lot to mop up the season's long-hitting honors and then, just to show his versatility, captured the league's base-stealing honors with 20 thefts.

In four full season's in the majors, Klein never has made fewer than 100 runs and 200 hits and only once did he fail to make his blows good for more than 400 bases. His total base mark of 420 for 1932 enabled him to equal the major league record set by Lou Gehrig of reaching that level in three seasons. Chuck's batting record for the season ran this way: Runs, 152, first place; hits, 226, first place; total bases, 420, first place; doubles, 50, second place; triples, 15, third place; home runs, 38, tie for first.

Hits New Record

One of the few hitters to lead Klein in any department, Paul Waner of Pittsburgh set a new league record for doubles as he hit 62 to lead for the year and displace Klein's 1930 mark of 59. Babe Herman of Cincinnati with 19 triples and Gus Suhr of Pittsburgh with 16 also managed to finish ahead of the Philadelphian while Mel Ott of the Giants shared the home run lead. Terry gave Klein a close race in the hit column, finishing one behind.

In addition to winning the batting championship with his .368 mark, 19 points above the 1931 titular level when Terry, Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals finished in a virtual tie, O'Doul made the greatest number of singles 158, Hughey Critz of the Giants had the most times at bat, 659, and Dick Bartell of Philadelphia topped the sacrifice column with 35.

Terry added to the record list by hitting six homers in four consecutive games during April, tying the major league mark held by Klein, Babe Ruth of the Yankees, and Ken Williams of the Browns.

Two new marks appeared in the club batting records as the Phillies finished on top with a .292 mark. The league as a whole made a new high record of 43,763 times at bat and the Giants hit the all-time low of 49 sacrifices, ten lower than their mark for 1931, the first season after the sacrifice fly was ruled out.

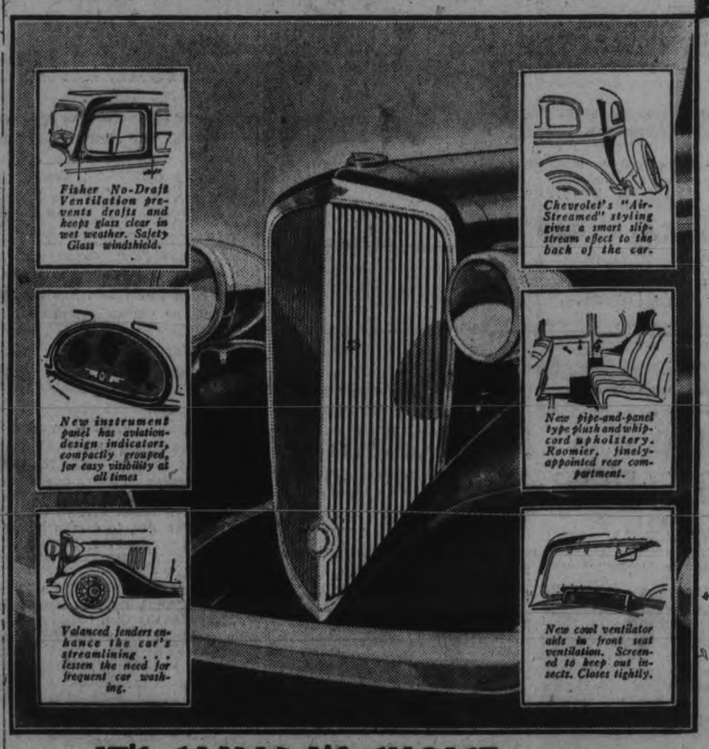
TRENT RIVER

Clifford Dunn won the special prize of two dollars offered for the pupils taking the highest percentage in marks, attendance and conduct for the fall term.

School closed Thursday for the Christmas recess, re-opening January 3rd. During the afternoon the pupils were treated to candies and nuts.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Umphrey and son Jimmie left Thursday afternoon for Toronto and will spend Christmas holidays with relatives at Pefferlaw and Udora.

MADE TO ORDER FOR CANADIANS



and IT'S CANADA'S CHOICE in the LOW-PRICE FIELD!

When a new car "clicks" as Chevrolet is clicking—pulls thousands to Chevrolet showrooms for days on end — there's bound to be a reason!

It's a "value-conscious" year we're in—and it's value that makes the new Chevrolet Six Canada's choice again in 1933!

Value in proved design: Chevrolet pioneered the low-priced six-cylinder engine five years ago; built a strong, rugged chassis and a durable Fisher body around it. Today Chevrolet gives you the biggest, roomiest cars in the low-price field, bar none! A famous six-cylinder engine—one with a background—now Cushion-Balanced in a new patented way! Even smarter Fisher bodies — with Air-Streamed styling, safety glass windshield and No-Draft Ventilation! Low running costs that people have been talking about for years—now whittled down amazingly! And a low first cost that finds its true appreciation when you size up the tag that says, "Delivered Price"!

Value in the latest advancements: Certainly, the new Chevrolet has them all. *Because it's Made to Order for Canadians — with new features selected by thousands of Canadians in a nation-wide survey conducted by Chevrolet and General Motors. Study these features carefully. Better still, ride in the new Chevrolet and drive it! Nothing else so quickly reveals how natural it is that Canada awards first place to the car that's Made to Order for Canadians.

CANADIENS PLAN REVENGE DISPLAY

Will Play Defensive Hockey in Boston to Retaliate.

TORONTO, Dec. 27 (C.P.)—Only Lester Patrick's New York Rangers will be idle to-night as eight teams swing into action in the National Hockey League. Toronto Maple Leafs engage Chicago in the Windy City; Maroons travel to Ottawa, where the tie for second place in the Canadian section of the league will be broken. Boston Bruins will play host to the colorful Canadiens, while the Amerks entertain the Detroit Red Wings.

The world champion Smythemen are eager for revenge. The Black Hawks spoiled a perfectly good Christmas Eve by handing them their first defeat this season on home ice. Both the Senators and the Montreal Maroons hope to cut down the three-point margin separating them from Toronto at the head of the section.

Downing the burly Boston Bruins in their own stamping ground is no cinch, and Canadians will have a tough assignment when they try to climb out of the cellar position to-night. The Flying Frenchmen's mentor, Leo Dandurand, started his team for Boston last night with the declaration they would play defensive hockey. He said the idea was to repay Boston for their "Kitty-bar-the-door" tactics in their last game against Canadiens in Montreal.

Two cellar-occupants will meet in the Detroit-Americans game. The former are at the bottom of the American section of the league, while the latter's share the lowliest position with Canadiens.

The Red Wings have shown surprising power in recent games, however, and if their shutout of Chicago Sunday night, 3-0 and the 4-1 drubbing they handed Rangers last week mean anything, they should be a formidable foe for the Amerks.

VIGO, Spain.—The crew of the ship Europa II rescued to-day four sailors who were adrift 55 hours on the disabled boat Valentia.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"PROSPERITY."

Here they are again—the two very plain ladies who are capable of getting so many laughs out of ordinary situations. Although, at that, Polly Moran isn't as plain as she used to be since she had her nose remodelled.

Marie Dressler is as good as ever, in the role of Maggie Warren, while Polly is her lifelong friend, though just why the goodnatured Maggie would put up with such a poisonous piece as Lizzie Praskins turned out to be, is a mystery. Maggie, however, who excels in self-sacrificing roles, does a heavier one than ever in this story. Just a little too heavy. One feels like telling her to have a bit more gimp, when she keeps exercising her talent for good nature under very trying circumstances.

"Prosperity" is a staccato picture, speaking musically. It goes along at high speed and high tension and in jerky sequences.

The laughs are continuous and long in this picture, which has to do with the adventures of Maggie as the manager of a small-town bank in the Middle States. Lizzie is a heavy depositor and Maggie's old school-mate; and Lizzie's daughter, the pretty Anita Page, marries Maggie's son (Norman Foster) under circumstances that are as funny as this riotous pair can make them.

"Prosperity," which illustrates in spots an increasing broadmindedness in the vocal screen, shows just how the depression hits the small-towner. Maggie, with characteristic philosophy, says: "Things would be all right if people would take their money out of their socks and put their feet in them," but, at that, she goes prety low before she makes a comeback.

There were three crowded houses for the picture yesterday, and lineups for both shows last night.

The Walt Disney Silly Symphony is one of those fairy-book bits of colored delight that are mighty interesting, both to adults and juniors.—Jeanette.

BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C.J.P.)

Well, that's another Christmas tucked away and the end of the year in sight. There was nothing doing locally in athletic circles over the holiday, as one would hardly call throwing a turkey for a loss a sporting affair—the ex-feathered strutter not having an even chance. A dried-out bit of ice in Stevenson Park drew a flock of skaters and shinny players yesterday, the only wintry touch around here on an otherwise green Xmas.

* * * * * * *

Eight hours of work, eight hours of play, eight hours of sleep makes the perfect day. That's what they say—although eight hours of work nowadays would make a perfectly grand day to a lot of people. However, what we're getting at is that about one-third of the day, and one-third of our lives, is given over to play, which means sports in some shape or form. And this includes practically everyone of both sexes. They all either participate in sports or follow them in some form such as radio, newspapers, books or as actual eye-witnesses.

* * * * * * *

The desire to play is as natural as that of eating and sleeping. In fact, when children are in their formative years they are more interested in sports than in work or study. By far the biggest majority of them never relinquish their interest in certain sports. Their sense of fair play, humour, love of the outdoors, desire to excel in different things, their very outlook upon life can be generally traced back to the games they played when growing up. Sport plays a large part in life undoubtedly. Perhaps we're prejudiced—though we think not—but we believe there is something wrong with anyone who is not at least a little interested in some sort of healthful game.

* * * * * * *

A bunch of magazines deal exclusively with sporting topics, popular weeklies and monthlies give over part of their space to athletics, the radio does the same—particularly with big hookups for important playoff games, or championship fights. And the sporting pages of the newspaper rank right behind the front page with its hot news items of the day. Yeah, a big thing—sports!

The East Peterborough Hockey League meets at eight this evening at Duffus' to draw up their schedule, name referees, and in general to get ready for their start on ice early next week—that is, if we have any ice by that time. Norwood, Lakefield, Westclox, and the Hockey Club team should have representatives on hand to-night and get the loop away right on its 1933 hop off. The Junior O.H.A. Club opens here the end of next week, so the E.P.L. could get along the first or middle of the week at the Brock.

* * * * * * *

Bowmanville Intermediates are due to open here this Friday, with Port Hope at Orono in the same group that night. It may be plenty cold by that time, but the week is starting out badly for the making of ice again. Let's hope this winter isn't a rehash of last year when the boys couldn't play a hockey game without getting their feet wet, and goalies were all suffering from water on the knee when a synthetic winter finally petered out. Of course, this is early enough yet, and our schedules ar listed to be run off in the coldest part of winter, anyway.

* * * * * * *

Hockey moguls will learn this winter, if they don't already know it, that they must throw on a real exhibition to get the fans in any number out planking their dough on the line. The customers seem quite reluctant to take the padlock off the wallet nowadays for anything, and even lower prices for the N.H.L. games aren't packing the bigger ice-palaces. Four amateur Senior B teams (Oshawa among 'em) played a double-header in Toronto one night last week, and there was only about one hundred and fifty people scattered throughout the mammoth Maple Leaf Gardens. It's pretty discouraging, trying to keep sports going, and sinking deeper in the red all the time.

* * * * * * *

According to a schedule appearing in The Guide recently, Port Hope will not be grouped with P.C.I. and Lindsay in basketball this year. It had Cobourg, Oshawa, Bowmanville, and Port Hope in one group. We don't know how the local Collegians will be bunched, but possibly they'll be in with Lindsay and Uxbridge as happened once before.

* * * * * * *

Now is the time, with the first of the year almost here, to think about our senior ball team for 1933. Kingston, good enough to win the loop race last year, will be at least as strong; Belleville has been strengthening up considerably and will be plenty tough the coming campaign; and the Cobourg crew is busy now and figure on being something like fifty per cent. stronger than in '32. The Petes right now are thirty to forty per cent. weaker than was the case last year, and don't forget that they finished way down in third place then. Yeah, the local outfit wasn't so hot late last summer, and they've lost a couple of their best performers since then. No use kidding ourselves, we need a big shakeup and a comp'ete rebuilding with new material added if we hope to do any more than just round out a four-team league next summer.

* * * * * * *

Did you know: That, according to an authority in a private conversation recently, Belleville's football team felt cheated when it had to meet Oshawa instead of P.C.I.; they wanted revenge for that licking a year ago?....That amateur boxing is being introduced in Norwood on Tuesday, with Campbellford, Hastings, and Cowan A.C. fighters from here taking part?....That Fosters will hav a ball team in the E.P.L. next summer?

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

PITTSBURG.—Tommy Freeman, Cleveland, fought to a draw with Gorilla Jones, Akron (10); Jacquette Elverilla, Cleveland, outpointed Joe Spiegel, Uniontown, Pa. (6); Carl Mantavanna outpointed I. T. Battles, Cleveland (6).

NEW SOUTH WALES WINS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 27 (C.P. Cable).—New South Wales defeated Vitcoria by 130 runs on the first inning in their Sheffield Cricket Shield match ending to-day. The match was cut short by repeated postponements earlier.

The scores were: New South Wales 388 (Ironmonger five for 87), and Victoria 258 (Bormley 84, O'Reilly four for 52 runs).

Boucher Family Mark is Broken

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 27.—(A.P.)—The Hanson brothers of Minneapolis, have gone Ottawa's Boucher family of hockey one better.

Unlike the Bouchers, who, a few years ago, had to draft they father for goaler to present a family hockey team, the Hansons can present a line-up of six brothers.

Five of the Hanson brothers composed the Augsburg College team here a couple of years ago. Now three of them are playing professional hockey. Amery and Oscar are members of the St. Paul Club in the Central League, while Emil, who formerly played with Tulsa in the American loop, has landed with the Detroit Falcons in the N. H. L.

ARSENAL HELD SCORELESS TIE BY LEEDERMEN

Aston Villa Defeats Wolverhampton Wanderers 4-2 in To-day's Soccer.

BLACKBURN LOSES 6-1.

LONDON, Dec. 27 (C.P. Cable).—British soccer followers witnessed their third group of games in four days to-day as the holiday was marked with fixtures in which all the English soccer league teams took part.

Leeds United held Arsenal to a scoreless tie in the feature game, while Aston Villa defeated Wolverhampton Wanderers 4-2.

Yesterday Leeds administered a 2-1 defeat to the Gunners, but the latter tightened up their play today and avoided a second defeat. The Wolverhampton-Aston Villa result to-day was a reversal of yesterday's 3-1 win by the Wolves over the Villans.

Everton handed Blackburn Rovers a bad trimming, scoring six goals to the one the Rovers were able to pick up. Derby County went down to defeat before Blackpool, 1-4, and Chelsea lost 2-0 to Liverpool. The position of teams at the head of the standing remained unchanged.

Bradford City went into the lead in the second division when they took Bury, 3-0, while Stoke City were dropping two points to Nottingham Forest.

DIDRIKSON LOOKS FOR TRIPLE HONORS

Hopes to be Radio Performer, a Movie Actress and a Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Babe Didrikson hopes to become a triple star in the field of professional entertainment—a radio performer, a movie actress and a writer.

In announcing her plans to capitalize on her fame as an all-around athlete, the Texas miss said she would centre her attention on those three fields and shun any offers to endorse products. It was on a charge of endorsing an automobile that Miss Didrikson was suspended from the National Amateur Athletic Union and then reinstated.

"If the A.A.U. will permit me, I am doing the best to attend to my own affairs—affairs that have resulted entirely from their own error," she said. "And it would make everything so much more pleasant for everyone if they should elect or be induced to do likewise."

Miss Didrikson said her movie work would be confined to some athletic "shorts."

EAST MONOPOLY LIKELY BROKEN

Knox is First Midwesterner Son Honored Since Dwight F. Davis in 1923.

REVOLT AGAINST EAST.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (A.P.)—The monopoly the East has enjoyed for a decade on the presidency of the United States Lawn Tennis Association has been broken in favor of Harry S. Knox of Chicago.

Knox, first vice-president of the organization, has been named by the nominating committee for president in 1933, the first Mid-Westerner so honored since Dwight F. Davis was selected in 1923.

The nomination, generally regarded as tantamount to election is the outgrowth of a "revolt" by Eastern, Mid-Western and Far Western members against the alleged domination of U.S.L.T.A. affairs by one influential Eastern group.

Holcombe Ward, president of the Eastern Association and one of the "Old Guard," was nominated for first vice president, although Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City, now second vice president, was in line for promotion. Ivy was re-nominated for second vice president.

Knox will succeed Louis W. Carruthers of New York, who declined renomination because of the press of his business affairs.

Rifle Shoot Results.

PETERBOROUGH RIFLE CLUB

United States Team Leads Tennis Sets

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 27 (A.P.)—The United States tennis team, playing an Australian side in a match series, to-day won three of the four contests to take a lead of five to three with one day of play remaining.

Ellsworth Vines, Jr., defeated yesterday by Harry Hopman, second ranking Australian player, to-day defeated Australia's No. 1, Jack Crawford, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; John Van Ryn defeated Vivian McGrath, the 16-year-old star, and Vines and Keith Gledhill won from Cliff Sproule and McGrath 6-3, 9-7, 6-2.

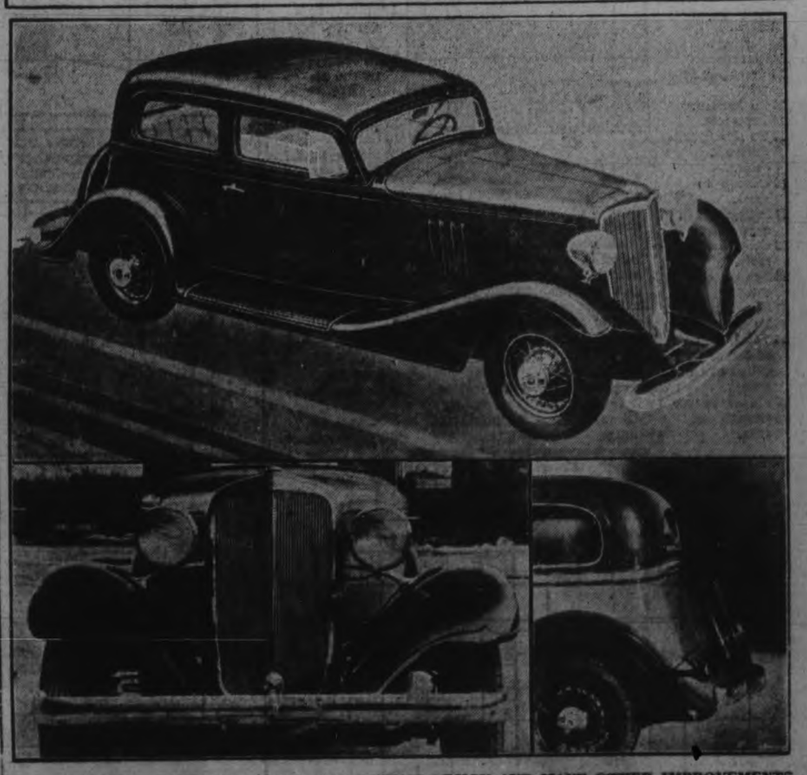
The lone Australian victory was scored by Crawford and Hopman, who upset Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison 3-6, 6-2, 11-9, 4-6, 6-3.

DRIVING BLUES AWAY

GROVE CITY, Pa.—On the theory that the depression "blues" are mental, a theatre manager is distributing free tickets to all the unemployed.

By entertainment, he says, the idle are made to feel happier and face problems more aggressively. The manager reports a 95 per cent. increase in his general "paid" business since invoking the plan.

Chevrolet for 1933 Reveals New Style



WELL-KNOWN CANADIAN SIX HAS AIR-STREAM DESIGN AND MANY OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

Canadian to a greater degree than ever because it embodies ideas expressed by thousands of motorists of the Dominion, the Chevrolet Six is introduced with many interesting features. New air-stream design makes these cars among the most beautiful on the market. Fisher No-Draft Ventilation, one of the greatest closed car advancements of the year, is standard equipment. Mechanically, the Chevrolet Six is much improved. Picture above shows the beautiful standard coach. Below, at the left, a view of the front end. At the right, the rear quarter, showing the graceful air-stream lines and skirted fender.

PETER RABBIT HAS A FUNNY FEELING

Peter Rabbit's anxiety to wish the Bedtime Story readers a Merry Christmas got him ahead of his story as to how he happened to be in Johnny Chuck's House on Christmas Day. Now is told what led up to his visit.—THE EDITOR.

Peter Rabbit sat in the far corner of the Old Orchard, where, under an old apple tree, Johnny Chuck had his home, and just as is always the case when he goes there in winter Peter had a funny feeling. It was sort of a creepy feeling. The fact is Peter never could get used to the fact that somewhere deep down in a chamber at the end of that hole Johnny Chuck was asleep and would remain asleep until the coming of sweet Mistress Spring.

He knew it was so. Anyway everybody said it was so. Besides there never was a sign of Johnny Chuck during the months of snow and ice, but with the coming of Mistress Spring each year Johnny Chuck appeared in his doorway, very sleepy, very thin, and knowing nothing at all about what had been going on during the winter. So Peter was forced to believe that what everybody, including Johnny Chuck himself, said was true must be so. But that didn't help him understand it, and so whenever he came that way and thought of Johnny Chuck somewhere down below fast asleep he had a funny feeling.

It was so now. Peter sat and stared at Johnny Chuck's doorway partly filled with snow, and tried to imagine what it would be like to sleep day after day and week after week and month after month without once waking up and without once eating. It was this last that always was too much for Peter. You know Peter thinks much of his stomach. He could in a way picture to himself a long, long sleep but when he tried to imagine going all that time without eating it always was too much for him and made that funny feeling funnier than ever.

Sammy Jay happened along as Peter sat staring at Johnny Chuck's doorway.

"Piffle! Piffle! Piffle!" cried Sammy Jay

"Thinking of making a call on our old friend?" he asked.

"No! Oh, no! No indeed!" exclaimed Peter, looking a bit startled and backing away a few steps. "I hadn't thought of such a thing, Sammy Jay."

"Why not?" persisted Sammy. "Have you ever seen Johnny Chuck asleep for the winter?"

"No" replied Peter promptly. "Have you?"

Sammy laughed. "Hardly," said he. "How could I? But I'll tell you one thing, Peter Rabbit, if I were a four-legged animal small enough to go in that hole I would have seen Johnny Chuck asleep long before this."

"But that is his own private house," exclaimed Peter, "and it wouldn't be right for any one else to enter it."

"Piffle! Piffle! Piffle! Piffle!" cried Sammy Jay. "Who would know it? Certainly not Johnny Chuck if he's truly asleep as every one says he is. The only reason you don't do it is that you are afraid, Peter." With a scornful flirt of his wings Sammy Jay flew away.

For a long time Peter sat right where he was. Sammy Jay had put a new thought in his head and his natural curiosity had jumped at the idea. It urged him to do just what Sammy Jay had suggested. His better feelings told him that he had no business in Johnny Chuck's house. And every time he thought of himself creeping down that long hall that funny feeling swept over him stronger than ever. BLAME LABORER DOUBLE MURDER

Prisoner Found Wounded Beside Body of Dead Woman.

CHILDREN SEE TRAGEDY.

BATH, N.Y., Dec. 27—(A.P.) — A laborer lingered near death in Bath hospital to-day after a triple shooting at a remote farm house last night in which he was wounded and a woman and her father slain.

The man in the hospital is John Lee, 44, a grape harvester. The dead couple, for whose slaying Sheriff Stanley Hoagland said Lee will be charged with murder, were Mrs. Hannah Padgett, 26, and John Tomb, her father.

Police were summoned to the house, about five miles from Hammondsport, and found Tomb dead in a bath tub, a bullet through his heart, Mrs. Padgett dead on the floor of a front room and Lee lying beside her, two bullet holes in his chest.

The shooting, they were told, was witnessed by Tomb's wife, by Mrs. Padgett's sister, Mrs. Lloyd Morehouse, and Mrs. Padgett's two children, Alice, eight, and Boris, six.

Mrs. Tomb said Lee had called at the home and became angered at Mrs. Padgett's coolness toward him.

47 UNEMPLOYED LEAVE FOR CAMP

Forty-eighth Man Misses Train for Dorset-Minden Camp.

21 FROM MONAGHAN.

Rollicking merrily to the music of several harmonicas, a violin and a concertino and lusty voices raised in song, the Peterborough quota of unemployed single men, bound for the Government work camp on the Minden-Dorset road, pulled out of the C. N. R. station at 8.20 this morning.

It was a happy group of lads glad to be off to their winter's work. The leave-taking at the station was as merry as a picnic, although some relatives and friends left on the platform failed to display the same merriment as those entrained, who left with a gladsome cheer.

Forty-seven young men, fully equipped with warm clothes by the city, made up the party. The party was to have totalled 48 members but one raced to the station just in time to see the train round the first bend on its way to Lindsay.

The party will go by train to Huntsville, and then by bus truck the 20 miles into the camp where everything is in readiness to receive them.

The North Monaghan party of men for the camp also left to-day. A bus, equipped with comfortable seats, was their means of conveyance. Twenty-one made up the party, which was in charge of Herbert Doig, who drove the bus. They too were well equipped for the cold and rough work of road building, having been provided for by North Monaghan township.

Lakefield's contingent of 25 men will leave by bus to-morrow morning.

TWO NOMINATED, REEVE'S OFFICE

Marmora's Senior Councillor, F. S. Johnson, Has Hat in Ring.

TRUSTEES ACTION LOOMS.

MARMORA, Dec. 27. (Examiner Correspondence). —Possibilities of an election for Reeve, Council and Public School trustees loomed at the largely attended meeting of ratepayers held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening following the nomination hour.

For the reeveship, the retiring reeve F. N. Marett and the senior councillor, F. S. Johnston were nominated. Though the former was not present, it was understood that he is once more in the field. There was a large slate for seats on the council. Retiring councillors, R. E. Bonter, D. E. Bell, F. S. Johnston and Dr. A. H. Crawford were again nominated and nine other names were submitted as follows: Harry Smith, Junior; J. Cronkrite, W. R. Linn, A. Sweet, A. Kennedy J. P. Marvin, T. R. Warren, J. A. Rice and Stanis Bertrand. The retirement of three Public School trustees, Dr. R. E. Lumsden, P. Sopha and C. A. Lummis, opened the way for six nominations, T. E. Neal, P. Sopha, J. A. Rice, Rev. A. B. Caldwell, Dr. A. H. Crawford and Dr. R. E. Lumsden, F. R. Wells was returned as Hydro Commissoner for another two year term by acclamation.

R. E. Bonter

E. C. Prentice village clerk, presided at the meeting following the nominations. R. E. Bonter was first speaker. He referred to the fact that he had served ten years in municipal affairs, eight of which were on the Township Council. He dealt with some of the work of the past year and intimated that he had no intention of aspiring to a seat on the council this year.

H. W. Sabine, chairman of the Continuation School Board and Public School Board, spoke of the difficulties in handling school affairs att he present time. After he had mentioned the receipts and expenditures in connection with the Public School for the past year, he proceeded to mention the grants which had been received. For a large portion of his succeeding remarks interruptions to explain certain actions of the Board about which varied theories have been held for some time. At this juncture and later on in the meeting, the tactful handling of the situation by the chairman prevented disorder.

F. S. Johnson

F. S. Johnston, succeeding speaker reminded his hearers that he had been councillor for eight of the past ten years and had never missed a meeting. He however would make no definite statement as to whether he would qualify for either office to which he had been nominated.

Dr. R. E. Lumsden, school trustee for the past six years, endorsed what had been said by a previous speaker concerning the efficiency prevailing at the Public School. He did not intimate as to whether he would allow his name to stand.

John Cronkrite created much humor by simply remarking that someone must have tried to play a joke on him.

Sweet Withdraws

Arthur Sweet, an ex-councillor stated he was not in a position to undertake the duties of councillor.

J. P. Marrin expressed his pleasure at being a resident of Marmora again. He believed in the retention of the duties of last year's Council and was uncertain at the moment as to whether he would allow his name to go forward. W. A. Sanderson of Public and Continuation Schools Boards gave figures of the installation of the water system in the Public School. T. E. Neal, wanted time to consider his nomination. He felt that more co-operation on the part of parents with the work of education was desirable.

J. A. Rice asked that his name might be withdrawn from the nomination for school trustee and also remarked that he did not wish to be the cause of an election for councillors. In that respect, he would decide later.

Rev. A. B. Caldwell who had spoken earlier in the meeting with regard to the present educational system did not think he would stand for office on the school Board. Stanis Bertrand, W. R. Linn, also spoke before the meeting adjourned.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

AT MADOC.

MADOC, Dec. 27.— On Tuesday evening, Dec. 20th, the Sunday school of St. Peter's Presbyterian church held their Christmas concert and tree, being visited in the latter part of the evening by Santa Claus who distributed the presents, greeted all with Merry Christmas wishes and shook hands with the more fearless of the little boys and girls, ano won laurels for himself by promising to make a personal call on one of the little boys who was too ill to attend the concert.

The following is the program:

After which followed a play by the Senior scholars, "The Trials of Christmas Shopping," Grandma being Jean Phillips, Mrs. Barton, Violet Akey; Mr. Barton, Malcolm Bassett, and Edith Barton, Jean Nickle. All performed their parts well, and were heartily applauded.

AT WESTWOOD

(Examiner Correspondence)

WESTWOOD, Dec. 27. — A full house greeted the entertainment sponsored by the young people of School Section No. 4 on Monday night in Westwood town hall.

Reeve Rorke Ferguson was the chairman of the evening with Miss Collins at the piano. The program: Welcome speech, M. English; chorus, "We Just Couldn't Say Good Bye"; dialogue "Selling the Baby"; dramatization of nursery rhyme; chorus by school, "Red, Red Robin"; recitation, M. English; chorus, "Shanty Town"; chorus by grown-ups; recitation, Greta MacNaughton; step dance, George Quinlan; Santa Claus' visit.

Westwood Public School

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment of the Westwood public school was held on Wednesday evening in the town hall.

Frank Walsh, school trustee made an excellent chairman and Miss Lena Dickson ably accompanied the chorus' and songs. The program was as follows; chairman's remarks; recitation, Berta Brackenridge; duet, Vernon and Zola Warr; orchestra selection by Comstock and Ross; recitation, Joe Walsh; dialogue, "Social Difficulties"; solo, Doreen Graham; recitation, Jessie Douglas; recitation, Zola Warr; duet, Jean and Isabel Sargent; monologue, Mrs. Aubrey Wood; duet, Margaret Brackenridge and Jessie Wilson; recitation, Doreen Graham; solo, Jessie Douglas; orchestra selection; motion song, "Merry Christmas Day"; recitation, Vernon Warr; school chorus, "Christmas Bells"; Christmas tree.

MADOC UNITED CHURCH

MADOC, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Trinity United Church held their annual Christmas concert and tree on Thursday evening. The following was the program given to the crowded Sunday school auditorium.

The opening chorus was led by the whole school and joined in by the audience, "Glory to God in the Highest," followed by the remarks of the chairman, Mr. R. P. Wellman; Christmas song, Mrs. Jack's Primary Class; recitation, Charlie Bristol; song in action, Mrs. Bailey's Class; solo, little Miss Sadie Tumelty; dialogue, Mother Goose, Mrs. F. Phillips' Class; play, Mrs. T. Burnside's Class; drill by Mrs. Hamm's Class; dialogue, Rev. Mr. River's Class; pantomime, Mr. Irwin's Class; address Rev. G. W. Rivers; play, "Tired of Mission," Girls of the C.G.I.T., Mrs. Rivers' Class. National Anthem.

Then followed the visit of Santa Claus when the presents and candies were distributed to all the boys and girls of the Sunday School.

EMILY SCHOOL, No. 9

OMEMEE, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Olden golden days, "days of happy youth" came again for the adults who watched with much interest the program which was presented by the pupils of Emily School No. 9. Recitation, Melba Magee; recitation, Edna Plumpton; Garland Drill; recitation, Minerva Plumpton; recitation, Neil Windrem; recitation, Gwen Fee; recitation, Gordon Windrim; song, Margaret Best and Donald Plumpton; song, Margaret Best, "Ship Ahoy"; recitations, Wilson Windrim, Murray Fee, Minerva Plumpton; song, Margaret Best, "Holy Night"; recitation, Melba Magee; recitation, Minerva Plumpton; instrumental, Margaret Best; recitation, Wilson Windrim; chorus, "Old Santa Claus Lives Far Away."

At the close of the program Santa Claus in person visited the hall and distributed good things to the children.

LIFFORD LINE

LIFFORD LINE, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — The pupils of Lifford Public School under the direction of their teacher Miss V. Trimble, presented their annual Christmas program on Thursday evening 22 in the Lifford community hall.

The opening chorus sung heartily by the school included, "Silent Night" and "Good King Wenceslas" and were warmly applauded. These were followed by well-given juvenile recitations by Bruce White and Ruth Medland.

Marjorie Page an ex-pupil of the school contributed an excellent recitation.

Lawrence Staples received the usual hearty applause for a solo in keeping with the occasion.

Edward Neals and Walter White delighted the attentive listeners with well chosen junior's recitations.

Eileen Peters consented to dance the "Sailor's Hornpipe" her clever exhibition of physical training being a real treat.

Agnes White was the contributor of a gay little recitation.

Margerite Neals and Audrey Mulligan each contributed well chosen recitations.

A duet by Roy and Agnes White added a pleasing variety to the program.

Walter White a continuation pupil of the school gave an interesting monologue.

Vera Strachan an ex-pupil assisted by giving a good recitation.

Gerald Mulligan, Mae Mulligan and Mary White contributed suitable heartily applauded readings.

A concluding chorus, "Just be Merry" brought the delightful program to a conclusion with "God Save the King" being joined in by all

Santa Claus represented by Harry Pearce suitably attired, made a welcome appearance delighting the hearts of the juniors by his jovial manner and cheering remarks.

S.S. 9, BLAIRTON

BLAIRTON, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Thursday evening the school concert and Christmas tree of S.S. No. 9 was held in the schoolhouse and attended by a large number of parents and friends of the pupils.

A program of songs, drills, recitations, dialogues, etc. were given by the pupils in a manner which reflected great credit upon the teacher, Harold Quinn.

A particularly pleasing number and one which drew rounds of applause was the musical selections given by Alex Boyd, organ and Don Fleming, mouth organ. With the exception of this item and a humorous reading by Charles McFall, the program was supplied entirely by the school pupils, in a most commendable manner.

James W. Russel acted as chairman and extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Quinn. After the close of the program, Santa Claus arrived and distributed the gifts from the well-laden tree.

RUSH POINT

RUSH POINT, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — A splendid crowd gathered at the White Church on Wednesday evening to hear the annual Rush Point Sunday School Christmas concert.

The following numbers, interspersed by timely remarks by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, who was chairman for the evening, were well given and well received; recitation, Gerald Wrightly; recitation, Trevor Grattan; a medley of tunes on the harmonica with Spanish guitar accompaniment by Murnie Barton; recitation, "A Grudge" by Betty Gaynel Petherick; dialogue "Trouble in Santa Claus Land" by the Rush Point Public School pupils. Clarence Pollock made a fine Santa Claus, and Edith Davis as Mrs. Santa Claus gives promise of very good talent for dialogue work. Donald Menzies as the visiting "Earth-Child" in Toyland did very well indeed. The toy makers were Clara Menzies, Rena Toms, Keith Hart, Bruce Menzies, and the essential bit of fun was supplied by Winston Petherick as an Eskimo boy dressed in fur-trimmed cap and coat. Edith Davis repeated by request her recitation "The Crippled Dolly." A song, "When Santa Comes" was also repeated by request at this program by Leland Petherick playing his own accompaniment on a tiny toy banjo. Monologue, "Christmas Dinner Style" by Miss Corrinne McArthur. Recitation, Muriel Ellis; solo, Miss Jean Pollock; recitation, Estella Drake; song, "Home on the Range" by Archie McMillan playing his own accompaniment on his Hawaiian guitar; recitation, Clara Graham; recitation by Grace Johnston, "A Christmas Prayer"; recitation, Mae McArthur.

With the distribution of bags of candy and gifts from the tree and the singing of the National Anthem the evening was brought to a pleasant closing.

BELMONT SEES LIVELY ACTION

Reeve C. F. Steenburg Again Enters Lists—Issues Threshed Out.

COUNCIL FIGHT UNCERTAIN

HAVELOCK, December 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Greatly in contrast to the scattered few at the village's nomination proceedings was the assembly that packed the Belmont Township Hall to capacity, yes, even to overflowing, on Monday afternoon. A large crowd is always on hand, but this year the holiday was responsible for even more young men and a greater number of ladies present.

Grant Dafoe acted as chairman and called upon Christie F. Steenburgh, who gave a brief outline of the year's work. He gave the reason that some of the ratepayers had not worked their taxes out in road work because they had been kept too busy on the land. He reviewed the work carried on by the County Council and the reduction in the county rate of three mills. He told of the action in hiring the county engineer and the purchase of the road grader. He had thought in the long run the former was an economical move.

Mr. Fred F. Fry spoke briefly, and asked the councillors why they had made certain moves, and offered much criticism about unnecessary expenditures. He said he would see that there was an electoin if he had to run himself.

Norris Whitney, veteran councilman, said he would stand for another year.

"The White Elephant."

R. H. Vansickle said he would take the blame for the purchase of the road grader, better known by critics as "the white elephant." He had opposed the motion, but later consented to its being purchased. He said this action was taken after the county engineer had told him of its advantages.

Isaac Anderson said he intended to stand for another term. Joe E. McNeely, another old member, said he would run if there was going to be an election.

Thomas Bannon, a new nominee said he would not cause an election, and couldn't see how the Council could say they had a surplus when they were so far in debt.

Carl Purdy, another new man, said he was not in favor of an election, and the money could be spent on roads. He thought the taxes should be lowered.

George B. Saunders spoke briefly, saying that he favored the road grader purchase and that it had done great work on the Cordova Road.

J. F. Breckenridge spoke briefly, but will not be in the field this time.

Reeve F. Steenburgh spoke again, saying that he could take the names of four more single men for work on the Minden-Dorset Highway. He already had six and would likely need more later on. Transportation to the highway camp will be paid by the township, and they will be in the same camp. The pay is ten dollars per month and their board. He again made it clear that he would be in the ring for Reeve.

The old Council all qualified immediately after the meeting closed. The three new nominees for Council said they wouldn't cause an election. Mr. Breckenridge is out of it. W. E. Griffith has been reported as saying he will not qualify this year. This leaves the election issue pretty much up to Mr. Fry.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS CONCERT HASTINGS SEPARATE SCHOOL

Yuletide Program Successfully Carried Out By Youthful Students.

CAPABLE INSTRUCTORS.

HASTINGS, Dec. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The annual Christmas concert of the Hastings nesday afternoon in the school nsady afternoon in the school room, when Rev. Father P. J. Kelly acted as chairman in his usual capable manner.

The success of the concert testified to the splendid training of the children by the teachers, Misses Meagher and McMahon.

The following is the program: Recitation, Olive Coughlan; chorus, 1st, 2nd and Jr. III classes, "The Glad Bells of Christmas"; monologue, "A Fine Singer," Betty Foley; recitation, Joan McGuire; dialogue, "The New Hired Man"; chorus, Stars of Glory; recitation, Helen Coughlan; song, Stars of December, Leona Herrington; monologue, A Small Boy's Troubles, Jack Crowley; song, Primary class; dialogue, Selling Eggs; song, Margaret Wilkins; recitation, A Boy's Remarks to His Stomach, Willie Faux; song, The Clock is Playing, Rose Petticrew; recitation, George Wilkins; song, Mary MacDonald; recitation, A Child's Song of Christmas, Margaret Coughlan; chorus, See Amid the Winter's Snow; recitation, Anne Crowley; song, Jolly Old St. Nicholas, Albert Crowley; recitation, Anne Wilkins; song, Pat Petticrew; recitation, Mary Walsh; chorus, 2nd and 3rd classes, 'Tis the Glad Christmas Time; recitation, Stafford McKenty; recitations, Mayme Herrington and Flora MacDonald; dialogue, A Hasty Goodbye; song, Mary Lavoie and Catherine Way; play, The Almost Wasn't Christmas; A Game of Letters; recitation, Johnny's Christmas, Leona Herrington; recitation, Neil McKenty; chorus, What Lovely Infant Can This Be.

A. Kempt.

Wm. Devlin—by John Torpey and Sidney Bennett.

Joseph Burns—by S. A. Lancashire and J. R. Jackson.

Michael O'Keefe—by Percy Davidson and Sam O'Brien.

Henry Reid—by Abert Speirs and Harry Elliott.

James Dewart—by Wm. O'Leary and Sam O'Brien.

A Keen Audience.

The personnel of this year's council is: Reeve F. D. McIntyre, Deputy-reeve Percy Davidson, and Councillors Bolin, Burns and Reid.

The prospects of eventual candidature indicated that Reeve McIntyre is seeking re-election and will be opposed by Ernie Deyell and W. A. Anderson.

Percy Davidson and Harry Reid are deferring their aspirations toward the first chair, and George W. Fife is a possibility on the platform of "cutting salaries and overhead fifty percent or I'll take to the river."

Deputy-reeve Davidson is offering his services to the electors again; Alex Huston has already signed his declaration of qualification; and Joseph Burns is withholding his decision until some time today.

Harry Reid and Gus Bolin will face the barrier again; Mr. Burns will enter the race for council if he declines to enter the contest for the deputy position; William Devlin and Fred Eason may also accept nomination; and in fact some of the others may line up, too.

An Otonabee nomination meeting discloses a keen group of ratepayers, nearly all of whom are apparently well versed in the affairs of their municipality and what they know about the county council is considerably more than the minutes show. The obligation of rendering an account of public stewardship to that assembly is no mere matter of form, and there is no hesitancy about heckling and cross-questioning.

Theme of yesterday's convention was "more retrenchment," a wide assault on overhead costs, and a further reduction of taxes for 1933. William Anderson sounded the most sombre note, extending his comments on the financial outlook as pertaining to salaries and other expenditure to the point where he diverged toward "a new order of things," and some one in the front row asked him whether he had been "flirting with Agnes McPhail."

George Fife interjected most of the wit and humor into the discussion, and there were others who contributed to the lighter vein of the meeting as a relief to the more serious topics.

Reeve's Statement.

Reeve McIntyre declared that he had kept his promise to reduce this year's taxes which were approximately $63,000, a reduction of $13,000 from 1931.

Referring to county affairs, he said that the account for the cost of the King's Highway was $41,519.65 this year, and to meet that comparatively large item debentures of $35,000 were issued for ten years, and the remaining $6,519.65 was paid out of the treasury. There was also the sum of $1,514.07 ensuing from the Mahood case. The county council had given its assent to the Norwood subway job because there was no alternative. It will resultin a bill for $12,000 next year which Mr. McIntyre said he was in favor of paying out of the current revenue. He defended the recourse to borrowing by debentures, recalling that $20,000 had been raised in that way for the Lakefield bridge and $5,000 paid out of the treasury.

"I thought it was good business not to load all the highway cost on the ratepa.. 'is year," Mr. McIntyre said. we had no debenture debt in ...s county I would have said try and pay it, but we are in a good position. Some counties are debentured out of sight. I did not think it was good business to pay interest on an overdraft at the bank for some years, so that is why I was in favor of raising the money by debentures."

The Reeve explained that the work on the Norwood subway had not been continuous, and athough some men had gone down from the township, and from other parts of the county, it was not profitable to them because the work was not steady. Those men who lived a Norwood were in better position because it was near their homes.

"I'm not ashamed of the showing we made this year," Mr McIntyre declared.

Various details of the administration of Old Age Pensions were discussed, and then some one in the audience asked the Reeve about the horse that had been bought for the House of Refuge. This colt "sweenied," to use the expression dealing with a shoulder condition that sometimes develops.

Mr. McIntyre said that there was no fault in the buying of the horse, which had been returned to the owner pending some further developments.

"There'll be quite a board bill again," one ratepayer called out, and another asked "who owns it now?"

"It belongs to the county," Mr. McIntyre replied.

"What did you ever get a green colt for?" another ratepayer asked.

Mr. Fife — Surely there was enough old stuff back there.

Mr. McIntyre said that when the intention to purchase was advertised a whole "load of letters" came in.

"Why did you pay so much for it?" the Reeve was asked.

"We thought it was the best of what we saw," he answered.

"Did you buy it at night?" was Allan Wilson's question.

Mr. McIntyre said the horse cost $150, and at the time it seemed a "real good buy."

"That's too small a question to waste time on," a ratepayer objected, and William Fitzgerald dryly added: "It didn't cost much more than the joy ride to McColl's bridge."

The Salary Question

Some ratepayer turned the discussion to the county salary question, and Mr McIntyre replied that he and Reeves Ferguson, Mann and Hickson had voted for the proposed cut.

"I wasn't after Mr. Elliott," he stated; "I thought the salary was too much no matter who the man was. There is no more capable man in the county than Mr. Elliott."

George Fife—What, in hypnotism?

Mr. McIntyre remarked that there were eighteen members of the county council. Things were talked over before being voted on, as a rule, and if one saw that he couldn't get a majority there was no use trying it. The Reeve said that he also moved for the reduction in allowance paid to members. He asked the ratepayers for their support, said he was confident that further slashes in exenditure could be made next year, and promised the ratepayers to do all he could, if elected, to reduce the taxes again.

Deputy-Reeve Davidson.

Mr. Davidson said they spent nearly $2,600 in his ward last year, and $1,927 this year, approximately $544 less. The county debenture debt in 1906 was $77,000 and at the beginning of this year it was $82,000. During the year the total was reduced by $12,000 in retiring debentures and $35,0000 had been added leaving the present debenture indebtedness at $107,000.

Mr. Davidson also pointed out that the government had agreed this year to pay half the cost of bridges not on county roads.

Some one asked Mr Davidson why he didn't vote for the salary cut.

"Some of those who voted it said they knew it wouldn't carry when they voted for it," was his reply.

Mr. Wilson—But that is what we send you there for.

Mr. Fife—If you'd cut is 50 per cent. it would be that much longer before we're all sold out.

Mr. Davidson reminded the ratepayers that he had declared himself a year ago as being in favor of reducing salaries on a sliding scale, and that was the policy he had tried to follow.

A voice—Mr. Elliott didn't hypnotize you, did he?

Mr. Davidson said he would decline the nomination for the reeveship. He had tried to give the ratepayers the best service he could and would endeavour to do likewise next year. He said that his opinion was that a member of the council should be entrusted to use his own best judgment.

Mr. Fife—And not Ed. Elliott's.

Joseph Burns.

"I went out from here a year ago determined to do what I wanted to do and what I felt the people wanted," Mr. Burns said. "I urged a cut in the township rate: we set it early and when we had spent that much we quit. We got a 4½ mill rate through and most of us have lived up to it. I have fifty-five dollars left over in the largest ward in the township. So if you haven't as much work as was done four years ago, you must have money in your pocket. You can't have the work done and the money too. I'm not satisfied with the taxes, especialy the county tax. My taxes are $153 and the county part of it is $97.06. We can't afford to pay county officials ten dollars a day at the prices we're getting."

Mr. Fife—Do you think Ed Elliott could hypnotize you?

J. J. Moore's salary, culvert commission and several other subjects were sandwiched into that section of the discussion, and Mr. Burns concluded by urging every school section to send a representative to the convention next spring of the Ratepayers and Trustees' Association.

Allan Wilson interjected the proposal that the suburoan area commission's levy of three mills should be cut in two. The ratepayers weren't overlooking many items in their economy drive, and what one man forgot, another remembered.

August Bolin.

Mr. Bolin was brief in his remarks. He was willing to stand again for the council, but if the ratepayers could get anyone else they thought could do the work better it was their privilege to do so.

He turned back one of George Fife's sallies. Mr. Bolin had mentioned the effort to keep down road expenditure, and Mr. Fife queried, "Couldn't you cut it in two."

"You had just one hole in your road, and you were in a hurry to have it fixed," Mr. Bolin retorted.

And after the laughter passed, Mr. Fife said: Well, that's all right."

Harry Reid.

Mr. Reid stated that although he had been nominated for all three positions in the council he would perhaps be a candidate for council again. He asked the ratepayers to support him again.

W. A. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson reminded the audience that Mr. McIntyre had told them a year ago that he had in his pocket, an offer from some man to do the county clerk's work for $2,200 and then voted for the clerk's salary of $3,350. Mr. Anderson said he had been in favor of the appointment of Ambrose Doris as county road engineer because of the ability he had shown. If there had been a deadlock on the appointment, it might have led to the dissolution of the county road system.

"That would have been my policy, to reduce the overhead. We have too many road authorities in this province. It would be far better to reduce our overhead than to let the roads go. The taxes have been lowered some, but they went up fearfully last year. Mine went up a year ago from $151 to $188. I thought it was due to an overdraft, but I was surprised to find that there was $35,000 to be paid this year."

Mr. Anderson stated that Mr. McIntyre's claim to a reduction of about $13,000 was not creditabe to the council. One item of $1,452 had been reduced to the township through the government's action in lowering the levy for old age pensions, another item for schools was $2,650, and with $8,400 as the township's share of the $35,000 debentures for No. 7 highway there was not much left when the total of these items was subtracted from the $13,000. Mr. Anderson said it was just about wiped out.

"I have no quarrel with the council for borrowing the $35,000," he continued. "I am not saying the township council didn't cut a little here and there but to get anywhere we've got to do something vastly different from cutting twenty-five cents off the working man and twenty-five cents off the councillors' fees when they come to Keene."

Mr. Anderson said that if the county council had been "alive to the changes in the Highways Act they could have got three or four years ago the fifty per cent from the government on bridges on other than county roads."

Ernest Deyell.

Mr. Deyell informed the ratepayers that he was in the field for reeve as a result of many ratepayers having urged him to be a candidate. He had been five years in the township council, three of them as deputy-reeve and had gained considerable experience.

L. J. Clancy—How do you stand on the salary question?

Mr. Burns—Smith will put Allan Mann back.

Mr. Deyell—Mr. McIntyre said last year Mr. Elliott was getting too much, and that he could get a reliable man for $2,200. I am not here to say anything for or against Mr. Elliott.

Mr. Burns—It's not against the man personally, it is the salary.

W. Fitzgerald—You are a long time evading the question.

Mr. Deyell—I'll not say what I'll do or what I'll not do except this that any man you elect who doesn't do everything he can to reduce expenses is not worthy of public confidence.

Mr. Fife—Why can't you give us confidence, and tell us you would.

Mr. Deyell repeated his declaration of a policy of economy in every possible direction.

'Mr. McIntyre has been casting it about that I am an Elliott reeve," Mr. Deyell continued. "Well, I'd just as soon be that as to be all dressed up and have no place to go, to come back here and say the hired man licked me."

George W. Fife.

Mr. Fife said he was always a friend of County Clerk Elliott. "He's a hard man to shake off. If you row with him today, he's as good a friend as ever the next day. I said to him: "You're running the county council and you know it." He says: "'Jack Moore is running your township council and you know it," and I says "Ed you're right." Tanner and the other fellows must have been playing around in the barnyard when that bridge grant was put through. It takes 110 bushels of wheat to pay my taxes and that takes a lot of sweat. The men on the road would be lucky to get $1.50. They're getting $3.50 or $4.00 and I'm getting hell."

Mr. Fife asked the ratepayers to think of all the things the families on farms had to do without at present day prices, and then to remember the need of cutting down expenses everywhere possible.

Alex Huston.

Mr. Huston said he would be in the field if there was an election, and his policy would be to cut expenses to the bone.

Michael Walsh did not definitely declare his intentions regarding accepting nomination. He urged that the county council should take some action to have the cost of the administration of justice reduced.

Michael O'Keefe declined nomination, Wm. Devlin was not certain about his decision, and James Clydsdale said he did not expect to be a contestant.

Fred Eason spoke about school costs and supported Mr. Burns' suggestion that the rural trustees should send delegates to the convention in Toronto next Easter. He did not declare himself in regard to his nomination.

Obituary

THOMAS TUCKER.

MADOC, Dec. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—There passed away at his home, St. Lawrence street, Madoc, on Thursday, December 15, Thomas Tucker. The late Mr. Tucker was born in Bridgewater seventy-two years ago and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tucker. He came to Madoc village to reside in 1879. He learned his trade of watchmaker with E. L. Weiss of Madoc, and also spent a few months in Bancroft.

The funeral service was held at the home on Friday, December 16, and was conducted by his pastor, Rev. G. W. Rivers, pastor of Trinity United Church, who took his text, John 11:25: "I am the Resurrection and the Life." He was assisted by Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds, rector of St. John's Anglican church. Interment was made in Lakeview cemetery.

There are left to mourn his loss, a widow, a brother, Walter Tucker, of Ottawa, and a niece, Mrs. Sharpe of Madoc.

ISAAC WILLIAM PLOUGMAN

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 27.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—The funeral of the late Isaac William Ploughman was held Thursday from the family residence, Richard street, Campbellford, interment being made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, the Rev. J. C. Robinson, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, officiating.

Mr. Ploughman died on Monday, December 19, in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, after a brief illness. He was in his 71st year. Born in Hope Township, Ont., he resided for about fifteen years in Madoc, coming to Campbellford 52 years ago, where he resided until his death.

For many years he worked at his trade of a carpenter, later receiving the appointment of bailiff of the 11th Division Court, which he held until his death. He was a Presbyterian in religion and an ardent fisherman.

Surviving are his wife, whose maiden name was Rhoda Jane Hubble; one daughter, Mrs. C. Skinner of Toronto; his mother, who is 94 years of age and resides in Oshawa; four sisters, Mrs. S. J. Abernethy, Campbellford; Mrs. Nelson Jackson, Winnipeg, Man.; Mrs. C. Lounsborough, Windsor, Ont.; and Mrs. E. Hann, Oshawa; and two brothers, Edward and John, of Port Perry.

JOSEPH LOWES

EAST EMILY, Dec. 24.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Joseph Lowes, whose death occurred at his residence on the second line of Ennismore Township was held on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence to Emily Cemetery for interment. Rev. Dr. Reddick officiated at the house and graveside.

The late Mr. Lowes was an old and highly respected resident of the neighborhood and was in his usual good health until about ten days prior to his death. He was in his 70th year and had lived in this district all his life, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Lowes. He was a member of Bethel Church and was highly respected by all who came in contact with him.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Martha Kerr, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Kerr, of Emily Township; one daughter, Mrs. Albert Davis of Cobourg, and one brother, John, in the west. A daughter and son predeceased him a number of years ago.

The large number of floral tributes showed the high esteem in which he was held by his many friends.

The pall-bearers were Charles Mills, Arnot Boate, Albert Franks, Jacob Lowes, James Davis and Harry Lowes.

GREECE FIGHTS FURTHER ACTION AGAINST INSULL

Authorities State Court Ruling Against Extradition Binds Their Hands.

NO INFLUENCE USED.

U. S. Authorities Will Continue Efforts But Are Puzzled as to Procedure.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 28 (C.P.).—Further proceedings cannot be taken in Greece against Samuel Insull on the same charges on which a court ruled yesterday he was unextraditable, a legal authority said to-day.

The decision was binding upon Greek executive authorities, barring them from further steps should they be so inclined, it was declared.

President Georgopoulos, of the Court of Appeal, said to-day there has been no attempt by executive powers to influence the court. (It ruled Mr. Insull could not be extradited to the United States on the evidence which was intended to show him guilty of larceny and embezzlement in connection with the collapse of his Middle West utilities enterprises).

Will Continue Fight.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.— (A.P.) — The fight to bring Samuel Insull, Sr., back to the United States to face his accusers is to go on, but there was a big question mark to-day as to the method of procedure.

This was indicated to-day by the prosecution which accused the former utilities czar of larceny and embezzlement on which the Greek Court of Appeals at Athens refused to order his extradition to the United States on the ground depositions failed to support the allegations.

There was a possibility that State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney would ask the State Department at Washington to request the Greek Government to deport Mr. Insull to some country from which he might be extradited, but he declined to give a definite answer to this phase of the case.

All efforts to guard against technicalities which might prevent extradition of Martin J. Insull out on bond in Orillia, Ont., would be made, the prosecutor said.

He announced that his office was amending the warrant on which Martin's removal from the Province of Ontario is sought, but substituting the name of one of Mr. Courtney's assistants for that of former Assistant State's Attorney John Hampton, who left the prosecutor's staff following the defeat of State's Attorney John A. Swanson in the November election.

School Teachers To Discuss Salaries

TORONTO, Dec. 28. (C.P.) — Salaries will be the main topic of discussion at the annual meeting of the Secondary School Teachers' Federation which opened here to-day and continues to-morrow.

A year ago the Association decided to waive the minimum salary scale temporarily, and the continuance of this policy will be debated. Principals and teachers from all parts of the province were present when the meeting opened this afternoon.

For the first time in the history of the federation a woman is likely to preside over it next year. She is Miss Aileen Noonan, Windsor, who will probably be elected to the presidency.

FACES SERIOUS COUNT FOLLOWING FATAL FIGHT

TORONTO, Dec. 28. — (CP) — Charles H. Yuill was arrested to-day and charged with manslaughter and aggravated assault as the resultof the death of Gordon Scott, 40, early today. It was alleged Scott died from injuries inflicted during a Christmas-party fight. Yuill was remanded until Jan. 4 on bail of $2,000 when he appeared in police court today.

Cards Take Place Christmas Gifts

HALIFAX, Dec. 28.—(CP)—Santa Claus was a bit hard up this Christmas and had to send cards to many people for whom he carried gifts in former years.

During five days of the Yuletide rush the Halifax postoffice cleared 700,000 letters and cards, an increase of 12.5 per cent over last year's total.

"Parcel post totalled a little better than 90,000 parcels for the five days, which is quite a drop from last year's total," said Postmaster Donald A. King today.

"It shows that where parcels weren't sent last year cards had to suffice this year."

Press and public are indignant over this latest outburst of the Macedonian feud which this time claimed the lives of two noncombatants. There might have been more killed if a bomb thrown during the riot had exploded.

The employee of the Ministry of War was looking out of a window in his office when a bullet struck him.

3 YOUTHS HELD IN LIQUOR CASE

Police Seize Automobile and 75 Quarts Liquor at Walker Airport.

MISS PLANE LOAD.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 28.—(CP)—William Spiers and George Allen, Riverside, with Bruce Glassford, Walkerville, will appear in county police court tomorrow as the result of the capture of an automobile and 75 quarts of assorted liquor at Walker airport yesterday.

Provincial police just missed catching an aeroplane loaded with 10 cases of liquor, the youths are alleged to have told police. When the police arrived at the field, the plane took off.

The plane was being loaded in a secluded corner of the field and according to Inspector Sidney Oliver of the provincial police, could make a landing without attracting the attention of field operators. While an investigation is going on, field officials are not believed to have knowledge of the activities of the liquor plane. Reports on the number of trips made by the plane varied, but it was thought by police the activities were nipped in the bud.

Drug Store Looter Hailed Into Court

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 28. —(C.P.)—Captured by a policeman as he was allegedly leaving a burglarized drug store, Jean Champione, Montreal, was remanded in custody for a week when he appeared in police court to-day.

According to the policeman, he saw a man inside the drug store. Because there were three exits, he waited outside. Campaigne, the policeman said, came out of a side window carrying $65 worth of goods and had helped himself to ice cream and mixed soft drinks An alleged accomplice who was waiting outside escaped.

"FAIR" BURGLARS.

LONDON, Ont. — "Fifty-fifty" burglars broke into a drug store here, it was discovered to-day.

They divided the money in the till, taking $23 and leaving $21.

Fifty-Four Miners Are Lost in Blast

Hope for the safety of the fifty-four miners, cut off from the outside world by an explosion 700 feet underground on Saturday, faded slowly as mine rescue gangs groped their way through gas-filled passages of the Moweaqua Coal Company Mine at Moweaqua, Ill. Wives, children, and friends of the victims can be seen huddled around the entrance as mine rescuers push their search for the bodies of the entombed men.

LIBERAL PRESS RAPS RED DEAL

Guardian Anxious to See Stand Bennett Will Take on Negotiations.

WANT NO "HUMBUGGING."

LONDON, Dec. 28 (C.P. Cable).—Plans for barter arrangements between Canada and Soviet Russia, reported to be under way, were denounced by the Liberal Free Trade Manchester Guardian to-day.

The leading Liberal organ declares it is anxious to see if Prime Minister R. B. Bennett approves of the proposition which his Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Robert Weir, had been studying. And if the Premier will approve, The Guardian wants to know, "What becomes of the arguments he has been using to persuade the British Government to veto its timber agreement with Russia. "What decent excuse can he give," continues the editorial, "for putting the South Wales miners out of work by taking Russian anthracite." (This reference to anthracite deals with the report that Winnipeg interests propose shipping livestock to Russian via the Hudson Bay route, taking in return both oil and anthracite coal, provided the Canadian Government would permit this transaction).

"One does not suppose Mr. Bennett would be so foolish to throw away good business for Canadian farmers for the sake of Imperial sentiment and such a trifling thing as consistency, but it is equally obvious we should not allow ourselves to be humbugged by him," concluded The Manchester Guardian.

FIRE IN HOTEL CLAIMS GUEST

150 Guests Are Forced to Fleet From Pittsburg Hotel in Night Attire.

THREE FIREMEN HURT.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 28 (AP) — One guest was asphyxiated, another was seared by flames and three firemen were injurede to-day when fire broke out in the Seventh Avenue Hotel in downtown Pittsburgh.

About 150 men, women and children in various stages of undress escaped to the street

Three alarms brought more than a dozen pieces of fire apparatus to the scene and downtown traffic was tied up for several hours.

The asphyxiation victim was found dead in a corridor on the fifth floor. His body was burned almost beyond recognition. He was about 60 years old.

COMPLETE OUTFIT

PORTLAND, Ore.—Traffic sergeant Fred C. Short, of the Portland police, came to work with his number nines surrounded by a pair of spats. Fellow officers decided the picture had best be completed. So they presented him with a turkey-headed cane and a monocle. Sergeant Short threatens to wear the whole outfit on duty.

Lengthy Delegate

TORONTO, December 28 (C.P.). — Six feet five inches in height, Dr. H. C. Cole of the Western Reserve University at Cleveland, was the cause of much consternation yesterday at the registration headquarters of the American Historical Association convention. He had requested a bed for a man of his height, and it was only after an hour's search that a suitable one was found among the University residences where the delegates are quartered.

DOURO COUNCIL IS RE-ELECTED

John J. Leahy and John D. O'Shea Retire After Qualifying.

COMES AS SURPRISE.

One of the biggest surprises from the municipal election arena is the announcement of an acclimation for the Reeve and Council of Douro Township, where until late last evening a stiff fight had seemed to be a certainty.

The 1933 Township Council which remains the same as it was during the present years, is as follows: Reeve Frank D. Leahy; Councillors, Howard A. Quinn, William Hayes, Jeremiah Mahoney, and John E. Galvin.

A fight was forestalled by the resignations, following their qualification, which were formally made to the Township Clerk by John J. Leahy running for Reeve, and John D. O'Shea running for Council. Chief reasons for withdrawal from the contest are believed to have been a desire of saving the municipality the expenses that an election fight would involve.

At the nomination proceedings on Christmas Monday, three candidates were hoisted into the ring for the office of Reeve, and eight candidates were lined up for Council. The probability, then, was that Howard A. Quinn would not contest the Reeveship, but would be content to again run for Council and leave the major issue for decision between the two Leahys.

For five successive years, until he was defeated at the polls last term, John J. Leahy had headed Douro Township Council, when the gauntlet was thrown down by Frank D. Leahy, who for eighteen years in succession had held office as township clerk. Rivalry between the two men was keen and the decision announced at the ballots was close.

Giving an account of his stewardship at the recent nomination meetings, Reeve Frank D. Leahy, who was chairman of the Finance Committee on the County Council, claimed he had kept his promise that he would bring taxation down.

APPEAL FYLED BY J. J. HARPELL

Alleges Defense Suffered Injustice From Striking Out Greater Part of Plea.

PROTESTS RULING.

MONTREAL, Dec. 28 (C.P.). — James J. Harpell, Gardenvale, Que., publisher, convicted of libel on a charge preferred by T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, to-day filed an appeal in the Appeal Court.

The appeal alleges that the ruling of Mr. Justice R. A. E. Greenshields on the prosecution's demurrer to Harpell's original special plea was wrong in law and that the defence suffered injustice from the striking out of the greater part of that plea. It complains of the attitude of the court in refusing to allow several questions which the defence wished to put to various witnesses. It alleges that the court did not quote the whole of the law covering the plea of not guilty in the final address to the jury. Finally it complains of the matter to which attention was drawn in court, that the unexpurgated original plea was put into the hands of the jury instead of the amended plea.

PETERBORO'S MASONIC LODGES CELEBRATE FESTIVAL OF ST. JOHN

Rt. Wor. Bro. Copus of Stratford is Guest Speaker at Banquet.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

The Festival of St. John the Evangelist was celebrated last night by Peterborough's three Masonic Lodges: Corinthian, Peterborough and Royal Arthur.

Over one hundred Masons attended the banquet in the Empress Hotel which followed the installation of the new officers of Corinthian and Peterborough Lodges.

Right Worshipful Bro. Copus of Stratford, Deputy Grand Master of the Province of Ontario, was the guest speaker. Worshipful Bro. John A. Smith, retiring Master of Peterborough Lodge, was the chairman for the evening, and Bros. Maurice Park and Edward Humpage delighted the gathering with solos. Bro. Martin Chenhall accompanied the two soloists.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Copus, who was introduced by Wor. Bro. J. F. Strickland, in opening his address, described the Grand Lodge of Canada as one of the largest in Masonry, and one which took in the greatest territory of any Grand Lodge. His address was an earnest plea to Masonry to give leadership to the world at the present time, for there was no organization so well fitted as Freemasonry, he declared.

"It is a great privilege," said the speaker, "to be a Mason, but with this privilege there rests a great responsibility on the heads of every Mason to-day."

Too Much Materialism

In referring to the present crisis Rt. Wor. Bro. Copus said, "Men are definitely coming to the conclusion

Save Dentistry Bill

MILWAUKEE, Wis., December 28 (C.P.). — Mrs. Maurice F. Hepner thinks maybe Gene Tunney has done something in the way of dentistry for her five-year-old son, Maurice, Jr., who likes to fight and who is already minus a couple of front teeth.

Tunney sent the boy a set of boxing gloves for Christmas and they're so big his mother said:

"Maybe he won't get so many teeth knocked out now."

Maurice's father served with Tunney in France.

MULLEN ENTERS FIELD IN SMITH

Stanley Higgins is New Man in Field for Councillor.

ACCLAMATION FOR REEVE.

Contrary to expectations, the decks have been cleared for an election for Deputy-Reeve and Council in Smith Township. George Mullen will contest the re-election of Herbert McConkey for Deputy and Stanley Higgins will battle for a place on the Council with the three former members who are seeking re-election: Fred Armstrong, Harry Fowler and Charles Westlake. Mullen has had experience in the municipal council, but Higgins is a new man.

Definite Treaty Expected at End Of Three Months

Agreement Goes Into Effect On January 1st — Most-Favored-Nation Treatment Established First Time In Thirty-Five Years.

CANADA GRANTS INTERMEDIATE RATES, RECEIVES CONVENTIONAL AND GENERAL.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28.—(CP)—Pending the conclusion of negotiations for a "definite treaty", Canada has entered into a temporary trade pact with Germany which, beginning on January 1, will terminate March 31 next year. This was announced yesterday by Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, acting prime minister. The expectation is that the temporary agreement will be supplanted by one of a more enduring character before the expiration of the three months.

Negotiated between the government here and the German consul general in Montreal, the treaty provides for the extension reciprocally of "most-favored nation" treatment. Canada accords to Germany the advantages of the intermediate or treaty tariff and in return receives the "conventional" tariff or, where no "conventional tariff" exists, the general tariff, free of super-taxes.

Announcing conclusion of the temporary treaty, Sir George Perley stated that "in the fiscal year 1930, Canada's imports from Germany were valued at $21,500,000, and in 1931 at $15,000,000. Canadian exports in 1930 were $35,500,000 and in 1931 practically $13,000,000. In 1930 Germany ranked fourth in Canada's trade, both as to imports and exports."

LAD KICKED AT SCHOOL DIES—INQUEST CALLED

WELLAND, Ont., Dec. 28.—(CP)—Funeral services were held here today for Glenn E. Seburn, seven, who died under circumstances which have resulted in an inquest being called. Then preliminary inquest was held last night and adjourned to Jan. 10, with no evidence being taken.

The boy, it is understood, was kicked by a playmate at school. Some days later he complained of pains in his leg and investigation disclosed an abscess had formed. He was taken to hospital where he died.

Provincial police declared today they had received no information on which to base an inquiry into the boy's death, but declared it likely no police action would be considered until after the inquest was concluded.

LONDON DOCTORS ASKING FOR AID

8,000 on City Relief Lists Who Are Getting Free Medical Services.

PATIENTS CANNOT PAY.

LONDON, Ont., December 28 (C.P.). — City doctors at a general meeting of the Medical Academy, named a committee to interview the City Council in protest against nonpayment of medicos for caring for indigent patients.

Under the new provincial regulations, the doctors are entitled to 50 per cent. of the cost. However, doctors here claim they have received nothing for the services, and claim many of the profession are living on a slim margin owing to the great number of patients who are unable to pay for treatment. They declared 8,000 on the city relief were getting free medical services.

CITY FIRE LOSS BEEN VERY LOW

Total Loss to Property So Far This Year Has Been $21,281.36.

ONLY TWO BAD FIRES.

Barring the outbreak of any large fire within the remaining three days of this year Peterborough will be in the position to congratulate itself on the comparatively low fire losses for the year 1931.

To date the City Fire Department has this year answered 365 alarms out of which total only 36 proved to be actual fires. The total loss to property and contents amounts to $21,281.36 as compared with a total fire loss for last year of $44,034.55.

Only two fires of serious proportions have been experienced in this city during the last eleven and a half months, those being the outbreak at the residence of the Catholic Bishop in February and the more recent fire at the Marathon Candy Kitchen on George street.

The fire loss figures for the current year are only $1,115.84 in excess of the losses for 1930 in which year the lowest fire loss record during Chief Gimblett's ten and a half year administration as head of the Fire Department, were struck.

Official fire loss figures are not available until early in the New Year when the Fire Chief presents his annual report to the City Council.

Path Of True Love Never Runs Smooth

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 28.—(C.P.)—Edward Laird does have his troubles. He was remanded on a disorderly conduct charge to-day. Police said Laird was to marry the maid in a St. George street home. She says she is afraid of him. So Laird went to the house. Then the occupant ordered him out and Laird swung at the owner, J. N. Carruthers. Laird was arrested.

Police said the maid and the man were to wed in October last but they had a "fight" and Laird tore up the license while the girl sold the ring.

BENNETT MUM AS TO TREATIES, ON HIS ARRIVAL

Uninformed on Soviet-Canada Pact—Admits Deal With France Under Way.

BOAT DAY LATE.

Appears in Best of Health After Visit to Old Country.

(By Ken Clark—C.P. Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, arrived in New York to-day aboard the White Star liner Majestic.

The Prime Minister reserved any comment he might have to make on affairs of State until his arrival at Ottawa to-morrow morning.

"I have nothing to say," he said to all correspondents, Canadian or American.

Asked about such matters as a trade agreement between the U. S. S. R. and Canada, he said he was uninformed on this head. Pressed by American newspapermen, he said he had been advised concerning a Franco-Canadian trade agreement which Hon. C. H. Cahan, Canadian Secretary of State, has under negotiation in Paris.

But it was clear that the Prime Minister, arriving through circumstances in a foreign country would not care to make any statement concerning the affairs of the British commonwealth of nations or of Canada until he set foot on his native soil.

In Best of Health.

The Prime Minister appeared to be in the very best of health after his visit to the Old Country.

After breakfast he radiated good humor and made jokes with the correspondents and photographers who insisted upon taking him in many poses.

Mr. Bennett was disturbed by the fact that the Majestic, battling thrrough terrific seas, had been delayed by a day. She is a six-day boat, but on this crossing she took seven days.

The Prime Minister will leave for Ottawa on the earliest train, which will be to-night.

INDIANS WANT RELIEF MONEY

If Unable to Sell Fish Ask for Grants from Government.

ALLEGE MUCH DISTRESS.

One hundred and eighteen members of the Mud Lake band of Mississauga Indians have signed a petition which will be forwarded to the Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, Ottawa, urging that similar relief grants be made immediately to the members of the Mud Lake Reserve as are said to be being made to the Chippewa Indians in Rama and Christian Island Reserves. They urge that a grant of three dollars be made to each individual member of the Reserve throughout the three or four months of the winter, pointing out that the members of the Reserve are in real want because they are not permitted to sell fish, although they claim in their petition that their rights to game and fish were never surrendered to the Crown. They urge that the Ottawa Government give them permission to sell fish, stating: "We would not ask any relief if we were allowed of the privilege of selling fish for our living."

Failing in the securing of their request to be permitted to sell fish they urge that the Indian Agent, V. M. Eastwood, be given full instructions to give out a grant of relief money.

RELIEF PLANS ARE OUTLINED IN N. MONAGHAN

Three Candidates for Council Address Ratepayers' Association.

BOARD NOT NIGGARD.

Persons Cannot Work Charitable Societies and Relief Board.

The schedule of relief adopted by the township's recently appointed committee was reported by its chairman, H. B. Rye, at last night's meeting of the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association in Confederation School.

The weekly allowance for food for a family of two persons is two dollars, and for larger families forty cents a week is provided for each additional member. A family of eleven persons receives the basic $2 plus $3.60, making a total of $5.60 a week. Milk is free in daily quantities from one pint to one quart and a half. A family of two persons receives one pint, three and four persons one quart, and for families of from five persons to eleven one quart and a half is given.

Families requiring more than one quart and a half will be supplied with the excess quantity at the price of five cents a quart, and this extra cost will be deducted from the weekly allowance for groceries. Orders for groceries will be drawn on all storekeepers in the township and also on any grocers whose shops are in the city but who are residents of the township.

"We go farther than the city in that respect", Mr. Rye observed.

Fuel is also supplied as a necessity, and some clothing will also be distributed. Provision is also being made "for a certain amount of medical attendance, but it will be impossible for any landlord to get $15 a month."

The members of the committee are H. B. Rye, chairman, Reeve McIntosh, Deputy-reeve Patton, Councillor Barnes, James Milby, John Kilbrick and Mrs. Patton.

Mr. Rye said he had heard of some persons who were trying to work on the sympathy of people in the city by making maliciously false statements. The city's scale of relief was $2.50 a week for two persons and 25 cents for each additional person.

"Our system works out at 85 cents a week better than the city's and we are giving three pints of milk free, so I don't think North

LIVELY BATTLE FOR HAVELOCK

Acclamation For School Board Proves Surprise—2 Qualify as Council Candidates.

NO HYDRO VOTE.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 28. (Examiner correspondent).—In the opinion of those who should know, the election this year will be a real live one with Reeve Ernest Leeson and former Reeve Richard Sanderson doing battle for the chief magistrate's chair.

Alfred Spencer, Harvey Gordon, Ernest Seeney and John Howe, all members of the council for the past three years all took their declarations for qualification as candidates, as well as Joshua Parcels and Bruce Longmuir, both new men in the municipal affairs.

It was rather a surprise to find after such a long list of nominees had been set up for the school board that it should be accorded acclamation. Bernard Smith, an old member, together with William Copp and William Bullied, new men, went in for a two year term, while Bert Wannamaker replaces Fred Post for a one year term.

Nominees named on Monday who failed to qualify are as follows: For council, D. M. Ryiott and Frank Parcels; for school board, Alex Kennedy, W. S. Davidson, John Kinnaird (new), J. W. Ketchen, Alex Leeson (old). Bruce A. Curtis withdrew from the list for Hydro commissioner, thereby according acclamation to Fred J. Squire who has had much experience on the commission.

Monday, January 2nd is the day the ratepayers will make their choice and everything points to a good clean fight.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

WOODSTOCK.—Edwin Vannatter 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Vannatter Frogmore, near here, was reported in a critical condition in hospital at Tilsonburg to-day. He was shot accidentally while practising shooting Sunday. X-Ray photos showed the bullet had punctured his intestines in numerous places.

FOUR NOMINEES SEEK OFFICE ON SCHOOL BOARD

Two Qualify for Position on Campbellford Water and Light Commission.

ELECTION JANUARY 2ND.

James Blue Seeking Re-election After Two Years' Service on Board.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Although Mayor, Reeve, Deputy-Reeve and Council of the town of Campbellford received an acclamation, an election will nevertheless be staged with two candidates qualifying for one position on the Water and Light Commission Board and four seeking office for Public School Trustee, where only three can receive election. The slate as it stands after qualifications is:

Mayor—H. N. Carr (acclamation).

Reeve—C. H. Davidson (acclamation).

Deputy-Reeve—N. Alex. MacColl (acclamation).

Council—A. D Bennett, E. C. McKeel, John O'Sullivan, J. R. Battisby, F. F. Long, N. H. Thompson (acclamation).

Water and Light Commission — James Blue, A. J. Meyers.

Public School Trustees—Dr. O. C. Watson, Dr. H. O. Richardson, Dr. H. B. Longmore, W. Roy Loucks.

Seeking Re-election.

The people will go to the polls on January 2 to decide between the prospective merits of Commissioner James Blue and A. J. Meyers as a member of the Commission Board for the next two years. Mr. Blue has served for the past two years on the Board and is seeking re-election. He has served during a very trying period of reconstruction of the system and is conversant with the working of the Commission.

Mr. Meyers, on the other hand, has sat on the Board for five years, from 1922 to 1927, at which time he was Mayor of the town of Campford. As an engineer he has a keen insight into the working of the system. It is felt that the fight will be a keen and close one.

For Public School Trustees the three retiring doctors, O. C. Watson, H. B. Longmore and H. O. Richardson, are all seeking re-election, but added to this slate, W. Roy Loucks of S.S. No. 2, Seymour, received a nomination, and qualified, thus causing an election in this department.

It was hoped up until the last moment that the municipality this year would be saved the expense of an election, but this being forced upon the electors, some doubt is raised as to the largeness of the forthcoming vote.

ELECTION SET FOR BELMONT

J. F. Fry Qualifies, Then Withdraws, Leaving W. E. Griffith to Oppose Steenburgh.

SURPRISE MOVE.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—Contrary to expectations Christie F. Steenburgh and his councillors will not be returned by acclamation in Belmont. Mr. F. F. Fry caused an election as he promised on the platform at the Belmont hall, qualifying on Tuesday morning, then withdrawing later on, leaving W. E. Griffith to do battle with Reeve Steenburgh.

Mr. Griffith has served on the council in previous years, and has always drawn a large crowd of followers.

The old council composed of Messrs. Isaac Anderson, Joseph E. McNeely, R. Harry Vansickle, and Norris Whitney will all do battle, and Thomas Bannon, a new man, will come before the people for the first time.

Reeve Steenburgh's platform will be, "To lower the taxes and make an attempt at providing more work for the township men on the roads and making it easier for them to work out their taxes by doing road work. It came as a surprise that W. E. Griffith, a former reeve, qualified. Incidentally Mr. Griffith was the only nominee not present at the lively nominations in the Belmont hall on Monday.

WIFE DECLINES EVIDENCE HUSBAND GETS FREEDOM

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 28 (C.P.)—Charges of theft against Harry Evans were withdrawn in police court to-day, after his wife's refusal to testify against him. Police had charged Evans with living on money stolen by his 12-year-old daughter. Mrs. Evans had faced a similar charge on Saturday.

As soon as Evans was arraigned, he elected trial by a higher court. His wife was called as first witness. The magistrate explained to her she was not a compellable witness, but might give evidence against her husband if she wished. She declined to speak, and the charge was withdrawn.

James Anthony, Jr., Stratford, was fined $100 or two months in connection with the same case for false registration. Mrs. Evans had declared she came to Hamilton with Anthony, and they had registered at a hotel as man and wife.

ROOS SEEKING PREMIERSHIP SOUTH AFRICA

Former Judge Declares He is Only One Who Can Form Coalition.

RAPS SMUTS, HERTZOG.

Position of Present Government Said to be Very Precarious.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Dec. 28 (C.P. Cable).—Tielman Roos, former member of the Nationalist Government, indicated last night he intended to take the Premiership of South Africa himself if his plan for a coalition government succeeds.

The former judge who resigned last week from the appellate division of the Supreme Court told interviewers he will declare openly for a coalition government in a speech to-night.

"We must destroy any remains of racialism, and the two sections must join to pull the country out of the muck," he said.

"I shall say furher," he added, "that neither General Smuts nor Prime Minister Hertzog can arrange for a coalition. If they could I should not be in the arena."

Creates Deep Impression

Mr. Roos' pronouncement created a deep impression. While he had returned to politics for the express purpose of attacking the Government in which he once served as Minister of Justice, it was not thought he had any designs on the Premiership himself.

His attack, which admittedly weakened the position of the Government in the House of Representatives, where its majority had already shrunk to a very small proportion of the membership was based largely on his opposition to retaining the gold standard.

In this he was thought to have more or less allied himself with General Jan Christiaan Smuts, leader of the South African Opposition party.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, December 28 (C.P. Cable). — "We are virtually off the gold standard and the banks will have to quote exchange on a new basis," declared N. C. Havenga, Minister of Finance, here to-day. This, supplemented by a further official announcement that South Africa was now on a regulated gold exchange basis, but that internal circulation of gold had been withdrawn were the only two definite statements cast upon a bewildered country to-day.

Having declared his Government would stand by the gold standard,

Mr. and Mrs. Couch are enjoying excellent health at present. Mrs. Couch was formerly Elizabeth Barrie, daughter of the late George Barrie of Peterborough.

FASHION SERVICE

It is chic and up to the minute. It is practical and inexpensive. The original combined black blistered crepe satin, using the reverse side for the neckband and upper sleeves and the cuffs.

Another very smart idea, especially favored by Paris is to carry it out in gray rough crepe silk with fuchsia-red rough crepe contrast.

The fitted hipline with seaming placed a nice depth, helps marvelously towards slenderness.

Style No. 3267 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

If you are entertaining on New Year's Eve it will give 1933 a pleasant welcome to accent success, especially as the backbone of depression is considered broken.

* * * * * * *

With this idea in mind a good game to play is "Be-heading Depression."

* * * * * * *

The contest consists of be-heading Depression by removing the first syllable and replacing it with one which the definitions describe, and which changes the whole meaning of the word "depression."

* * * * * * *

Take the first syllable from Depression and replace it with one which though the definition given applies to this syllable only, changes depression into another word. The hostess tells the players this and then has changing groups acts the first syllable or word while those watching guess it and find that Depression is thereby altered.

* * * * * * *

1. A beckoning welcome to the New Year. Ans., come—changing depression into com(e)-pression; 2. Garnering crops. Ans., Reap—changing depression into Re(ap)-pression, etc.

* * * * * * *

For another game supply players with tally cards in the shape of hour-glasses suggesting the passage of time. Fold an oblong of paper four times and cut near four-fold corner slantwise to top edge.

* * * * * * *

Unfold and you will have a sufficiently good hour-glass tally card.

* * * * * * *

On the back of each hour-glass have capital letters written close to the left-hand edge, these capitals reading downward spelling "successful."

* * * * * * *

In a given time, designated by the hostess, each player writes one word on a line with each of the ten letters in the word successful, to form a New Year's Greeting telegram of good wishes.

* * * * * * *

No matching of numbers on hour-glasses is permitted until after the telegrams are written. Then players holding duplicate numbers exchange hour-glasses and get their good luck telegrams as well as partners. Here is a sample of a telegram:

S—shall
U—use
C—careful
C—consideration
E—expect
S—sure
S—success
F—for U—unending
L—love.

Jobless Situation Serious In Orillia

ORILLIA, Ont., Dec. 28.—(C.P.)—Fear the unemployment situation here was approaching a climax with which local authorities might be unable to deal was expressed today by M. T. Mulcahy, chairman of the Public Welfare Board, who declared nearly one-sixth of the population were dependent upon direct relief. Of a population of 8,382, there are 299 families or 1,244 individuals receiving direct aid, he said.

Municipal authorities who estimate the number of employees in the town at 2,500 declared someone is drawing relief for every two wage-earners.

Fifteen single men have been sent to the trans-Canadian highway camp between Minden and Dorset for the winter, and it is expected a second detachment will be ready to leave shortly.

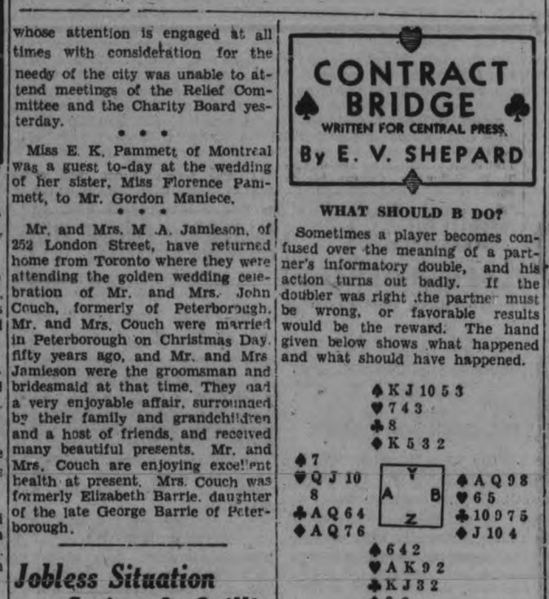
WHAT SHOULD B DO?

Sometimes a player becomes confused over the meaning of a partner's informatory double, and his action turns out badly. If the doubler was right the partner must be wrong, or favorable results would be the reward. The hand given below shows what happened and what should have happened.



I would pass Z's hand, as it contains no rebid strength, but the dealer made an opening bid of 1-Heart. Not wanting to bid no-trumps without knownig who held spades and not wishing to guess which minor suit was the better for trumps A doubled. Had not Y bid 1-Spade, B would have done so. As it was, B did the right thing when he passed a bid of his best suit. Z passed. A doubled again, to ask his partner to bid either clubs or diamonds, or to bid no-trumps in case B held not fewer than two safe stops to that suit. B should have read that second informatory double correctly. Then he would have bid no-trump, at which his side could have gone game. All A-B need lose are two heart tricks, one spade trick and one diamond trick, giving them nine tricks. A-B cannot go game at either minor suit, as they must lose two heart tricks and one diamond trick. When each of two suits is doubled by the same player, his second double shows strength in the suit first doubled and weakness in the second suit doubled.

Instead of bidding no-trumps, knowing that A must be strong in every suit except spades and showing his own treble stop to spades by the no-trump bid, B fell down, by letting the double of the 1-Spade stand, to defeat it. Z also passed the doubled contract, and expecting to find B very long in spades and short elsewhere, A also passed.

B would have saved a trick had he led his top club, but he did not know that, so he led his fourth best club. When dummy played low, A had to put up his Q, to prevent the 8 from winning the trick. A led back his Q of hearts, and dummy's K won the trick. The 9 of diamonds was led from dummy. A played low. The declarer's K won the trick and he led back his 2 of diamonds. B's 10 went on, but A won with the Q, as he wanted to lead back a trump through the declarer. The declarer played his 10. B's Q won the trick. B did not want to lead his Ace of spades, as that would enable the declarer to pick up his two remaining trumps without loss, whereas forcing the declarer to lead trumps would give B two trump tricks.

B led back a heart. Z's ace won the trick. Dummy led the K of clubs. A put up his ace. The declarer trumped the trick. He led back his 3 of diamonds. B played his last diamond. The dummy trumped. Dummy's good J of clubs was led, allowing the declarer to discard a loser. He got his last diamond.

Having no further use for dummy's trumps for trying to ruff, Y led the 6 of spades from dummy. Of course A showed out of trumps, by discarding a useless club. The declarer put up his J. B's Ace won the trick.

Perfect end play would have held the score down to one-odd, as B could have led from his 9-8 of spades, giving the declarer only his K of spades. Y then must have given A one heart trick, and B could have picked up the declarer's last trump on the thirteenth trick. But B made the mistake of allowing Y to ruff a club with his 5 of spades, so that the declarer lost only one trick out of the three last tricks, giving Y one trick above his doubled contract.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

GIVE YOUR DOCTOR A CHANCE TO LOCATE YOUR TROUBLE

When a patient is in pain there is only one thing in his mind, that is to get rid of that pain. If the doctor who is called in immediately gives him a dose of some pain killing drug, then that doctor "knows his business," and will be called in the next time there is any illness in that patient's home.

There are some forms of pain which the doctor is justified in giving immediate relief to the patient; in fact it would be unfair not to do so.

However with pain anywhere in the body, particularly in the abdomen, to give a pain killing drug before a thorough examination is made, might prove disastrous to the patient. A pain killing medicine by relieving the pain will mask or hide the symptoms where immediate operation is really necessary.

So don't get impatient with your doctor if he takes a little time to try to learn the nature of your illness by studying the pain instead of giving medicine to stop it immediately.

Another point forgotten by some patients is that from the time an illness starts until it gets well under way may be hours, days, or even weeks. Because the doctor who saw it after it was well developed was able to recognize it, should be no reflection on the first doctor or doctors who saw the case in its early stages, when it resembled half a dozen other ailments. It is quite likely that the doctor who was called in first would have no trouble recognizing the ailment in these later stages.

Of course, as some on has well said, each man's health is to himself so emotional and personal an affair that he can scarcely judge his doctor with disinterested intelligence. A throbbing earache will warp the soundest judgment.

Practicing medicine doesn't mean simply taking the temperature and pulse, looking at the tongue, and prescribing a little medicine until something develops. The physician of to-day tries to diagnose the case from the very beginning, but he knows that he must make certain examinations, certain laboratory tests, and get as much information as possible from the patient himself before he can give what he considers the proper diagnosis.

Try to remember this when you or a loved one is sick.

to-day that God's hand is in the present crisis. The whole world had gone too far in a materialistic way. It was not so very long ago when everyone thought that the possession of wealth was the only thing that counted. But again has it swung too far the other way now, when we think of possession of wealth as a crime and poverty a virtue. It has been said that we have had too many men with first-class brains and second-class consciences."

"Against that conception of life and its values there stands out Freemasonry with its fourfold principles of prayer, labor, refreshment and sleep. The place of Freemasonry to-day is in the vanguard of this new Pilgrim's Progress. For it is no time to think lightly of our vows." Bro. Copus urged Masons to not be lukewarm but to practice the great principles of Freemasonry with a fearlessness and a vigor which will aid this troubled world and hence give leadership and courage to those who are distressed.

"Now is the time for practising of virtue so, let Masonry lead the way in representing that which is of real value in life, right thinking and worship. Every thinking man is thinking the same to-day, that the world must get back to where our forefathers were in right thinking and worship. They knew the value of prayer."

Fight Communism

The speaker also referred to leadership that Freemasonry could give the world in combatting the "Union of Militant Godless" or Soviet Russia. He referred to it as a real threat to the world and declared that Freemasons of all men were best equipped to fight that idea.

In speaking of the young people of to-day, the speaker was of the opinion that they were just as good as their elders and maybe better, but they had lost all sense of value and everything was reckoned in terms of pleasure. He advised the fathers and mothers to give their sons and daughters that advice and leadership which they had received when they were young. "Are we giving our young people to-day the background which we received?" Bro. Copus asked.

In closing, the speaker urged upon his hearers to think of virtue, think of kindness and think of mercy, and above all to have confidence in the future.

The toast to the visiting Brethren was proposed by Rt. Worshipful Bro. W. R. Morris and responded to in a most fitting manner by Bro. A. T. Barr and Rt. Worshipful Bro. W. N. Fowlds, of Hastings, District Deputy Grand Master.

The toast to the absent Brethren was proposed by Wor. Bro. R. L. Dobbin, who read letters and telegrams of good wishes from members in many parts of the United States and Canada and one from Bro. William Turnbull in Ireland. In honoring the toast, Worshipful Master J. J. Turner read for Corinthian Lodge those who had passed away during the year. Rt. Worshipful Bro. John Comstock read the list of departed from Peterborough Lodge, and Worshipful Bro. W. L. Ferguson those of Royal Arthur Lodge.

The following officers were installed by Worshipful Bro. J. F. Strickland, in a most able manner:

Danger Of Flood On Thames Recedes

CHATHAM, Ont., Dec. 28.—(C.P.)—Flood waters of the Thames river had receded five feet to-day, after an ice jam at the mouth of the river had moved out into Lake St. Clair. Residents of the low-lying sections of Dover, Raleigh and Tilbury East expressed the belief all dangers of a serious flood is now over.

At Chatham, the water dropped 15 inches during the night. Owing to the heavy fog on Lake St. Clair, residents at the mouth of the river were unable to definitely state whether the ice on the lake has broken, but believe it has done so.

An embankment of planks and earth, saved the Dover township pumping scheme yesterday. Men were rushed on the scene when the river overflowed the flood gates, and after several hours' hard work a supporting embankment was constructed.

CHARITY BOARD PLANS TO OPEN UP WOOD CAMP

Work Will Be Given to Between 20 and 30 Unemployed Men.

RESCIND CAR MOTION.

Another wood camp supplying work for 20 to 30 unemployed city men will be opened soon to supply 1,000 cords of wood to the Central Charity Board for distribution as required among families on relief.

The camp will be conducted as previously, by Windsor and McQuaig, wood company, who will employ men sent to them by Relief Officer Metheral and who will pay the men, the city purchasing the wood at five dollars per cord.

This was the decision reached last night at the regular monthly meeting of the Charity Board. Relief Officer Metheral said that the city's wood supply was decreasing rapidly and more wood would be required in case of a cold spell and to last out until next April. A similar arrangement with Windsor and McQuaig had proved successful during the summer, the city not only securing wood at a favorable price but also assuring employment for some of the city men without work.

A new resolution dealing with those on relief who own cars passed the Board. Henceforth the car owners on relief will not be forced to dispose of their cars, but receiving relief must give up their driving license and markers, and if new markers are purchased relief will be stopped immediately. A resolution will likely pass the City Council in this connection urging the Provincial Government not to grant motor licenses to anyone who has been on relief within a period of six months before the license application is made.

The special relief committee of the Board reported that the four relief inspectors had investigated just over 200 homes in the city. They were received in all homes except one without any form of hostility and the work is proceeding very satisfactorily, it was reported.

J. J. Sullivan, 373 Roger street, on the recommendation of the special relief committee, was appointed a member of the Charity Board to represent the unemployed. Mr. Sullivan was described as a citizen worthy of membership on the board.

It cost the city $9.60 to outfit each of the 47 men who were sent north yesterday morning to work in the Government camp on the Minden-Dorset road, Mr. Metheral reported. The clothing was purchased from four local stores and included high top boots, socks, underwear, woollen shirt, cap, trousers or overalls for each man.

The city secured the transportation of the men to Bracebridge on the C.N.R. for $75.

In response to a letter from the General Supply warehouse of Toronto that materials for relief could be purchased cheaper and to better advantage from this warehouse, R. C. Braund, chairman of the Board, said that the Charity Board had purchased all supplies from local stores and were finding it most satisfactory. Speaking as a merchant, he knew that the supplies were being secured cheaply and the goods were of firstclass quality. Members of the Board were unanimous in the view that home merchants should be given the preference.

The monthly report of the costs of relief distributed showed how the city relief bill is climbing. During the month provisions costing $6,191.40 were distributed, bringing the total bill for provisions for the year to $40,734.65. During the month milk distributed had cost $599.01 and for the year $3,304.84. The fuel bill for the month was $1,517.63 and for the year $7,914.00. Medical supplies for the month was $16.60 and clothing $1,009.17. The relief bill under the heading of homes for the month was $1,513.63 and for the year $2,762.88, and the monthly sundries totalled $128.39 and for the year $849.46. The relief bill for the month totalled $11,711.40 and to date for the year $56,591.62.

FOUR OUT FOR MAYOR

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1932

MR. MOORE'S QUESTION.

W. H. Moore, former chairman of the Advisory Tariff Board and member of Parliament for Ontario, delivered a telling blow at the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation the other day when he propounded to Canadian farmers this simple question:

Will your farms be better run by the township council or the county or the province or the Federal Government than you can run them?

That inquiry gets down to the very foundation of the Socialist policies advocated by the C.C.F.

Under the system so glowingly eulogized but so vaguely defined by the co-operative orators, individual ownership and operation of farms would go by the boards.

Would the consequences of such a plan work any improvement in the status of the Canadian farmer?

Would he be better off under a plan that turned the management of his farm to the state?

Unless the farmers of the country are satisfied that the answer to both these questions should be in the affirmative it is difficult to see any reason why they should ally themselves with the Socialist party, otherwise the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

A HEAVY TOLL.

The holiday accident toll in Canada and the United States piled up the shocking total of over 400 lives taken, with the majority of casualties of course taking place below the international line.

Well over half these fatal accidents involved motor cars, and once again it would seem that we are making slow progress in rendering that form of transportation safe.

Whilt we are turning out better cars, equipped with superior brakes and other safety devices it is obvious that the human element is not improving at the same rate as the machine.

Our driving technique does not get any better; that is the only conclusion that can be drawn from the steady toll of deaths in highway accidents.

When the human suffering caused by the killing of over 400 persons and the injuring of thousands of others at a season when joy should reign supreme is taken into consideration, it might be imagined that the dire consequences of driving carelessness would be brought home to everybody and that a general improvement in safety practises would be brought about.

Alas, however, experience has taught us that such a death list does not serve as a deterrent and that many a reckless driver reads of these accidents only to take his car out and do some of the very things that caused the mishaps he has been considering.

SHOULD BE VOLUNTARY VOTE.

Notices are to be sent out to all eligible voters in Peterborough notifying them as to where to cast their vote a Monday's election so that there should be no difficulty on that score. And few electors will be able to put up the excuse that "they did not know where they voted" as an explanation of a failure to carry out their duty as citizens.

The coming election is of great importance inasmuch as there are contests for the mayoralty, Utilities Commission, the Board of Education, and the aldermanic board with two industrial by-laws to be dealt with by the ratepayers.

Under the circumstances there should be an unusually large vote polled and it should be a voluntary vote, that is, that should get out of its own accord and not wait for some candidate or other to supply transportation to the polls.

With every voter notified as to where he should vote, with a heavy menu to be disposed of and with the election taking place on a public holiday, there should be no need of candidate being put to the trouble and expense of dragging electors to the polls.

Surely Peterborough's citizens have enough interest in the welfare of their home city to meet this particular responsibility as it should be met, by a voluntary turning out of all those eligible to exercise their franchise.

HAS EARNED IT ON ITS RECORD.

One of the important matters to come before the ratepayers on January 1st, is a by-law fixing the assessment of the De Laval Company at $60,000, for ten years beginning with 1933.

Under the arrangement which expires this year, the company's fixed assessment has been $50,000, so that the new proposal involves an additional $10,000 of assessment.

The Examiner believes that local ratepayers will have little difficulty in arriving at the decision that it would be good business to approve of this by-law.

The record of the De Laval Company in Peterborough, the probability that additional manufacturing development including the addition of the milker combine business will take place at the local plant, and the company's assurance that, as these expected developments mature, its factory employeg payments will be increased from 50 to 75 per cent, within two years or sooner if general business conditions improve, are all excellent reasons why the $60,000 fixed assessment by-law should pass.

The city has had an opportunity to judge how well De Laval promises are kept. When the company came to Peterborough, it agreed in exchange for a fixed assessment to erect and equip a factory building at an expenditure of $75,000, and to employ 50 employees the first year, and 75 thereafter.

These pledges have been redeemed several times over, for a plant consisting of 153,897 square feet of floor space has been erected, and the number of employees has ranged far above the strength originally promised—as a matter of fact in spite of the present depressed conditions, the De Laval payroll consists of close to 200 names.

The De Laval has been a large employer of labor and will remain so, inasmuch as much of its manufacturing processes can not be mecnanized.

It has contributed in no small way to Peterborough's business success and expansion as can be well understood from the fact that it has distributed here $4,546,482 in factory wages, and another $630,000 in official wages, a total of $5,176,482.

In addition by purchasing as much as possible from other Peterborough firms, it has spent over another million dollars here, the items including: $475,000 to the Adam Hall Foundry Company; $350,000 to the Canadian General Electric Company; $183,000 to local printing firms and $75,000 to the Utilities Commission for light, power and water.

In short the De Laval Company has been a mighty force in the City's progress, and its record in that respect should entitle it to a consideration that would unhesitatingly be granted to some new industrial concern of much less magnitude that proposed to locate here.

EXPERT ADVICE ON TAXATION.

One of the greatest burdens that are bearing down the people is that of taxation. If this burden could be materially reduced, the benefits would be untold. We question if sufficient scientific thought has been given to the matter. Governments undoubtedly have given considerable attention to the question, and have effected material reductions, but we believe that much more can be done in this direction without in any way impairing public services. The application of strict business principles to the problem would produce noticeable results. Why, after all, should not the government of the country be conducted along sound economic lines?

It is an encouraging sign that a move is on among the business men of the province to give constructive suggestions to the Provincial Government, looking toward a reduction in taxation. Business, while it has been loud in criticism of the heavy burden of taxation, has done little or nothing toward showing how this burden may be lightened without interfering with essential revenues. Now it proposes to give some concrete assistance. A provincial committee has been formed under the Toronto Board of Trade to study the province's expenditures, and Premier Henry and Provincial Treasurer Dunlop have signified their willingness to listen to any helpful suggestions that the committee may make. With falling revenues, the Ontario Government is no doubt anxious to cut expenditures and taxation. Perhaps it feels that it has done all it can do along this line. Should the committee present a workable scheme for further substantial reductions, its suggestions will probably be gratefully received at Queen's Park. If they are not, the Government will have to do a lot of explaining in order to satisfy the burdened taxpayer.

The taxation reduction scheme, which has the approval of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, will be extended to embrace the federal and municipal fields, as well as the provincial. There can be no question that a minimum amount of taxation, no matter what may be the source of the levy, is highly desirable, so long as efficiency is not impaired, and that determined efforts to secure this should be made by all governing bodies. We realize, of course, that it is possible to carry reduction too far. There are some who favor economy at any price, but there are others who while they desire retrenchment realize that there must be nothing parsimonious in the reduction policies. It is a hopeful indication that business minds are now turning toward the developing of a practical formula for the reduction of taxation. Taxation should be purely a matter of business, but too often it has been a question of expediency. We welcome the efforts of the representatives of the business interests of the community to assist in the solution of the taxation problem. If the investigators take a broad view of the question, forgetting their own special interests, their conclusions should be extremely helpful.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

MOTHERHOOD.

Lady Nancy Astor's recent remark that motherhood is a "lot of tommyrot" seems destined to become a classic similar to Henry Ford's famous statement about history being bunk.

Herself a mother of five children, Lady Astor asserts that the "sentimental slush" about mothers is "just too sickening." Mothers are not necessarily saints, and it irks her to find them put on saints' pedestals.

This attitude, on a continent which makes an annual event of Mother's Day and which can be moved to tears by any ninth-rate song about mothers, seems close to outright heresy.

But perhaps we would come closer to giving mother the kind of tribute that is her due if we adopt a little of Lady Astor's unsentimental common sense on the subject.

Motherhood can be all that the most extravagant rhapsodists say it is; but the mother in question has to earn it.

A woman who rushes off to the divorce court at the slightest excuse, depriving her children of a normal home-life and subordinating their needs to her own desire for freedom, hardly belongs on the traditional pedestal.

A woman who is either too stupid or too prejudiced to have her children treated with antitoxin when there is a diphtheria epidemic in the neighborhood is acting very like her children's worst enemy instead of their all-wise and loving protector.

A woman who devotes most of her time to club work, bridge parties and golf and lets a nurse or governess look after her children through their most impressionable years has hardly put her children very deeply in debt to her.

A woman who nags and frets so constantly that her children are glad to stay away from home as much as possible, as soon as they reach their teens, has not exactly qualified for the role of saint.

Motherhood can be all that our sentimental traditions say; it can also be the exact opposite. It's up to each individual mother.—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mr. Bennett is due back in Canada to-day and important announcements in regard to the Tariff Board and other matters should be forthcoming before long.

Endorsation of the industrial by-laws will be Peterborough's announcement that this city believes in treating worthwhile industries fairly.

Events in township municipal politics indicate that there will not be wholesale changes in next year's county council.

MAYORALTY CONTEST

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space for the following remarks re the mayoralty election. The Gentleman who has served this City so well in the past is worthy of our greatest respect and thanks for his services.

Nevertheless, Mr. Tuggey has a right to try as many others in the past, to gratify their ambition. However the word "guts" doesn't sound very well in giving expression to one's opinion.

ALL OF US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A PRAYER FOR CHRISTMAS

GIVE ME COURAGE.

I have great need of it. The way is dark. My feet have not gone this way before. I would be bold.

Give me Fear.

Without Fear, my Courage means little. If I am not afraid, how can I know how a brother feels, why a sister falters? Give me Fear so that my understanding may be greater.

Give me Faith.

Though I cannot see through the darkness, I must believe that the way is straight and sure. I would have trust in people, in life, in living.

Give me Doubt.

I must not go blindly, even though I have faith. I must think and be skeptical of even those things that are most profoundly mine.

Give me Joy.

I want no frail amusement. I would be stretched apart, I would be large enough to laugh Gargantuan laughter and make a thunder in the hills.

* * *

Give me Agony.

A little life is such a pathetic thing. Little pains, little grievances, little miseries are such meager trials of our humanity. Let me know all the strength that is in me.

Give me Pride.

A man must have that. Without Pride he stumbles and cannot rise and is a feeble creature.

Give me Humility.

I have need to know my own littleness, need to know how tiny is my understanding, how limited my self, how microscopic any deed of mine.

Give me Beauty.

I would look into the heart of life and see its shining loveliness. I would know the outer beauty — beauty of children, beauty of men, beauty of women — and I would know the inner beauty that is beyond all seeing or touching but is at the heart of kindness and sweetness and strength.

* * *

Give me Ugliness.

The serene and the shapley and the fair are as our daily bread to us, but a man need not go through this life with averted eyes. He may see ugliness though he does not seek it, and be no worse for the seeing.

Give me Wisdom and give me Foolishness. Let me love Strength without rejecting all that is light or trivial. Give me the Seeing Eye and the Enduring Spirit—but if I have asked too much and may have none of these great gifts at this blessed time, give me one thing then and forget the rest.

Give me in their stead an Understanding Heart—and it shall last me through the year.

One-Minute Pulpit

If a wise man contendeth with a foolish man, whether he rage or laugh, there is no rest.—Proverbs, 29.9.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

CANADA'S FIRST BRITISH SURVEYOR

ON THIS DATE, in 1801, there died at Quebec, Samuel Holland, one of the famed figures in Canadian history. A native of the Netherlands he had in early life emigrated to America where he won reputation as a surveyor and engineer and was surveyor-general of the British colonies north of Virginia. He took part in the expeditions against both Louisbourg and Quebec and was at Wolfe's side when that General fell on the Plains of Abraham. Returning to New York he held high positions until the revolution when he sided with the crown and was deprived of all his property, upon which he migrated to Quebec and later to St. John's Island (as Prince Edward Island was then known). Eventually he settled in Quebec and was for nearly 50 years surveyor-general of Quebec, in that capacity overseeing the laying out of new counties in Lower Canada and controlling the first surveys in Upper Canada. A man of great ability, speaking English and French with equal fluency, he was a member of both the executive and legislative councils, wielding much influence and being one of the few British community who at all times had the confidence and esteem of the French. His son, Fred J., was the first white child born on Prince Edward Island. The records of Holland's life throw much light upon conditions in Canada in the years of reconstruction after the cession, being frequently vivid in comments upon persons and things. There was no doubt as to Samuel Holland's efficiency, but he must have been a thorn in the flesh of some of the higher officials. The father of surveying in Canada he showed a remarkable knowledge of geographical conditions, visualising rivers and lakes in many places which he never saw and of which he had no maps save those of the very early explorers. His home at Quebec was for many years a social centre, where in 1791 he entertained the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria, in a most lavish manner.

FISHING FLEET FEELING SLUMP

Experts See Vessels Tied Up By April Unless Conditions Improve.

LITTLE CASH FOR CREWS.

(By Tom Horgan.)

GLOUCESTER, Mass., December 28 (C.P.). — The sea is an exacting teacher of self-reliance and courage. That perhaps is why, in the face of economic storms, distress signals are not to-day flying from the masthead of every vessel in the Gloucester fishing fleet.

But if the Gloucestermen will ask nothing for themselves, there are business men in the old port who see its commercial life threatened, and are demanding that something be done.

Representative A. Pitatt Andrew, prompted by those business men, has asked aid of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. If that aid is forthcoming, Gloucester folk say, the fleet will continue to adventure on the fishing banks.

If it is not, and if conditions fail to improve, it is believed to be only a matter of a few months before material for outfitting will be lacking and virtually every vessel now sailing out of Gloucester will be tied up in port.

Recently vessels have returned from trips of six to ten days on the Banks heavily laden with marketable fish, but the crews received nothing for their labor. In some other instances the men received as little as 75 cents each.

Co-operative Plan.

Fishing as prosecuted out of Gloucester is a co-operative enterprise. In most cases a quarter of the gross proceeds goes to the vessel. Then, after expenses have been deducted the balance is divided among the crew.

A fair example of conditions facing the fishermen is represented by the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, one of the newest and best equipped vessels of the fleet. During her last 13 trips to the fishing grounds, she brought in 718,601 pounds of fish, largely cod and haddock, for which she received only $13,506. Five of those trips were entirely devoid of profit, but on the basis of the other eight trips her crew earned slightly more than a dollar a day for a five-month period.

Captain Ben Pine, the Thibaud's managing owner and famous as her skipper in several international sailing contests wit hthe Canadian champion Bluenose had this to say:

"Unless conditions improve, I see no chance of keeping vessels going much longer than the first of April. I know of only one Gloucester vessel that broke even during the past year."

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

Jere Kane, student of criminology, returning to the United States from a vacation in Hawaii, meets Ben MacQuarrie, an old detective friend, in Los Angeles, where police chiefs are in convention. They take dinner together, and are joined by Chief Lee of Los Angeles. As they dine in a fashionable resort Chief Lee points out some of the screen celebrities in attendance, among them one Nanette LeRoi, Hollywood's newest star, recently "discovered" by Richard Bailey, noted director. While eating, Chief Lee is called to the phone. He returns, asks Kane and MacQuarrie to take a ride with him, and they all three drive out to Hollywood, where, in a fashionable bungalow, they find the body of Bailey, a gaping wound in his head, on the floor of the living room.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

Kane surveyed the scene with critical eye. The room was furnished as are so many homes in that particular section of the country, in the mode of the early Spanish settlers. The only article of Anglican style was a large sectional bookcase. It was from the top shelf that the books and papers had been pulled. The others were arranged, with the immaculate neatness characteristic of a woman's care.

The glass had been broken from the cover of the upper shelf. While Chief Lee busied himself with a superficial examination of the body Kane went to the bookcase. He tried all the covers and ascertained that none of them was locked.

Slowly, he wandered about the den, pausing to gaze at the table and its disordered contents. Wrapping his hand in his handkerchief to prevent the impression of his fingerprints on anything, he leaned over and smelled the decanter and the liquid it contained. A wry grimace told a story of a very bad quality of moonshine whisky. He carefully studied the glasses.

Apparently satisfied with what he found there, he moved on. Large French windows opened out onto a small balcony, from which one could have a sweeping view of the city below. There was a huge fireplace, but it was equipped with gas logs. On the mantel above were several pictures of women whom he recognized as motion picture stars. A photograph of Nanette LeRoi, elaborately framed, held the place of honor.

Chief Lee, finished with his examination of the body, scrambled to his feet. He was about to address the old houseman when his eyes fell on Jere Kane. There was something about the amateur detective's puzzled attitude which hushed the words on his lips.

John Lee watched him quizzically. What was it about Nanette LeRoi's photograph that so attracted this man? Of course he knew that every man in Hollywood had, so to speak, lost his head over this newcomer, but Kane had only seen her once, and then from a distance, and surely he was not the type to become infatuated by a photograph.

But as the police official watched the other he wondered just what kind of man Kane was. He looked out of place here in this shambles.

Slowly, he took in the other. He saw a man just reaching the prime of life, a slender, muscular man who undoubtedly in his younger days had made life miserable for those who came up against him in sports competition. Kane's dark hair was just beginning to show gray at the temples. His bronzed, smooth-shaven features were finely molded and he wore clothes like a matinee idol.

"He ought to be in the movies," the chief muttered. Aloud, he said: "That's a remarkable study of Miss LeRoi, isn't it?"

Kane started and turned guiltily toward the others. "Yes," quickly, "but that isn't what puzzles me."

Lee and Ben MacQuarrie exchanged amused smiles. The latter chided, "Oh, come, come, Kane, there is work to do."

"Yes, I know," Kane smiled. He glanced at the photograph again, then: "I've seen that girl somewhere."

"Of course you have." Lee laughed boisterously. "I expect the newspapers have printed more pictures of Nanette LeRoi in the past six months than any other woman in America."

"I don't doubt it," the other returned, "but you forget that I left America almost a year ago and since have been to the most out-of-the-way places in the world that I could find."

"Aw, Jere, you probably saw her in some Paris music hall," Inspector MacQuarrie put in. "They tell me she's from France."

"Perhaps," with a shrug, and for the moment he dismissed Nanette LeRoi from his thoughts. "What about the wound, chief?"

The police official gazed thoughtfully at the body for an instant. Finally: "He must have been shot at close range. But I don't find any powder burns."

Kane pursed his lips and gazed at the floor. "Or it might have been done by a remarkably good marksman," he offered thoughtfully.

"I can't quite make it out," Lee said doubtfully. "He got in a fight here with an intruder and then backs away and gets a wound in the temple like that. It's like you suggested, Kane, whoever did it must have been a crack shot."

Kane knelt beside the body. Carefully he examined the wound. When he had finished he got to his feet and—

"Remarkable," eagerly, "we're in luck!"

Lee shot a questioning look at him.

"Don't you see?" Kane exclaimed. "The bullet is still there—"

"But," the chief remarked drily "What good is a bullet going to do if we have no gun to fit it to?"

"Well taken," the other muttered.

Throughout this colloquy Chivington had stood in the door staring at the scene with fear-lit eyes. His face was white and his lips were taut.

Now, Chief Lee whipped around to him and demanded gruffly:

"Who did this, Chivington?"

The old man started and shuddered. "I—I don't know, sir," he stammered. "I—I found the master there when I came home tonight."

He buried his ace in his hands as if to shut out the scene. Kane watched him closely.

"When you came home?" John Lee prompted.

"Yes, sir," haltingly. "This was my afternoon out, sir. The master always gave me Saturday afternoon off. I went down to Santa Monica for a plunge in the ocean—I enjoy the surf very much, sir. It is very invigorating especially to one so old as I am—"

"Never mind the health talks, Chivington," the chief stopped him.

"Well, sir, I had planned to remain at the beach over night, but I knew that the master was having some guests and I thought he might need me—"

"Some guests!"

"Yes, sir. He said there would be two ladies and a gentleman, but he did not tell me who they were. That was quite strange, too, for he usually tells me who his guests are."

"Well," rudely, "go on."

"All afternoon I worried so much I could not enjoy my swim. The master is so helpless, sir. I have to watch over him like a child—"

"Oh, yeah?" with a snort. "A man with a reputation like him as helpless as a child?"

Chivington shrugged his shoulders hopelessly. "I left the beach at about 8 o'clock, sir," he said abjectly. "I came home by trolley and when I reached here I let myself in at the rear. I thought it strange that I did not hear anyone in the house—and then I found him."

The police official was about to make some caustic remark when the screaming siren of a police car sounded shrilly outside. Chivington started and gazed wildly about. Lee directed him to admit the newcomers.

Presently, three men followed the old man into the room. A group of younger men trooped behind. Identifying themselves as reporters they bombarded the chief with questions.

"Just a minute, fellows," he shouted, holding up his hands for silence. "You can see what's happened. It's Richard Bailey. Take a look at the room and you can see what's happened."

"He's surprised a burglar and got shot for his trouble," one of them snorted. "I've always said that if I ever get held up I'd tell the bandit to help himself and—"

"Aw, shut up, Tiny," another of the news gatherers snarled, "and let's get the dope here."

"There've been a lot of prowlers in Hollywood lately, haven't there, chief?" another of the reporters demanded.

"Yes," reluctantly, "but we're doing everything in our power to wipe out that evil. I'm doubling the police detail in Hollywood tonight."

And with that the reporters made a dash for the telephone and after telephoning their stories to their papers left the house.

Jere Kane watched this little scene with something of a trace of amusement. It reminded him of days long ago, before an almost forgotten aunt had died and left him her sole heir, to the tune of several million dollars.

Lee turned to introduce Kane and MacQuarrie. Two of the men who had been admitted were detectives, the other, a wizened little man with keen eyes and a determined mouth, was identified as the police surgeon and deputy coroner.

He immediately set to work over the body. Kane watched him intently, forgetting for the moment there was anyone else in the room. Presently, the doctor completed his task and arose wiping his hands on a large handkerchief.

"He's been dead for about an hour," he announced. "The strange part of it is that rigor mortis has already set in."

Kane glanced at the picture of Nanette LeRoi and then consulted his watch.

Accounts Approved By Lakefield Council

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Council met at a statutory meeting held in the council chamber with Reeve Tanner, Councillors Botterill, Hill, Hull and Madill present.

On motion of Councillors Hill and Botterill, the tax bill of W. Hillman was corrected by deducting $1.20 error. The finance committee recommended payment of the accounts for $1,777.87.

A by-law, No. 722, to provide for the election of Reeve, Councillors, School Trustees and Hydro Electric Commission, for the village of Lakefield for the year 1933 received its several readings, was passed and the Reeve and Council authorized to sign and seal the same.

A by-law, No, 723, to authorize the corporation to enter into an agreement dated November 1, 1932, for transferring to the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, certain electric plant situated within the township of Smith, in the county of Peterborough, received its several readings, was passed and the reeve and clerk authorized to sign and seal the same.

Moved by Councillors Hill and Hull: "That all licenses and rents outstanding for 1932 be collected at once. Carried.

The treasurer's statement of receipts and expenditures was presented and on motion of Councillors Botterill-Hill was adopted and the Clerk authorized to have necessary copies published.

Messrs. Burrows and C. Armstrong were a delegation from the Canadian Legion requesting the cooperation of the Council in the steps being taken to raise a Christmas community fund for sending hampers with clothing etc., to those in need. Moved by Councillors Hill and Hull: That Councillor Madill be appointed to represent the municipality on the general committee re Christmas cheer for the needy, with power to act.

OVERCOME BY GAS

WINDSOR.—Five persons were overcome by coal gas here to-day, all eventually recovered after firemen had worked over them for some time. They were: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vick; their son, Borland; Mrs. Clare Carvell, Chicago, and her 4-year-old son.

Five Rum-Runners Fined By U.S. Court

PROVIDENCE, R.I., December 28 (C.P.). — Five of eight members of the crew of the British motor-boat Gamecock, captured off Gogge-shall Lede on March 29 last, with 1,600 sacks of liquor on board, pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Ira Lloyd Letts to-day to charges of transporting and possessing liquor.

Oland Kent, of Liverpool, N.S. engineer of the Gamecock, was fined $400. Robert Walters and Harris Walters, both of La Have, N.S., and Green Stoddard and Bruce Nickerson, both of Yarmouth, N.S., crew members, each was fined $250.

Three other members of the crew, including the captain, all under indictment, have not yet pleaded and according to their Attorney, Joseph E. Fitzpatrick, counsel for the five appearing in court to-day, will appear some day next week.

Claim College Boys Getting All The Jobs

LONDON, December 28 (C. P. Cable). — "Canadian college boys are getting all the jobs and knocking the real working men out," declared one of two men in Tower Bridge Police Court to-day facing charges of having stowed away from Halifax to England on the steamer Aurania.

Asked by the magistrate why they had left Canada in such a fashion, John Kavanagh and James Duncan replied that there had been no employment for them in Canada, and held the main reason for that condition was employment of college boys who did not need the work so badly as ordinary laborers. Kavanagh had been in Canada for seven years and Duncan five.

The men were remanded.

PROBE REOPENED IN SUICIDE CASE

Police Experts Seek Missing Shell From Gun Found Beside Victim.

TWO SHOTS FIRED.

DETROIT, Dec. 28 (C.P.).—Investigation of the apparent suicide of Arthur Morley Kugeman, son of a prominent New York family, closed last week by police, was re-opened to-day upon the report of a police firearms expert.

William Cavers, the expert, reported that one of the two bullet wounds found in Kugeman's body must have been inflicted elsewhere than in the dressing-room where his body was found. He said he based his conclusion on the fact that the Luger pistol which was found near Kugemans body was discharged at least twice, but that traces of only one bullet could be found in the dressing-room.

W. Gomer Krise, assistant prosecuting attorney, said he would order investigators to search the Kugeman home in Grosse Pointe Farms in an effort to find bullet marks other than those in the dressing-room.

Krise emphasized that "there has been nothing to show that Kugeman did not end his own life," but said the investigation will be continued in an effort to clear up the mystery of the missing shells and bullets and the lack of bullet marks.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28 (C.P.).—Stop-loss selling tumbled wheat to-day to new all-time low record prices for May and July deliveries in Chicago. Quotations on March wheat contracts at Liverpool had earlier to-day fallen to the bottom-most point ever reached by futures in Great Britain. Argentine wheat was reported as urgently pressing for an outlet. Opening ¼-½ down, Chicago wheat futures went lower afterward. Corn started unchanged to 3-8 off and continued to sag.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Abundant offerings of grain in the world markets depressed prices in Canada, Argentina, England and the United States today. On the Chicago Board of Trade wheat futures for May and July reached bottom for the season at 43¼ and 43½ cents a bushel respectively, but rebounded soon to yesterday's levels.

Corn, oats and rye fell with wheat, contracts for May and July delivery all hitting new low ground for this season.

The situation was blamed on distress selling by Argentina and Canada in European markets.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Dec. 28. — (CP) — Wheat prices opened unchanged to a small fraction lower today, with spreaders apparently selling Winnipeg futures against purchases in Chicago. Shortly after opening, however, it became evident a moderate export business had been worked overnight from both seaboards with the result prices came back to record gains of about ½c, which for the balance of the first hour were well held.

At mid-session December was quoted at 40¾; May at 42¼ and July at 43¾.

Most of the export business was worked from the Pacific coast, presumably to the Orient. A little buying at the start for Mills was also mentioned. Trading at times was fairly active and the feeling towards the market generally was friendly.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. — (AP) — Prime commercial paper 1¼ percent; foreign exchange steady, demand rates; Great Britain 3.32⅞; France 3.90 3-16; Italy 5.11 5-8; Germany 23.82; Canada 88.56¼.

EXCHANGE RATES

Exchange rates at noon today were; Pound sterling in Montreal $3.75⅛; U. S. dollar in Montreal, 1.12¾; pound sterling in New York 3.33; Canadian dollar in New York 88⅝.

NEW RUSH MADE INTO OLD FIELD

Over 150 Gold Claims Staked in Cariboo District of British Columbia.

SHOWINGS FAVORABLE.

VICTORIA, Dec. 28 (C.P.)—What may develop into a gold rush of major importance is underway to the historic old mining locality between Cottonwood and Bakerville in the Cariboo district of British Columbia. More than 150 claims have been located within the past two or three weeks and Gold Commissioner J. P. Scarlett at Bakerville has reported that such is the activity that the land upon which the mining office stands, and the cemetery at Bakerville, have been staked. The staking are mostly quartz although many placer claims have been recorded, and leases staked out.

Favorable showing of the Cariboo gold quartz mine at Jack of Clubs Lake, the bonding by New York interests of other lode properties and the possibilities of Burns Mountain have led to a period of intensive activity that has increased with the coming of the snow. There is a likelihood, it is stated, of a stampede taking place to the hills of the Cariboo in the Spring.

The richness of the Jack of Clubs Lake area has drawn attention to the fact that both above and below that lake the creeks which were worked in earlier time yielded almost fabulous sums, indicating that the source of all the gold was not confined to a small but rich section, but was spread over a considerable territory.

CAR INSURANCE RATE MAY RISE

Quebec Secretary Says Accidents More Numerous, Costly Than in Ontario.

QUOTES FIGURES.

QUEBEC, Dec. 28 (C.P.). — Reports that automobile insurance rates in the Province of Quebec would be raised early in the New Year received support to-day from J. E. Renaud, secretary of the Quebec Automobile Club and the Provincial Motor League.

"Motorists in the Province of Quebec need feel no surprise if the underwriters, while treating Ontario favorably, increase automobile insurance rates in this province," he said. "Quebec not only has proportionately many more accidents annually than her sister province, but the amounts of automobile insurance claims, both for public liability and property damage, are considerably higher in Quebec than in Ontario.

"Per 1,000 motor cars figuring in accidents last year, the average number of claims for damage was 54.7 for Quebec and only 29.32 for Ontario. Public liability automobile claim rates were on an average $310 for Quebec and only $229 for Ontario. As for property damage, Ontario's figures were but $38.73, while Quebec claims averaged $51.17," he said.

Will Contest Seat Hydro Commission

(Special to Examiner

LINDSAY, Dec. 28.—Although a big slate was nominated for the different departments of Lindsay's municipal government at Monday night's nomination meeting, only a sufficient number qualified last night to make up the council for the coming year. The following will be the personnel of the new council: Mayor, Frank Armstrong; reeve, James B. Begg; deputy reeve, Percy Pogue; alderman, Dr. Hugh Logan, C. G. Frost, John Baker, D. E. Morrison, J. G. Wenman, John O'Reilly and C. Ferguson, Stuart Flavelle was elected by acclamation as a member of the Board of Water Commissioners. There will be a contest for the local Hydro Commission, the following having qualified, with two to be elected: F. R. Gregory, John McCrae, P. Pickering and K. Gregory. The electors will also vote on a by-law to appoint a utilities, which if carried, will do away with the Water Board and Hydro Commission.

Ex-Mayor D. J. McLean has been appointed local issuer of Motor Vehicle Licenses, etc., by the Provincial Government, the former incumbent of that position (W. E. Agnew, clerk of the township of Ops) having resigned.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED AS CAR AND TAXI MEET

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 28. (CP)—Four persons were injured, one seriously, in a head-on collision between two automobiles near Wardsville today. Mrs. Edith Howe, London, is in a serious condition, suffering from internal injuries, fractured ribs, lacerated knee and bruises. Miss May Morris, London, was injured about the head and legs. Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Book, Detroit, were both cut and bruised.

The accident occurred when a taxicab driven by Roy Mulcahy, London, and the Book car met.

U.S. Report Ready Upon Coal Tariff

WASHINGTON, December 28 (C.P.). — U.S. Attorney-General Mitchell completed to-day and will forward immediately to the Treasury Department an opinion on whether coal imported from Canada, Germany, and Great Britain should be taxed.

The decision is expected to be made public later in the day.

At present coal imported from those countries is coming in without the tax being collected, but the quantities are being recorded in case the Attorney-General finds the tax may be imposed.

Originally, under terms of the revenue law of last session of Congress, Canada was exempt from the tax because that country imported more coal from the United States than it shipped here.

Old Sioux Warrior Joins Great Spirit

RED KING, Minn., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The tom toms are stilled—Indian John, 120 year old Sioux, who was reared to the tune of the war drums and the battle cries of his ancestors, has joined the "Great Spirit."

The aged Sioux, whose tribal name was Tukancanhbeska, which meant "Hooping Stone," born during the war of 1812, friends assert, on the present site of Red Wing, died at his home yesterday on Prairie Island, in the Mississippi river bottoms near here.

The beat of the war drums—the call of the tribe to battle—summoned Indian John numerous times in his early manhood to repel the invasions of the white man. More than one "pale face" scalp hung from his belt, members of the tribe assert.

PROBING DEATH.

TORONTO. — Police are investigating the death of Gordon Scott, 30, who died following an altercation at a Christmas night party. Scott was rushed to hospital suffering from head injuries, and died early to-day.

COURT UPHOLDS INDIAN ACTION

Tribe Urges Roman Catholic Church Built on Reserve be Vacated.

COUNCIL NOT CONSULTED.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Dec. 28 (C.P.)—Court action by Frank Papwee, chief of the Mistawasis Reserve Indians, to restrain the Rt. Rev. J. H. Prud'homme, Roman Catholic Bishop of Saskatchewan; Rev. Patrice Beaudry, of Aldina, and Le Corporation Episcopale Catholique Romaine de Prince Albert, from using or occupying a church building erected on the Mistawasis Reserve, and to have defendants named as trespassers, has been upheld in Court of King's Bench in a judgment handed down by Mr. Justice Donald Maclean.

The action was taken when a Roman Catholic church was built on the Reserve without the consent of a majority of the Indian tribe. Defendants had obtained permission from the Superintendent of Indian Affairs to build the church but the judgment pointed out that this, according to the Indian Act, was not suffieient, for under that convenion no portion of Indian land can be alienated, leased or released in any way without consent of council of the band summoned to consider the question.

Damages were set by the judge at $100.

The court action concluded a dispute which had been raging on the Indian Reserve for the last three years.

Mistawasis Reserve is about 45 miles west of Prince Albert.

REINDEER HERD NEARING CANADA

On Journey Over 3 Years, Animals Are Destined for Eskimo Food.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28 (C.P.).—Somewhere up on the frozen wastes of Alaska a great herd of reindeer is approaching the Canadian border.

Destined to provide food and clothing for starving Eskimos at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, North-West Territories, it has been moving slowly, day after day, for more than three years.

It is expected to reach Kittigazuit early in the New Year, and when it arrives the Canadian Government will pay $195,000 to Lomen Reindeer Corporation.

The Government contracted with the Lomen brothers, Alaska's "reindeer kings," for a herd of 3,000, in 1929. In the fall of that year Andrew Bahr, veteran herder, started the antlered animals far up in Alaska. He was assisted by four Laplanders and six Eskimos.

They plodded along, sometimes unheard of for months, and continued travelling even in 70-below-zero weather. When last reported this year the number had increased to more than 3,500. Soon the herd will reach the Mackenzie River, and a trip across the ice will end the journey at Kittigazuit. Three Lapp families are there ready to take charge of the reindeer as soon as the strange journey is completed.

WORKING OUT DEBTS

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—R. J. Corlett and Sons, coal and lumber dealers, have a new building and a whole lot fewer unpaid bills on their books. Customers with unpaid bills were permitted to work them out wrecking the old plant and building the new. Some new customers even established credit that way.

ADVERSITY NEEDED

OKLAHOMA CITY.— What the young man of to-day needs, in the opinion of Dennis Flynn, Oklahoma territorial delegate to Congress prior to statehood, is regular doses of adversity, taken on the chin. He compares opportunites of 1933 to those of 1889, when part of Oklahoma territory was opened to white settlement.

MARLBANK HALL BURNS.

KINGSTON. — Fire, thought to have been caused by overheated furnace pipes, completely destroyed the Community Hall at Marlbank, near Deseronto. The loss was placed at $7,000, partly covered by insurance.

Liner Brings U. S. British Gold

NEW YORK, December 28 (C.P.). — The steamer Majestic brought to New York to-day a $15,000,000 shipment of British gold, representing another instalment on Great Britain's December 15 debt payment to the United States. The gold was consigned to the Federal Reserve Bank.

The same ship also brought from Cherbourg $2,500,000 in French gold, said to represent a private transaction.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(A.P.) — Stocks continued firm in the late trading to-day, rails holding gains of about 1 to 2 points. New York Central, Union Pacific and Santa Fe were strong. Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania were about a point higher. The main body of industrial stocks were fractionally higher, with American Telephone, American Tobacco B, North American and Corn Products up 1 or more. General Motors was an exception to the trend, dropping a sizeable fractional. Transfers totalled about 1,400,000 shares.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 28. (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange listings closed to-day around low figures and with fractional losses showing on the board. The improved tone that developed in the Wall Street during the afternoon failed to budge the local listings. Part of the local sluggishness was due to the rise in the Canadian dollar, which kept the Canadian quotations from moving ahead at the same rate as the New York prices.

Both International Pete and Imperial Oil were down fractionally to-day, the former to 11⅞ and Imperial to 8¼ while British American held firm at 8. Interlisted shares were a little firmer, Brazilian at 9⅜, C.P.R. at 15½ and Nickel at 8⅜ while Ford weakened to 6⅛.

In the Utilities both Union Gas and Bell Telephone were stronger, and among the steel shares Page Hersey, Standard Steel and Steel of Canada showed to advantage with fair gains.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 28. (CP).—The advances recorded in the Standard Mining market in the last two days were well held at the close to-day. There were a few recessions from the top but the net gains were substantial. Profit-taking on the rise has not been a factor except in Siscoe which, following a jump to 1.30, met with heavy selling. Howey closed at 123 up 4 points.

The high-priced gold shares became quite active. Hollinger advanced to 5.65, Dome to 14.15, McIntyre to $23 while Lake Shore held at 33.75, and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves closed with gains of seven, and 16, respectively.

Eldorado continued strong to a close at 1.40 for a gain of four points. Most of the copper shares moved ahead. Noranda gained more than half a dollar and Nickel about 30.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 28. — (CP) — Market leaders were steady on the Montreal Stock Exchange today as gains and losses were about evenly divided in quiet trading.

International Nickel closed ¼ higher at 8¾, Brazilian at 9½ and Montreal Power at 30¾ each picked up 1-8. Canadian Pacific at 15½, and Shawinigan at 9 7-8 were unchanged.

Royal Bank moved up 1½ to 132½. Canada Wire and Cable B was ¾ higher at 8¾. Canadian Industrial Alcohol B was up ¼ at 1½.

Montreal Loan, an inactive, slumped 6 to 43½. Canada Cement preferred was down 3-8 at 16 1-8, and National Breweries eased ½ to 15¼.

Hold-Up Costs Pair Two Years, 10 Lashes

PEMBROKE, Ont., Dec. 28.—Sentences of two and a half years in penitentiary with 10 lashes, were meted out to Lawrence Gareau and Alvin Donahue, found guilty on a charge of armed holdup. Boyd Anderson, driver of the car for the party, was sentenced to two years and five lashes, receiving the lighter sentence as he did not take part in the actual robbery.

The charges arose from the armed holdup of Charles Moss, postmaster at Alice, Ont., on October 30 last.

Pros.-Amateurs Play For Charity Cause

TORONTO, Dec. 28—(CP)—Amateur and professional hockey players are to be allowed to play together at last—but only in a "practice" game to which no admission will be charged. Amateur officials today gave authority for the game which will see Toronto Maple Leaf professional team pitted against four senior Ontario Hockey Association teams for charity on January 21.

Admission will be by ticket which can only beobtained by donations of clothing for the poor. The world champions will play four short periods, taking on Toronto Nationals, Allan Cup holders, Mariboros, University of Toronto and Niagara Falls.

United States Wins In Melbourne Series

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 28. —(AP)—The United States won its tennis series with Australia eight contests to four when the American youngsters took three of the four matches contested today.

Vivian McGrath, 16-year-old star, won the Australian victory, defeating Gledhill 6-3, 6-3.

Cowboy in Kilts, New Lauder Role

AMARILLO, Tex., Dec. 28. (A.P.—"A cowboy in kilts" is the newst role of Sir Harry Lauder. The Scottish comedian left Amarillo to-day wearing a cowboy hat.

Robert Pryde, president of the Amarillo Scottish Society, presented the 5-gallon hat, which he described as "the head gear of a race of strong men comparable to the Scot Highlanders."

"This is a rare occasion, when one Scot receives a gift from another—or an American either' the comedian said. "It must have required an extensive subscription. But it shows what my people can do when they amalgamate."

ICE JAMS ARE BEING REDUCED

With Mild Weather Jams in River Are Shoving Down.

WATER LEVEL LOW.

The mild weather of the past three days has done much to decrease the size of the ice jams blocking the bed of the Otonabee River for 17 miles below the city.

Between Campbelltown and Kent's Creek, The Examiner was informed to-day, the ice jams appear to be shoving down. The ice which a week ago was jammed to a height of three and four feet appears to have fallen away and the river is open around its edges at this point.

Mrs. John Coward, whose home overlooks the river at Kent's creek, stated that the warm weather seems to have melted the ice, causing it to loosen and shift slowly down the street. "The jam does not look nearly as bad now," she said.

While the recent warm weather is reducing the size of the jams, the flood danger still exists. The Examiner was reliably informed, since the ice may jam and pack together as it shoves down.

The rainfall on Friday and Saturday averaged nearly an inch over this district, and this along with the melting of the last snow, has increased the flow of the river. Still the water level is being maintained fairly low and the river appears serene.

SEEKS MILLION FOR HEART BALM

Detroit Doctor's Ex-Wife Charges Present Spouse Lured Him Away.

SECRET COURTSHIP.

DETROIT, Dec. 28 (A.P.)—Charges that "flattery and promises" were made by Mrs. Gail Stephens Kinard to induce Dr. Kerwin W. Kinard, Kansas City physician, to divorce his wife and marry her, are contained in the declaration of Mrs. Ann Lee Porter Kinard's $1,000,000 allenation of affections suit filed today in Circuit Court.

Dr. Kinard was divorced on Nov. 11, and within a few days thereafter he married Mrs. Stephens. They now are on a honeymoon trip in Europe. The first Mrs. Kinard is seeking damages from Dr. Kinard's present wife, heiress to a Michigan lumber fortune.

The first Mrs. Kinard, in the declaration to her suit, said that her husband's married life was happy until in October, 1931, when he went to Detroit from Kansas City to attend a college fraternity convention. He returned, she charged, and told her bluntly that he had met his former sweetheart, that she had won his affection, and asked her to divorce him.

The former wife charged Kinard and Mrs. Stephens carried on a secret courtship, and that they met in St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit and elsewhere.

Insull To Continue His Stay In Greece

ATHENS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, liberated yesterday after the courts rejected a petition for his extradition to America, returned today to his hotel from the hospital where he was taken shortly after his arrest several weeks ago.

"Thank God the truth was proved," he exclaimed to a correspondent as he went to luncheon. He said he will remain in Greece indefinitely, living at the hotel for the time being until Mrs. Insull can come down from Paris.

An Add Offer

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 28.—(C. P.)— The Federal Government has made an untimely proposition to the city and it has been turned down. The government wanted to know if the city would make a bid for purchase of an old clock taken out of the customs house tower here three years ago. The clock never worked for years, but the letter from Ottawa doesn't say so.

FORMER U. S. TENNIS CHAMP TAKES HIS LIFE

Malcolm D. Whitman Leaps to Death From Atop Five-storey New York Apartment House.

55 YEARS OF AGE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. — (AP) — Malcolm D. Whitman, 55, a member of the textile firm of Lasher and Whitman and former United State tennis champion, committed suicide today by leaping from his penthouse atop a five-story apartment house at 136 East 67th street.

The body landed in the courtyard of an adjoining apartment building. Associates told police Whitman had been suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Malcolm D. Whitman, Sr., was a lawyer in addition to being vice president of the company, his late father, William Whitman, founded and of which his brother William Whitman, Jr., is now president.

He was graduated from Harvard in 1899 and from Harvard law school in 1902. He married Janet A. McCormick who died in 1909. He then married Jennie A. Crocker and later Lucilla de Vescmvi.

HYDRO CONTRACT SITUATION EXPLAINED IN BOARD REPORT

Review of Year's Work of Commission Board Given by Chairman Benor.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Bringing to a close the year's work the chairman of the Water and Light Commission Board of the town of Campbellford, Commissioner J. Benor, has issued a statement of the year's activities in that department, which shows just what has been accomplished by the board during a very difficult period.

From the financial standpoint, the board from 1918 to 1924 inclusive gave no grants to the town council. From then on to 1932 grants amounting to $123,000 were given the town as well as all bonds and interests being paid.

To do this the board went behind $11,133, a very serious thing with a $400,000 investment such as the system is. In the years of 1927 and 1928, to make up the grants given, the board went behind $19,060. In 1931 the cost in the light and power department was $18,000 for operation and maintenance. For salaries and wages it cost $14,036 and by the time such items as office supplies, compensation, car allowance, rents, telephone, garage and printing are allowed for, it will be seen that very little money goes back into the system for direct upkeep.

In the meter department a very serious situation is being faced. Dominion law requires the inspection of meters every five years for the protection of the consumer. At the beginning of this year there were 500 meters two years behind inspection, and 140 which are now due for inspection. Many of these meters are old and will require repairing as well as cleaning, which will cost considerable. The work is now under way.

Repairs at Power House

Last year a great deal of work was done at the power house to eliminate hazards and make it more efficient. Parts of the plant were so far below government requirement that in case of accident occurring, the Commission would have been unlimitedly liable. Much of the trouble was from the generator, and the C.G.E. engineers were invited to Campbellford to inspect the plant and advise upon it, which they did. The machine ,after being altered, will now carry town load (under test) without tying in with the Hydro when the other generator is shut down. While the swichboard has been made by no means modern, all undue hazards have been eliminated and it has been made more efficient. This work, through the busines sability of the board, was done for $1,000 under estimate.

During the year the Board has consolidated three service departments under one roof, which now gives the manager a proper check on all supplies, and affords proper accommodation for meters. By having this place for repair work there has been more than enough discarded material salvaged and repaired to more than pay for the money spent on the building, and it also means a saving in rent for $156 a year.

In regard to the Hydro contract, which question came before the public this summer, Commissioner Benor states: "Only after careful study of the old contract with the Hydro made in 1926 for two months only, the correspondence, the minute book, and having interviewed Hydro executive, do I make this statement."

"To say that the change in managers had anything to do with us not selling power to the Hydro is absurd. The Hydro officials who look after this assured me that the matter of discontinuing taking power from Campbellford had been under consideration for some time, and they had mailed a notice to us before they knew of any change in the managership at Campbellford. And even before this the Hydro had paid many of our bills under protest. The last contract Campbellford had with the Hydro was dated in 1926 and ran for a period of two months only. The Hydro are not buying power from us today for two reasons only: First, we had no contract with them to take our power, which of course, was very slack business; and secondly, the Hydro has no use for power, as they have more than they know what to do with."

WAITRESS FOILS HOLD-UP EFFORT

Two Citizens Answer Calls and Trio Capture Bandit Suspect.

HAS JAIL RECORD.

HAMILTON, Dec. 28.— Captured by a plucky waitress and several citizens, including J. P. O'Reilly, well-known local lawyer, when he allegedly attempted to rob the Honey Dew store on James Street North at 11.30 o'clock last night, Eward Simpson, aged 28 years, who resides with his father in a boathouse on Picton Street East, was in custody last night.

Simpson recently was released from Portsmouth Penitentiary after serving a five year term. Detectives said further investigation would be made and further charges may be laid.

It was the third attempt within a few months to rob the place and credit for frustrating the crime is due Mrs. Gladys Casey, 265 Emerald Street north, who fought with the thug as he attempted to scoop the cash from the till. Banging the drawer shut she told him he wouldn't get the money and finally she struck him across the face with a heavy china jug. The blow dazed him and while the two fought a desperate battle three women who were in the shop at the time ran to James Street and cried for help. Mr. O'Reilly and Carl Stevens, watchman, immediately ran to the store and soon overpowered Simpson. Miss Jean Smith, 120 Gage Avenue North, who was also on duty assisted Mrs. Casey and the bandit was almost exhausted when help came.

WOMEN BURNED AT POOR HOME

Three Inmates Are Overcome in Their Sleep as Building Burns.

BODIES RECOVERED.

STANWOOD, Mich., Dec. 28 (A.P.) — Trapped on the second floor, three women inmates of the Mecosta County Poor Farm were burned to death shortly after 1 a.m. to-day, when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the institution.

Although the bodies had not been positively identified, they were believed to be Lela Wilson, Rosetta Smith and Emma Waldon, all aged inmates of the Poor Farm. They were asleep when the blaze started. Other inmates made their way to safety. Fire departments from Stanwood and Big Rapids were unable to bring the blaze under control and the building was reduced to ruins.

BOYS' PARLIAMENT.

HAMILTON.— Members of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament are assembling here to-day for the sessions which formally open to-morrow night. At McMaster University will gather 122 boys from all parts of the province. To-day the delegates are registering and will be taken on an inspection tour of the University.

"Roundheads"

BELOIT, Wis., Dec. 28. — (C.P.).—The U.S. is getting to be a nation of round-heads.

"In the process of intermarriage of peoples the 'roundheads' dominate," says Prof. Paul H. Nesbit of the department of anthropology of Beloit College. "In this way the 'round-heads' are tending to stamp out the 'longheads'."

And the co-eds are no exception. The professor looked at the heads of the female first-year students and found that nearly 80 per cent. of them were "roundheads."

TWO CONTEST REEVESHIP IN SEYMOUR TWP.

William J. Duncan and John Currie Will Stand Election on Jan. 2.

COUNCIL RETURNED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Two qualifications for the reeveship in the township of Seymour assures an election in that municipality on January 2, despite the fact that the deputy-reeve and council received an acclimation. The qualifications stand as follows:

Reeve—Wm. J. Duncan, John Currie.

Deputy Reeve. — W. S. Milne (accl.).

Council—Thomas Fry, Frank Lee, William Rowe (accl.).

The qualification of John Currie was a surprise to many people, for although he was nominated for reeve as well as deputy-reeve it was felt that he would let the senior chair be decided between Robert Innes, last years' reeve, and Mr. Duncan, last year's deputy. After two years in the chair, however, Mr. Innes has dropped out, leaving last year's deputy reeve to contest the honor with a new member.

Mr. Duncan has had four years' experience in the township council, two years as councillor and two as deputy reeve. During the past two years as a member of the Counties Council, he has played a prominent part in county affairs and was awarded the distinction of being named chairman of the Old Age Pensions Committee, which office he holds with great credit, and many of the electors look for his continuance in that position, and his ultimate step up to the reeve's chair.

Mr. Currie, although having dropped somewhat out of the political limelight during the past few years, is an old member of the council, having served before as reeve, and receives his nomination with a strong backing and will no doubt put up a stiff fight.

With W. S. Milne stepping up from councillor to deputy reeve, of which position he was assured by acclamation, one new face is seen on the council along with Thomas Fry and Frank Lee, this being William Rowe of Stanwood.

BETHEL LADIES' AID ELECTS OFFICERS

Members of St. James' Anglican Church Present Christmas Entertainment.

EAST EMILY, Dec. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—The members of the Ladies' Aid of Bethel United Church held their regular meeting at the home of the President, Mrs. Ira Switzer, when the new officers were elected for the coming year.

Mrs. Switzer was re-elected president, and other officers are: Vice-president, Mrs. Harry Deyell; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Jackson; secretary, Mrs. Milton Sherin; pianist, Mrs. William Howden; flower committee, Mrs. Albert Ruth and Mrs. William Howden.

Entertainment

The members of St. James' Anglican Church held their annual Christmas concert in the parish hall on Thursday night when the hall was prettily decorated for the occasion; Rev. Mr. Weir acting as chairman for the program which was as follows: Opening chorus, "Who Is He in Yonder Stall"; remarks, Rev. Mrs. Weir; chorus, "Welcome, Welcome!"; recitations, John Franks, Frances Clark, Nelson Davis, Gladys Davis; solo, Cameron Clark; recitation, Ruby Irwin; dialogue, "Mind Your Own Business"; recitations, Donald Franks and Bruce Clark; "The Christmas Story," Mrs. Lawrence Clark; recitations, Birdie Davis, Blanche Boate; dialogue, "Aunt Jemima's Money"; recitation, Hilda Davis; motion songs, Birdie and Gladys Davis and Dorothy Clark; recitations, Frances Clark, Edythe Davis, Elva Boate; dialogue, Dorothy and Bruce Clark; recitations, Hazel Davis and Myrtle Irwin; chorus, "Decking the Hall"; recitations, Mabel Irwin, Shirley Boate; pantomime, "Zion Haste," seven girls; pantomime, "Silent Night," seven girls.

Following the program, bags of candy were distributed to the smaller children and candy and apples distributed to all present. A silver collection taken amounted to about seven dollars.

A new tank has been developed in Europe, which can cross rough country at 60 miles an hour on caterpillars, has a spring device which enables it to leap eight feet in the air and cover 30 feet at each jump.

RELIEF PLANS ARE OUTLINED IN N. MONAGHAN

Monaghan's relief board is very niggard", Mr. Rye remarked. "At the same time we won't stand for any persons trying to make a harvest. Several persons are trying to work charitable societies and also the Relief Board, and they are not going to get away with it. If the municipality has any work to be done, we expect the men who register for relief will be willing to do it. They won't get any relief except in case of illness if they refuse work. If he can't earn at such work the amount of his weekly allotment, the Board will make up the difference. I think that is fair and reasonable."

Candidates Are Heard

Three candidates for the township council, John Barnes, William Stevens and James Milby, addressed the meeting.

Mr. Stevens repeated the charge he made at the nominations meeting that the record of the council was a series of broken promises. He was surprised to learn that Mr. Barnes had withdrawn from the contest for the deputy-reeveship, and had preferred to run for council.

"Mr. Barnes had ample time at the meeting to accept or reject it then, but not a word was said. Mr. Castle told me I had better call it off, but he had struck the wrong man. I gave my word to the ratepayers' Association that I would be in the field if they nominated me, and a man's word should be as good as his bond. When I am elected to the Monaghan council if my conduct does not suit the ratepayers I'll place my resignation in their hands."

Mr. Milby stated that if he was elected he would follow a course in accordance with the dictates of his conscience and without fear or favor. He pointed out that the proposed building restriction by-law would have to be ready for the Private Bills committee of the Legislature, if it were to come up at the next session.

"I have been twenty years in North Monaghan", Mr. Milby said, "and I have taken many a licking in various organizations, but I always came back, and everybody knows that if Milby says a thing he will do it. There will be no evading issues, you will get an answer from me on any question that comes up."

John Barnes

In defending his decision, Mr. Barnes said that he was given two nominations for council and one for deputy-reeve. Sentiment at the meeting indicated a feeling that the present council hadn't done so badly this year. By withdrawing from the field for deputy, Mr. Barnes said he thought it would help in saving the cost of an election, and he also believed that another year in the council would afford him more experience in municipal work. He had also his position to consider especially at the present time, and he was aware that if elected deputy-reeve he would have to spend a week attending the county council in June.

Mr. Stevens interrupted with the statement — "You are trying to make a goat of me and Milby about causing an election, and you can't do it."

Mr. Barnes claimed credit for "getting the relief plans lined up in the best possible way", and it transpired that Mr. Rye and Mr. Milby were also active at virtually the same time in initiating the township's relief organization according to the government's regulations.

Reg. Butler was chairman of the meeting. Herman Killingbeck reported 55 families on the relief list, and from December 8 until December 23 disbursements had cost $473.50. The consensus of the meeting was that the township's relief system was giving general satisfaction.

YULETIDE CONCERT BY HAVELOCK LIT.

"The Family Album" Proves High Light of Continuation School Program.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 28.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The third Literary program of Havelock Continuation school was given at the school on Friday afternoon, by the members of Lit 3 and was declared by the principal to be one of the best put on by any Literary group since he has been in charge. Gray Kemp, president, and Lorraine McQuigge, vice-president, were given warm praise for the way they had carried on the work, and all the members were praised for the interest taken in getting up a worthwhile program.

Probably the most interesting number was the monologue, "The Family Album," in which most of the members of the group took part. Helen Bedford had the only speaking part in this feature, but the other members were really the main players, being the characters which constituted the members of the family and a few friends whose pictures appeared in the album.

The scene opened with Helen seated in a rocking chair with a large book, (the album) open on her lap. She tells her audience that she is going to show them her album, and sincerely hopes they will not laugh at the pictures as she would rather they'd laugh at her, than at the members of her family, whose pictures she intends to show. As each leaf is turned over, and the subject introduced, the curtain on the stage is drawn aside, and the living model portraying the picture stands revealed. All are in old fashioned costume, of about fifty years ago. Following are the players: Helen Spencer, "My Mother"; Gray Kemp "Father"; Iva Hubbel, "Myself as a little girl"; Jack Mathison, "Eben, my husband"; Roxie Rutherford, "Myself as a bride"; Phyllis Bush and Mildred Forbes as "The twins"; Bruce Jones as "The parson"; Lorraine McQuigge, "Parson's wife"; Howard Harnden, "Parson's son"; Madeline Buchanan as "Ann Eliza," my sister; Laurabelle Wing as "Sophie," Ann Eliza's daughter; Luella Hubbell, "The village beauty," and Harold Kennedy as "Grandpa Hobbs." A short, rather amusing speech accompanied the showing of each picture.

Other items were: President's address by Gray Kemp, presenting Lit. III. Opening chorus, "School Days," all members; orchestra selection, Rockabye Moon, Lit. orchestra; speech, "Personages of the Air," Ruth Adams; vocal duet, 'Pastorelle,' Helen Bedford and Roxie Rutherford; monologue, 'Who Yuh Lookin' At," Reta Leeson; pianoforte duet, Helena Spencer and Phyllis Bush; chorus, 'Alouette,' all members of group three; speech, Reta Leeson; school paper, 'The Mirror,' edited and read by Laurabelle Wing; chorus, 'I Hate School,' all members of group three; family album, Helen Bedford; monologue, 'Over the telephone,' Phyllis Bush; piano solo, When mother plays the organ; pantomime, Loraine McQuigge and Howard Harnden; musical selection, Gray Kemp, "Goofus"; recitation, "Kith and Kin," Iva Hubbell; pantomime and chorus, "Silent Night."

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Benny and three children of Kaladar spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cousins.

The winners in the Rexall Doll Contest which has been conducted at W. E. Goulds were announced on Monday morning as follows: Eleanor Leonard, Audrey Phillips, Anne Lavender, Gwendolyn Rundle, Marguerite Kouri, Miriam Nobes, Isobel Phillips, Margaret Graham, Doris Bedore, Patricia Brady, Jennie Gray, Doris McCoy, Bernice Spry, Betty Pritchard, Marjorie McCoy.

The first three receive a carriage with their doll. Originally there were sixty-three contestants but two withdrew. The forty-six unsuccessful ones are being presented with a book as a personal gift from Mr. Gould.

For the first time in several years, Midnight Mass was celebrated in the Sacred Heart Church on Christmas Eve.

Another enjoyable meeting was held by the members of St. Paul's Men's Club in the parish hall on Thursday evening. The president W. R. Reynolds occupied the chair for the business period and also for the appropriate Christmas program. The program opened with the singing of "O Come, All Ye Faithful," after which St. Paul's Serenaders gave some fine selections. Rural Dean M. J. C. Levason gave an excellent talk on the history of Christmas celebrations and mentioned many interesting customs. W. L. Rigg gave a reading the material of which corresponded closely to the preceding number. After the Serenaders had again played some enlivening strains, the meeting adjourned for refreshments and a social hour.

Mary Ann Duff, a tragic actress, in her time (1794-1857) was the greatest upon the American stage.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs about one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill this big bottle. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

NEW JONES WALTZ WAS FEATURED

Number By Peterborough Song Writer Was Heard Over W.G.R. Last Night.

Lloyd Wolff and His Music, rated as one of New York's finest dance orchestras, now playing at the beautiful Park Central Ballroom in Buffalo, and broadcasting nightly over WGR radio station, have promised to "plug" the songs of Herb Jones, local young writer and publisher, at every opportunity.

Last night at eleven o'clock, from the WGR station, they introduced as their feature song, a new waltz written by Jones, "A Haunting Strain," which was arranged especially for the broadcast by Ted Krause, foremost arranger of music, who has been working with Mr. Jones for some time.

In a telephone conversation with Mr. Wolff Monday, Mr. Jones was advised further that beginning the latter part of the week his orchestra would use the waltz as their theme song. This is a splendid endorsement of the tune, as it means that it will be the signature song of all their broadcasts.

Herb Jones has a catalogue of some thirty numbers for release during the next year, and word from his representatives in the various cities, gives assurance that the numbers will be used extensively over the radio.

Couldn't SLEEP couldn't WORK for her BACK!

Always tired—always dull—heavy-headed — depressed. Every day a new burden—every night another trial. Life held little pleasure and no comfort until she realized her back was the cause of her distressing condition.

On a friend's advice, she tried Dodd's. Backache quickly disappeared—soon fatigue gave way to clear-headed energy and restful sleep. Again life seemed worth while.

If you are not feeling just right, look to your kidneys. Don't wait—take Dodd's at once. You'll be surprised how quickly Dodd's begins to cleanse and purify the blood stream by healing the kidneys. Backache, Rheumatism, Headaches, and all signs of faulty kidneys soon disappear. 257

Just a Monthly Cheque for Life Guaranteed to your widow by the Imperial Monthly Income Policy

Here is the simplest, surest and wisest way in which a man can provide for his wife and children should he pass on prematurely.

Not only does it provide for necessities, but the income is safeguarded. The widow is saved from risking her insurance money in the many ways that will beset her, such as:

—making loans to friends and relatives, without proper security.

—going into business with relatives or friends.

—buying worthless stocks which are represented as good securities.

—spending too much on things she cannot afford.

—indulging a son or daughter in extravagances.

An Imperial Monthly Income Policy cannot be commuted, encumbered, assigned, or dissipated through fees and charges. It will remain long after other property may be lost or impaired.

It can also provide an income for your own old age.

90 Christmas Dinners Supplied By Army

Adjutant Falle, Officer in charge of The Salvation Army work in Peterborough, wishes through the courtesy of the Examiner, to thank all who have given money, food and clothing to be distributed among the needy. Ninety Christmas dinners were given out and forty-three other people were supplied with food and clothing. The inmates of the gaol were supplied with fruit and candy. Nicholls Hospital and the Agel People's Home also received fruit. Donations have not been as large as other years, therefore we are somewhat behind in meeting the demands that are upon us.

If our friends wish to send a donation to help this good work, the Army will appreciate your kindness. Donations may be sent to Adjutant Falle, 515 King street.

W. E. N. SINCLAIR OSHAWA MAYOR

Other Candidates Step Out to Give New Chief Magistrate Accamation.

ELECTION FOR COUNCIL.

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 28.—Another heavy burden of civic responsibility was assumed by W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., M.P.P., provincial Liberal House leader, when he was elected mayor of the city by acclamation yesterday. With the municipal difficulties citizens urgently pressed Mr. Sinclair to assume office and other candidates for the mayoralty stepped aside in order that he might be elected without a vote. An acclamation was also given to Frank L. Mason, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission this year, who with J. C. Fowlds will again serve on the commission. With all members of this year's city council nominated for re-election only five qualified yesterday but an election is assured as twelve new candidates are standing. With seven candidates running for board of education and five to be elected, there will also be a contest in this field.

Those who have qualified are:

For City Council—(Ten to be elected)—Harry H. Cawker, Allan P. Annis, H. P. Schell, Henry Foote, A. J. Parkhill, W. J. Lock, C. Harman, Thomas Hawkes, T. B. Mitchell, G. L. McLaughlin, W. Boon, F. Jackson, A. S. McLeese, L. S. Hyman, J. B. Hutchison, Dr. F. J. Rundle and G. T. Morris.

For Board of Education—Dr. F. J. Donovan, R. S. Humphrey, Mrs. G. Colpus, Dr. C. O. Miller, Dr. S. J. Phillip, W. J. Sulley and A. V. Swail.

Obituary

WILLIAM HENRY

The death occurred today of William Henry at his residence 143 London street, at the age of 77 years.

A native of Scotland, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Henry and had lived in this country since he was six months of age. Mr. Henry was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Besides his wife, Mr. Henry is survived by one brother Alexander Henry of Cameron, Ont., and a sister Mrs. Angus McLean of Toronto.

The funeral is to be held on Friday at 2 p.m. from the family residence, with services conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

ERNEST ARTHUR WYATT.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning of Ernest Arthur "Buster" Wyatt, of 490 Driscoll Terrace at the age of 25, following an illness of two days' duration.

A son of Henry Arthur Wyatt of Windsor and of the late Mrs. Wyatt, the deceased young man had spent his entire life in this city. He was educated at King George school and was a member of St. Luke's church. He had lately been employed as a draughtsman.

Besides his father, Mr. Wyatt is survived by one sister, Mrs. Allen of this city, and his grandmother, Mrs. J. L. Wyatt, by whom he was brought up. His mother predeceased him 22 years ago.

The funeral is to be held on Friday from the residence at 1 p.m., with services conducted by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, rector of St. Luke's church. Interment at Fenelon Falls cemetery.

THREE CHILDREN KILLED ON VANCOUVER STREETS

VANCOUVER, Dec. 28 (C.P.) — Third fatal street traffic accident in Vancouver since Saturday occurred when four-year-old Freda Rothstein was crushed to death under the wheels of a street car. The child ran in front of the car in an attempt to cross the street.

The other traffic victims were John Fielding, 31, and Gerald Tielens, 68, both struck by automobiles. Fielding died twelve hours after being struck. Tielens was killed instantly. Both accidents occurred late Saturday night. Eleven persons were injured.

College Tackles Marriage Course

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 28. (AP)—To prepare for matrimony, or to solve family problems of the already wedded, Butler University to-day announced it will offer a course in marriage.

The instructor will be Charles R. Metzger, 39, twice-married attorney with experience in divorce cases.

The two-cheaper-than-one theory doesn't apply here, although married couples may register for $7.50 while single students pay $5 per semester.

Dr. Albert E. Bailey, dean of the University extension division, pointed to the Marion county (Indianapolis) divorce rate for 1930 of 40.55 divorces for each 100 weddings, as compared with the 16.6 rate for the entire nation.

NO CHRISTMAS BABIES

The stork and Santa Claus did not come together to any Peterborough home this Christmas, although at Nicholls Hospital the stork arrived a few hours before St. Nicholas and then again some hours after him.

The nearest approach to Christmas babies came to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen, 7 New Chamberlain Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rowan, Ida. Both were boys, the Bowen baby arriving at 6.50 p.m., December 24, and the Rowan infant at 3.55 a.m. yesterday.

DONATIONS.

The Examiner acknowledges gratefully donations to its Relief Fund from Miss McNevan, 270 King street; $1 from a Friend; Christmas dinner from Mr. Clark, 566 Armour road; quantity of candy in fancy bags for children, from the Merry Makers' Club.

We are also glad to say that the baby who was wishful for a high chair to eat its Christmas dinner in proper style, was offered half a dozen from various interested friends. It received a nice chair.

A LATE THOUGHT FLOWER.

Mr. W. A. Greenslade of Dalhousie street, sported a boutonnere of pansies on Sunday, plucked from his garden. They appeared just as fresh and fragrant as those of summer, even though they had a late blossoming on Christmas morn.

Unique Nickel Found

One of the young ladies at the Elite Cafe received a nickel during Christmas week, in change, which is probably not of much present value as a coin, but is interesting as a curio. The reverse side has been worn down to a perfectly smooth surface, on which someone began to trace the Lord's Prayer in extremely fine characters. The worker grew tired, possibly, because the sentences stop at "Thy kingdom come." Below that is scratched roughly, "W. N. O.". The nickel was struck in Queen Victoria's reign, as the head of the queen, in youthful days, appears on the reverse side.

CALIFORNIA IS COLD.

Papers received from California report the heaviest falls of snow this month in different parts of the State that have been recorded. An Atascadero, Cal., paper reports the freezing of pipes and the enjoying of a new sport by boys and girls, that of snow-balling and the building of snow men and snow forts. What Easterners call California's monotonous climate has had its routine rudely shattered this year.

Weddings

MANIECE—PAMMETT

The wedding was solemnized quietly to-day at two o'clock, by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, at St. Luke's Church, of Florence Eleanor Pammett, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Pammett, Hunter street east, to Mr. Robert Gordon Maniece, son of Mrs. Robert Maniece of James street, and the late Mr. Maniece.

The wedding music for the young people, who were unattended, was played by the church organist, Mr. W. C. Thompson.

The bride wore a lovely frock in wine red Bordeaux velvet, with matching velvet turban, touched with silver, crepe slippers also in matching tones, and flesh hose and gloves. Her corsage bouquet was of Joanna Hill roses and lily of the valley.

After the ceremony, Mr. Maniece and his bride left by motor for a short honeymoon trip, the latter travelling in dark brown, with tailored dress of rough crepe, dark brown coat with cape of muskrat, and brown accessories. On their return, they will live at 84 James street.

CHANGES LAID TO CIVIL WAR

Canadian Farmers Enlarged Program When 1862-64 Wheat Crop Failed.

PLANNED FOR EXPORT.

TORONTO, Dec. 28. (C.P.) — "Canadian Agriculture underwent two important changes as a result, in part at least, of the American Civil War—the introduction on a considerable scale of new varieties of farm machinery and the turning from wheat to a more diversified product" said Prof. Fred Landon of Univevrsity of Western Ontario in addressing the American Historical Society convention here.

Canadians expected, at the opening of the war, large profits would be realized from the sale of wheat to the United States for its war needs but these expectations were not fulfilled" he said. The Upper Canada crops of 1862-63-64 were below average while the United States itself had such enormous crops it was able to meet all its own needs and supply England's shortage of 1861-62 as well.

Disappointment in Upper Canada at the wheat failure led to a questioning of the whole agricultural system of the province and gave stimulus to a more diversified program which would include dairying, cheese-making, livestock and the production of wool and flax.

SASKATCHEWAN REFUSES OIL COMPANY'S LOAN

REGINA, Dec. 27.—(C.P.)— The Saskatchewan Government to-day had decided against acceptance of a loan of $250,000 made by the Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., which would enable the government to postpone motor license fees until April 1.

The offer was made to enable the government to finance services dependent on motor license revenue ordinarily received in the early months of the year. The 1933 motor license policy will be adhered to and will go into effect Jan. 1.

Announcement of the decision was made by Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Provincial Treasurer and Attorney-General.

The decision means that motorists will be required to purchase a 1933 license from Jan. 1 as previously announced, although the fees for next year will be reduced by $2.50 from the 1932 figures.

Mayor Denne's Address To The Electors

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—

In offering myself as a candidate for re-election to the Mayoralty, I am yielding to the request of large numbers of citizens who have urged me to do so. I am deeply appreciative of the honor they have done me and the confidence they have shown in me by their desire that my services should continue to be available.

It is not a particularly pleasant task to be at the head of affairs in times like these, and I realize the fact that next year is likely to be an unusually trying one. However, if this community feels that I am capable of rendering useful service in a period of stress, I am willing to do what I can to bring Peterborough safely through. I was born here; I have lived all my life here; my interests are and always have been here, and my chief ambition has ever been to make this a better, a more prosperous and more thriving city.

It has never been my practice to make extravagant promises; I am not going to make any now. My record as a servant of the people is before you; if you are satisfied with that record and satisfied that I have made an honest and diligent effort to contribute something to the betterment of this community and accordingly return me to office. I pledge myself simply to carry on as I have done during the past five years, seeking to improve Peterborough in industrial opportunities, in appearance, in living conditions, and in all else that goes to make a city worth living in and to exercise every economy consistent with maintaining the efficiency of necessary services and of making adequate provision for those who are unhappily victims of the serious unemployment situation.

With the whole-hearted co-operation of the City Council, progress along those lines has, I feel, been made during my term, and the added experience and closer acquaintance with the details of all branches of municipal activity that five years in office have given me are factors that should increase that progress.

The issue is in your hands, and I am content to leave it there.

May I, in closing, be permitted to wish all citizens of Peterborough a happy New Year, with the hope that ere another twelve months have gone the clouds of depression will have passed and this city will have felt the impulse of returning prosperity.

Sincerely yours,

Roland Denne.

Leafs Win From Hawks 4-3 to Strengthen Lead

COSTLY VICTORY FOR IRVIN CLAN AT WINDY CITY

Toronto Scores Four Goals in First Period to Take Lead and Game.

OTTAWA BLANKS MAROONS

Bruins' Fluke Goal Defeats Canadiens in Hockey Farce at the Hub.

TORONTO, Dec 28.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs today returned to home ice with their first casualty of the season, a fractured collar bone placing Charlie Conacher, ace right winger out of action for ten weeks or more. Conacher's injury was the price of 4-3 victory last night at Chicago over the Black Hawks and was the Leafs' first success in nine attempts at Chicago.

The Leafs' win enabled them to keep pace with the climbing Senators of Ottawa who ousted Montreal Maroons from second place in the Canadian section by downing them 3-0 at Ottawa. The victory kept Ottawa within three points of the leading Toronto team.

Leadership of the American section changed hands for the third time since Saturday when Boston hurdled into first place over the idle New York Rangers with a somewhat lucky 1-0 triumph over Canadiens who lived up to their promise of playing defensive rockey. The lone goal of the game was a high drifting shot that George Hainsworth misjudged.

3-1 Win for Wings

In a clash of the cellar-place rivals Detroit Red Wings solved the puzzling New York Americans' style of play for three goals at New York and wound up with a 3-1 victory that brought them to with-in one point of the defeated Black Hawks.

The game at Chicago started out like a runaway affair for the Leafs, who, smart from a 2-1 reverse by the Hawks on Saturday, rammed three goals past Charlie Gardiner in four minutes of the first period. Conacher started the scoring bee, Harvey Jackson made it two and King Clancy added a third. Happy Day made it 4-0 later in the period before the Hawks attack functioned and Johnny Gottselig scored their first goal. A furious Hawk drive in the second period brought two goals and cut the weakened Leafs' lead to one slim marker. Don McFayden shot the first one on assists by Tommy Cook and Teddy Graham and then slipped Cook the pass for the second goal. The Leafs' defense held tight through a hard-pressed third period to eke out victory.

Conacher's injury came late in the period when he crashed into the boards on a furious drive on the Chicago net. He resumed play in the period and it was not until an examination was made at the intermission that his fractured collar bone was disclosed. The Leafs will probably draw on either Bill Thoms or Dave Downey of the Syracuse Stars to fill the gap at right wing until the big sharp-shooter is ready for action. The International league club has a working agreement with the Stanley Cup holders to make such a move possible.

Ottawa Senators took a roaring, fighting game at Ottawa. Hec Kilrea gave the Senators the lead in the first period on a pass from crafty Frank Finnigan. The Ottawans held grimly to it during the scoreless second session and took advantage of Maroons' desperate offensive in the third period to slip in two more goals. Bill Touhey and Cooney Weiland were the marksmen.

Spoils Hub Game

Canadiens, keeping their threat to play defensive hockey at Boston, spoiled the evening for the Hub town crowd but lost their own game when Harry Oliver, lazy-moving in keeping with the spirit of the game, lofted the puck from away out and it drifted behind Hainsworth for the only goal of the game. It gave Tiny Thompson his fifth shutout of the season.

Long limbed Ebbie Goodfellow started Detroit Red Wings to their win at New York with a goal in the first two minutes of the game. Frank Carson added another within a minute after earning an assist on Goodfellow's marker. Carl Voss lengthened the margin with the only goal of the second period on assists by Eddie Wiseman and Doug Young.

Wilf "Twinkle" Starr, youthful recruit from the Canadian-American League, scored Americans' only goal in the third period on a lone handed dash and shot that bounced off the goalpost into the net.

Amateur Union Asked To Reinstate Nurmi

BOSTON, Dec. 26.—Karl A. Hill, prominent in Finnish sports circles, yesterday said he had asked the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union officials to call a special meeting to act on the reinstatement of Paava Nurmi, Finnish running star.

Hill has written to Avery Brundage, president of the United States organization, asking for action, and quoted Nurmi as having told him that "No money is so great to make me turn professional."

Iso-Hollo and Virtanen, two Finnish distance runners and stars in the recent Olympic games, are awaiting the official sanction of the Government of Finland for a trip to America. Hill said arrangements had been completed for their appearance at Knights of Columbus and the B.A.A. games in Boston, the New York A.C., and the Millrose games in New York.

RON. MOFFAT LIKELY PILOT

May Fill Hay's Shoes as Playing Manager of Detroit Olympics.

BORDERITES WIN 3-1.

TORONTO, Dec. 28 (C.P.)—Detroit Olympics to-day had plugged the hole into which they had dropped three straight games, and judging by their sparkling 3-1 win over Buffalo Bisons last night, appeared to have taken on a new lease of life.

In addition to the spirited offensive they displayed in their victory last night, a probable successor to former playing manager George Hay, recently promoted to the Red Wings of the National Hockey League was also uncovered.

In the performance of Ron Moffatt, Detroit fans saw one who may yet make them forget Hay's scoring feats. Moffatt scored two of the Olympics' total and gave a most finished display with his stick. He scored one in the first period on a pass from Gus Marker and in the second he worked his way out of a tangle in time to take a pass from Gordie Brydson and slip it past Bus Taugher for his second goal.

Godin reduced the margin when he beat Johnnie Clark, Detroit goalie in the same period, but only 20 seconds had elapsed when Taylor again gave the Olympics a two-goal lead on an assist from Leo Goldsworthy.

Heavy work developed in the final canto and the defences easily overshadowed the attacking divisions, resulting in a scoreless session.

$34,000 FIRE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 27 (C.P.)—Damage estimated at $34,000 was caused by a fire which swept a flour mill, telephone office and building belonging to the John Kay Estate at Pickford, Mich., early to-day. The loss was partly covered by insurance. The fire started from an explosion in a coal heater in the telephone office.

TRIPLE SCHEDULE WILL BE RUN IN EAST PETERBOROUGH LEAGUE

Season Opens Next Wednesday Night With Double-header at Brock.

THREE WEEKS' SCHEDULE.

The East Peterborough Hockey League schedule was drawn up for three weeks last night by the loop officers in Duffus'. A triple schedule will be run if possible, depending upon the weather toward the end of January and early the following month. It opens next Wednesday night with a double-header at the Brock, Norwood meeting Maple Leafs at 7.45, followed at 9.00 by Lakefield and Westclox.

Arrangements were made to permit City Hockey League games to be run off in conjunction with E.P.L. contests on January 6th, 9th, 13th, 18th and 20th, the East Peterborough League games to be run off either first or last, and the latter loop perhaps being able to help the minor teams with transportation. Ray Rose and Archie Weir were named to referee the first games on January 4th. Following is the schedule so far:

Jan. 4—Norwood at Maple Leafs.
Jan. 4—Lakefield at Westclox.
Jan. 6—Westclox at Norwood.
Jan. 6—Maple Leafs at Lakefield.
Jan. 9—Maple Leafs at Norwood.
Jan. 11—Norwood at Lakefield.
Jan. 13—Westclox at Norwood (Westclox home game).
Jan. 13—Maple Leafs at Lakefield.
Jan. 16—Lakefield at Norwood.
Jan. 18—Maple Leafs at Westclox.
Jan. 20—Maple Leafs at Norwood (Leafs' home game).

COLLEGIANS COP INITIAL VICTORY OF O.H.A. SEASON

Smillie Scores Twice and Hendry Once for Winners—Lamport Averts Shutout.

A LISTLESS BATTLE

(By The Canadian Press)

University of Toronto Ontario Hockey Association Seniors had today handed their supporters a somewhat belated Christmas present in the form of their initial victory of the season. In a intro-city clash with National Sea Fleas last night, the Collegians outscored their opponents 3-1, and incidentally grabbed off four points, because of the single schedule under which they operate.

After threatening to break into the win column in their last few games, Varsity finally clicked and at the same time handed Nationals their third straight loss.

Don Smillie, the lanky Blue and White rearguard performer, who ranks with the best in the group, was the outstanding player of the game, connecting for two goals and playing a strong defensive game.

More Grief for Nationals

The hard-luck Allan Cup holders, riddled be retirements and injuries, had more grief added to their cup of misery when Scotty MacAlpine, their bouncing defence man, collided with Smillie behind the National goal and suffered a gash in his ankle which required four stitches to close. He will be in retirement for a couple of games.

Art Hendry and Maxie Fullerton worked together for the first Varsity counter in the opening period, Hendry scoring. Smillie, in the second period drifted a shot between the Sea Fleas' defence, that trickled through Ronnie Geddes' pads, for the second Varsity goal.

Four minutes after the start of the final period, Normie Lamport and Clare McIntyre combined, and Lamport's beautiful drive beat Shipp in the Varsity nets. Shipp's stellar goal tending all through the affair was disheartening to the Sea Fleas.

Caught Flat-Footed

With 16 seconds of play remaining, Smillie caught the five National players "ganging" the Varsity net, and left them flat-footed, to bore in on Geddes for the final counter of the night.

Bridgenorth Club In Favor Of Dogs

W. Trude one of the senior members of Bridgenorth Hunt Club sought out one of The Examiner reporters recently, and made emphatic protest regarding an item that recently appeared in this journal and which purported to express the views of the Bridgenorth Hunt Club members on the question of hunting without dogs.

"Wherever the item came from," Mr. Trude protested, "it is certainly erronous in stating that the members of our club favor deer hunting without dogs. Nothing is farther from the truth."

He added that the members of the hunt club went away back into the Pakesley district for their annual hunt, and that several wounded bucks were lost just simply because they lacked the dogs to trail them.

HUNTER WOUNDED

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 27 (C.P.)—Paul Swatz, Pelee Island, is in hospital at Leamington suffering from gunshot wounds in the face and upper part of the body. His condition is regarded as critical. Swatz was accidently shot while hunting rabbits, and was brought to the mainland by the mail plane which recently resumed its winter service to the island.

WRONG PLACE

SAN FRANCISCO.—A street car conductor and motorman and half a dozen passengers gasped in amazement as a jack-rabbit zigzagged a frightened course around the car on a downtown business street and then took refuge in a grocery. All agreed somebody's Christmas gift must have got lost.

WINDOW THIEF

WINDSOR.—No trace has been found of a man who broke the window of a jewelery store to-day and got away with a quantity of goods on display. The loss has not yet been estimated.

Conacher Injured At Chicago

After scoring the first goal for the Maple Leafs at Chicago last evening, Charlie Conacher sustained a broken collar bone when he crashed into the boards. Dave Downey of Syracuse Stars will replace him.

ADVERTISING for the MERCHANT of TO-DAY

Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR

A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough district with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

DRESSING WINDOWS

The first essential in the dressing of a window or an advertisement is an eye-catcher to command attention. An advertisement is of little value unless people read it—so a window is ineffective if people do not look into it.

Attention for your window can be obtained in many ways—by background—by lighting—by a single product—by a grouping of related products—or through what is called a catalogue window, that is a window crowded full with many products which command attention by their varied appeal.

It is my purpose here to mention a few of the window ideas that the writer has noticed recently.

The X-ray window, that is illustrating the unseen but most important parts of the product. For example, a recent window showed a man's coat hung up against a background of a contrasting colour with white tapes pinned on the garment leading to placards in different parts of the window. One referred to the cloth as "all pure wool," another "pure wool tweed pre-shrunk," another as "hand-tailored three-button sack", still another with a tape from the collar "hair cloth foundation", another regarding the lining and so on.

A furniture dealer used the same idea on a chesterfield suite, referring to the frame, the springs, canvas and covering. Many many products can be handled in this way, making the window not only a display but an active producer of sales.

Some of the clothing specialists are using most effectively a display of related lines, when displaying a suit of clothes. They make up their window with a background, a rug on the floor, a dressing table or a man's chiffonier and a couple of chairs with a suit thrown across one chair, and carefully placed an overcoat, shoes, tie, gloves, hat and a cane, etc. The furniture items can be borrowed from your neighbour. Similar windows of feminine character are equally effective.

An effective accessory is made from a sheet of beaver board or wall board approximately four by six feet and suitably framed with heavy molding. One side is painted or covered with a black background framed in brown, and on this is pinned or fastened small lines such as in the case of a store handling men's furnishings, collars, half a dozen ties, gloves, handkerchiefs; and for ladies' wear, gloves, handkerchiefs, scarfs, etc. In a display of this kind use comparatively few articles so that the eye is not distracted and the full effect of the background is secured.

Double display. I recently noticed a very ingenious treatment of a window in order to give two types of articles prominence without one distracting from the other. This was the window of a merchant who handled both men's clothing and shoes. The window had glass on the front and on the entrance side. Along the bottom of these two sides were placed boards about 12 inches wide and meeting at the corner with a mitred joint. They were raised at the back, so that they showed a slight slope on the face.

The boards were covered with cloth and on these were placed pairs of shoes with ample space between the different pairs, the toes toward the window with a price ticket or the name of the shoe used to advantage. The main clothing display was in the portion of the window behind these boards Many variations can be used on this scheme and as the boards are removable the window can be used with or without them at any time.

The essential part of the window dressing is to have frequent changes so that not only the products in the window but the method of dressing never becomes stale. You keep them guessing as to what you are going to do next.

NEXT WEEK: "FROM THE MEDICINE STANDPOINT"

SCREEN ODDITIES

An invention department, wherein all sorts of novel and unusual devices for motion pictures are originated, is maintained at Paramount studios. For "Under Cover Man" it was necessary to produce a fountain pen dagger to be used by George Raft. A spring is touched and the knife snaps out of the end of the pen. Weird scientific apparatus is made in this deparment and many devices of practical use in the production of pictures are also perfected. Thirty-five inventors are employed to create devices originated in stories by writers.

Neil Hamilton has a motion picture 2,000 feet in length of his daughter Patricia Louise, which he has been making since she was an infant. The picture shows important events in her life and traces the various stages of her "growing up." Some of it is in color. When Patricia Louise is old enough to go to school, her father expects to have a complete feature length film of her. The average feature runs 7,000 to 8,000 feet in length.

FIFTEEN SPORTS WRITERS VOTE JACK SHARKEY RANKING HEAVY

Max Baer's Elevation to Third Position in the "Charmed Circle's 10" Hailed as Most Radical Change in Rankings.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN, PHILADELPHIA VETERAN SUFFERS RADICAL LOSS IN PRESTIGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (AP) — The annual consensus of the New Sun, based on the votes of 60 boxing writers, gives first place in the heavyweight ranks to Max Schmeling, of Germany, for the third straight year, despite the fact that the "Black Uhlan" lost his world championship to Jack Sharkey during the past summer.

Schmeling was voted the best of the heavyweights by 38 writers while only 15 thought that Sharkey's disputed 15 round decision over the German in June entitled him to top ranking.

How They Stand

Here is how they were ranked in the consensus:

1, Max Schmeling; 2, Jack Sharkey; 3, Max Baer; 4, Stanley Poreda; 5, Primo Carnera; 6, Johnny Risko; 7, King Levinsky; 8, Mickey Walker; 9, Young Stribling; 10, Ernie Schaaf.

Honorable mention — Tommy Loughran, Larry Gains, Steve Hamas, Unknown Winston; Charlie Retzlaff, Lee Ramage, Paul Uzcudun; Tuffy Griffiths, Arthur Huttick.

Probably the most radical change in the year's rating was the elevation of Max Baer, the Livermore, Cal., walloper, to third place from a position in the "honorable mention" list outside the first 10 in 1931. Baer knocked out Walter Cobb during the past year, beat King Levinsky twice, Ernie Schaaf, Tom Heeney, Paul Swiderski and Arthur De Kuh, and now stands in the finest position of all the young contenders, matched with Schmeling by promoter Jack Dempsey for a 15-round battle somewhere in June.

Another youngster, Stanley Poreda of Jersey City, boosted himself by his achievements over the year from ninth to fourth place as he outpointed Tommy Loughran, Ernie Schaaf and the giant Primo Carnera, who landed fifth place.

Interesting Notes

The comeback of Johnny Risko, the ancient rubber man from Cleveland who went unranked in 1931, added another interesting note to the rating.

Perhaps the most radical loss in prestige was suffered by Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia veteran who faded from third place in the 1931 ranking. Tuffy Griffiths of Chicago also fell into the discards from eighth place along with Paulino Uzcudun, tenth last year.

Three others lost ground. Schaaf skidded from fourth in 1931, Walker from fifth and Young Stribling from sixth.

COLLEGE STARS GATHER FOR SPORT EVENTS AT LAKE PLACID

McGill and Dartmouth Hockey Teams to Start Series With Game To-night.

FORMER FAVORED.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., Dec. 28 (C.P.)—The hockey men of McGill and Dartmouth to-day awaited the call into action to raise the curtain on a week of Canadian-American college rivalry at Winter sports. The teams meet to-night in the first tussle of a three-game hockey series, to be followed by competition among representatives of these and other colleges in the two countries in ski-running and jumping, snow-shoeing and skating.

The Red Jerseyed McGill team has shown its power in games this season against other U. S. college extettes. They have beaten Harvard twice and Yale once in their only meetings. Dartmouth has been turning out strong hockey teams longer than any other American university.

Smart Combination

Here since Monday, the Dartmouth puck chasers have breezed through a pair of workouts which served to show their smart combination attack. They have speed, are noted as hard checkers, and created a strong impression until the McGill boys arrived Tuesday afternoon and almost immediately took the ice.

The Red Shirts practiced "under wraps," seeking only to shake out the travelling kinks, but their passing spoke of class and their speed was even greater than that of the Green-clad crew they meet to-night.

The Harding Trophy will be at stake when the large contingent of college athletes swing into competition in the other lines of Winter sports. A cross-country ski-run will start the program Friday morning and ski jumping, on the Intervales Olympic Hill, Monday, will close it.

In addition to McGill, Canada will be represented by athletes from Trinity and University of Toronto; St. Patrick's and University of Ottawa.

Yale, Harvard and Cornell will be lined up alongside Dartmouth in an effort to keep the Harding Trophy in the U. S.

NEW RECORDS IN NATIONAL

Boston Braves Better Old Club Fielding Mark By One Percentage Point.

RECORDS IN ASSISTS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Brilliant fielding by National League players during the past season resulted in the creation of five new records and the tying of three old marks, official figures released to-day show.

The Boston Braves bettered the old club fielding mark by one percentage point. The previous record of .975 was established by the Chicago Cubs in 1929.

Two new league records for assists were made. The Chicago Cubs on Aug. 23 had only one assist, while the league total dropped to 14,683. The former low of 15,020 was made in 1930.

R. Earl Grace, Pittsburg, was the best fielding catcher with .998 and bettered by two points the record set by Frank Hogan of the Giants in 1931. Grace also made another league record by accepting 444 chances from Aug. 29, 1931, to Sept. 8, 1932, without an error.

Wallie Berger, Boston outfielder, topped his class with .993, that tied the record held by Louis B. Duncan of Cincinnati since 1923.

The Philadelphia Phillies, with four passed balls, tied the record made by St. Louis in 1925 and equalled by New York in 1928. The Giants again tied the mark for most double plays in a nine-inning game when they made 6 on Aug. 12. The Reds established the mark on June 20, 1925, which was tied by the Pirates on Sept. 23, 1925, and by the Giants, May 15, 1928.

A fielding percentake of .993 enabled Frank Hurst, Philadelphia, to top the first basemen while Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, Boston, was the best fielding second baseman with .975. Arthur Whitney, Philadelphia, led the third basemen with .960 and Bill Jurges of the Cubs topped the shortstops with .964.

Wallie Berger's .993 put him at the head of the outfielders and Grace led the catchers. Twenty-one pitchers fielded 1,000, the leadership being gained by Freddie Heimach of Brooklyn. Heimach handled 51 chances without a miss and in doing so made it two years straight he has fielded perfectly.

Three points behind the leading Boston Braves came the champion Cubs in club-fielding, while the others finished in the following order: St. Louis, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, New York, Pittsburg and Philadelphia.

Only two triple plays were made, one by Boston and the other by Brooklyn. Boston had the most put-outs, 4,235, and Brooklyn the most double plays, 169, and the most assists, 1,960. Philadelphia committed 194 errors to lead in that department.

SARNIA APPOINTS NEW CHIEF

SARNIA, Ont.—John J. Anderson, member of the fire department for 16 years, has been appointed fire chief here. He succeeds Burton J. Batty, who disappeared some weeks ago and was recently located at Memphis, Tenn. The former chief, who claimed he had been robbed and "taken for a ride" has not returned and is reported ill at the home of relatives in Rochester, N.Y.

PROVING THE CASE.

STEUBENVILLE, O., December 28 (C.P.). — Warnings of fire hazards in connection with the Christmas season, issued by Fire Chief Edward Green, were faithfully observed by everyone but firemen. The only blaze occurred in a firehouse, where firemen, engaged in a controversy as to whether their Christmas tree was inflammable, applied a match to find out. It was.

FIRE OUSTS FAMILY.

TORONTO. — Nine persons were driven to the street when fire broke out early to-day in their home. The blaze was soon extinguished, with damage slight.

Mrs. George Williams was awakened by smoke. She roused her husband, and together they roused the other members of the household. The Williams' 18-months-old baby was carried to safety.

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

Local soccer officials are thinking seriously of breaking away from the Ontario Football Association for next year. They will discuss it thoroughly and make up their minds at the annual meeting next month. It's a matter of finance or rather the lack of them, which makes such a step look attractive. The trouble seems to be that the league pays its annual fee but gets very little in return, and the winning team eats up far too much money in travelling the distances necessary to compete in the provincial playdowns. Soccer centres, at least in Eastern Ontario, are too far apart.

* * * * * * *

Other cities, such as Belleville have deemed it wiser to drop away from the Ontario body, for a time anyway, for the same reason. They can hardly be blamed. While organized soccer is a good thing generally, yet in these times when money is as scarce as buggy whips in Detroit, it is more important to keep the game going—even though it means running an independent league for a year. That's what the Peterborough Association is thinking of doing, dropping out for a year or so and try to get a little mazuma ahead. They dropped dough last year.

The Ladies' City Basketball League opens at the Y.W. one week from this Friday with four games. The schedule, appearing elsewhere today, calls for games every Friday and Monday nights till about the middle of March, when first and second teams in both the junior and senior sections will playoff for the titles and trophies. One game only will be played on Monday evenings, starting at 9.30. On Friday nights, four games will be run off, at 7.30, 8.20, 9.05, and at 9.50 p.m. They must be started on time.

Six teams in the Senior Series this year, St. Paul's, "Y" Seniors, Westclox, "Y" Intermediates, C.G.E. and Blue Petes. The five junior squads are Wohelo Club, Westclox Juniors, St. Andrew's, Senior School and C.G.E. Juniors. The damsels play smart basketball and the competition last year was plenty keen. With many of the former stars practising with the different teams again, we look for a good year for the gal cagers in 1933.

* * * * * * *

And another race that might be plenty warm is the City Hockey League one. St. Peter's High School was around the last to enter and pipe the following list of players who have been working out with this squad: Devlin, Archambault, Galvin, Brady, Murdock, J. Bailey, McCarthy, Sweetman, Kennedy, Hallihan and Wells, besides others. They've had three workouts so far, and if this bunch all signs up, they should give St. Peter's a team comparable to any that have made sporting history at that knowledge factory in years gone by. Mike O'Brien is acting as coach.

* * * * * * *

The City Hockey League is being aided materially by the E.P.L. which loop gave them five nights for games to be played on the same evenings of East Peterborough games either here or in Norwood. The city games may be played before the intermediate ones, and where possible in the case of city teams having to go to Norwood, the E.P.L. will assist them in the matter of transportation. This is the spirit of co-operation we like to see in amateur ranks. Here's the O.H.A. club sponsoring the City League teams, and also with a team in the E.P.L., while the latter league is doing all it can to aid both the Hockey Club and the minor city teams. You can't beat that for working together.

* * * * * * *

The East Peterborough League drew up its schedule for three weeks last night, and they hope to run off a triple schedule before the playoffs. It opens with a dobule header at the Brook next Wednesday, all four teams taking part. Maple Leafs is the name of the team sponsored by the Hockey Club, but the manager has not yet been named. First game Wednesday will be at a quarter to eight, with the second one commencing at nine bells. Archie Weir will referee the second fixture, Abbie Rose handling the bell in the first go. Other referees will be selected later. It's Norwood vs. Maple Leafs and Lake vs. Westclox the 4th.

* * * * * * *

A couple of the Peterborough teams' games have been listed for Norwood in order to give O.H.A. contests here plenty of room. Alex Kempt wants lots of hockey down in Norwood as the fans and players there like all the good hockey they can get. Other teams like playing there, too. Lakefield fans, who didn't exactly break any records attending last winter, are expected to support a fast, youthful Lakefield team better this season. As for the local squads, if they can dish up good, colorful hockey, the followers of the game and of the E.P.L. will be on deck.

* * * * * * *

It continues to look bad for the opening intermediate O.H.A. game between Bowmanville and the Petes here Friday night. Unless the temperature takes a high dive pretty promptly, there'll be no ice and the tussle will have to be shelved for the time being. A number of natural-ice centres, due to open up this week, are plenty worried. The local junior squad will doubtless open the following week in weather cold enough, but it doesn't look so good for the intermediates. Depends on to-night and tomorrow.

Grab bag: Twenty-five boys are learning to box in Campbellford three nights a week under Sam Lambert, one-time lightweight champ of the British army .... The Flying Frenchmen determined to play a strictly defensive game in Boston last night; they did and lost the game as well as a bunch of friends .... Dempsey has stirred up plenty by signing up Baer and Schmeling under the noses of Garden officials; and now the synthetic champ, Sharkey, says he will not give Schmeling a match .... Giving two or three hockey players assists on a goal scored is coming in for plenty of criticism, as only the player having the puck just before the scorer should be so credited.

FERRY CRIPPLED

COBOURG.—Car ferry Ontario Number 2 limped into port here after being laid up at Rochester since Sunday night. The vessel is believed to have struck some logs on the Genesee River Sunday, snapping off a number of propellor blades. It was grounded in the mud there until freed by locomotives. Temporary repairs were made at Genesee and the ferry returned to Cobourg where new blades will be installed. Members of the crew reported the trip across Lake Ontario was uneventful.

RUTH'S NEW PAY PLACED AT $70,000

Lefty O'Doul and Van Mungo Only Major League Players Signed to 1933 Contracts.

BEGIN WORK SOON

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—With only Lefty O'Doul and Van Mungo, of the Dodgers, signed to 1933 contracts, the three local major league ball clubs will get to work next week drawing up new contracts for their athletes which will be put into the mails early next month.

Every member of the world champion Yankees, all of the Giants and but those two aforementioned Brooklyn employees, must be brought into line with the Yankees facing the hardest problem.

As soon as the Yankees' contracts are received by the players, Col. Ruppert, owner, and Ed Barrow, business manager, will be reminded every day by some athlete that the Yanks won the pennant and the world championship last season. That's the argument the athletes use to land more dough. They will persist in reminding their employers what they did about bringing that pennant and world's title to New York, but they will never mention the fact that they not only received big salaries last season, btu that in winning that pennant and world series they also added a chunk of $5,000 or so to their own bank books.

Owners to Cut

Of course, the owners are going to cut and that means the Yankees. You can't operate a club like the Yanks and make money with the salaries that Col. Ruppert has been dishing out. It's different with Babe Ruth. He deserves all he can get. But Babe's contract will be cut a bit, too, with the boys wagering that there will be a contract for $60,000 offered and the Colonel and the Babe settling for $70,000. Herr Gehrig, the "Goofy" Gomes, Cholly Ruffing, Signor Lazzeri, Ben Chapman, Bill Dickey—just a few of those Barrow and the Colonel have to talk turkey to.

It will not be as different with the Giants and the Dodgers. The Brooklyn Club signed the two boys who did the best work last season. The others should not give the genial judge McKeever much trouble.

No Giant Problem

As for the Giants, all Charley Stoneham has to do is mention last year's showing, and those Giants, who had anything to do with that showing and who are still members of the club, should be willing to sign for whatever is offered.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By Canadian Press.)

West Palm Beach, Fla. — Pietro Corri, New York, and Irving Ashkanazy, Tallahassee, Fla., drew (10); Dave Barry, St. Louis, stopped Young Lucian, West Palm Beach (5).

Alexandria, Va. — Les Kennedy, Vernon, Calif., outpointed Bob Godwin, Moultrie, Ga. (8).

Indianapolis. — Tiger Jack Fox, Terre Haute, Ind., outpointed Larry Johnson, Chicago (10); Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis, and Young Walker, Los Angeles, drew (10); Rosy (Kid) Baker, Anderson, Ind. knocked out Bobby Vernon, Chicago (7).

Los Angeles.— Young Peter Jackson, Los Angeles, knocked out Bobby Pacho, El Centro, Calif. (10).

Small Crown Sees Norwood Fight Card

Six boxing bouts made up a tame card put on before a handful of fans in the Norwood Armories last night. Cowan A.C. fighters went on against those of Hastings, the main one being the best scrap of the show, Dutch McIlmoyle winning on a one-round technical kayo over George Smith of Campbellford, after both boys battled furiously for three minutes.

Following an unexciting curtain raiser, Young Runyons won on points from Jerry Brault; Jack Hennessey pulled out a decision over Jack Peel; Ray Harding won on a technical knockout in the second over his Hastings' opponent; with Marty Gordon losing the same way in the second to "Bat" Nelson. A lively but short-lived final bout wound up the program.

Sharkey Is Asked To Box For Dempsey

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—An offer went out to Jack Sharkey last night to gamble his heavyweight boxing crown against the fists of Max Schmeling or Max Baer, soon after the Boston gob, in unison with Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, had rather politely but firmly dubbed the German Maxie "yellow."

Former-champion Jack Dempsey, now a "big league" promoter, wired the officer to Sharkey. Ex-king Jack said he was ready to match the present-king Jack against either of the Maxies in September.

Vincent Powers, a leading jockey not so many years ago, rode six winners in one day. That was at the Fort Erie track.

"THE LOST SQUADRON"

This is one of those out of the ordinary pictures that come just so often, and leave a lasting memory. It holds the attention with its thrills and excitement, its laughter and pathos and tragedy and the lurking undercurrent of strangeness that is compounded of several ingredients. First, they are air-men, those new creatures that seem to have a mentality all their own. Second, they are returned men, and perhaps that explains the ruthlessness that animates some of the scenes.

"The Lost Squadron" has that atmosphere of stark reality that so often colors pictures in which von Stroheim appears or acts. No one, perhaps, at least in his audiences, likes him. He is the sum total of all that represented Hunnish villainy in the Great War. But he knows how to act, every minute, and he makes his productions real and vital.

It is a picture that is hard to describe, so holding is it in its mixed action. Like "Journey's End", it takes tragedy and courage and makes of them a stimulating brew, and "The Lost Squadron" adds that last vital touch; the element of air fighting and air thrills.

Four buddies come home from the war, to find the world, not waiting for them on a platter, but all in pieces, so far as they are concerned. When they land in Hollywood, they utilize the only talent they possess, the ability to fly, to earn a living, and there they run foul of von Stroheim, as the jealous producer who has married the former sweetheart of Gibson (Richard Dix), star of "The Lost Squadron." Von Stroheim is von Furst, producer; Mary Astor is Follette Marsh, his wife and Dix's former sweetheart; and the other three pals, Woody and Red and Fritz, are played by Joel McCrea, Robert Armstrong and Hugh Herbert. Just how romance and tragedy makes and mars their lives is told in the picture.

"The Lost Squadron" is thrilling and brilliant entertainment, and quite out of the ordinary. It is here until Friday, inclusive.

FOX FURS MISSING

SIMCOE, Ont.—Provincial Police to-day opened an investigation into the fire which destroyed the electric railway station with loss of $100,000 yesterday. No trace has been found of a shipment of fox furs which were in a burnt express shed. Burglars who were surprised by a station employe were believed to have set fire to the building.

INSIDE JOHNNY CHUCK'S HOUSE

Peter Rabbit was inside Johnny Chuck's house. Yes, sir, he was. He wasn't very far inside, but he was inside. To this day he declares that he never, never would have done such a thing of his own accord. Perhaps he wouldn't, but—well it's of no use to try—to decide what he would or wouldn't have done if he hadn't done just what he did do.

You see he was sitting there in front of Johnny Chuck's house down in the far corner of the Old Orchard, quite upset by Sammy Jay's suggestion that he should go down inside and see just how Johnny Chuck sleeps the winter away. His better feelings told him that he shouldn't think of such a thing. His curiosity demanded that he do it at once. And his timidity, for you know Peter is naturally very, very timid, kept him sitting right where he was.

How it would have ended nobody knows, not even Peter himself, had not Browser the Hound happened along. Peter was so busy trying to decide between his better feelings and his curiosity that he gave no heed to other things. The result was that Browser was in a jump and a half of Peter before Peter knew that he was anywhere about. There was just one thing to do and about Peter did it. He did it without stopping to think at all. He dived head first in at Johnny Chuck's doorway. In fact he was inside before he realized where he was. He didn't go far down that long dark hall. He didn't need to. That entrance was between two spreading roots of an old apple tree and Browser couldn't have dug his way in even if the ground had not been frozen. That was why Johnny Chuck had made his home right there.

"I should think I would hear him breathing in his sleep," thought Peter.

So Peter went only a little way inside and then turned to grin at Bowser in the most provoking way. Of course Bowser could see him and it provoked him greatly. He barked himself hoarse, and he scratched at the doorway until his toes were sore. After a while Peter grew tired of making faces at Bowser.

"I'm in here," thought he, "and being here I may as well see just what this house of Johnny Chuck's is like. I don't suppose it is much different from some of his old deserted houses which I use now and then for safety, but being here I may as well find out. I'm sure Johnny wouldn't object if he were here."

So little by little Peter crept farther and farther down the long hall towards Johnny Chuck's bedroom. All the time he had a guilty feeling, a feeling that he was doing something of which he ought to be ashamed. And all the time curiosity kept urging him on. He would move forward a step, then stop to listen. Hearing nothing he would go forward another step and then listen again. The only sounds he heard were the thumping of his own heart and the voice of Bowser the Hound outside. Nearer and nearer to Johnny Chuck's bedroom crept Peter and still there wasn't the teeniest weeniest sound from within.

"I should think I would hear him breathing in his sleep," thought Peter, and paused to listen with all his might. But he didn't hear Johnny Chuck breathing. There wasn't a thing to hint that there was another living creature in there.

"I don't believe there is," muttered Peter.

Just then he reached Johnny Chuck's bedroom.

What Today Means to YOU

by MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN"

If December 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8.30 a.m. to 9.50 a.m., from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to 11.45 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11.30 a.m. and from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Influences are such on this December 28th that even though you are a practical person you will find it difficult to "get down to earth." Your mind will have a tendency to wander, to drift in the clouds. You will accomplish little that will be apparent to the physical senses; but out of your mental wanderings may come ideas and plans which if put into practice will bring material returns at a later date.

The child born on this December 28th will have an eye for the beauties of the world, a taste for the finer things of life. He will not like to work hard with his hands. His work will be mental. He will be fanciful, and his highly idealistic thoughts may seek expression in music, painting or literature. Healthy, but not physically strong.

If December 28th is the date of your birth, you have many fears to overcome. Constantly, you are worrying about yourself and family and friends; you always anticipate the worst. Your tendency towards gloom often brings troubles your way. If you are a woman, you are the type who always expects an accident when motoring, you inevitably look for drafts with resulting aches and pains and colds, and even on the most bright and sunshiny day you are ever watchful for the clouds. You do not make the best parent for you inculate in your children your usually unreasonable fears. Why not turn from the dark and let in the light?

Born on December 28th, you have probably the legal type of mind. You grasp facts and situations quickly, you have the ability to see both sides of every question, and your orderly thought enables you to classify and arrange these facts methodically. You are a good public speaker and have the ability to make an impassioned plea. You throw your heart into your work. You enjoy making things with your hands, and if there is any puttering about or carpentering to be done around the house you are right on the job. You have no hobbies.

Norwood

About two hundred students and ex-students enjoyed the Norwood High School annual At Home which was held on Thursday evening in the Government Armouries. The hall was artistically decorated with flags and Christmas trees. The program consisted of promenades, games and Paul Jones'. Miss Hazel Rogers and Mr. Wilfred Buck were the winners of the spot dance; Miss Lola Starke and Mr. Bert Hagerman were the winners of the birthday dance. Splendid music was given by the Rhythmainians of Havelock; at midnight an excellent lunch was served. Congratulations are given to the pupils of the school for making their party a very successful one. The evening closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. Raymond Scott, B.A. of Westen is spending the vacation at his home here.

Passenger business on the United Air Lines increased 110 per cent in the first eleven months to 84,000, compared with 40,000 passengers carried in the like 1931 period, the company announced in Chicago.

Rush Point

Mr. John Woods is taking out some 300 cords of wood at Oak Lake. The wood is being trucked to Havelock, a distance of about 12 miles.

Mr. Archie Menzies has been visiting friends in the vicinity of Campbellford this week.

The ice in Round Lake is about 15 inches and a very fine quality.

Miss Pearl Barton of Havelock visited her aunt, Mrs. F. D. Barton of Rush Point this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keating visited friends at Rush Point on Monday.

Mr. Roy Keating of Campbellford is working with his uncle, Mr. Edward Keating, at present.

Mr. Freeman Hart of Rush Point celebrated his 94th birthday on December 11th. Mr. Hart is in fairly good health, and his friends in this vicinity hope to see him spend quite a number more of happy birthdays with them here at the old family residence Round Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Newton of Rush Point were given a surprise party and shower of gifts on Monday, December 19th, the great event being the celebration of their 25th wedding anniversary. A very large crowd attended the party and the numerous gifts were both useful and beautiful showing the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Newton are held in this section.

Music for the dancing was supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall, assisted by Mr. Murnie Barton and Mr. Joe McCutcheon.

After lunch was served the dancing and games were resumed and everyone proclaimed the evening a most enjoyable one.

OVER 2,500 TOYS WERE DISTRIBUTED

Firemen Wish to Thank Citizens for Fine Manner in Which they Responded to Requests.

Twenty-three truck loads of toys were distributed during the Christmas season by members of Peterborough Fire Department, and today Fire Chief George Gimblett expresses his thanks through the columns of The Examiner to all who responded so generously to the appeal, whether by the donation of old and broken toys, paint and materials, time and labor or motor trucks.

The response was magnificent and as a result over 2,500 toys were distributed throughout the city to children of twelve years and under, who would probably have been overlooked by Santa Claus had not the firemen volunteered their time and skill in fixing and renovating the toys.

Work of distribution was commenced at the Fire Hall early on Friday afternoon, and by ten o'clock that same night the six loaned trucks had completed a total of twenty-three trips and had cleaned up the bulk of the immense stack of toys that were destined to bring gladness and cheer to many a child's heart on Christmas morn.

The Chief remarked that several parcels of toys were returned to the Fire Hall by families where provision had already been made by relatives or friends. It was a fine spirit, said the Chief, and indicative of the desire of almost everyone in this city to see that no one was unprovided for.

Correctly Speaking—

Do not use a when or where clause in place or a predicate noun; use a noun with modifiers. Say "One form of cribbing is copying somebody's answer in an examination." Not "Cribbing is where you cop somebody's answer," etc.

NOMINATIONS WELL ATTENDED IN LAKEFIELD

Village Council Closes Year With Balance of $590.

CONSIDERABLE CRITICISM.

LAKEFIELD, December 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — The nomination for unimcipal offices held on Monday evening was attended by the largest number of ratepayers in a good many years. Criticism was levelled at some of the departments, but in the main the meeting was very calm and peaceful.

Captain Marling was elected as chairman of the after meeting and the first speaker, Reeve Tanner, announced that he would stand for the office of Reeve again on the strength of his past record. In spite of financial stress all over the country, the village has a balance of $590 on the right side, and also has not touched the money due from the Canada Cement Company.

Mr. Hill, nominated for the fourth consecutive term as councillor, was not decided as to whether he will stand or not. The present crisis with its accompanimnt of unemployment and dissatisfaction with conditions has hit Lakefield hard as the one big industry, the Canada Cement Company, employing normally about two hundred men, is closed down and the village has a large number of families to provide for, but it has been done without floating a loan or mortgaging the future of the town. The fixed expenditure has been cut to the bone, unemployed looked after, the budget balances, and the taxes reduced 1½ mills. "The road expenditure has been cut down; in ordinary times $4,000 was annually spent on the roads, and this year less than $2,000 and We have the best roads we ever had. (Laughter.) We haven't paved streets, but if you want them, it will add eight mills to your taxes." The tax due from the Canada Cement Company for not operating during 1932 is a legacy passed on to the next Council intact. Days of 40 mills taxes are practically over, and with the resumption of industry the rate will gradully decline. Probably ten mills will be knocked off next year.

In order to provide work for those on relief, it was decided to replenish the supply of stone for crushing for road and street work, and approximately 300 cords of stone is piled up ready for use and 200 cords more available, and only requires hauling to position. In addition, 13 acres of land have been reclaimed on municipal property.

Purchased Wood Lot.

For the winter relief work the Council went into the wood business and purchased a lot at a cost of $4.00 per acre, and has had applications from one dealer for 300 cords, from a second for 200 cords, and from a third for 100 cords. The sale of the wood will clear the expense of unemployment, and local people will have an opportunity to obtain fuel at cost for the ratepayers who pay the taxes should benefit.

J. R. Hill said there had been a lot of talk about the way the relief had been distributed among the stores, but the Council had tried its utmost to play fair and square with all. "It would be better if people, instead of knocking the Council on the street corners, would come to the Council Chamber and put their cards on the table and play them. We did not make these hard times, and the Council is trying to meet the demands of the times on the square."

Gavin Graham asked what was got at in the Good Roads Convention. Mr. Hull referred the matter to Mr. Hill, who had the report.

Mr. Hill recalled that he had issued a public statement under his own signature in the Lakefield News re this matter, but if Mr. Graham was not a subscriber or had mislaid his copy he would explain. The Townships receive a rebate of 50 per cent. on all road work done for the Provincial Government, while the villages in the county pay heavy rates and receive no rebate practically except on the main street where the $900 received only pays for the oil and leaves nothing toward other work. A washout near Mr. Kemp's cost the village a large sum and there was no rebate. "We took this to the Good Roads Convention, and in company with representatives of other villages we put the matter before the Government, and the Reeve and the speaker took part in the ensuing debate, and while we lost out, the matter is not dropped, but is very potent. We feel that the gasoline and automobile taxes should be applied on local upkeep of roads."

John A. Murphy declined the nomination because of lack of time to look after it.

Drops Out of Field.

Gavin Graham also said he would not be a candidate for re-election. He questioned the benefit of the trip to the Good Roads Convention, and said there was not five cents' return for the trip. "Let us use every persuasion to cut our expenditure, the Government pays part of it, but we — for it through the Government taxes, if local economy is not practised. The work on the park was much talked of and criticized.

Captain Marling replied, saying that neither the Reeve nor any member of the Council got one cent. The village spent $10,800 on relief under two different systems, up to May 1st, the Province paid half of all money spent, and after May 1st a rebate of two-thirds was paid. When budgeted in June, no one knew what relief would have to be spent, and in the face of present conditions the position of the Council financially is good. The "joy rides" to Toronto cost the corporation very little, and in case of any delegation, time must show what the benefits will be.

Mr. Graham said that things can't continue as they are going, not only in the Province, but in the Dominion also.

Reeve Tanner said that while many are questioning what the Council is getting, no one seems to consider what they are giving in time or brains. When the Council sees fit to appoint a commissioner, it is quite within the law.

D. A MacDonald asked if it were within the law for a councillor to receive a salary and retain his position in the Council.

A section dealing with this matter was read by Captain Marling from Municipal Act, which showed that it was quite within the law. The matter was given due consideration and authorities consulted. It is reasonable to see that the work requires full time, and it is felt that it is not fair to ask that without remuneration.

Elwood H. Northey will not stand but in a few years when he is somewhat older he will be glad to serve.

Acclamation Given.

Dr. J. C. Smith expressed appreciation of the acclamation accorded the School Board, although he did not know if it meant approval of the past conduct of the Board or lack of interest, and hoped it was not any lack of interest in the education of the youth of the village. Bismarck said many years ago, "The nation that has schools is the nation that has a future," and whatever problems the future has in store, it is our duty to see that our children have the mental equipment.

The High School has a satisfactory record and the Public School has a first-class staff, one of the best in the Province for a school of its size. The relations between the School Board, the staff and pupils are harmonious. The salaries of the teachers were cut 10 per cent. in an effort to meet the problem of cutting down expenses and economy was practised in other lines. He noted the words of the King in his Christmas message to the peoples of his Empire as a motto for public and private conduct.

J. W. Ridpath read the financial statement of both High and Public School Boards, both of which show a balance on the right side of the ledger, despite a 10 per cent. cut in Government grants.

B. Q. Dench, the last speaker stated it was the first time he was elected by acclamation. He and Mr. Ridpath are the only "home-brews" on the Board, as they are the only ones who received their education in the local school.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 28.—Strength in storage eggs and easiness in potatoes were sole price movements on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Storage eggs in car-lots or less advanced ½c, while to retailers they were up 1c to 2c. Light offerings in addition to steady sales to the United States during the past few weeks were the main factors in the upturn. In car-lots or less storage extras were quoted at 21½c to 22c, firsts at 19½c to 20c and seconds at 18c to 18½c a dozen. To retailers in cartons, storage extras and firsts both gained 1c at 23c to 29c and 24c to 25c, respectively, while seconds were up 2c at 21c to 23c. Fresh eggs in car-lots or less held steady, Ontario or British Columbia stock being quoted at 33c to 35c for extras, 29c to 30c for firsts and 27c to 28c a dozen for pullets. Fresh eggs to retailers, in cartons, were unchanged. Receipts were 799 cases.

New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island potatoes, Green Mountains, per 80-lb. bag lost 5c at 85c to 90c, while Prince Edward Island Green Mountains per 90-lb. bag were down the same amount at 95c to $1.

Butter held unchanged at 21½c to 21¾c a pound for No. 1 finest grass make, with early Western ¼c under the general levels. Receipts were 23 boxes.

Cheese held steady at 8¼c to 8½c for current Ontario white, 9¼c to 9¾c for current Ontario colored, and 10¼c to 11c a pound for early Ontario make. Receipts were 18 boxes.

FIVE YEAR PLAN FOR SOO COUNCIL URGED BY MAYOR

Criticizes Decentralization of Local Gov't Under Present Municipal Act.

PROPOSES BUDGET.

Plan of Cutting Expenditures Set City on Its Feet in 10 Years.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP)—A "Five year plan" for the Sault City council, with the suggestion that a similar program might with advantage be adopted by other municipalities, was advocated by Mayor Lyons before a local service club in an address in which he attacked the decentralization of local government which exists under the present Municipal Act.

Mayor Lyons pointed out that out of 12 spending bodies in the Sault at the present time only two are elective, and the existence of these appointive bodies, he said, tends to decentralize local government and to take the control of expenditures out of the hands of the council which thus becomes little more than a collecting agency for these 10 bodies. Some of them, he mentioned, have statutory authority to ask for a definite mill rate on the assessment.

Rigid control of expenditures was required said the mayor if the Sault and other municipalities were to avoid bankruptcy or having their affairs turned over to administrators appointed by the Railway and Municipal Board, as had happened in the case of some Ontario communities.

Budget

It was in this connection that he advanced his "five year plan," a suggestion for budgeting extending over a period of years, with the idea of cutting expenditure. He believed that with the adoption of such a program the city and others similarly situated would in five years be placed on a much better footing, while if it could be continued for 10 years they would be out of most of their difficulties.

He made special mention of the drain sinking fund and interest on debentures for capital expenditures were making on the municipal treasury and urged that during the five year period capital expenditures should be kept at a minimum and that in this way this charge should be reduced. This year, he said, $167,000 was paid off the debenture debt; next year the figure would be $286,000; for 1934 it would be $103,000 and for 1935 $563,000.

4-5 Mill Reduction.

If no capital expenditures were added in the meantime this would mean a reduction of from four to five mills in the tax rate. In 10 years $2,494,000 of the present debenture debt of $4,040,828 would be paid off.

The other feature of his plan was advocacy of an attempt to centralize the control of civic expenditures, in which connection he said that at the present time only $1 out of every $5 collected in taxes remained under the control of the council. Civic expenditure to-day is divided as follows: Education, 50.5 per cent.; interest and sinking fund, 26.5 per cent., and general expenditure, 20 per cent.

Christmas Concert Held At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 28 (Examiner Correspondent).—The Canadian Legion, Post 77, Lakefield, played hosts to more than a hundred children on Friday night, for the annual tree, which is a big event in the chapter of Christmas festivities and is very important to the members of the Legion, the very competent and faithful Ladies' Auxiliary and to all the children of veterans who are remembered each year.

The following children were remembered: Harold Bolton, Isabel Bolton, Orville Bolton, Everett Bolton, Wilfred Bolton, Jack Chappell, Alice Chappel, Esie Chappell, Donald Holmes, Douglas Holmes, Peggy Holmes, Stanley Edwards, Eva Edwards, Leslie Edwards, Bernice Edwards, Baby Edwards, Bernard Burrows, June Burrows, Douglas Burrows, Boris O'Neill, Yvonne Graham, Betty Graham, Claude Shewen, Ronald Shewen, Elizabeth Twist, Marion Twist, Jack Twist, Lilian Windsor, Veronica McFadden, Billy McFadden, Bernard McFadden, Baby McFadden, Therest McFadden, Myles Huddlestone, Grace Huddlestone, Violet Hudson, Fred Hudson, Baby Hudson, Billy Hudson, Don Montgomery, Evelyn Shewen, Victor Shewen, Ruth Shewen, Lloyd Allen, Earl Stockdale, Doris Stockdale, Gordon Stockdale, Murietta Stockdale, Gladys Allen, Evelyn Allen, Andy Joe Kyle, Mary Elizabeth Kyle, Roy McCauley, Roxie McCauley, Irene McCauley, Alice McCauley, Jean McCauley, Dorothy Hall, Margaret Hall, Glenn Hall, Joseph Coughlin, Mary Coughlin, Patricia Coughlin, Baby Coughlin, Michael Coughlin, Dennis Remnant, Kenneth Remnant, Ivy Remnant, Charlie Earnshaw, Patricia Earnshaw, Jack Birch, Charlie Birch, Noreen Birch, George Birch, Mavis Birch, Thomas Birch, Betty Birch, Bobby McCracken, Jean Hogarth, Harold Hogarth, George Hogarth, Pearl Hogarth, Shirley Charlton, Alexander Mackenzie, Audrey Mulkins, Francis Milkins, Donald Mulkins, John David Grylls, Chester Windsor, Shirley Graham, Jean Graham, Baby Graham, Marjorie Dunford, Irma Dunford, Clifford Dunford, Baby Dunford, Celese Dunford, Braden Dunford, Bobby Hamblin, Jack Hamblin, Allan Marshall, Phyllis Marshall, Warren Marshall, Mary Alice Renwick, Shirley Connley, Denise Hill, Gordon Hill, Jean Hill, Helen Hill, Nora Webster, Frieda Webster, Paddy Lampman, Betty Lampman, Katherine Lampman, Shirley Lampman, Beatrice Grier, Baby Grier, Peter Elmsley, Constance Orr, Jean Orr, Winnifred Orr, Florence Orr, Jean Clark, Billy Clark, Dorothy Elwood Northey, Jack Mose, Kathleen Mose, Dick Harbison, Baby McCracken.

United Church S. S.

The Sunday School of the United Church held their annual Christmas tree and entertainment on Wednesday last and in spite of inclement weather there was a large attendance. Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., pastor of the church, was the chairman, and the superintendent of the Sunday school, S. A. Darling, assisted in the distribution of candy bags from the tree, each child under twelve being a recipient.

The first part of the program was made up of recitations, readings, solos, duets and choruses by the younger children; the certificates won in the examination on Temperance were presented to six children by Mrs. W. W. Yale.

Mrs. Hull contributed a very pleasing solo to the program.

The second part of the program was taken up with a series of C.N.R. slides of the Province of Quebec which were both interesting and educational and the children and the adult audience enjoyed them immensely. The proceeds were about $19.00 and will be given to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the church. The entertainment was a pleasing one, and reflected credit on both old and yound, on teachers and pupils.

Final Meeting W.M.S.

The former Knox United W.M.S. met on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. G. E. Renwick for their last meeting. Reports were given and were satisfactory. The various secretaries reported for their departments and the society will now go forward merged with the W.M.S. of the United Church and no longer as a separate unit.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 39c to 40c; oats 20c to 22c; barley, 33c to 35c; corn, 34c to 38c; rye, 30c to 32c; buckwheat, 26c to 28c.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—The demand for fresh eggs continued slow as trading for the week opened yesterday and light receipts held prices on graded lots about steady with those quoted last week-end, while buyers of ungraded lots found the supply too heavy and reduced quotations. Prices to country shippers were steady to 1c per dozen lower and quotations to retailers were down 1c also. Storage supplies were not heavy and a good demand for this quality sent wholesalers' prices higher.

Egg Prices

Brokers quoted fresh eggs at 31c for extras, 26c for firsts, 25c for pullet extras and 19c for seconds, graded and in free cases, with re-candled storage eggs at 23c for extras and 21c for firsts. Country shippers were offered 28c to 29c for extras in cartons, 34c to 35c to 20c for pullet extras and 15c for seconds, delivered, ungraded cases returned. To retailers fresh supplies were quoted at 36c to 37c for extras in cartons, 34c to 35c for extras loose, 30c to 31c for firsts loose, 21c for pullet extras and 19c for seconds, with storage supplies at 28c for extras, 26c for firsts and 22c for seconds.

Butter

The demand for butter was slow, though brokers offered some lots of fresh-made Ontario solids at fractionally lower prices. Buyers were quoted fresh Ontario makes at 21c to 21¼c for No. 1 and 20¾c for No. 2 and Western makes at 21¼c to 21½c. The top price shown for Ontario solids ruled on high-scoring lots.

Cheese

Trade in cheese was slow but prices on new makes were steady on the brokers' market at 10c for large 10½c for twins and 10½c for triplets. Prices to retailers on old and new makes were unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Wheat, corn, oats and barley yesterday all outdid season low price records in Chicago.

Competition for world export trade in wheat toppled values like ninepins. Starting with an all-time unequalled plunge of wheat quotations in Buenos Aires, a series of market breaks ensued, with Winnipeg and Chicago wheat collapses affecting one after another corn, oats and barley. A cable from Athens that the Argentine government was negotiating for the sale of a large quantity of wheat to Greece had a specially unsettling effect.

Chicago wheat future contracts closed unstable at virtually the day's bottom level, ⅞c-1 ⅞c under Saturday's finish, corn ¼c-⅝c down, oats a shade to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 5c lower for seconds, delivered, ungraded.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, December 28. — Wheat weakened in the post-holiday session on the Grain Exchange yesterday, and prices at the close of trading were 1½c to 1¾c under Saturday's last quotation.

December closed at 40½c, May at 42c, and July at 43c.

Scattered selling from locals appeared to be the chief source of offerings, and in the absence of demand of any kind the market lost more than it gained on Saturday.

Collar rot has long been one of the troublesome diseases confronting the apple grower. Several factors cause collar rot. Among most important are fire blight, cultural injury, winter injury and excessive moisture.

No export of any size could be traced. Foreign markets were closed.

Increased influx of wheat from rural sources to Buenos Aires, and anxiety of Argentine farmers to turn wheat into cash as quickly as possible, was given as a contributing reason for the action of the Buenos Aires market. Despite a decrease of 1,815,000 bushels shown in the United States wheat visible supply total yesterday, Chicago wheat prices developed little power to rally. Extremely bullish crop reports from Nebraska and Kansas were almost ignored.

Corn and oats finally sympathized with wheat weakness although at first responsive to reports that severe damage to the Argentine corn crop had been done by locusts.

Provisions went lower with hog values.

How to Treat Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

With Flu Reported In Many Sections Colds Are Doubly Dangerous Now and Should Be Checked Promptly.

As yet, the present outbreak of flu has not reached alarming proportions. However, everyone is urged to take extra precautions against its spread—especially to be careful in treating colds just now. Colds pull down body resistance and pave the way for flu and all its serious complications.

Start at the "First Sign."

At the first sign of "catching cold" — that unmistakable stuffy, sneezy feeling — snuff some Vicks VapoRub up the nose several times a day. This will often check a cold at the start. It is a wise plan, if possible to avoid exposure to those with colds, or to conditions usually followed by colds.

Vigorous Treatment Urged.

If a cold has developed, don't neglect it. At bed-time, rub the chest and throat vigorously with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. If the head is clogged with mucus or there is much coughing, melt a spoonful of Vicks in boiling water and inhale the steaming vapors. If possible, stay at home until the cold is broken. Complete rest—preferably in bed—helps to maintain body resistance and to throw off the cold more quickly.

FAR EAST ISSUE MENACES PEACE HISTORIANS TOLD

Canada Placed in Difficult Position by Great Britain.

LACK OF ACTION.

Toronto Professor Says Bennett Should Have Copied Meighen.

TORONTO, December 29 (C.P.).—Professor Norman MacKenzie, of the University of Toronto, to-day told the American Historical Association convention that disagreement of the British and United States views on the Far East, especially on Japan's action in Manchuri, raises "the possibility of a difficult decision for some Canadian Government and even a menace to Canadian peace and security."

Premier's Lack of Action.

He said he believed Canadian sympathies are more with the United States than with Great Britain in regard to Japan, and deprecated what he termed Premier Bennett's lack of action in not having brought pressure to bear on the Government of the United Kingdom.

He declared the "do nothing" policy of Canada and Great Britain concerning Manchuria meant the failure of the League of Nations and the collective system of international co-operation and control.

"This almost inevitably spells war," he said, referring to the "o'd system of irresponsible national individualism."

Prof. MacKenzie said Premier Bennett should have "copied the example of Mr. Meighen (former Premier Meighen) and had brought very forcibly to sir John Simons' (of the Manchurian Commission) attention the dangers to Anglo-American relations of the trouble in the Far East, and the menace to the whole collective system in that conflict."

Prof. MacKenzie declared Canada has treated China "in a very cavalier fashion," barring her immigrants.

"The economic and geographical attachment of Canada to the United States is af a more permanent nature than our relationship to Great Britain," Prof. MacKenzie declared, "and is in many respects of greater importance."

KEEN INTEREST IN HONORS LIST

Many Participants in Ottawa Conference Expected to be Recognized for Efforts.

MENTION AMY JOHNSON.

(By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 29.—C.P. Cable.)—The 1933 honors list of His Majesty which will be officially released on New Year's Day is expected to prove more than ordinarily interesting.

There is no doubt many participants in the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa will be recognized for their "Empire building" efforts and it is understood more than one person who has given his life to one or the other of the learned professions will receive a peerage.

Included in the list will likely be Amy Johnson Mollison, whose record-breaking round trip flight from England to Cape Town just recently commends her to further recognition than the companionship of the British Empire to which she was admitted in 1930.

Perhaps the most interesting possibility is the conferring of an honor upon James McNeill, former Governor-General of the Irish Free State who resigned office on Nov. 1. In this connection there arises the point that the Free State Government would have to consent to the offering of the honor. Article Five of the Irish Free State constitution states:

"No title or honor in respect of any service rendered in or in relation to the Irish Free State may be conferred upon any citizen without the approval of or upon the advice of the Executive Council." So far as has been intimated no request for the Irish Free State consent has been made.

Embarrassing

SAN FRANCISCO, December 29.— Law's law, its dignity must be upheld, and that's why San Francisco streets on New Year's Eve may be crowded with men immaculately clad from the waist up, but minus their trousers. The dictum came from Colonel George Seaver, deputy prohibition administrator.

"If we find men with flasks in their hip pockets," Colonel Seaver warned to-day, "we'll confiscate the vehicle of transportation."

"The pants?" he was asked.

"The pants," was the stern reply.

NO BREAD, SUGAR TO HOUSEWIVES

Reds "No Work, No Food" Policy Aims to Abolish Home as Unit of Family Life.

FOOD SHORTAGE FELT.

MOSCOW, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—On the eve of the end of the five-year plan, Russian housewives under 56 learned to-day that beginning with the first of the year they will be deprived of bread and sugar, of which they now received small rations.

This action, reflecting the food shortage in Russia, is an extension of the Government's "no work—no food" policy and apparently is designed to inject more women into industrial occupations with the view to ultimate abolition of the home as the unit of family life.

Now they are entitled to 400 grams of bread a day and 800 grams of sugar a month from the Government's regular supply stores, but after January 1 they must go into factories to earn their bread and sugar, or pay the exorbitant prices at the private market where bread now costs $3.50 for 400 grams as compared with about 10 cents or less at the government bakery.

Slayer Of Mountie Pays With His Life

REGINA, Dec. 29.—(C.P.)— Bill Kurulak was hanged in Regina jail this morning, paying the penalty for the murder of Coropral L. V. Ralls, Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman.

Kurulak, 30, went to his death coolly, and calmly. His face impassive, his teeth clamped tightly together in the same manner he had adopted in his trial last September at Yorkton which ended in his conviction, and the sentencing of his young brother, Mike, to 15 years in Prince Albert penitentiary. Mike was also charged with murder in connection with Ralls' death.

Election Officials From Unemployed

Elections mean merely a trip to the polling booths for the average citizen, btu to about 50 of the city's unemployed this year's balloting will mean a day's work. Some of the deputy returning officers and most of the poll clerks have been selected from the ranks of the unemployed. The deputy returning officers will receive six dollars a day and the poll clerks five dollars each. Those who have experienced the job state that the money is hard earned.

Relief Officer Metheral prepared the list of unemployed men from which the men to man the polls were selected.

THREE SUSPECTS RELEASED

BRANTFORD, Ont.—Three suspects were released to-day after police failed to connect them with an attempt to rob the jewelry store of A. J. Cox, Eagle Place, last night. Citizens heard the crash of breaking glass and called the police, but the men escaped. Nothing was stolen.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

LONDON, Ont.—Richard D. Perkins, 93, died to-day from injuries received when he tripped over a mat at his home yesterday. Mr. Perkins had lived here 80 years, coming from Cornwall, England. He was well known in the oil industry, and was quite active until the accident.

HAS HANDS BADLY BURNED

LONDON, Ont.— When gasoline he was carrying in a can ignited as he passed a stove to-day, T. J. Scott suffered burns about the hands and arms. The fire department extinguished the blaze.

CUT IN SALARIES IS ADVOCATED BY LABOR MEN

Municipal Issues Discussed at Meeting of Trades and Labor Council.

GRANTS CRITICISED.

Present Representatives of the People Are Scored by Several Speakers.

Salary cuts for officials and employees under the direction of the City Council, the Board of Education and the Utilities Commission were strongly advocated at an open meeting of Peterborough Trades and Labour Council held last evening under chairmanship of Thos. J. McMurray.

Advertised as a meeting for the discussion of municipal issues, the gathering was composed of sixteen persons, including, the chairman, speakers and newspaper reporter. J. S. Bell was the only aldermanic candidate present, while ex-Alderman Joseph Crowe who declined nomination for the pending election fight was also one of those who addressed the gathering.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Crowe produced and read a resolution that had been prepared for presentation at one of the previous meetings of the Trades and Labor Council, asking for the reduction of all salaries of those in the employ of the city even if such a measure meant the temporary discharge and the re-engagement of such employees.

"I am just reading it to show my own feeling on the matter," he explained. The Trades and Labor Council is not now in session, this is an open meeting. He concluded by stating that he would support McIntyre, Bell and Henderson on election day. He would certainly not support any member of the old council, he said.

Out For Economy

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Bell stated that his platform was for strict economy. That meant that some of the big salaries must be cut. If new members were elected to the council a change would be effected. He was not in favor of the cutting of the workingman's

ULTIMATUM IS PLACED BEFORE DON BRADMAN

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec 29 (C.P. Cable).—Don Bradman, of exceptional batting ability, who was expected to lead the Aussie cricketers against the M.C.C. in the second Test match to-morrow, will have to decide now whether he will continue his writing contracts with several newspapers or play Test match cricket.

The cricket board of control to-day defeated a proposed amendment to the player-writer rule, which would have permitted Don Bradman to carry out his writing contracts and yet play for Australia.

When confronted with the player-writer rule before the first Test match, Bradman postponed his writing contracts.

Whether or not he will definitely cancel all his engagements now and join forces with his team-mates is not expected to be known until to-morrow, when the teams take the field here.

REMAND FOR WEEK

BRANTFORD, Ont. — Cameron Thompson, of St. George, appeared in court to-day charged with having liquor in an unauthorized place, and was remanded for a week. Thompson's car last night crashed into a parked car. A few feet away was Motorcycle Officer George Kerr, who found several bottles of beer in Thompson's car.

SEVERAL HELD FOR MURDER

WINDSOR, Ont. — Alfred Jennings, 34, of Toronto, is in hospital here suffering lacerations on his leg caused when his car was crowded into a ditch yesterday near Tilbury. The car overturned and Jennings' leg was forced through one of the glass doors. He was brought to hospital by a passing motorist.

WEARISOME.

PHILADELPHIA.—Hold-up men no longer relieve the monotony of Mrs. Ida Hauck's life as an elevated station cashier.—they merely annoy her. The first time it happened she was thrilled and frightened, but in the last four months she has been robbed four times, and the thing is beginning to pall. The robbers took $100 from her last night.

Little Difference

MENOMINE, Mich., December 29 (C.P.). — When it comes to birds, the difference between Chicago and Menominee is nil.

"You couldn't safely leave two birds out in front like that if you were in Chicago," said John Corbey, former resident of the Windy City to the owner of a meat market.

"Two?" 'said the meat man. "There are three."

"No, two," said Corbey, "a goose and a chicken."

The proprietor looked— and two there were. A 1 -pound turkey was gone.

QUEBEC YOUTH ON FORCED RIDE

Stopped Enroute Outremont to Montreal by 2 Men—Struck on Head.

DRIVEN TO TORONTO.

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—Louis Douglas Frutier, 18, of Outremont, Que., is safe with friends here after what he claims was a forced ride from Montreal last night with two armed men

Frutier told police he woke up today alone in his car somewhere on the outskirts of Toronto. He had been robbed of $5 and suffered a bruise on his head.

Frutier said he was en route from Outremont to Montreal when two men stepped into the car, one waving a flashlight and blowing a whistle. Frutier, thinking they were policemen, stopped. They produced revolvers and ordered him to drive toward Toronto. Later one of the men took the wheel and Frutier was ordered to lie down on the floor in the back. He said one of the men struck him over the head, and the next thing he knew was when he woke up alone. He drove into Toronto, not knowing where he was until he stopped a policeman. He told his story at a police station, and detectives accompanied him out on the highway but he was unable to point out where he awoke to-day. No trace has been found of the men.

Uncover Plot To Kill President Of Greece

ATHENS, Dec. 29.—(A.P.)— Police reported discovery to-day of an alleged plot by foreign anarchists to send agents here to assassinate President Alexander Zaimis.

President Zaimis has not been involved in the recent political controversy, is known as a great patriot, and was believed to have no enemies.

The recent political controversy resulted in Eleutherios Venizelos, the veteran premier, stepping out of that office to permit P. E. Tsaldaris, the Royal leader, to form a coalition cabinet.

Venizelos, internationally known as a foe to Royalty, agreed to this move only after Tsaldis' pledge to uphold the republic. The Venizelos party won most assembly seats in the last election but fell short of a majority.

MAYOR THREATENED

SAULT STE. MARIE. — Mayor James Lyons at a citizens' meeting last night, in behalf of his candidacy for re-election, declared "Reds" had threatened to bomb his home. He stated that his neighbors had become so frightened they moved their beds downstairs.

The Mayor warned against deviation of the city's policy from that of 1932, declaring bankruptcy would follow.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

PITTSBURGH.—Trapped in his room in a hotel fire, Clayton Cornell, 26, climbed out on a window sill. As flames seared the room he lowered himself from the sill, hanging by his finger tips. A man on the floor below opened his window and Cornell swung himself through it. Had he slipped, he would have plunged 30 feet to the pavement.

WOMAN SCHOOL TRUSTEE

BRONTE, Ont.—For the first time in the history of the school section, a woman was elected trustee at a meeting of S.S. No. 13, Trafalgar. Mrs. W. H. Cudmore secured more votes than the male candidate, Alex. Wilson. The ratepayers at the meeting adopted a resolution, recommending to the school trustees that teachers' salaries be not cut, unless absolutely necessary.

BENNETT DENIES ALL KNOWLEDGE OF SOVIET DEAL

Claims Canada Damages Herself by Cabling False Reports Abroad.

IS HOME IN OTTAWA.

Expects to Have Statement Following Conference With Colleagues.

MONTREAL, Dec. 29 (C.P.). — Premier R. B. Bennett denied all knowledge of a projected barter agreement between Canada and Russia when he passed through Montreal to-day on his way back to Ottawa from England.

"I have read a report that plans are underway for a barter agreement between Canada and Russia," he said. "If that is so, then it has been projected without my knowledge."

When the Prime Minister's attention was drawn to criticism of such a proposal in the English press, Mr Bennett retorted: "Canada damages herself abroad by cabling false reports and information that are entirely unfounded; that is the trouble with this country. I say again that if there has been any agreement, then I have no knowledge of it, and cannot discuss it until I have conferred with my colleagues."

Mr. Bennett came here from New York, where he landed yesterday after spending a few weeks in England. He looked fit and appeared to have benefitted by his holiday.

ARRIVES HOME.

OTTAWA, December 29 (C.P.).—After an absence from Canada of nearly four weeks, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett arrived in Ottawa to-day from Engand.

"I may have a statement for publication later to-day," Premier Bennett announced shortly after his arrival.

Greeted by his sister, Mrs. W. D. Herridge, members of the Cabinet, headed by Right Hon. Sir George Perley and Major Willis O'Connor and Eric Mackenzie on the staff of the Governor-General, the Prime Minister jocularly conversed for some minutes with the gathering. He then left for his hotel.

Mr. Bennett detrained at the noon hour from Montreal after arriving in New York yesterday morning on the Majestic. The Prime Minister was in the best of heath after his visit to England, where he conferred with the British Government on Imperial Conference trade agreements, meeting of Newfoundland's interest payment of $1 900 000 on January 1, and other matters.

HAND CAUGHT IN PRESS.

WORLD RACE IN ARMAMENTS IS A CHALLENGE TO CHURCHES

Nations Spend Three Times as Much in 1932 as in 1914.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—The present crisis is a crisis of international relations. It concentrates itself around the problem of disarmament. No conferences was ever better prepared than the present disarmament conference in Geneva. Yet while the conference is under way, the nations continue to arm, with a result that more men are drilling for war in 1932 than there were in July, 1914.

Pierre van Paassen

The cost of armament, which ran to $3,500,000,000 in 1914 has mounted to $10,000,000,000 this year. Human ingenuity has been pressed into the service of armament to such an exient that the potential destruction of the various instruments of war which have been invented, has reached the incredible.

Patience Fruitful

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 29.—(AP) —Natale Tombini's philosophy of patience bore fruit. Tombini, a crippled vendor of postcards and pencils, drove into town with his wife and four children. His faithful old horse "Icaro," plunged his front legs into a sewer and had to be killed.

Whereupon the Tombinis, stranded in the street, stayed just where they were, despite official hints to move on. "Pazienza, Signori," Tombini said with a genial smile. "Without a horse how can I leave?"

Finally the city fathers dug down into the official purse, and the Tombinis left with a strong new horse.

Laverne Wright is Guilty of Fraud Given Two Years

Maintained One Family In Port Hope, Another In Newcastle 20 Miles Away, And Third Is Scattered To Four Winds.

CHARGED WITH FRAUDULENTLY RECEIVING PENSIONS FOR CHILDREN OF TWO MARRIAGES.

Since March, 1918, Wright Received $10,000 In Pension Money To Which He Was Entitled To And Additional $6,726.22 By Fraud.

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Dec. 29.—With one wife and family in Port Hope, another twenty miles away in Newcastle, and a third scattered to the four winds, Laverne Wright, thirty-eight years old, has maintained two separate homes with the aid of his war pension, and its fraudulent augmentation for which he was sentenced here yesterday by Judge E. C. S. Huycke to an indeterminate term of two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, of which one month will be determinate.

Since March 15, 1918, Wright received approximately $10,000 in pension money to which he was legally entitled, and the additional sum of $6,726.22 which he obtained by fraud in crediting to his first marriage the children born to the other two women he duped and claiming from the government increasing allowances for their support.

As a marriage racketeer, Wright is revealed in a class all by himself, just as he was the first war pensioner in this district to be convicted of abusing the Canadian government's generous system of pensions for service in the war.

In plain words, he stole by fraudulent representations $6,726.22 from the government, apart from his polygamous adventures in Rochester, subsequent to his marriage to Ethel Pearl Jennings in Peterborough September 24, 1913. Two children by this marriage were placed in the custody of the Children's Aid Society of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, and are now youths in foster homes, one near Elizabethville in Hope township, and the other in Haliburton county near the Bancroft border of Hastings.

The second wife with her son lives at Newcastle, and are receiving government relief; and the third at Port Hope has four children, and the expectancy of another this week was ascribed as the cause of her absence from the trial.

Wright was defended by G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough. Crown Attorney F. D. Boggs, K.C., conducted the prosecution, assisted by A. R. Willmott of Cobourg, representing the Pensions Commission.

The evidence disclosed that Wright arrived in Newcastle from Rochester in February 1929, and about the same time he brought his third family to Port Hope. One of

$60,000 DAMAGE STRATFORD FIRE

Dense Smoke Hinders Brigade in Four Hour Battle for Control.

BLAME OIL BURNER.

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 29 (CP) —Loss of $60,000 to $70,000 was caused by fire to-day which destroyed stock and badly damaged an Ontario Street block occupied by J. J. Crosier and Co., drygoods firm.

Firemen believe the blaze started from an oil burner.

Most of the monetary loss is caused by destruction of the stock in the drygoods store. It is believed to be nearly a total loss.

Dense smoke hindered the firemen in their operations, and other stores in the block were filled with smoke. T ehbuilding, including all fixtures, was damaged to the extent of about $10,000.

The fire, believed to have started shortly before seven o'clock, was still burning and smouldering at 10.30, but was then under control.

Forced From Home

Occupants of the apartments on the third floor of the building east of the Crosier Block were forced to leave their homes because of the heavy smoke.

The smoke caused heavy damage in adjoining stores, especially that of Levitt's Ladies Shop.

No investigation has yet been made, but it is said to have broken out following an explosion heard shortly before seven o'clock.

Irish Protest Use Of English Hangman

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—A banner bearing the words: "British hangmen destroys Irishman: is this justice?" — was displayed to-day amidst a throng gathered outside Mountjoy Prison when Patrick McDermott, a Roscommon farmer, was executed for the murder of his brother, John..

Pierrepont, noted English professional executioner, had been commissioned to carry out the sentence as there was no official executioner in the Free State.

There were vigorous protests from the throng and, when the execution hour approached, the crowd knelt in prayer.

Petitions for McDermott's reprieve had been extensively signed.

CANADIAN DOLLAR SAGS ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (A.P.) — British currencies reacted to-day on local foreign exchanges following the display of strength yesterday. The Canadian dollar sagged to 87 15-16 cents at noon, a decline of 7-16 per cent from the previous close. The premium on United States funds rose accordingly to 13¾ per cent. The pound sterling dipped to $3.31¼ at mid-day, ½ cent below its opening quotation, and 1¼ cents lower than Wednesday's final price.

THIRD HITS WRECKAGE.

Two Youths Attempting Rescue Are Among Injured—Inquest Ordered.

HAMILTON, Dec. 29—Two persons were killed, and a half-dozen others injured, when three cars, rendered uncontrollable by a frosty, greasy pavement, came together in collision last night four miles west of Grimsby, at a point on No. 8 King's Highway, commonly known as "The Fifty."

The Dead:

Alan MacCauley, carpenter, aged 36, 180 Roth street, Welland, who was thrown out of his machine and instantly crushed to death beneath the wheels of another vehicle.

Mrs. Alan MacCauley, his wife, who received such injuries when the MacCauley car was hurled into the roadside ditch that she died while en route by ambulance to the Hamilton General Hospital.

The Injured

Harold MacCauley, aged 12, son of the dead couple, who is suffering from many abrasions.

Senator Joseph N. Ackerman, Cleveland, Ohio, who had his nose broken when his car and the MacCauley machine side-swiped each other.

James McElroy, Sr. of Cleveland, a passenger in the Ackerman vehicle, who had a leg broken when knocked down by a third automobile.

James McElroy, Jr., champion junior amateur speed skater of the United States, who sustained severe facial lacerations.

Florent Heurter and Edgar Heurter, brothers of the district, who were hurled into the ditch by the third skidding machine, and both badly shaken up.

Indescribable Scene.

Eye-witnesses of the fatal jam last night reported the scene as indescribable. One moment the MacCauley car, with Swan piloting, was moving gingerly over the slippery

AVOIDING COLLISION.

George Drury, 533 Elm street, had a miraculous escape from serious injury when his car skidded and turned completely over on Rubidge street last evening.

Mr. Drury was driving south on Rubidge street, when the mail truck, driven by Coleman W. Elliott, 567 Aylmer street, drove out off Wolff street. Drury turned in an effort to avert striking the truck. He grazed its left side, and then his car skidded overturning on its top. Except from some slight damage to the top, Drury's car was undamaged and he himself escaped uninjured.

Elliott said that he slowed down before starting across Rubidge street and changed gears.

Small Boys Save Life Of Little Chap

A grateful mother has called the attention of The Examiner to the timely act of some small boys, whose presence of mind in an emergency was the means of saving the life of her son.

It was a week ago last Friday afternoon, according to the information of Mrs. Croft of 555 Gilchrist street, that her small son George fell into the creek on McDonnel street. The water was up around the boy's neck as he held on the rim of ice to keep from going under, when some other boys appeared. They told George to hold on tight, while they manoeuvred to pull him to safety. "I want you to put this in the paper please. If those boys had not been there my son would have been drowned" states the thankful mother in a portion of her letter.

APPOINTMENT OF BUDGETING BODY PLANNED

Aimed to Consolidate Financing of Province Through Strict Control.

TO WORK ON BUDGET.

Committee Expected to Consist of Dunlop, Price, Henry and Five Others.

TORONTO, Dec. 29.—Appointment of a permanent budgeting committee as a means to consolidate all Ontario Government activities in respect of revenues and expenditures, and insuring more efficient control and direction of them in future, is likely to be announced from Queen's Park within the next few days, according to rumor in downtown financial circles, yesterday.

The committee will, it is said, comprise the following: Provincial Treasurer Edward A. Dunlop, Premier George S. Henry, Attorney-General William H. Price, F. Martin Turnbull, assistant treasurer and financial controller; J. T. White, K.C., controller of revenue; Gordon A. Brown, provincial auditor; Dr. J. M. McCutcheon, civil service commissioner; Col. Harry D. L. Gordon, of Clarkson, Gordon, Dilworth, Guilfoyle and Nash, chartered accountants.

To Work on Budget

Under Order-in-Council authorization, now in course of preparation, the committee is expected to begin its work immediately after the New Year, with preparation of the supplementary estimates and general budget compilation, for the 1933 session of the Legislature as the first tasks to which the members will set their hands.

While no confirmation of this new departure in policy was obtainable last night it is understood that it has been under advisement for several months and that the aim of the Provincial Treasurer to continue throughout the current fiscal year the wide-scale economy

PAIR GET THREE YEARS.

BRANTFORD, Ont. — Morgan Phillips, charged with breaking and entering the premises of Harold Hawk, and George Gibson, charged with entering three homes in Haldimand county, were to-day sentenced to three years in Portsmouth penitentiary. Gibson previously escaped from Mimico reformatory.

Signs of Spring at Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Dec. 29. (Examiner Correspondence). — The weatherman must have mixed his dates with Easter when sorting out the kind of weather that should prevail for Christmas. Miss Mabel Lord picked a full-blown dandelion at the Mansion grounds on Sunday, December 25, while Mr and Mrs. Lord heard a robin calling quite distinctly the same day in the cedar hedge at the front of the McCullough lot in the lower ground through which the creek flows, south on Main street.

At least one citizen was observed out walking in the warm sunny atmosphere of Christmas afternoon minus an overcoat, and with suit coat unbuttoned, revealing white shirt front.

road stretch, homeward bound from Hamilton where the two children had been enjoying Christmas holidays with relatives. The next moment it was in a deadly skid, with wheels locked careening into the path of the Ackerman vehicle, whose occupants were bound for Guelph on an inspection visit to the Ontario Reformatory in the interests of the Ohio Welfare Association of which the Senator is an active member.

The first machine side-swiped the Guelph-bound one. A grinding smash, but nobody hurt. It was while those concerned were engaged in straightening the collision about the Corrie vehicle, as impotent as the others to cope with the danger lurking in the slimy road surface, came into action.

According to reports, this third machine piled full tilt into the other two, knocking McElroy, Sr., down, driving the Macaulay car with Mrs. Macaulay still in it, into the ditch; and then picking up Mr. Macaulay beneath its wheels and dragging and rolling him for approximately 25 yards before releasing him.

Young McElroy ducked the Corrie car, but the Heurter brothers, who had been attracted by the first collision, and who tried vainly to shove MacCauley out of the way, also received nasty bumps as the machine plowed its tank-like course of destruction.

Scores and scores of people were soon on the scene of the accident. Dr. H. P. Heddle of Stoney Creek and Dr. James MacMillan of Grimsby were hastily summoned and rendered medical attention. Mrs. MacCauley was rushed by ambulance to Hamilton but died before reaching hospital.

Dr. B. E. Thompson, coroner of Stoney Creek, visited the spot and ordered the body of MacCauley to be removed to Hamilton. A full coroner's inquest will follow. The police investigation is being made by Provincial Constable Edward Jess.

400 MEN WORK ON MINDEN ROAD

New Concrete Bridge on Highway 7 Over Pigeon River, Omemee, is Opened.

5 ELECTIONS, VICTORIA.

LINDSAY, Dec. 29.—E. Windrum of Minden, who has charge of the unemployment camps on the Coboconk-Dorset Highway, informed The Examiner that with the arrival of men from Peterborough and Orillia this week, the number of men in the different camps would total four hundred. Another camp will be opened at Miner's Bay.

The new concrete bridge on No. 7 Highway, over Pigeon River at Omemee, has been completed. Traffic commenced passing over it Wednesday. It is a very fine piece of work.

Oliver Ben, town, was given six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory yesterday morning by Police Magistrate Jordan on the charge of assault. Ben struck a 16-year-old boy with a stone, breaking his jaw. He then left the limits, but was nabbed by the police on his return.

Elections will be held next Monday in five municipalities in Victoria County. Another nomination will have to be held in Boycaygeon, however, as not a sufficient number qualified for the council.

C.N.R. Officer Morden has placed under arrest Mansell Lindsay and John S. Hughes of Peterborough, on the charge of stealing gasoline on railway property in Ops Township. Provincial Constable Nelson questioned the men at the jail and it is alleged they both admitted the offence. Lindsay has two previous convictions against him for breaking and entering—one at Cobourg and the other at Belleville.

Action Aired

A packed courtroom greeted Peggy Lawton Rich, former Follies girl, when she took the witness stand in New York City to defend herself against the charges of her husband, Freddie Rich, radio orchestra leader, suing for divorce. Jack de Ruyter, Park avenue man-about-town, named as co-respondent, agreed with Peggy, when he took the stand, that all the charges against Mrs. Rich were "a lot of nonsense." Mr. and Mrs. Rich are above.

OVERDOING IT!

NEW YORK—For two nights after Christmas, theatre-goers got a chuckle out of a huge electric sign that flared on Broadway's great White Way. "Mail your Christmas cards and packages early for delivery before Christmas," it warned. The maintenance man who turns on the lights explained he never reads the signs as they bore him. Anyway, he said, the sign would remind folks to do their mailing early next year.

LINER DAMAGED BY FREAK WAVE

Majestic, Carrying Premier Bennett, Limps Into Port After Wild Voyage.

SAILOR IS KILLED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—The Majestic, one of the largest liners afloat, arrived in port yesterday with the forward section of her forecastle battered in, and most of the passengers discussing a freak wave which caused the death of a sailor last Friday and shook the ship with terrifying force.

Premier R. B. Bennett was a passenger aboard the liner, returning to Canada from a short visit to London.

The story those aboard told was this:

As the liner was moving slowly toward the United States, with her speed reduced to eight knots, the wave, technically known as an "accumulative," smashed over the prow, struck the forecastle head on, tore open a bulkhead, flooded the crew's galley, swept everything ahead, and caused the entire ship to shake under the impact.

J. N. Johnston, an able seaman, was in deck house B and was thrown so violently against a metal wall that he later died of the injuries. He was buried at sea and the passengers raised a $250 purse for his widow and two children.

A 60-mile-an-hour wind was blowing when the incident occurred, ship's officers said, but after the one turbulent outburst, the sea subsided and no more rough weather was encountered.

Givens And Parker Are Out In Harvey

HALL'S BRIDGE, Dec. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—A real municipal battle is looming in Harvey Township where Hugh Givens and H. B. Parker will again be in the contest for reeve. Mr. Givens defeated Mr. Parker, veteran reeve, last year.

There are five candidates for the four seats in the council, four of the contestants being old members of the council. The candidates are Charles Flynn, Nelson Windover, Bruce Ingram, Darius Hall and Wallace Shearer. Mr. Flynn is the new aspirant.

Russell McIntosh, Mr. Irwin and Fred Bennett were nominated, but withdrew.

Girl Found Victim Gas Asphyxiation

DETROIT, December 29 (C.P.)—An autopsy last night, officials said, confirmed the belief that 16-year-old Kathleen O'Mara, found dead in the kitchen of her uncle's home yesterday, died of gas asphyxiation but investigators were not certain whether she took her own life or met an accidental death.

The uncle, Dr. M'chael O'Mara a dentist, who had been detained for questioning, was released last night. He said he believed the girl had fainted after turning on two gas burners to cook her breakfast, and added that she was subject to fainting spells.

Dr. O'Mara lives with his cousin and his cousin's wife. But they were away over the holidays Miss O'Mara, he said, had a key to the house, and occasionally spent the night there.

CAMPBELLFORD MASONS INSTALL 1933 OFFICERS

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 29 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Installation of the 1933 officers was featured at the regular meeting of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 126, A.F. and A.M., Campbellford, held on Tuesday evening. The installing officer was Rt. Wor. Bro. F. C. Bonnycastle, assisted by R.W.Bro. O. C. Watson. The new slate of officers is as follows:

W.Bro. N. A. MacColl, I.P.M.; W.Bro. J. O. Benor, W.M.; Bro. R. A. Connor, S.W.; Bro. G. F. Phillips, J.W.; W.Bro. J. D. Cummings, Chaplain; W.Bro. L. B. Glover, Treasurer; R.W.Bro. F. C. Bonnycastle, Secretary; R.W.Bro. O. C. Watson, D. of C.; Bro. E. C. Dolman, Organist; Bro. J. J. Lewis Hay, S.D.; Bro. S. A. Maguire, J.D.; Bro. A. Hazell, S.S.; Bro. A. Loucks, J.S.; Bro. F. Menzies, I.G.; Bro. Earl Turner, O.G.

Two candidates received their initiatory degree. After lodge business, lunch was served to the gathering.

BACK TO CHECKERS.

BENWOOD, W. Va. — Gloom shrouds Benwood where many males among the town's 4,000 inhabitants formerly took their recreation in 12 billiard parlors. State and county taxes forced them all to close. Now the boys are re-playing the fall's football games and settling down to a hard winter of checkers.

More people are injured every year by mules in the United States than by airplanes, statistics show.

Cruelty

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The charge Orrin H. Lutman, 51, made against his wife, Josephine in a divorce suit was cruelty. He alleged that until recently he weighed 180 pounds but that Mrs. Lutman "nagged him down below her weight" and then forced him to leave home.

Mrs. Lutman's weight was given as 165.

Incidentally the bill asked the court to give Lutman an injunction restraining Mrs. Lutman from molesting him.

Request By Separate School Heads Denied

WINNIPEG, Dec. 29 (CP)—The city School Board to-day denied a request presented by a delegation of Roman Catholic taxpayers that parochial school children of this city be allowed to remain in their schools with their present teachers until June.

Compromise proposals submitted by the delegation for continued operation of eight parochial schools suggested the school board assume $15,000 of the cost of operating the schools as at present until the expiration of the present term.

Approximately 2300 school children are affected by the latest decision. The delegation stressed the undesirability of disturbing children in the middle of a term. After giving the matter careful consideration the School Board decided to stand by a decision reached last Friday and absorb the Catholic school children in the public schools.

Election For Reeve In Percy Township

WARKWORTH, December 29 (Exeminer Correspondence). — The long list of nominations for Reeve, Deputy-Reeve, and Councillors for the Percy Township Council for 1933 simmered down to the following:

For Reeve—A. Merrill, C. H. Curtis.

Deputy-Reeve—James Lamey, C. H. Curtis.

Councillors — U. E. Wartman, Ray R. Mallory, and W. H. Nelson.

That means that there will be an election for Reeve and Deputy-Reeve.

Cramahe Township will only be voting for Reeve, which is between Charles Quinn and Roy Darling.

TWO ARE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK, BLAME VANDALS

Wabash Passenger Coaches Pile Into Tank Car on Side Line.

SWITCH LEFT OPEN.

Officials Find Lock Filed Off and Red Danger Light Removed.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Dec. 29 (A.P.)—Vandalism was blamed today by State's Attorney Wolford H. Absher as he investigated the wreck of a Wabash passenger train that cost the lives of two persons, injured two others, and endangered the lives of several passengers.

The train swerved from the main line just inside the city limits last night at 7.30, shunted onto a switch and crashed into an oil tank car. The engine and one car overturned, drenched in a flood of burning oil, which firemen quickly extinguished.

The engineer, John Rapp, Springfield, Ill., and H. L. Myer, Decatur, Ill., died from injuries. Harry Ross, baggageman from Jacksonville, was scalded, and London Simmons, a negro cook, suffered a broken leg. The passengers were shaken severely, but none was hurt seriously.

Switch Thrown Open

Absher said a preliminary investigation showed that someone filed open the lock on the switch, threw it wide, and then removed the red danger light that nomally would show when the switch was open.

The wreck followed closely after two other instances of railroad violence in Illinois. About two weeks ago a bridge was dynamited near Taylorville, Ill., and about the same time authorities found dynamite cached under a bridge near Litchfield, Ill.

The Taylorville bombing, which halted shipments of coal from Christian County mines for a few days, was attributed by Christian County mine difficulties attendant to the wage war in the Central Illinois fields.

GIVEN CARMEN'S BUST.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Dec. 28.—A bronze bust of Bliss Carmen the poet, whose ashes lie in Forest Hill cemetery in this city, has arrived from British Columbia and will be placed in the library of the University of New Brunswick. The life-sized reproduction of the poet's head was his own gift to the late Hon. Walter C. Nichol, Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia.

De Laval Message To Ratepayers

The De Laval Company, Limited, has made application through the City Council, for an increase from its present full taxation on $50,000.00, to the fixed amount of $60,000.00 of its assessment, and all other rates inclusive of school, pavement and other local improvement taxes to be paid on its full assessment. The Company application is not for exemption, as the foregoing makes plain.

The Council endorsed the application. It is now for the ratepayers of the City to approve.

The Company ORIGINALLY AGREED TO EMPLOY 75 PEOPLE. NOW IT EMPLOYS 194. It has had as high as 400 on the payroll.

The Company ENGAGES TO INCREASE ITS FACTORY PAYROLL 50% WITHIN TWO YEARS FROM JANUARY 1ST, 1933, OR AS MUCH SOONER AS CONDITIONS PERMIT.

The Company ORIGINALLY AGREED TO PROVIDE 45,000 SQUARE FEET OF FACTORY SPACE. IT HAS CONSTRUCTED OVER 150,000 SQUARE FEET.

The Company has expended in FACTORY WAGES $4,546,482.00, and its OFFICE PAYROLL HAS AMOUNTED TO $630,000.00–A GRAND TOTAL COMPANY PAYROLL OF $5,176,482.00.

The Company has afforded employment in other Peterborough industries, in the aggregate, of more than $1,083,000.00. THE TOTAL AS AFFECTING PETERBOROUGH FACTORY PAYROLLS THEN IS $6,259,482.00. More than $500,000.00 has been paid by the Company to the railways here. More than $850,000.00 has been paid by the Company to our Customs House people.

WHEN $7,600,000.00 is put into circulation in a city and community, it becomes lifeblood to every citizen in it. It is a revolving fund that never is eliminated so long as industry survives. Industries are the insurance policy against business decadence.

Contingent upon the approval by the ratepayers of the City, on the recommendation of the Mayor and Council that the Company's application for increased taxation be granted, additional lines of manufacture will be entered upon, thus affording the 50% increase in payroll as above mentioned. THE COMPANY'S PAST PERFORMANCES HAVE ALWAYS EXCEEDED ITS PROMISES. It is relying on the good business sense of the ratepayers of Peterborough, to express their confidence in the Company's further progress, by voting YES on the De Laval By-law on January 2nd, 1933.

Thank you. THE DE LAVAL COMPANY, LIMITED.

MR. AND MRS. MARTIN McARTHUR CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Seymour West Couple Are Presented With Gifts From Seymour West W. I.

Married December 22, 1882.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 29. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Martin McArthur of Seymour township were at home to their relatives and many friends, celebrating their golden wedding anniversary which was held on December 22, 1882. About seventy friends called in the afternoon and evening to shower congratulations on this venerable couple who have been residents of the township for many years.

Born in Seymour township, on the farm now occupied by Archie McCullough, Martin McArthur married Grace Hobbs of Oshawa by the Methodist minister at that place, bringing his young bride to his homestead to live. They later moved to their present location, where they have resided since.

Of this happy union ten children were born, five sons and five daughters, eight of whom still survive, one daughter having died in infancy and one son Fred having paid the supreme sacrifice on Flanders Fields during the World War. The children are: Mary and John at home; Robert of Toronto; Nellie (Mrs. S. Lush) of Owen Sound; Pearl (Mrs. Ed. McConnell) and Charles of Seymour West; Marjorie (Mrs. Percy Bartley) of Campbellford and Martin of Oshawa.

All the family with the exception of Robert and Mrs. Lush spent the Christmas holidays with their parents and joined in the celebration, at which the pioneers were the recipients of many gifts, both from friends and the family.

W. I. Presentation

In the afternoon representatives of the Seymour West Women's Institute called and in the presence of about twenty-five guests, presented Mr. and Mrs. McArthur with a gold tie pin and broach, each being a beautiful gift with a maple leaf design in the three golds, emblematic of the autumn leaves which seemed very appropriate.

The address was read by Mrs. Howard Clark, president of the Seymour West W.I. while Mrs. F. Keating made the presentation. Mrs. McArthur, in a few well chosen words replying. The following address was read:

Dear bride and groom of fifty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Martin McArthur: "Our life-long neighbors, friends and participators in all our community hapenings, we, the members and adherent of the Seymour West Women's Institute, felt that we could not let the occasion of your golden wedding pass without some recognition. You have spent fifty years of wedded life in our community, felt life's joys and blessings as well as its sorrows and have shared the same with neighbors, and we would like you to feel that we sincerely and whole-heartedly wish you many more years filled with God's blessings in our midst. We wish to convey to you the congratulations of the community and as a token we ask you to accept these gifts, not for their instrinsic value, but as a tangible evidence of our good will and best wishes."

Signed on behalf of the Seymour West W.I.—Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. E. J. Fairman, Mrs. Jas. Clark, Mrs. Reginald McCullough.

MONTREAL, Dec. 29 (C.P.)— If you can't speak French and the other person can't speak English, don't be discouraged, for in the Province of Quebec telephone operators can right matters.

To remove the language barrier on out-of-town calls, the first step is to tell the operator what you wish to ask the other person. She then translates and upon receiving the answer translates it back to you. The system takes time, but satisfaction results.

Obituary

PETER MEIKLEJOHN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 29 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The funeral of the late Peter Meiklejohn was held this afternoon from the family residence at Campbellford to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Burnbrae, where service was conducted by the Rev. J. C. Robinson of Campbellford, assisted by the pastor, Rev. D. A. McKenzie. Interment was made in Burnbrae Cemetery.

The late Mr. Meiklejohn died on Tuesday evening, aged 78 years. Born in Rawdon Township of Scotch parentage, he farmed in that locality all his life, coming to Campbellford to live nine years ago. A Presbyterian in religion, he was beloved by all who knew him, and his departure is a distinct community loss.

Surviving are his wife; three daughters: Mrs. Chas. Milne of Campbellford, Mrs. Vic Taylor of Rawdon and Mrs. T. Chappell of Lakefield, and one son, Murray, of Havelook.

MRS. MARGARET WALL

The death occurred last evening, December 28, at her late residence, 535 Aylmer street, of Mrs. Margaret Wall, aged 82 years. The late Mrs. Wall was born in Dummer Township and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Crowe. She had been ill for only a short time.

She is survived by one son, George Wall of Peterborough; and two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth McCracken and Mrs. Watley, both of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Friday, Dec. 30, from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. McCracken, 650 Stewart street, at 3 o'clock, to Little Lake Cemetery, with the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard officiating.

WORLD RACE IN ARMAMENTS

Under these violently contrasting circumstances the disarment conference met. But it soon became evident, we must admit, if we want to see events with clarity, that it was not a question at Geneva of abolishing war, but merely of changing the methods of war.

Yet we know war cannot be regulated or humanized or made decent. The last one showed this conclusively. There are two possibilities; either we accept war as an instrument of international conduct, or we take the stand that war is futile, senseless, inhuman and un-Christian. In the latter case we must, to be consistent, proceed to total disarmament.

Martyrdom Forseen

The present conference at Geneva does not take this point of view. It still accepts war as the last argument of the diplomats. It has not abandoned the fiction of a defensive war. If the conference persists in this attitude, other measures will have to be taken. The peoples themselves will have to take a hand. They will have to range themselves with those youthful crusaders of peace who told Mr. Arthur Henderson: "We have decided to proceed with total disarmament at once. We refuse to participate in a new war of which the youth of the world will be the victims!"

This is no light decision to take. It requires the greatest courage, the courage of the Gospel. For these young men will as surely be martyred for their principles as the early Christians were martyred in Rome. The Roman Empire did not persecute the Christians for their belief in an alien creed. Rome was utterly tolerant on that subject. It martyred them because they refused to bear arms, because they stood by the Gospel. They risked they lives for the Gospel. That is also why Professor Udo, the Catholic divine in Austria, who is thrown from one country to the other, and Professor Heering, in Holland, speak of a return of the time of the martyrs, if a new war should break out.

Only those who love the Christian church have a right to criticize. But that criticism is necessary. The church lives by tradition. In that lies her strength but her danger as well. In growing measure the church has become a faithful vassal of the modern state, which has estabilished itself with virtual almightiness, which maintains itself with all means at its disposal and which is carried forward by whipped-up waves of nationalism.

Adolph Harnsack said once: "If the church does not build up her ideals in the world, the world will build up its ideals in the church." This has happened. We, of the younger generation, who still love the Christian church, say this, because we must say it. Today the church sanctions armament. It blesses armies. The church has done much to destroy the conception of God as a Father of all men, by lowering Him to the level of a national deity, a tribal demon, the God of our Fathers, der alte Gott of Prussia, le bon Dieu Francais, etc., etc.

Challenge to Christianity.

It is not merely a question to keep war away from our own frontiers. The matter is now far graver. It is a question whether we Christians of all countries will take much longer the responsibility for a system that is being maintained and taught by the state, and which slaps the principles of Christian life right in the face.

Can a church which sanctions such a system celebrate Christmas? If Jesus could come back this Christmas and ask the churches: For what is the youth preparing with your approval? What would the answer be? What would the answer be of a Christian civilization if He asked: How is it that there is poverty and destitution and misery in the midst of plenty, in the richest countries of the world? What system is this that you approve and maintain?

The answer we already know: What can the churches do? On, if the churches only wanted, we would witness great things. There are those who say that the churches have been pressed into a defensive position by the growth of irreligion, that the churches are clamping themselves to a lost position. Was not Calvary a lost position? And did it not become the signal of victory and the harbinger of the coming Kingdom?

The militia of Christ lives again to-day. It is still a small band. But its weapons are love and justice and righteousness. With those it will conquer, because it has conquered already in principle through Calvary. And by conquest is meant, not the imposition of doctrines but the realization of the freedom of Christ and the transformation of society into a place where "no man shall sow and another reap, where no man shall build and another inhabit, where no children shall be born to die before their day, and where no man shall cause hurt or sorrow to another man."

That is the glad message of Christmas, of peace on earth. There lies our task.

APPOINTMENT OF BUDGETING

and retrenchment that was practised during the last 12 months operating period is responsible more than anything else for its impending establishment and operation.

In 1931-1932 the Henry administration chopped $4,600,000 off its departmental expenditures of the previous year. While there is no apparent possibility, it is understood, of reaching that actual figure in 1932-1933, the retrenchment planned will, in proportion to the revenues available, be probably just as pronounced.

Through the work of the new committee, standardized accounting for all departments will, it is understood, be set up. Certain duplication and overlapping in connection with financing will be eliminated. Issuance of special warrants, and treasury minutes, to take care of expenditures not otherwise provided for in estimates, will be considerably curtailed.

To Hold Conferences.

Another feature of the reported arrangement is that all deputy ministers and other branch heads must take their estimates before the commission for consideration and revision. Such consideration will be in the nature of a round-table conference with all deputies present at the same time, so as to benefit from one another's suggestions and experences, and to guard against errors, individual or of a general nature which the committee may from time to time detect.

At Queen's Park, at the present time, there is a treasury board, consisting of Premier Henry, Hon. Mr. Dunlop, and the Attorney-General, whose duties are pretty well confined to passing on issuance of treasury warrants. The new budgeting committee, however, is far more than any mere extension of that board, and it is expected, it is asserted, to effect, before long, far-reaching and drastic changes in the financing complexion of the province.

Titled Heir In Title Role

The heir to the title of Earl of Bessborough, Lord Duncannon, has already inherited the talents of his actor-father, the present Governor-General of Canada. For long has the theatre been the hobby of the King's representative in the Dominion, and now he is followed by his son, who is to take the part of Hamlet in the Shakespearian play. Lord Duncannon will appear in the play in Ottawa on December 26 and 27, and on December 29 and 30 in Montreal, in connection with the new "little theatre" movement. The play is being handled, as to stage designing, by the Earl of Bessborough. Above is shown Lord Duncannon dressed for the role of Hamlet.

COLD WEATHER THAT IS COLD

Northerner Rode Eight Days on Tractor in 46 Below Zero.

ICE BREAK-UP POOL.

"Mountie" is Still World's Best Policeman Declares Jim Fairburn.

MONTREAL, Dec. 29 (C.P.) — Speaking lightly of the recent cold snap which held this city in its grasp for a week, Jim Fairborn, grizzled old sourdough who ran away from his home in Montreal at the age of 13 to travel northwards, compared this cold with the weather of the Northland. "When I left Mayo in the Yukon, on Nov. 8," said Jim, "it was 46 below zero. I rode for eight days on a tractor in front of an open freight sleigh, and I'm going back the same way."

Shifting quickly from one subject to another, this veteran of the north described the resentment against fiction writers carried around in the breast of most of the Northlanders, because of the seemingly far-fetched heroics credited to them by blood and thunder authors. Even Lenhart Seppala, whose serum dash across frozen Norton Sound thrilled the world, shrugged his shoulders at acclaim.

Greatest Gamble

The greatest gamble in the North, Mr. Fairborn states, is the ice break-up pool. Practically everyone who can get a ticket does so with avidity. A tripod set in the ice with a long loose wire arranged so as to stop the clock when the ice moves, is the signal which declares the lucky ticket holder.

The "Mountie," said Mr. Fairborn, is still the world's best policeman, in spite of the criticism which has recently been levelled at him. He was loud in his praise of Constable McKaskell who rules with an iron hand over the Keno district in Canada's Northland. The last bad man of the North was hanged last year for killing a trapper to get his fur.

In describing the villages of the Northland, Mr. Fairborn remarked: "We are domesticated to-day, and counterparts of every Northern village can be found right here in the Province of Quebec."

GANDHI DECIDES AGAINST "FAST"

Rumors Spread Mahatma and All Non-violent Prisoners to be Freed.

JAN. 1 DATE REPORTED.

POONA, India, Dec. 29 (A.P.) — Mahatma Gandhi announced officially to-day that his proposed fast of protest against the ban on entry of India's "untouchables" in Guruvayoor Temple would be "postponed."

He had a three-hour conference yesterday with advisers on the matter in Yeroda Prison, where he is held. It was believed the fast, scheduled to begin New Year's Day would be postponed indefinitely. Gandhi being satisfied that all concerned were doing their best to maintain progress toward removal of the "untouchability" ban.

Release Rumors

LONDON, Dec. 29 (A.P.)—Rumors of the possibility of Mahatma Gandhi's early release from prison, for some time current in India and Great Britain, have been revived with the conclusion here last Saturday of the third India Round Table Conference.

(Next Tuesday will be the anniversary of Gandhi's arrest and imprisonment in Yeroda Jail at Poona, India, for his refusal to postpone a "disobedience campaign" against Government ordinances. Later he declared he would remain in prison until India was granted independence).

A despatch from New Delhi, India, recording a revival of the rumor there, stated that official quarters were reticent and it was recalled here that the Viceroy, the Earl of Willingdon, former Governor-General of Canada, already had declared the Mahatma could not be released unless he definitely disassociated himself from the disobedience movement.

The London Herald's diplomatic writer to-day said:

"I hear it has been practically decided to release Mr. Gandhi and all non-violent prisoners on January 1. (These are civil disobedience campaign prisoners, estimated as totalling about 20,000)."

Delivery Necessary.

"There is some bureaucratic opposition in Delhi (the capital), which has influenced the Viceroy, but the Secretary of State for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, is convinced the jail delivery is essential to secure a fair hearing in India for the Government's proposals."

Nothing confirmatory has been received here in regard to the rumored release.

The Herald, referring to a rumor that the Earl of Willingdon will resign as Viceroy in 1933, forecast that Lord Lothian would be his successor. Lord Lothian was a British delegate at the Round Table Conference during the past month and headed a Parliamentary committee dealing with negotiations on the details of the projected new constitution for India.

OUT FOR FIVE WEEKS.

CHICAGO, December 28 (C.P.).—Charlie Conacher, scoring ace of professional hockey, will be lost to the Toronto Maple Leafs for more than five weeks due to a broken left collar-bone suffered in the game with the Chicago Black Hawks last night. The extent of the injury was revealed to-day.

URGES OFFICE HOLDERS BE PROPERTY OWNERS

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec 29. (CP)— Return to property qualifications for holders of municipal office is urged by Walkerville council in a resolution to go to the Ontario Government. Assessment of at least $1,000 is specified.

Mayor Burley Bennett advanced the proposal and pointed to the fact he worked for removal of the requirement when the Drury Government was in power.

"We never dreamed the present condition would exist," he explained. "There were no Reds then. We do not allow them to speak in parks but they can be nominated and use public platforms."

YOUTH DIES FROM WOUND.

TILLSONBURG, Ont. — Edwin Vannawatter, 13, died in hospital here to-day as the result of a revolver wound received while practising shooting on Christmas Day. An inquest has been ordered.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1932

A RAY OF HOPE.

The announcement made a few days ago by Premier Henry that his Government proposes to extend the Moratorium Act to cover interest as well as principal has been enthusiastically received.

The premier, it is worthy of note, accompanied his statement with the warning that mortgagees and other persons proposing foreclosure proceedings should take no action until the Legislature has had time to consider the matter; a warning that should serve to protect the equity of property owners during the interim.

This course on the part of the Government, while it will undoubtedly work a hardship in the case of some persons, will on the other hand be a blessing to a great many more who through no fault of their own have been in danger of losing the property in which their life savings have been sunk.

It seems only reasonable that whatever steps likely to save such people should be undertaken.

As the Border Cities Star say in discussing the situation throughout the province, it is not right that the existing conditions should be allowed to continue, that people who are honest, who have tried, who are willing to pay as soon as they are in a position to do so, should lose out now.

HOW IT WORKS OUT.

In connection with fixed exemptions for industries it should be understood that in spite of these partial exemptions manufacturing concerns are heavy taxpayers.

Just as an example of how the thing works out let us take a typical case:

If the full assessment of land and buildings is $100,000.00, and a fixed assessment of $10,000.00 is given, except for school taxes and local improvement rates, the taxes payable at 1932 rates would be:

$10,000.00 at 37.6 mills	$ 376.00
$90,000.00 at 12.47 mills	1,122.30
$30,000.00 (business assessment) at 12.47 mills	748.20
	$2,246.50

If an addition on new building were erected and the full assessment on land and buildings were increased $150,000.00, and the fixed assessment increased to $420,000.00 (except for school taxes and local improvements) the taxes payable would be:

$20,000.00 at 37.6 mills	$ 752.00
$130,000.00 at 12.47 mills	1,621.00
90,000.00 (business assessment) at 12.47 mills	1,122.30
	$3,495.40

In addition there would be local improvement and garbage collection rates.

THE INDIANS' REQUEST.

The Indians at Curve Lake are petitioning the Federal Government that, in view of current conditions and the fact that they are victims of the depression, a measure of relief should be accorded them, the petition suggesting that they be assisted to the extent of $3 per month each during the winer.

Their revenue, like that of nearly everybody else, has been reduced and there is undoubtedly suffering among the Indian families that would justify the Government in granting the request as an emergency measure.

The petitioners also suggest that as a further relief they should be allowed to sell fish, a privilege which they contend is rightly theirs although the authorities have never recognized the claim.

The Examiner has no hesitation in supporting the first part of this request, but as to the second feels constrained to point out that to legalize the sale of game fish by Indians would be a step that would quickly make inroads upon our fishery reserves and as a consequence have serious results upon tourist traffic, the bulk of which is attracted here by the angling possibilities offered by this district.

It would be much cheaper for the Government to provide adequate relief for all needy Indians than to sanction a trade that could not fail to have serious results.

THEY SHOULD BE PASSED.

The by-laws providing fixed assessment for the De Laval and the Canadian Raybestos Company which come before the ratepayers on Monday are, The Examiner believes, entirely worthy of support.

In the first place these industries on their record have earned consideration on the part of the taxpaying citizens.

In the second place, these industries which have already paid large sums of money each year in taxes will, under the new by-laws, pay considerably more into the civic treasury from now on, inasmuch as the De Laval Company will have to pay full taxes on $60,000 instead of on a $50,000 assessment and the Raybestos Company will be fully taxed on a $25,000 instead of a $10,000 assessment.

In addition of course both companies will have to pay school and local improvement taxes on the balance of their assessment.

Thirdly, the passage of the by-laws is of vital importance as a factor in attracting and interesting new industries.

Industrial executives who are planning the establishment of new branches would speedily lose interest in Peterborough if these industrial by-laws were to be defeated.

As The Examiner has already pointed out a fixed exemption is the only concession Ontario laws permit municipalities to offer industrial concerns; if we let the impression go out that such a concession cannot be depended upon here we might as well make up our minds that this city will be permanently off the map so far as new industries are concerned.

And new industries are essential if we expect to make progress.

It has only been the diversified nature of our industrial plants that has spared this city the worst effects of the prolonged depression and it would be suicidal therefore to adopt a course that would definitely kill our hopes for more industries.

The citizen who weighs up all the factors in the situation will decide that it will be good business to support the by-laws.

SOMETIMES DOUBTFUL ECONOMY.

The question of roads comes up prominently just now when new councils are being elected to carry on next year's activities. Many of these councils are no doubt elected on a program of economy, the need for which has been shown in all lines of activity at this time. Particularly in roads, however, there is a point beyond which economy can be carried too far and during the past year there are actual cases where road maintenance appropriations have been cut so low that the original heavy investment in building the roads is likely to be entirely lost. If for instance to maintain a gravel road in normally good condition, it requires the addition of 500 cubic yards of gravel per mile and funds are cut to the point where only 200 cubic yards per mile can be applied, it is impossible to keep the road in condition and sooner or later the whole road surface will have to be rebuilt by the addition of several thousand cubic yards of material at a cost equal to the original cost of building the road.

The same story applies to maintenance of the surface by machinery. If machinery is allowed to deteriorate to the point where it is useless, then the roads which are to be maintained are allowed to go to rack and ruin. Each township and county is naturally interested mainly in its own particular district, but looking on the whole country we have an investment of over five hundred million dollars in roads which normally require an annual maintenance expense of about twenty-five million dollars. These road investments bring in tourists who spend millions of dollars per year in this country—in 1930 over two hundred million dollars. It is thus very much to our advantage to keep our roads in condition.

Over and above this fact is the effect on the taxpayer who pays for good roads and who is entitled to expect them. There are not many places where taxes are being lowered, yet it is unfair that funds which previously had been devoted to keeping roads in condition should now be spent in other ways and without any benefit to the user of the roads. Government investigations show that it costs 2 cents a mile more to operate a motor car over unsurfaced roads than over smooth gravel or paved roads. Thus in districts where roads are not properly maintained every owner of a motor car contributes 2 cents a mile for the privilege of driving over bad roads. He may not realize this but it is nevertheless a fact.

PLAN TO HELP U.S. FARMERS.

The Democrats have not had much chance to show what they can accomplish for the farmer but it cannot be said that the plans they have in view lack boldness, originality or enterprise. Governor Roosevelt sketched a farm relief plan at Topeka during his campaign, which those on the inside have now elaborated a little, and it will command a great deal of interest among agriculturists everywhere.

It is known as the volunteer domestic allotment plan, and it differs radically from all other propositions in that instead of promoting and encouraging production it aims at paying bounties to control and restrict production.

In the first place there will be a sort of referendum among farmers to ascertain if they wish their staple products to come under the scheme. It may be wheat, cotton, tobacco, livestock, dairy products or anything else, and if a majority assent, then they will be sujeot to a tax on the amount sold for dimestic consumption. There will be no tax on the surplus exported, or for such part as may be fed or used on the farm. Wheat, it is estimated, will roll up a tax fund of 160 to 200 million dollars, tobacco 35 to 40 millions, cotton 115 to 160 millions, and hogs between 300 and 400 millions.

The Goverinment then suggests, say, a ten per cent. reduction of production of those commodities, scheduling in each state the amount of production for next year, each county and each farmer having quotas. Farmers would receive a chit stating how much of each product they were permitted to raise and sell, and at the end of the year each would receive from the Government a bounty from the tax fund.

Two outstanding results of this plan would be that producers would receive a bounty on the domestic quota in addition to the market price, and by reducing the production there would probably be the natural consequence of a raise in the price.

The scheme may be complex and difficult at first, but with the force of government organization behind it might achieve such success in the beginning as to make the task the succeeding years easier. It is all, however, a big experiment, and may be just a gamble.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make up your mind to vote next Monday. It is your duty as a citizen.

Canada is entering into a new trade treaty with Germany. All such pacts are moves in the right direction and should prove of steadily increasing benefit.

Make sure of the industrial by-laws. New industries seeking locations are sure to be guided by the treatment given other manufacturers.

The duty of the hour is to endeavor to make the best choice among the candidates offering themselves for various public offices. Much depends upon how that duty is carried out.

The municipal campaign is not very long, but it should prove decidedly interesting.

The list of 24 candidates for municipal office here does not include a lawyer. The legal fraternity reserve its thunder for the Provincial and Federal fields.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jere Kane, student of criminology, returning to the United States from a vacation in Hawaii, meets Ben MacQuarrie, an old detective friend, in Los Angeles, where police chiefs are in convention. They take dinner together, and are joined by Chief Lee of Los Angeles. As they dine in a fashionable resort Chief Lee points out some of the screen celebrities in attendance, among them one Nanette LeRoi, Hollywood's newest star, recently "discovered" by Richard Bailey, noted director. While eating, Chief Lee is called to the phone. He returns, asks Kane and MacQuarrie to take a ride with him, and they all three drive out to Hollywood, where, in a fashionable bungalow, they find the body of Bailey, gaping wound in his head, on the floor of the living room. The room shows signs of a struggle. With the other officers, Kane, who has been invited to assist in the case, goes over the entire room, questions Chivington, the buller, who discovered the body on his return from the city, and notes a picture of Nanette LeRoi occupying the center of the mantel.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

"It's ten minutes before ten now," Jere Kane said. "That means he must have died at about nine o'clock."

"That's right, sir," the coroner said brusquely. "Death was immediate."

"Then he died where he fell," the chief suggested.

The coroner nodded. "He didn't move after he fell. You can tell that by his position on the floor. He is not sprawled out as he would have been had he been able to move before he died. The position in which he is laying is exceedingly painful to one who had even part control of his faculties."

Kane considered for a moment, then: "Doesn't it strike you, doctor, that he has a rather peculiar expression on his face?"

The little man gazed down at the body, as did the others, each eagerly seeking that of which the amateur detective was speaking.

"Well," the coroner said finally, "those who meet a sudden end do assume a distorted mask of death."

The two detective looked inquiringly at Kane. They seemed puzzled at what he was trying to bring out.

Kane persisted, "But how would you classify that expression?"

"How would you?" the coroner countered, somewhat heatedly.

"Mr. Kane is a student of criminology," Chief Lee put in hastily and, it seemed, apologetically. He added, as if to cover up any hint of affront, "I have asked him to assist us in this case."

But plainly the coroner was none too pleased at this outside interference. He frowned and cast a reproving glance at the chief. Nor were the two detectives any too willing to accept his presence and assistance. They looked at each other with knowing nods of the head and pursed lips. Perhaps there was the faintest trace of an amused, sneering smile.

Jere Kane accepted the challenge. There was nothing he enjoyed more than "showing up" what he termed dumb policemen. That was a carry down from the old days when he was considered one of the best police reporters in New Orleans, if not in the entire south.

"He hasn't answered my question," the coroner snapped.

Kane warmed to his subject. "One of the prime requisites in solving a murder case is in reading the expression on the face of the victim," he asserted. "What was the person thinking when death came to him? Did he expect death? Did he know his assailant? Was it someone whom he feared, whom he expected to kill him?

"Those are all questions which must be answered before any murder can be solved and the real culprit brought to justice. Those are all questions which can be read in the expression on the victim's face."

His gaze roamed from one to the other. He sought their impressions of his utterance. Without exception, every one of them was looking down at the body, apparently trying to fathom the expression on Richard Bailey's drawn and distorted countenance.

His eye fell on Chivington. The old man was staring fixedly at his dead master. His eyes were distended; his jaw sagged. He was deathly white.

"What do you make out, Chivington?" Kane asked suddenly.

The old man started. He looked at the amateur criminologist, fear in his every feature. Yet there was something appealing in his eyes.

"I—I—" But the old houseman could not go on. He turned away, his decrepit old body shaking with sobs.

Kane said, not unkindly, "Chief Lee, I think you'd better take him away. I don't mean he's guilty," he added quickly. "But he will need protection."

The chief looked at him, puzzlement on his face.

"Chivington read the expression correctly," Kane went on. "Richard Bailey was killed by someone he knew, someone whom he admired. The expression on his face is one of surprise and horror—not horror at the fate which he knew was his lot, but horror at the one who was about to take his life."

It was then that Inspector MacQuarrie spoke for the first time. He had considered, and rightly so, that this was none of his affair, that he was a rank outsider looking on and that it was none of his business to take a hand in the investigation. But now he said:

"You can rest assured that if that's what Kane says it must be true. I've watched him work for several years, now, and he's never let me down."

Chief Lee nodded agreement. Then he ordered one of the men, obviously the Bertillon expert, to get to work. Kane watched the operation keenly. He was not a complete convert to this method of deduction but he was forced to admit to himself that it had a place in police work.

Photographs were made of the room from various angles. Every article in the room which might bear a fingerprint was also pictured, at close range. The body, likewise, was snapped. When he had finished with his camera he produced a fine white powder and camel's hair brush and proceeded to go over the room, exceedingly careful in a search for finger impressions. These he photographed with a small pocket camera.

"This room's full of fingerprints," he muttered. "We ought to get something out of them."

When he had completed his task Lee said to the coroner:

"The body's yours, doc."

Without further ado, the little man summoned his assistant, whom he had left outside, and they placed the corpse in a wicker basket and carried it away.

The chief said to Chivington. "You don't want to stay here tonight. You'd better go down with us."

The old houseman looked appealingly at the official. "If you don't mind," he murmured, "I'll stay here. Mr. Bailey wouldn't want the house left without one of us here."

Kane looked intently at the old man. This was a brand of servitude that he did not know existed out of the old South, where old darkies, relics of slave days, remained faithful to their former masters as though slavery still existed.

Lee started to protest, but he interrupted. "If he wishes, let him stay," he said. "Maybe he can pick up something which will aid us in our hunt."

Leaving one of the detectives in charge, the chief led Kane and the inspector to his car. The machine moved slowly down the hill and back into Hollywood boulevard and headed for the downtown section of the city. They rode in silence for some distance, until:

"There's one thing certain," the chief said grimly, "Richard Bailey put up a desperate fight before he died."

Kane did not say anything for a moment. The car halted for a traffic signal at Vine street. On the corner the newsboys were shrilly calling their extras and waving their papers, bearing the screaming black headlines detailing the news of Richard Bailey's murder, in the faces of passersby.

The light changed, giving them the right-of-way, and the car shot ahead. Finally:

"Chief, you'll probably think I'm crazy," he said slowly, "and I'm not so sure that I don't think so myself. But I am convinced that Richard Bailey was shot before he had a chance to put up a struggle."

GET NAMES CONFUSED

An old friend of Jack McCabe has sent in the following letter clearing up the confusion as to which John McCabe is running for the Public Utilities.

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—There has been some confusion as to which Mr. John McCabe is contesting for Utilities Commission and I might state for his benefit he is Jack McCabe, of 293 Burnham street, East City. He was employed by the C.G.E. Company for over thirty years but he has not been connected with that company for over a year.

He is still a resident of Ashburnham and at one time was a lacrosse star.

An Old Friend.

ASTOUNDING FACTS

Editor Examiner,

Dear Sir,—I have stood on the bridge of a combine and watched a western wheat field reduced to shiny, golden kernels by the machine, and I have heard it said that one man with this machine is equivalent to one hundred men using hand implements.

I have read that Professor E. A. Stewart, agricultural engineer of the University of Minnesota, believes that no more workers will be required to harvest food for 150,000,000 people in 1950 than were required for 25,000,000 in 1850, and that the wheat crop harvested in the United States in 1930 would have required 20,000,000 more men only 45 years ago.

In the Survey Graphic for April, 1929, I have found Professor Summer H. Slichter of Harvard pointing out that "for the first time in the history of this rapidly growing country, employment in our two largest branches of industry—farming and manufacturing—is manifesting a definitely downward trend."

In Recent Economic Changes I have discovered that the National Bureau of Economic Research estimated a decrease in the number of persons employed in the three major industries—farming, manufacturing, railroading—for the period 1918-20 to 1924-26 at 1,745,000.

I have found Ethelbert Stewart, U.S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics, stating in The Annals for March, 1931:

"American cement mills have a developed capacity for 260,000,000 barrels of cement a year. The present demand is for 150,000,000.

"Some 1,487 mines, or 24.6 per cent of the mines reporting, could, by operating with their present capacity for 300 days in the year, produce all the coal that is now produced by 6,057 mines reporting.

"If all the shoe establishments were to operate with the same efficiency that the best establishment works we could produce with 81,811 men all the boots and shoes we are now producing with 202,191 men."

On the other hand, I have been told, through the press, by none other than Roger W. Babson that technocracy is just—"bunk!"

Yours truly,
W. H. C. Coulthard.

A THOUGHT

CULTIVATING GOOD HABITS

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

According to one dictionary, habit may be considered as aptitude, either natural or acquired, and marked by ease of performance or decreased power of resistance. Habits are classed as good or bad, and as having more or less importance in the formation of character. Few, perhaps, realize to what extent their lives seem to be controlled by habit, because, as a wise axiom states: "habits are at first cobwebs, at last cables." How important, then, the cultivation of good habits!

The tendency to procrastinate, if indulged, may become a most subtle habit. The mental apathy that would lull one, through a sense of ease, to defer action or beguile one into waiting longer before beginning a needed reform, not only robs one of making the right use of opportunity but leads on to discouragement. Looking back with regret, or waiting for a more propitious time, does not heal a discordant condition or promote progress.

Nothing good or great has ever been accomplished without alert, tireless effort. A right understanding of God's creation and its continuous unfoldment stimulates the individual to grasp opportunity, which notwithstanding material belief, is ever present. But spiritual understanding furnishes a deep inward contentment which silences false cravings. Such facts, understood and faithfully applied, free one from false appetites.

From the time that even a small measure of the perfection of God, divine Mind, is understood, we begin to find out true selfhood and start on the mental journey out of into the spiritual. The realization that he is the child of God gives him courage to overcome or forestall all erroneous tendencies or habits, and joyfully to take and maintain a right course.

JOHN COUGHLIN 82 YEARS OLD

Pioneer Hastings Resident Observes Birthday on Wednesday Last.

SERVED ON COUNCIL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 29. — John Coughlan, Hastings' pioneer resident, celebrated his 82nd birthday on Wednesday. Mr. Coughlan was born in Hastings on December 28, 1850, on the property situated on Front street, where the bill boards are now located. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Coughlan, who came to Hastings in 1833. Hastings at that time was known as "Crook's Rapids." Coming to this little hamlet direct from Ireland, he has the distinction of being the first white male child born in the village. Mr. Couglan received his education at Regiopolis College at Kingston. After grauduating from college he decided on taking up farming, which he carried on very successfully for a number of years on the present homestead. He was married in 1875 to Miss Margaret Doherty, another pioneer resident of the village.

During his long life in Hastings, Mr. Coughlan can recall many interesting things that have happened. Always anxious to see the village prosper, he was reeve for a number of years; he also was a member of the council. The Separate school board was also a source of interest to Hastings' grand old man, having acted as secretary-treasurer for over 40 years. Being a farmer he also was connected with Ormonde cheese factory for a number of years, during which time he was president, also salesman, making trips every two weeks to the cheese board in Peterborough, where his ability as a salesman brought big profits to the patrons of the factory. Before retiring this factory was burned on two occasions but by his untiring efforts it was rebuilt.

In discussing Hastings in years gone by Mr. Coughlan explained that there was no bridge over the Trent River where the one is at the present time. The only place to cross was at McCarthy's Point. Hastings was at one time a thriving village of over 1300, all of whom were well occupied and factories were quite plentiful. But with one disastrous fire after another factories were burned and not rebuilt, which made it necessary for numbers to move on, until the population has dwindled down to about 800.

Hastings' first white resident can well remember the activities of the North and South war, and many others; also the trip the Prince of Wales made through Hastings in 1860, at which time his father read the address of welcome.

Always a devout member of the Roman Catholic Church he gave very generously of his time and finances in the construction of the present beautiful House of God.

To Mr. Coughlan and the late Mrs. Coughlan were born ten children, seven of whom are still living, namely T. A. Coughlan, of Hastings, J. B. Coughlan of Calgary, Mrs. C. Black of Campbellford, Mrs. S. J. Lamey, Bellview, Alta., Sister M. Carmita, of Brighton, Mass., Mother Saint George of Quebec City, and Miss Gertrude of Hastings.

The entire district will wish Mr. Coughlan many more years of happiness.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE SINKING OF THE CAROLINE

ON THIS DATE, in 1837, the Loyalists of Upper Canada gave the blow to William Lyon Mackenzie and forced his abandonment of his "republic" on Navy Island above Niagara Falls. They forced the lowering of the rebel flag—two stars, emblematic of the two "states" of Upper and Lower Canada. On the north shore of the Niagara River flew the Union Jack; on the south the Stars and Stripes; and in between the twin stars, Mackenzie had been permitted to recruit a body of riff-raff in Buffalo and he engaged the small steamboat, the Caroline, to carry supplies to his "capital". This was too much for Allan MacNab, and he instructed Captain Drew, R.N., to capture the rebels' ship. Drew called for volunteers and soon had over 100 to choose from. At midnight on December 28th the expedition set forth in canoes and small boats. It was difficult work against the swift current, but eventually the Niagara was crossed, the Caroline was reached and boarded and, after the half-sleepy guards had been driven off or taken prisoner, the Caroline was cut adrift, set afire and left to the mercy of the rushing current. The Canadians, back in their boats, fought their way back to our shore and watched the flaming vessel drift to her doom. By some strange twist of fate she did not, as expected, go over the American falls, but by a change of wind was swept over the Horseshoe falls and only a few charred fragments were rushed through the whirlpool to be picked up lower down the river as relics of William Lyon Mackenzie's navy.

AUTOPSY ORDERED

HAMILTON.—An autopsy has been ordered in the death of Thomas W. Proctor, found dead in his room with escaping gas filling the chamber. It is not thought suicide was intended by Proctor as the window was open and gas jets had only been slightly turned on as though by accident. Police have been unable to determine the definite cause of death and are awaiting the result of the post-mortem.

STRUCK BY ROBBER.

KINGSTON.—Thomas Barrett, 75, is in hospital to-day suffering from injuries inflicted by a would-be robber who attacked the aged man in his home.

Asked for money, Barrett declared he had none, whereupon the intruder slugged him with an iron bar. Barrett was found in a semi-conscious state and taken to hospital. No trace has been found of his assailant.

LABOR WOULD PRESENT VIEW

Ask Opportunity to Speak on Unemployment Insurance Before Inter-provincial Parley.

CONTRIBUTORY SCHEME.

OTTAWA, Dec. 29 (C.P.)—Labor will seek an opportunity of presenting its views on unemployment insurance before the Interprovincial Conference, which opens here on Jan. 17. Thomas Moore, President of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress will discuss the matter with the Government very soon.

Organized Labor, Mr. Moore declared, stands as heretofore for a contributory system of social insurance in which the State, the industry and the workers participate. "There has been insidious propaganda," Mr. Moore declared, "endeavoring to persuad individual locals to press for unemployment insurance on a non-contributory basis. It would put the burden wholly on industry and a tax on wealth. On the other hand it would have the money thus collected administered by representatives elected by unemployed workers' councils and trades unions."

The great majority of organized Labor in this country, Mr. Moore declared, recognize in this propaganda an attempt to make demands so extreme that nothing will be done, and therefore cause greater delays and chaos. Organized Labor stands for an unemployment insurance in which the workers would contribute.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, December 29 (C.P.).—Influenced by disappointing cabes grain values here tended downward early to-day. Liverpool reported big offerings of wheat from Argentina. Opening unchanged to ⅜c ower, Chicago wheat futures underwent an all-around sag afterward. Corn started unchanged to ¼c off and subsequenty held near the initial limits.

FORM NEW CABINET.

SOFIA, Bulgaria.—Nicholas Muschanoff, who resigned as Premier yesterday, was commissioned by King Boris to-day to form a new Cabinet.

Bob Fitzsimmons, old time heavyweight, used to keep a stage lion tied up in his yard.

Too Conservative

ORILLIA, Ont., Dec. 29 (C.P.)—The statement in an outside publication that Orillians held 1,193 permits to manufacture home brew beer, although the town's population is only a little more than 8,000, was branded an under-statement, rather than an exaggeration, by officials of the Department of Inland Revenue to-day.

These officials, who issue the permits, say the published figures were several months old, and "a couple of hundred" permits had been issued since release of the figures.

Chauffeur Suicides After Killing Family

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—Peter Peterson, chauffeur for 27 years to Clement Studebaker III., telephoned his employer and the police to-day that he had just killed his wife and daughter and intended to end his own life.

A few minutes later officers found the three bodies in Peterson's north side apartment. All were dead of bullet wounds through the right temple.

Peterson was 60 years old. The other dead were his wife, Anna, 40, and their daughter, Paulina, 20, student at North-Western University. Peterson had shot them while they lay in bed.

Stranded Ex-Air Force Man Builds Up Thriving Trade Whittling Statuettes

OTTAWA, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—Things looked bad a few months ago for A. B. Abolit of Ottawa, but to-day he had whittled his way out of the depression.

Abolit, discharged from the Royal Canadian Air Force when the Government cut staffs as an economy measure, was left without resources and with an expensive house he had built himself.

He had a hobby, whittling. Ever since he was a boy in Pictou, N.S., he had whittled little wooden statuettes just for the fun of it. After he lost his job he started whittling in earnest, making caricatures of human types on Canada's Atlantic coast, images of Indians, getting the costumes right by studying specimens in the National Museum of Canada here, and model totem poles.

The things sold well both in Canada and in the United States.

To-day Abolit wondered if he couldn't find one or two other whittlers who would join him in forming a small whittling industry. He can't fill all his orders himself, he said.

FOURTH VICTIM SHOOTING DIES

Domestic Tragedy Wipes Out Members of Three Families Related by Marriage.

SLAYER SUICIDES.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29. (AP)—Mrs. Sarah Ann Parnell, 57, died here to-day, the fourth victim of a domestic tragedy in which bullets wiped out members of three families related by marriage.

Mrs. Parnell, Robert Still, her six year old grandson, and her son Raymond Townsend Parnell, 34, were shot last night by Raleigh E. Still, 32 year old mechanic and painter when he called at the Parnell home in an attempt to see his estranged wife.

Then Still turned the pistol on himself and was fatally wounded.

Parnell's wife, who left the house to call police when Still entered, was not molested, nor were her three children.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(A.P.) — The stock market carried through with quiet strength in the late trading, to-day. With quotations holding about half of the day's maximum gains. Up more than a point were Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Corn Products and Union Pacific. Fractional gains were made by American Tobacco B, Case, Consolidated Gas, Harvester, U. S. Steel, American Can and Chrysler. Dupont, General Electric and General Motors were steady. Coca Cola was a soft spot, yielding more than a point. Transfers totalled about 1,400,000. The closing tone was firm.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (C.P.)—This was a day of profit selling on the Standard Mining Market and some of the recent leaders wilted a little under the strain, but the majority held up well and a few gains appeared on the board. Gold shares still hold the interest, but the leading copper shares came in for a share of attention.

One of the best movers was Noranda with a gain of 75 to 20.25 in heavy trading. Nickel at $9 was up 15.

Selling of Siscoe developed into a heavy barrage and the price was knocked down to 1.16. It turned up again and closed at 1.20.

Among the higher-priced gold shares, Teck Hughes closed with a gain of a point at 3.94. Wright-Hargreaves lost a few points to 3.70. Dome and McIntyre were steady; Lake Shore a little lower and Hollinger up 15 to 5.80.

Eldorado traded quietly to-day and closed at 1.40, unchanged, while some of the silver shares were strong and higher.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (C.P.)—The Toronto Stock Exchange put on its best performance of the week to-day, and chalked up a considerable list of gains. Improved tone in Wall Street was a factor in stiffening the local list and volume was larger than in recent sessions.

All the big oil shares recorded small gains, while in the utilities Union Gas was stronger and small recessions were registered by Montreal Power and British Columbia Power "A." Bell Telephone at 91½ was off a fraction.

Walker issues traded unchanged while a small advance was made by Canada Malting.

Steel of Canada picked up a fraction to 17.

Interlisted shares closed with gains of ¼ to ½, including Brazilian, C.P.R., Nickel and Ford A.

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 29.—(C. P.)—Trading in the wheat futures market at the start to-day was decidedly dull and values during the first 45 minutes moved within a range of 1-8c at levels around yesterday's close. With the exception of a little buying against a small export business worked out of Vancouver, and scattered selling by Chicago interests, presumably in connection with spreading, operations were extremely uninteresting and traders generally were awaiting new developments.

At mid-session futures were unchanged to ¼ higher. December stood at 41; May at 42 3-8 and July at 43 3-8.

Liverpool wheat displayed an indifferent tone for the most part and quotations near the close were 1-8d. higher per 100 pound, while Buenos Aires wheat at noon was 1-8c higher to 1-8 lower per bushel.

Getting Even

CLEVELAND, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—After 20 years of ash collecting, Charles Gregory has lost his job, and is he mad!

Gregory, who calls himself "the best ash collecto: in the city of Cleveland," is so "plumb disgusted" he turned in his naturalization papers yesterday, and fairly "blew off steam."

It's all because Mayor Ray T. Miller believes, Gregory said, that the ash collector voted for Miller's opponent in the last election.

"If the Government has come to the point where a man is deprived of a job because of the way he votes as a citizen, then I don't want to be a citizen," declared Gregory.

Livestock-Produce Quotations

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Dec. 29. — (C.P.)—Trading on the Toronto livestock market was very dull at the opening this morning. Cattle trade was very dull; no trading in calves; hogs easier ;lambs steady; no sheep.

Receipts were: Cattle 23; calves 0; hogs 150; sheep and lambs 69.

There were no sales of cattle during the morning.

Hogs were easier with packers bidding $3.50 f.o.b. for week-end delivery. To-day's supply will probably sell at $3.65 f.o.b., $3.85 off truck and $4.15 off cars.

Lambs sold at $5.50 to $5.75 for good ewes and wethers. There were no sheep offered.

No quotations.

MINE OWNER HOLDS HOPES TRAPPED MEN ARE ALIVE

MOWEAQUA, Ill., Dec. 29 (A.P.)—Glenn Shaffer, owner of the mine where 54 men were entombed by an explosion last Saturday, gave the seven still missing "a good chance" to get out alive to-day.

Refusing to give up hope despite their five-day imprisonment, Shaffer ordered all speed in reaching the last of the victims. He said he expected to know by noon whether they were dead.

"It's clear back there in the mine," he said. "If the men had time to get back far enough, they are all right. There is a good chance that they are."

Rescuers found seven more bodies yesterday, raising the total of known dead to 47.

LLOYD GEORGE WILL BE 70 UPON JANUARY 17

LONDON, Dec. 29 (C.P. Cable).—Special arrangements have been made at Carnarvon for the celebration of David Lloyd George's 70th birthday on January 17th. Mr. Lloyd George has represented this area in Parliament uninterruptedly for 42 years. He first entered the House of Commons as member for the division then known as Carnarvon Boroughs in 1890. On the day of his birthday he is to address a mass meeting of his constituents.

Just a Mistake

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., December 29 (C.P.). — It was just a big mistake when Elinor Fair, film actress and former wife of William Boyd, screen star, flew to Yuma, Ariz., on Tuesday, and married Thomas W. Daniel, former naval aviator. Miss Fair said to-day she had employed an attorney to begin annulment proceedings.

"I was blue after having quarrelled with Frank Clark, my sweetheart," Miss Fair said, "and I thought I'd show him how smart I was. I was just a big mistake."

CANADA, BRITAIN WILL LEND CASH NEWFOUNDLAND

Two Governments Promise $1,250,000 to Meet Interest Due January 1.

EACH PAY HALF.

Commission of Three to Examine Country's Financial Structure—Offer Suggestions.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 29 (C.P.).—The Governments of Great Britain and Canada will lend Newfoundland $1,250,000 to assist her in meeting interest payments due on January first, Prime Minister F. C. Alderdice said in a New Year's message to a service club here to-day.

Outlining he arrangement, he said each government would contribute half of that amount. The remaining interest required, about $75,000, would be paid by the Newfoundland Government.

At the same time, the Prime Minister announced that a joint commission of three experts, one from Great Britain, one from Canada and one from Newfoundland, would examine Newfoundland's financial structure and recommend improvements looking toward stability for the future.

The arrangement was completed shortly before Christmas, when Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada was in London. Prime Minister Alderdice said that after the crisis of 1931, when Newfoundland experienced difficulty in raising a loan to meet maturing debentures, a determined effort was made to improve the Dominion's financial position.

Advisers Named

Financial and commercial advisers from the United Kingdom and Canada were appointed and with their assistance and as a result of strenuous effort on the part of the whole Dominion, very large reductions in public expenditures were effected last summer.

Since then, however, there had been further sharp fall in prices of those commodities in which Newfoundland is particularly interested, accompanied, as was inevitable, by serious decline in public revenue. Recent information made it clear that it was impossible for the Newfoundland government to provide out of its own resources the full installment of interest due January first on external debts.

During Prime Minister Bennett's recent visit to London it was arranged that the governments of Great Britain and Canada would lend Newfoundland $1,250,000 toward her interest payments, each government to pay half.

Prime Minister Alderice did not state the rate of interest on which the money was to be advanced.

U.S. SQUARES UP HER TAX MONEY

Government Refunds $80,583,564 Citizens Had Paid Needlessly Last Year.

ONE FIRM GETS $2,960,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (A.P.)—That very pleasant feeling you get when you find you have been overcharged and get some of your money back has come to thousands of individuals and business houses.

The U. S. Government refunded $80,583,564 last year, all because taxpayers through some error paid too much tax money in that or in previous years.

Several refunds amounted to more than $1,000,000. The United Fruit Company of Boston got $2,960,000, the largest. The sum of $1,890,000 was returned to the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh received $1,676; J. Henry Roraback, Republican National Committeeman for Connecticut, $10,167; former Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, $2,488, and Roy D. Chapin, Secretary of Commerce, $3,746.

FRANCO-GERMAN TREATY MODEL FOR CANADA'S DEAL

PARIS, Dec. 29. (C.P. and A.P. Cables).—The new Franco-German commercial treaty was expected in Canadian quarters to-day to form a model on which French negotiation with Canada and other countries would be patterned.

C. H. Cahan, Canadian Secretary of State and his assistants, are discussing a Franco-Canada commercial treaty with officials of the French Ministry of Commerce and it is considered most probable the Canadians will study carefully the Franco-German document in connection with their own negotiations.

Canada and United States officials said their countries were asking France to grant Canadian and American goods minimum tariffs. Assuming that France, by the Franco-German accord, was establishing a principle restricting the most-favored nation treatment, Canadian and American officials said they presumed that that principle would be applied pending negotiations.

Dr. Barr Invited To Give Lectures

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, has been invited to give the course in Old Testament at the College of Christian Education, Montreal, next summer. Canon E. D. CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

BRIDGENORTH

BRIDGENORTH, Dec. 28 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Bridgenorth Church community Christmas tree entertainment was held in the church on Wednesday evening with a capacity attendance when the pastor, Rev. R. J. Merriam acted as chairman and requested that there be no encores as the program was very lengthy.

The following is the program: recitations, Howard Robinson and Burrit Mann; speech, Mr. Potter; recitations, Opal Robinson Donald Westlake and Wesley Mills; song, Bob Jopling; recitation, Bob Jopling; speech, P. T. Udy; recitations, Joseph McManus, Dorothy Mann and Eleanor Gravelle; dialogue, Hazel and Clare Telford; recitations, Irene Forsythe, Douglas Forler and Jean Moore; song, Misses W. Telford, H. Mann and E. Chatten; recitations, Hazel Forsythe and Clare Telford; song, Jean Fowler; songs, Newton Bell and Gerald and Donald Westlake; recitations, Dorothy White and Loretta McManus; violin solo, Mr. Seidel; recitations, Peter Gravelle and Ina Robinson; song, Misses Galvin; recitations, Morris Telford and Jack King; recitations, Lloyd Mills and Barbara Moore; chorus by school; address, W. A. Sidey and Rev. R. Wright.

The chairman thanked all who had contributed towards the success of the evening's entertainment. Bags and candy and fruit were distributed and the entertainment concluded with the National Anthem.

Mrs. Ella Nichols is spending the Christmas holidays with her sister Miss Fife, in Peterborough.

AT HALL'S BRIDGE

The annual Christmas concert of Hall's Bridge school in combination with the Sunday schools of St. Matthew's Anglican church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, was held in the True Blue Hall on Wednesday evening, December 21.

The following is the program which was presented:

Chorus by the school, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing; chairman's address; recitation, Earl Hall; quartette, "Silent Night," Barbara Wilson, Otta Graham, Howard Gillespie, Webster Wilson; recitation, Marjorie Hall; recitation, Stuart Hall; instrumental, Margaret Wilson, Bobbie Dixon; dialogue, Christmas Presents, Teddy Wood, and Barbara Wilson; play, "New Teeth for Old," junior room pupils; recitation, Shirley Wilson; duet, "Softly the Snow is Falling," Leona Shearer, Muriel Bennett; recitation, Mary Marois; drill, London Bridge is Falling Down, junior room; recitation, "Making People Merry," Gordon Shearer; dialogue, Helping Santa Claus, senior room; solo, "Away in a Manger," Marguerita Hall; recitation, Mrs. Santa Claus' Troubles, Luella Spofford; recitation, Ola Stabler; instrumental, Margaret Wilson and Bobbie Dixon; chorus, it came upon the Midnight Clear.

AT APSLEY

The pupils of Apsley school under Miss Beavis, gave their annual Christmas concert in the parish hall on Friday evening, before a large and interested audience. Rev. W. F. Riding acted as chairman, and Rev. C. Spence filled the role of Santa Claus. Mr. Young of Peterborough played the accompaniments of the program, and with Mr. Collinson, violinist, contributed numbers in the intervals.

NORWOOD UNITED CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Instrumental: Mrs. Renard and Margaret Brethen.

Pageant, "Jesus Shall Reign."

God Save the King.

GRACE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, December 28. — Grace Presbyterian Sunday School observed its annual Christmas tree and entertainment on Thursday evening.

Recitations were given during the program by Zennis Ward, Mary Armstrong, Marjorie Hubbeard, Thelda Hubbeard, Barrie Brown, Hugh Williams, Emma Piers, Martha Belch, Donald Kerr, Tom Belch, Russell Williamson, Norma Hubbeard, Gordon Larmer, and Douglas Vermilyea. The elocutionary numbers left no doubt in the minds of both readers and listeners of the coming of Santa, or at least that jolly old gentleman was expected to make his rounds on scheduled time, and the motion songs by the pupils of Mrs. R. J. McKnight's and Miss Ruth Thorndyke's classes were likewise well received and warmly applauded.

Dialogues also had a Christmas atmosphere, the pupils of Mrs. N. Belch and Mrs. McKnight adding these selections to an enjoyable entertainment, and by special request the pupils from the Fallis Line school, Miss Jean Burnham, teacher, repeated the dialogue, "Dear Uncle Zed," given at their recent concert, and also the Christmas carol. Good King Wencelas," with Eric Fallis in the title role, Donald McKnight as the page, and Tom Belch as the poor peasant.

The piano duet by Mary Eakins and Edna McKnight was well played and added variety to the program, and the song by the men of T. W. Belch's class brought a demand for an encore, while the star drill by the pupils of Mrs. S. E. Eakins' class, with appropriate costumes and music, was marked by precision and grace of movement, and formed a fitting climax to the evening's entertainment, immediately preceding the arrival of Santa Claus and the happy task of distributing gifts from the tree.

AT FAIRVIEW SCHOOL.

MILLBROOK, December 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — The seating capacity of the Fairview School, Fourth Line, Cavan, of which Miss Dorothy Hall is the popular and capable teacher, was taxed to the utmost on Thursday afternoon, the annual Christmas tree and concert being held immediately prior to the closing for the holiday season.

Wreaths in all the windows bells large and small, and ropes of red and green, with other decorative features, emphasized the Christmas atmosphere, the tree, of course, with its load of gifts and shining ornaments being outstanding in beauty and interest. A big red fireplace centering the platform at the back made an ideal spot for the hanging of stockings, and was put to this and other uses during the course of the enjoyable program.

T. W. Belch acted as chairman, mentioning in his opening address the fact of the Baptie Scholarship coming to the Fourth Line School this year, Alan Browne having the highest standing in the township at the entrance examination last June. Bernice Falls very prettily spoke the address of welcome, two other younger pupils who gave recitations being Elmer Rowe and Tommy Monteith, after which a dialogue, "Aunt Serena as a Christmas Present," provided plenty of fun, Phyllis Larmer taking the role of Aunt Serena, Alan Browne the man who comes to make a call, and Donald Pritchard, the naughty little boy who cleverly manages to palm off his aunt, whom he dislikes, on the unfortunate visitor.

Recitations by Mary Larmer and Doris Falls preceded the dialogue "The Runaway Stockings," which showed four girls behind a screen on which were hung the same number of big stockings over the tops of which their faces showed, and with which they finally ran away as a climax to the story.

Selections on the mouth organ and banjo played together by Alan Browne added "the spice of variety," and were most popular, Robina Tate and Wilma Armstrong being heard in recitations with "Deaf Uncle Sim" as a humorous dialogue following, with Robert Falls and Dorothy Hoad also having recitation numbers, Alan Browne a monologue, "Getting Even with Sister," and a very pretty exercise, "The March of the Mechanical Dolls" by six little girls proving one of the most popular presentations on the program.

Presentation Made.

A delightful surprise was provided for the teacher during the course of the afternoon when Phyllis Larmer read an appreciative address and Wilma Armstrong, on behalf of the pupils, presented Miss Hall with a lovely candelabra, the recipient suitably thanking her scholars for thus playing Santa Claus ahead of Christmas Day. The Yuletide atmosphere was further emphasized by the opening chorus "The First Nowell," the motion song "Santa Claus Lives Far Away," and the recitation by Ray Falls, while the pageant, "The Tale the Fire Told," was beautifully presented. Seated before the open fire Dorothy Hoad was engaged in telling the little ones around her on the floor the Christmas story, when the Star-bearer (Robina Tate), all in white and silver, appeared and "Silent Night" was sung. Three Kings of the Orient appeared next, suitably costumed, making their way to the manger-cradle on the opposite side of the stage, and presenting their gifts to the Infant Saviour, the Madonna being Phyllis Larmer. Suitable choruses interspersed the pageant throughout, the final one by the little folk being "Joy to the world, the Lord is come."

This was the concluding number before the arrival of Santa (Harold Tate), and the distribution of gifts from the tree, the audience having candy as their share of the treat.

AT BAILIEBORO

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual Christmas entertainments held in the district the past week were largely attended and proved in every way very successful.

The local Sabbath school in the United Church combined with the day school held their concert in the hall. An excellent program was staged, each number being heartily applauded. Messrs. Chenhall of Peterborough, who have been instructing the students of the township schools in music, were present and assisted in the program.

Rev. E. M. Cook was the capable chairman, and during the program Mr. J. C. Campbell, chairman of the school board, gave a brief address. At the conclusion of the program Santa Claus was present and distributed the gifts from the beautiful Christmas tree.

Lakeview School

The students of Lakeview School held their entertainment on Wednesday evening, in the school.

Miss Jean Stinson, the teacher, had prepared the children for the various numbers, and the program consisting of special music, dialogues, drills and readings, was well rendered.

Bruce Fisher, a student of the senior classes, was master of ceremonies.

A Christmas tree laden with gifts added also to the evening's entertainment.

AT WARSAW.

Warsaw Town Hall was well filled on Thursday afternoon when the school children gave their Christmas entertainment. The program was interesting and well carried out. It consisted of a welcome song; recitation, "I Like Winter," by Mary Watts; merry Christmas greeting; recitation by Meta Payne; dialogue, "Bring in the Yule Log"; club swinging: Kathleen Dunford, Eva Clifford, Monda McQuaig, Edna and Emily Payne, Zelda Crowe, Irene Clifford; recitation, "A Christmas Tree Farm," Raymond Clements; recitation, Mary Payne, "A Christmas Day Song"; solo, "In Grandma's Day," Lenore McIlvena; exercise, Christmas Doings; dialogue "Painting the Chair"; chorus: "Christmas Welcome"; recitation, "Changing the Calender," George Payne; exercise, "Signs of Christmas"; orchestra selection; recitation "My Favorite Tree," Cressa Payne; dialogue, "Christmas Cookies"; recitation, "Christmas Joys," Cecil Bolton; drill, "Christmas Bells"; dialogue, "The Backwoods School"; recitation, "Father's Presents," Everett Payne; recitation, "Funny Ted," John Darling; dialogue, "Uncle Hiram's Cold"; recitation, Eva Bolton; recitation, "A Present From Santa"; dialogue, "Beauty Specialist"; exercises, boys' gym. class; chorus, "The Snow is Falling Fast."

Santa Claus arrived with gifts. There were candies and nuts for every child present, even the little ones in their mother's arms.

S. S. No. 4, DOURO

On Thursday afternoon the pupils of S. S. No. 4, Douro staged a jolly little concert which was attended by about 25 of the parents and friends of the pupils. Richard Moher ably acted as chairman for the concert in which the youngsters displayed splendid talent and wit.

ST. ANDREW'S, LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 29. (Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday evening the Sunday School of St. Andrew's Church held there annual entertainment. Rev. R. J. Burton was the chairman and the long and varied program was carried through very creditably with all taking their parts well.

Andrew Fairbairn, who is nearing his ninetieth birthday and is probably the oldest Sunday School scholar in the Province, if not the Dominion, was a contributor to the program which was an excellent one. The following is the program: Chairman's address, Rev. R. J. Burton; recitation, Hazel Moore; chorus, "Away in a Manger"; recitation, Orval Moore; song, Virginia Shearer; recitation, Billy Clark; address, J. M. Simpson; reading, Ellen Moore; instrumental, Ethel Lake; recitation, Dorothy Matthews; dialogue, Jean and Billy Clark; reading, Mrs. Walker; reading, Lulu Smith; recitation, Donald Smith; instrumental, Jean Clark; reading, Mr. Fairbairn; recitation, Jean Clark; reading, Douglas Smith; God Save the King.

S.S. NO. 7, SMITH

A goodly number braved the slippery roads and unseasonably wet weather to attend the concert put on in S.S. No. 7 by the pupils under the direction of the teacher, Miss Bertha Lang. The following is program: Chairman's remarks, Mr. FitzGerald; recitation, Eldon Northey; recitation, Roleen FitzGerald; recitation, David Northey; recitation, Winifred Northey; recitation, Isabelle FitzGerald; recitation, Trueman Crapp; recitation, Lenore Northey; recitation, Elva Northey; recitation, Ivah Graham; recitation, David Northey; monologue, Olive Turner; recitation, George Turner; recitation, Odell Northey; monologue, Leola Northey; Christmas tree.

FINED $100

HAMILTON.—James and George Todd, found guilty of aggravated assault, were to-day fined $100 each or six months in jail.

RECKLESS DRIVER IS FINED $20.00

Magistrate Langley Also Suspends Driver's License for Three Days.

HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Found guilty on a charge of reckless driving, arising from a head-on motor collision on Highway No. 7, Garnet Gamsby, of Orono, was fined $20 and $25.75 costs in county police court yesterday by Magistrate Langley. Gamsby's license was also suspended for three days.

Whittington Northey, London street, received severe chest injuries, he told the court, when the car which he was driving and in which W. H. Hatherly was a passenger, was hit head-on by Gamsby's car. Northey said the accident occurred on the morning of December 1 between Hatton's curve and Sherbrooke street. He had his car as far over on the right side of the road as possible because it was a foggy morning, when Gamsby, driving far on his wrong side, struck him. Northey was thrown against the driving wheel and suffered fractures to several ribs. Hatherly's evidence concurred with Northey's.

Gamsby said that he had just passed a car going in his same direction and because of the icy condition of the road he was unable to regain his own side of the road before Northey's vehicle suddenly loomed up in front of him. He declared that he was not going fast but his brakes would not hold on the ice.

Acting-Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., prosecuted the case and A. L. Elliott was defence counsel. Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick, who investigated the crash, testified that Gamsby's skid marks showed that he had skidded 83 feet before hitting Northey's car.

NEW HISTORICAL GROUP.

TORONTO.—Plans for a new historical group in Canada will be presented a dinner to be held here this evening. The move is an aftermath of the meetings in Toronto this week of the American Catholic Historical Association.

It will lead, it is expected, to an organization among Canadian Roman Catholics for the purpose of fostering the study of Canadian history.

Thirty-Six Are Nominated In Cobourg But Only Two Qualify For Six Seats

Of Cobourg's thirty-six nominees for the six seats in the municipal council only two qualified, and with four vacancies to be filled, the town will have to hold another nomination meeting with its incidental expense.

The ratepayers apparently felt well supplied with prospective candidates when they proposed thirty-four of the citizens, a number large enough ordinarily to guarantee at least sufficient acclamations, even if no election resulted. However, it was learned yesterday that although many were called few, in fact only two, were willing to be chosen. Thoughtful citizens of the lakeshore town are wondering whether the sense of public duty has weakened under the municipal problems that have been accentuated by the economic depression.

MODERN UTOPIA BEING BUILT ON SHORES VANCOUVER ISLAND

First Contingent Under Consideration By Young People's Cooperative Society.

YOUTHS PREFERRED.

JASPER, Alta., December 29 (C.P.). — A modern Utopia, built on the principle of economic co-operation, was in the making on the south-western shores of Vancouver Island to-day, and through headquarters of the Canadian Young People's Co-operative Society here, the first contingent was being selected for the colony.

Youth will have preference in the project to prove to the world man can establish a society where competition and profits mean nothing and happiness can prevail. Leveller to radicalism and bulwark against error will be older persons who know the technique of agriculture, industry, and the professions.

A. C. Morris, secretary-treasurer of the organization, reported donations towards the $6 000 required to establish the colony's first families. A dozen men will start for the site before winter ends to repair buildings and get the grounds into shape. By mid-summer men and women will have swung into the life of the colony.

Buildings Ready Up.

Eighty acrs of land at the harbor of Sooke, 23 miles south-west of Victoria, comprise the site chosen and 20 miles across the open water of Juan de Fuca Straits lies the mountainous shore line of the United States. Buildings, including workshops and dwellings, are already there, the heritage of a group which forsook its plan for a haven for tired.

The society is based upon the principle that "by concerted efforts in the field, factory and workshop, in religious and spiritual matters, and in every branch of endeavor generally touching the common interests of men, social equity and happiness may be ultimately attained." To this end the practical test was projected.

Declaring the present economic and social system has reached the end of its tether, the society aims to set an example to the world and prove a system can be devised in which each shall labor for all and all for each.

Granting everyone at the colony personal liberty, the society seeks to complete a civilization of its own. The call to youth is based on the premise their future is the essential problem of to-day. Young people, leaders claimed, are forced into the industrial world by economic pressure, half educated academically and cramped and retarded spiritually. Thus they are not given fair opportunity which should be the heritage of all.

Mend Mistakes.

Resulting placement of "square pegs in round holes" and impairing of spiritual welfare the society aims to mend. Its offerings at the colony are outlined as an opportunity to develop physically and mentally to a state of fitness whereby its members will constitute a fair asset to the world by being able to assume and discharge their proper share of obligation to society besides a good and equal chance of attaining spiritual and material happiness.

Since the property was obtained, the selection of members of the colony has been under way. The majority will come from the society's groups in Alberta and Saskatchewan, although applications from all points will be considered.

FISH MART BOILS ITS OWN MONEY

Silver Now "Laundered" By Many Firms Saving Banks Nightly Job.

SALT TURNED CASH GREEN

(By Thos. T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(C.P. Cable.)—Billingsgate market, the historic centre for the enormous trade in fish done in London, is now "boiling its own money."

There is a bank close to Billingsgate which handles most of the cash taken in the market. Some years ago this bank set apart a room as a "laundry," where more than 200 lbs. of silver received from the market used to be cleaned every night. Attached to almost every coin as it reached the bank were scrops of fish and freezing salt, and frequently the money used to turn green. The coins were boiled for several hours in a solution containing copious supplies of washing soda and various chemicals.

Billingsgate is now using more modern methods. Some fish firms clean their money before sending it to the bank. But nearly all now manage to keep their coins away as much as possible from contact with the fish. Most of the bank notes, though, that pass through the market are still sent to the Bank of England to be destroyed.

IMPERIAL OIL DIRECTOR ALBERT S. ROGERS DIES

TORONTO, Dec. 29. (C.P.) — Albert Stephen Rogers, a director of the Imperial Oil Company, died at his residence here to-day after an illness of 8 months. He was a well known and active industrial and financial executive.

Mr. Rogers was born near Newmarket in 1860. He came to Toronto as a young man and entered his late father's business, the Samuel Rogers Queen City Oil Works. In 1912 this firm was amalgamated with the Imperial Company.

Mr. Rogers was chairman of the Board of Rogers-Majestic Corporation and a director of the National Life Assurance Company until his illness when he resigned. He was one-time president of the Volcanic Oil and Gas Co., of Western Ontario, which is now the Union Oil Co.

His widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PETERBOROUGH:

When I decided to run for the Council, I did not have a large and influential delegation wait on me and ask me to run. I am running off my own bat, with the sole intention of trying to reduce the taxes in our city.

Every cent that I possess is invested in Peterborough property, and at the present time I am paying taxes on sixteen houses, so you can see I am not a small tax-payer. Like a great many others there is a mortgage on my property and between taxes and interest it keeps me busy to keep a wigwam over my head.

To my way of thinking the first duty of an alderman is to protect and assist the property owners instead of appointing his friends to office and squeezing the last penny out of the ratepayer. In some respects we are just one jump ahead of Russia because in that country you work for the government and the government allows you a little, and in this country you work for yourself and the government takes all but a little.

If we wish to reduce taxes we will have to commence with the municipality and end up at Ottawa. We all know what the farmer receives for his milk and what the consumer pays. I would also like to know why all the electric light bills are higher now than they were in the good times when everyone was working?

The Federal Government, the Provincial Government and the Municipality are taxing the farmers off their farms and the people out of their homes and then they will ask us, "What is wrong with the country?"

If elected, I will oppose all large grants and high salaries. I would like to see the salaries of the aldermen cut in two or if necessary, in these trying times let them give their services free.

Wishing you all a Happy New year.

I am, respectfully yours,
JOS. HENDERSON, Grocer,
260 King street.
(Advt.) 3d, 153, 3776

TO THE ELECTORS, BELMONT AND METHUEN:

Ladies and Gentlemen.—At the recent municipal nominations for the Township of Belmont and Methuen, my name was placed on the list of nominees, for office of Reeve; which was rather a surprise to me, on account of my absence from nomination. I had no intentions of contesting the Reeve's chair for the incoming year.

But on the request of a large number of supporters by mail, phone and personal interview, I have consented to allow my name to go before the electors for office of Reeve.

It is not my intention to make a personal canvass of the municipality, but I would respectfully request that the electors come to the poll and cast their ballot as they deem best for the interest of the municipality as a whole. I also make strong appeal to my supporters to avoid any mud-slinging such I understand was very prevalent by some of the gentlemen in attendance at nomination. Our municipality is not in such a wholesome financial condition at present, that any gentleman might crave for the position of either Reeve or Councillor.

Should I be elected, I will on election night, or before through personal interview, outline my policy of how the municipality should be handled in order to bring it back on better financial basis, and I feel sure that my idea will meet with the approval of a larger number of electors, which I am sorry for the want of space I am unable to outline here.

In closing, I will again ask the electors to pay no attention to personal canvass by either party, BUT THINK FOR THEMSELVES, and come out as many as possible and vote as you deem wise. We candidates will then, as your servants, have to abide by your decision.

Wishing you all a Prosperous New Year, and above all the Best of Health.

Sincerely Yours,
W. E. GRIFFITH.

Mansell Lindsay Is Given Term In Prison

LINDSAY, December 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — Two Peterborough young men, Mansel Lindsay and John Stanley Hughes, appeared before Police Magistrate Jordan to-day and were sentenced on a charge of breaking and entering the tool sheds of the C.N.R. here. Alleged to be the ringleader, Lindsay was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and Hughes to five months at Burwash.

Both men were arrested in Peterborough last Saturday night following investigations carried out by members of the city police and Sergeant Percy Morden, of the C.N.R. Police. Police say much stolen goods from the C.N.R. was found in Lindsay's house. Lindsay is well known to local police, and Hughes had lately become a close companion of his.

CUT IN SALARIES IS ADVOCATED BY LABOR MEN

salary. It was the high salaried man that had to be cut, as the only means of reducing taxation.

Economy with efficiency was what was needed, and he expressed the opinion that it was time the council and the School Board got together in the preparation of the budget. He knew, he said, that he was considered as a radical but the present system was unChristianlike.

Mr. McMurray from the chair compared the auditors' report of the city finances over the period of some twenty years or more. The per capita rate at present in Peterborough he said was $40.59. Taxes were mounting all the time.

He referred to the hardship imposed on the small property owner, remarking "People cannot stand up under the load. It will soon be impossible for the small householder to hold a roof over his head."

Criticises Grants

During the past year Mr. McMurray stated the city had paid out over $1300 in grants which could have been kept in the taxpayers' pockets. He offered severe criticism of such grants as those made by the city to the Chamber of Commerce, the Trent Waterway Association and similar organizations, urging that the Trades and Labor Council was probably doing just as good a work in the city but that they had never asked for a grant nor had they received one.

Charles William Holland took issue upon a statement made by the chairman to the effect that while some members of the council might be inclined to be free with the money of the taxpayers when paying out grants, they would not probably be so easy if they had to dip into their own pockets. Mr. Holland spoke appreciatively of assistance which had been given to him by one of the candidates in the present election campaign. While on his feet, Mr. Holland made reference to a grant of $100 that was given by the council to the St. John Ambulance Brigade for the purchase of uniforms. "That money," he charged, "has not been used for the purpose for which it was granted, but has been applied towards wiping off a debt accrued by the association amounting to $400." It was not fair to the ratepayers of the city, he suggested.

What is Fair Minimum

Mr. Holland also asked several questions during the course of Mr. Crowe's address. Discussing the proposed salary cuts, he asked Mr. Crowe, what he considered was the minimum wage that a man with a family of four children was entitled to for example.

Not given a specific answer to his question, Mr. Holland remarked, "Am I to conclude by your silence that you corroborate Alderman Tuggey's belief that twelve dollars a week is a fair wage."

Mr. Crowe replied he did not consider twelve dollars a week was a fair wage for any man, although he declined to give a specific answer to the question.

The chairman pointed out to the questioner that he had mistaken Mr. Crowe's attitude. "He was talking of the salaried workers who in many cases are furnished with free clothing and with expenses to run their cars, and not to the workingman on a wage," he said.

Salaries Average $500

"I'll bet any man in this hall," the chairman remarked, "that the salary of the average working man in this city during the past twelve months has not averaged $500; and yet we are the people who have to put up the money to pay the civic employees."

Mr. McMurray claimed that the present debenture debt of the city of Peterborough was $5,262,000. "If we don't get down to the cutting of expenses in a city made up of 75 per cent working men, what is going to happen," he asked. "We are going to have not 700 families unemployed, but double that number in a very short time."

He offered criticism of the work undertaken as a relief measure by the civic authorities in East City, claiming that the effect had been merely to penalize the small property owner. He also offered criticism of the Utilities Commission. "They try and tell you that it is a paying proposition, but it all boils down to the fact that it is the taxpayer who is having to pay for it."

According to the auditors' report, Mr. McMurray stated, the debenture debt on the waterworks was $573,000. The city had been electing business men all along on the Commission, he said in expressing the opinion. "It would be well for everyone to give serious thought to the candidate for this office. Let us put a watch dog in for ourselves," he stated suggesting John McCabe as being a man well worthy of support.

Time For Change

Mr. Crowe expressed himself as being in sympathy with the new candidates who were in the field for municipal honors. The time was opportune for a change, he said, remarking that he had been in the council at the time the salaries of civic officials were raised. Since that time, he claimed, salaries had been steadily raised individually. He knew of one instance where one man in the employ of the city had been engaged at a commencing salary of $700 per annum with $100 expenses. His salary had grown until at present it amounted to $1,700 per annum, in spite of the fact that the cost of living was down considerably. Many of he increases had never been made public, he charged.

Speaking of the Waterworks Department, he said there were men who were pulling down big salaries who had proposed a 5 per cent cut for themselves in the belief that they were doing a big thing. They could well afford bigger cuts. The cost of living had dropped 38 per cent since their salaries were originally fixed.

Out of Proportion

Meter readers he said, were being paid $1,385 per annum. It was a salary he termed as being out of all proportion to what the average workingman was receiving to-day. The work could be done for $1000 easily by any ordinary man. "They are waterlogged and that is the size of it," Mr. Crowe remarked.

While he was not running for office himself, he said he had nominated a good man in the person of Malcolm McIntyre. He is a good solid man, he stated.

The speaker also criticised the cuts in salaries that had been made by the Board of Education terming them as "a mere nothing." Twenty-five per cent cuts could be made without imposing hardship upon any one. All we want, he said, is labor and a decent living. We do not need luxuries."

Mr. Holland, given the floor, advocated consolidation of the unemployed. He stated that on an occasion when he had been talking to some of the unemployed he was politely told that he was liable to be charged for holding an unlawful assembly. He was told to leave the unemployed alone, that they would not be allowed to starve. Was that a Christian spirit, he asked. "I would say as good advice, organize as quickly as you can. I have been told I am a "Red." You can make me a "double dyed Red," I don't mind so long as it means bread and butter on my table."

Bread and Water

He remarked that he had left the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company here rather than accept a cut in pay from 32½ cents an hour to 30 cents an hour. As a result of refusing to take that cut he had eaten dry bread and drunk water. He was prepared to do it again.

He charged that the Peterborough Examiner was "muzzled" and claimed that matters in connection with the appointment of relief inspectors had not been fully reported. Was it lawful he asked, for Alderman Phalen to accept appointment as relief inspector before he had resigned his seat on the council. "That is what did happen. He made sure of one job before he gave up the other," he stated.

"Yes. And I know what will happen in a few weeks time," Bert Halpin interjected. "Phalen will be getting $35 a week and the other three inspectors will be fired. He also called attention to a condition where people on relief had been known to have tickets issued for high grade flour and upon presentation at certain stores had been given flour of a cheaper and inferior quality.

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough:
ELECT
FRED O.
Goodfellow - Alderman
If elected I will exercise my very best endeavors in the support and promotion of such measures as promise improved economic conditions and a return to community prosperity, as a whole.
—and I will leave no stone unturned to uncover ways and means for reducing the present burden of taxation—if at all practicable.

HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL.

Vote to Re-elect Alderman D. J. HOLLAND

Alderman Holland's four years' record in the City Council, his extensive business experience and the fact that he understands the city's needs and is in tune with the times, commends him to your support. He stands for continued progressive administration.
1d-150-3760

RE-ELECT
JOHN A.
(Jack)
McNabb
Alderman

McNABB
appeals for your vote on his record for executive ability, the courage of his convictions and his four-square principles, in both public and private life.

McNABB
if re-elected, will return to Council with a clean-cut reputation for an intelligent grasp of municipal affairs that cannot be assailed. His six years' municipal activities have at all times been exercised in the interests of the whole community without fear or favor.

Experience Wanted
In civic business the taxpayers expect experience, for only by experience can an ecomonic and acceptable administration be assured.
And these are days when economy and experience must find their place in civic administration.
By all means make sure that you elect men with municipal experience to the Aldermanic Board.

SLAIN AND BURNED

ERIE, Pa.—The body of a man tentatively identified as Mike Ezbicki, 58, Erie bootlegger, was found early to-day in a flaming automobile near the city.

Coroner W. R. Stroble said he had been slain. The body was burned beyond recognition.

VOTE
FOR
Alderman
(Associated with his father, George Sloan, in the contracting business).
A native son and heavy taxpayer of the city can see the need of:
Making civic purchases locally or through our merchants, and giving contracts to local workmen to keep our city going in these times.
Economy and lower taxes by curbing luxury expenditures and giving relief to both taxpayers and the unemployed.
Helping the unemployed with a generous relief allowance with a graded and higher allowance for longer residence in Peterborough.
Better terms for the taxpayers unable to pay taxes in these times.
Better representation by a man who knows the city thoroughly and who represents the SOUTH WARD by marking the last name on the ballot

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

LAVERNE WRIGHT GUILTY OF FRAUD IS GIVEN TERM IN REFORMATORY

them came by way of Hamilton, and the other crossed the lake to Cobourg. Part of his transportation costs, it was learned, were paid for out of a grant he received from the Soldiers' Canteen Fund.

For nearly four years his two families were only twenty miles apart, and, in so far as the evidence showed, neither wife knew of the existence of the other. Wright was apparently so faithful a husband that his dual life was unsuspected by these two women who believed they were lawfully wedded to him.

When wife No. 2 of Newcastle was asked by Colonel Boggs if she knew that Wright was living with another woman at Port Hope, her answer was "No, sir," and there was no perceptible tone of doubt in her voice.

An inspector for the Pensions Board discovered Wright's fraud when he called at the Port Hope home on June 20, 1932, and with the consequent suspension of the pension payments, his Newcastle home was reduced to want and enforced appeal to public charity. Presumably, the Port Hope wife and her four children have also become a charge on the community.

Incidentally, Wright was convicted in 1915 of charges of damaging farmers' horses in Hope township, by docking their tails and manes. Sentence was suspended, and he was given a chance to enlist.

In imposing the sentence of two years less one day indeterminate, of which one month is determinate, at the provincial reformatory at Guelph, Judge Huycke said he knew that he would be criticized, but he was faced with the fact that the prisoner had been classed as a one hundred percent disability for a tubercular condition. This disability was later reduced to eighty percent.

In appealing for leniency, Mr. Gordon said that Wright was tubercular and unable to work.

"I am told he is ready for the sanitarium," Mr. Gordon stated. "A long term of incarceration would mean that his disability would soon become more than one hundred percent. His war service was good, but afterwards by shifting the names of his children about on the forms of application for pensions he succeeded in obtaining money from the government which he was not entitled to. The Department wishes to set an example and to indicate to others that this sort of thing must not be repeated, but if the man is not in a condition of health that would advise imprisonment I think he should be placed where he may receive proper treatment for his condition."

Colonel Boggs said—"I realize his physical condition. His offenses are grave, and it must be a warning to others, but I wouldn't press for a severe sentence."

Tried On One Charge.

Laverne Wright was indicted on six charges, two of which were abandoned. The other involved defrauding the government through the Pensions Department.

When the Crown had completed its evidence in the first case, and Mr. Gordon declined any defense witness, it was suggested that, as the three other charges were of a similar nature, Judge Huycke's finding in the first apply to the other three. After some hesitation by the Crown counsel, this short-cut was finally agreed upon, and Judge Huycke announced that he had no difficulty in finding Wright guilty. This judgment automatically applied to the three other indictments.

The Four Charges.

The first indictment was that Wright between March 15, 1918, and January 4, 1922, in Hamilton township did obtain $578.36 by false pretence that he was supporting his wife Ethel Pearl Wright and her two children, and thereby became entitled to such additional pension monies when in fact he was not supporting them.

The second charge was for obtaining $235 in 1922; the third was for a similar fraud from 1922 to 1926 amounting to $1,680; and the fourth offense was committed between 1926 and 1932 in the amount of $3,932.86.

Evidence of First Wife.

The first witness was Mrs. Ethel Pearl Jennings Wright, at present living in Orillia.

"I first met Mr. Wright in Peterborough in 1912, to the best of my knowledge," she testified. "We were married on September 24, 1913, in Peterborough by the Rev. J. G. Lewis. I was living on Albert street at the time, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deagon. We lived together three or four years, but we couldn't agree, so I thought we might as well separate, and I would go out and earn my living as I had done before.

Three children were born. One died, and the two others were taken by the Children's Aid Society at Port Hope. I have had no word of them since. I don't know anything about them, and I don't know where my husband went after we separated in 1917. I heard he joined the army, and for a while I received the separation allowance from the government. I don't remember how much it was.

Mr. Gordon—Were you served with a petition for divorce in March 1918?

Mrs. Wright—No. I have no knowledge of it.

Mr. Gordon—You were charged in regard to the disposal of the body of your infant child?

Mrs. Wright—I don't exactly remember. It was something like that.

Witness admitted that Reuben Graham was charged with the same offense, although she said her memory of it was hazy.

Mr. Gordon—And you got a suspended sentence on account of the condition of your health?

Mrs. Wright—Not to my knowledge. I don't remember about that now.

"Was your husband eighteen months overseas when your last child was born?"

"I don't remember. I don't think I had a child after my husband went overseas."

Mr. Gordon—You were in court proceedings at Port Hope in regard to your children.

Mrs. Wright—Yes.

"And they were taken over by the Children's Aid Society?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Edith Simpson Wright

Wife No. 2, Mrs. Edith Simpson Wright of Newcastle testified that she met the defendant in Rochester in 1919 and was married to him on May 29, 1920 in Syracuse. They lived togethe rin Rochester for ten years and on February 7, 1929, came to Newcastle. One child was born on January 5, 1922, a boy, Eugene L. Wright. She said she thought her husband was a bachelor when she was married to him.

Col. Boggs—Is he living with another woman in Port Hope now?

Mrs. Wright—No, sir.

You are getting support from the village of Newcastle?"

"Yes sir. My husband's pension was cut off this year, in February. I think we received $40 a month. He was a 100 percent disability, as tubereular. This disability was reduced to 80 percent and this year the pension was cut off."

Witness said she had never seen her husband's two other children.

Application for relief was first made in behalf of the three members of the family, but the municipality refused to grant anything for the husband.

"I signed an application then for myself and Eugene as we had nothing. My husband went out somewhere to get food. I don't know where he went. The town gave us hardly enough for Eugene and me. He often brought home food to eat."

Witness said that her husband, who has been at liberty on bail was home at Christmas time, but not since then. It transpired that he had told her he was working for a man named Brown near Port Hope.

Applied to Village

Reeve W. F. Rickard testified that Wright had applied to the council of Newcastle for relief in September.

"We made certain investigations," Mr. Rickard said, "and we concluded that Wright's home was in Port Hope and that we were not obliged to keep him."

H. W. White of Elizabethville said he ad adopted Charles Elwright from the Children's Aid Society in 1918, and William Lewis of Haliburton was given charge of the other boy of the first marriage, Clarence Laverne Wright, sixteen years ago.

Dr. Jas. T. Daley of Port Hope stated that Laverne Wright had never contributed anything to the Children's Aid Society for the support of his two sons.

Abandoned Divorce Petition

H. W. Nicholl of the staff of the Pensions Board of Canada testified that Wright had written the Board on March 17, 1918, to the effect that he had applied for a divorce but was withdrawing it and hoped to get some allowance on behalf of his two children. He was then living in Rochester.

A letter by Wright to the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, June 8, 1922, written from Rochester was a notice that owing to his disability the defendant had ceased to maintain his two oldest children. Wright wrote that they were then living with a relative in Canada and were being maintained by him.

Mr. Nichol stated that the Pension's Act provided for an allowance for a legal wife but not a common law wife. As a result of Wright's letters he was granted an increase in pension from June 30, 1922, but because he was living in the United States the Department was unable to investigate his representations regarding his children and their maintenance.

A declaration by Wright on October 26, 1929, stated that "My wife is living with me and is being maintained by me."

Mr. Gordon—If he said "My wife, Edith (Simpson) Wright" it would have been a case of perjury. It seems to me the forms are not properly prepared and tends to invite trouble like this.

In October 1929, according to the evidence, Wright had returned to Ontario and had his two homes at Newcastle and Port Hope at that time.

Mr. Nichol stated that Mrs. (Simpson) Wright's child was not entitled to any allowance because there was not a proper marriage, and, was illegitimate, and no allowance for the first two children could be claimed because they were not being maintained by the defendant.

W. J. Franklin of the pay branch of the Pensions Department testified that Wright first received a pension for 10 percent disability March 15, 1918. The rating was increased to 30 percent disability August 1, 1919. Payments were made increased to Wright on the basis of his claim for allowance for maintenance of two children; the total excess amount paid from 1918 to 1922 being $578.36.

Wright's disability was rated 100 percent for pulmonary tuberculosis in May 1930.

Herbert E. Lewis, investigator for the Pensions Commissioners, said he met Wright, on June 20, 1932, and his third wife Edith Black Wright at their home in Port Hope. Dependant then said that he and Edith Black had been married in Rochester, N.Y. in January or May 1926. Wright and wife No. 2 were somewhat confused at the time about the exact date. There were four children in the home and the birth of another was reported as an expectancy of this week.

Two of the children in Port Hope were born in Rochester and the other two in Port Hope, one in June 1930 and the other in November 1931.

"I spoke to Wright afterward in front of the Queen's Hotel in Port Hope," Mr. Lewis said. "He mentioned the Simpson woman and said she was in Oshawa and probably living under an assumed name. He said he didn't like to mention her in front of his third wife. The two children by the first marriage were not discussed at that time. Wright said he hadn't seen his first wife since 1917."

It transpired that when Wright applied for additional pension money for his two children his implication was that he was living with his first wife and supporting her and the two children. Mrs. Edith Simpson Wright, wife No. 2, signed the application for an additional increase for her son. Then when she was living at Newcastle she signed blank application papers which Wright himself filled in for further increases because of the children at Port Hope. This was done from time to time, and because of the similarity in the first names, Edith Wright in each case, it was not until last June when Mr. Lewis called at the Port Hope home and made some enquiries that he learned from the third Mrs. Wright that her name had been Edith Black.

Judge Huycke's Comment

Judge Huycke said that the evidence relating to the first indictment showed conclusively that Wright had received additional pension money for his first wife and their two children, alleging that he was supporting them, when as a matter of fact he was not living with his wife and the two boys were wards of the Children's Aid Society.

"The fact that he had been a soldier was no excuse for robbing his country as soon as he came back. Without any question in my mind I find him guilty of this charge", His Honor declared.

Continuing later Judge Huycke prefaced the imposition of sentence by saying that he hardly knew whether to be very angry or sympathetic.

"You practically stole six or seven thousand dollars from the Dominion of Canada. You manipulated the children of your three families, getting money in a disgraceful but clever manner. I am told that you are sick. It was also said you were a brave soldier. I am delighted to hear that for we owe more to our soldiers than we think. But as soon as you got back you began to rob your country with both hands.

I cannot think of anything more contemptible than what you did to those two women. You did not and possibly could not get a divorce, but your first marriage seems to have been a failure. Your third wife is probably altogether too good for a man like you. Your second wife who gave evidence here is a bright, intelligent and respectable looking woman. It was a most contemptible thing to have led her into a mock marriage. You pulled yourself down, but you also pulled her down also, causing her a humiliation that will remain all her life. How you kept those two families so near as Port Hope and Newcastle is more than I can imagine. But you have ruined the lives of those two women, and I don't know what to say about the little children. If you were well and strong you would get very severe punishment, probably life imprisonment, for the country resents the theft of the money, but it doubly resents the way you have treated these women. I would send you to penitentiary for a long term if you were not tubercular. That must receive some consideration. If you were sent to prison you might die there in a short time. The law must fix some penalty, and though it would not be sufficient to punish you it may deter others from robbing our pensions and relief boards. Yours is the worst case that I have seen."

In pronouncing the court's sentence His Honor said that the one month would be determinate, and it would be a matter for the parole board whether Wright serve the full twenty-three months. He would be in the hands of the prison and medical doctors and they might see fit to have him placed in a hospital.

Wright A Deserter

The Examiner subsequently learned some of the facts of Laverne Wright's war service. He was given a chance to enlist after being found guilty of four or five charges of damaging farmers' horses by docking their tails and cutting their manes. He served about eight months at the front. He was permitted to return to Canada on compassionate leave when his wife, from whom he had separated, became invoved in the courts, and finally he is said to have deserted her and to have been rounded up near Millbrook by a police posse headed by Chief Constable Newhall.

PLANS INSTALLATION NIGHT

The final meeting of the year of Peterborough Kiwanis Club is to be held at Empress Hotel to-morrow noon, and a special program has been planned by which the members of the club can celebrate the occasion in the proper spirit.

For the first meeting of the New Year the installation of officers is the big item on the program, and it is planned to have Lieut.-Governor Joe Hearn with a number of Riverdale Kiwanians and their ladies present on that occasion. The installation of officers will take place on Thursday evening next, and in addition it will be "Ladies' Night."

Obituary

MRS. WILLIAM RAE

The death occurred early this afternoon of Abigail Mann, the beloved wife of William Rae of 306 Margaret avenue.

Mrs. Rae was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mann of Bridgenorth. She had resided in this district all her life, and was held in highest esteem by a wide circle of friends. Although she had been in failing health for the past few weeks, her death came suddenly shortly after noon to-day.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one son and one daughter. Funeral announcements later.

CANADA'S FISH HATCHERIES FULL OF FRY FOR SPRING RESTOCKING

Dominion Holds Distinction of Being Pioneer in Fish Culture in New World.

PARADISE FOR ANGLER.

OTTAWA, December 29 (C.P.).—From coast to coast Canada's fish hatcheries are stocked with fry, or fish eggs, which will be developed during the winter. Distribution will take place during the spring and summer of 1933 for the restocking of the various lakes and streams throughout the Dominion.

Rivers and lakes are in abundance in every province and with sea fishing on both coasts, Canada is a paradise for the angler. The Department of Fisheries, however supplements the natural production by the distribution of eggs and fry, and in the year drawing to a close more than 138,000,000 fry and older fish were placed in suitable streams throughout the Dominion. The British Columbia sockeye headed the list with more than 97,000,000 fry and fingerlings being distributed. Next in order was the Atlantic salmon with 21,000,000. The remainder of the distribution was made up of other varieties of salmon and trout. The above figures do not include hatcheries taken over by the Provincial Governments and it is estimated that in the past year more than 600,000,000 eggs, fry and fingerlings have been distributed when the hatcheries operated by the Dominion and Provincial Governments are taken into consideration.

Pioneer.

Canada has the distinction of being the pioneer in fish culture as a government enterprise in the new world. The first fry hatched in Canada from artificially fertilized eggs were produced in 1868, and fish culture as a Dominion Government service was established with Confederation in 1867. To Newcastle, Ontario, goes the honor of having the first Dominion hatchery, which was completed and made its first distribution in 1868.

Fish culture is not a development of recent years, however, as stocking of ponds and lakes with adult fish was practised since earliest times. The Chinese, Greeks and Romans are known to have reared fish for ornamental and food purposes, and the monasteries of the middle ages were provided with fish ponds to ensure fish fare for Fridays and fast days.

In the past year the Dominion has operated 23 main hatcheries, nine subsidiary hatcheries, seven salmon retaining ponds, and several egg collecting stations. With the product of the Dominion hatcheries and many more operated under Provincial Governments, followers of Izaak Walton may be assured of plentiful catches for years to come.

NORMAL SCHOOL CLASS OF 1931 HOLDS RE-UNION

Business Meeting is Followed by Dinner and Dance.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM.

The Peterborough Normal School Alumni Society of the class of 1931-32 held their first reunion yesterday with marked success, when a business meeting and general get-together at three o'clock in the Normal School was followed by a dinner dance at the Empress Hotel.

A delightful dinner was served at 7.30 o'clock and at the conclusion a number of toasts were given, William C. Wedlock acting in the capacity of toastmaster, in a very entertaining manner. The first toast, to the school, was proposed by E. Higgins, of Oshawa. He particularized upon the cultivation of responsibility and courtesy in the school as being of as much importance as the general curriculum. Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal of the Normal School, replied in agreement with Mr. Higgins' toast and the tendency of teachers to overlook this very important feature in teaching.

M. H. Park, Normal School master, sang two beautiful solos accompanied by Mrs. Park, these being received with great appreciation by the guests.

The second toast, To the Profession, was made by Max Parnell, of the City, in his characteristic manner, stressing the importance of the profession and the adherence to its code of ethics. Dr. J. A. Madill humorously replied, elaborating upon its importance and the necessity of persistency on the acquisition of a school.

Tom Allen, a previous graduate, played a delightful piano solo, Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C Sharp Minor, which was so well received that he replied with Paderewski's Minuet in G, as an encore.

Miss Emmeline Bannister of Campbellcroft proposed the toast to "The Normal School Staff," in which she indicated the individual value received from the association with the Normal Masters and the direct influence it had upon the teaching of the graduates. J. V. McIntyre, Normal School Master, pointed out the fact of co-operation during the past year and its continuance at any time in the future.

Music of a very high standard provided by an orchestra directed by Perce Atkinson was enjoyed by all throughout the remainder of the evening.

Members of the executive responsible for the success of the reunion were: President, William Wedlock; vice-president, Miss Dorothy Martin; secretary-treasurer, Jack G. Nichols.

ROBBED

TORONTO — Police today are searching for a man about 30 years of age, who late last night held up and robbed Reginald Roberts, 50, of $10 at his service station at Oak Ridges. The bandit walked into the building brandishing a revolver and then went through Roberts' pockets and emptied the till. A posse of armed farmers assisted the police in their search of the district until early this morning.

DIED

WALL—On December 28, 1932, Mrs. Margaret Wall at her residence, 536 Aylmer street, aged 82 years.

Funeral will take place on Friday, from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. McCracken, 650 Stewart street. Services conducted by Rev. J. E. J. Millyard. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Glasgow, Scotland, will, for the first time, permit skating on Sunday.

ROMANCE TOLD UPON DEERSKIN

Love Story of Aztec Princess Back in 1169 Depicted in Quaint Pictures.

TURBULENT TIMES.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 29 (A.P.)—The oldest love story in United States, about an Aztec Princess who won the man of her choice despite all obstacles, was told to-day before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

And they lived happily ever after, according to the old deerskin manuscript on which the story is written in quaint picture writing. Events in Southern Mexico dating back 350 years before the Spaniards came in 1519 are recorded on the deerskin, which was described by Herbert J. Spinden, of the Brooklyn Museum.

It tells the tale of a lady named "Six Monkey," which is the most accurate way of translating into English the pictures that stand for her name in the old manuscript. She was the "little sister" of several elder brothers.

As a young girl she had much difficulty in gaining permisison to marry the man she wished, named "Eleven Wind." But finally the wedding was celebrated with gifts, a dance and a joint bath for the bride and groom.

The Insult

The next year two of Princess Six Monkey's ambassadors were insulted by two young chieftains — with the insults portrayed by knives coming from the young men's mouths.

Princess Six Monkey declared a war of revenge, first asking advice of an old "Death Woman" at a Temple of Skulls. Like Jean d'Arc she led her forces against the two towns of the young chiefs, and personally captured her enemies.

A few days later one of the captives was sacrificed by cutting his heart out before a temple, while the other was led away by the ambassadors and sacrificed at another place.

A ceremony followed, perhaps a coronation, in which Princess Six Monkey was anointed, and then she and Prince Eleven Wind ruled in peace. Later they had two sons, "Four Wind," and "One Crocodile," and the eldest in his turn was married to a girl of his proper station in life, Lady "Ten Flower."

LILLIAN GISH UPHELD

SAN FRANCISCO.—Lillian Gish, actress, to-day had double court approval of the breaking of her motion picture contract with Charles H. Duell, Inc., of Inspiration Pictures. The district Court of Appeals here, to which Duell carried the case agreed with the Los Angeles Superior Court in ruling for Miss Gish.

SIXTH SET OF TWINS

MUNCIE, Ind.—Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Sulphur Springs, report the birth of twin girls—the sixth set of twins in the family in three generations. The great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Muzzy, alive and hale at 85, was the mother of the first set. Since then it rather ran

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Arnott and daughters, Betty and Louise, who left Peterborough about twelve years ago for British Columbia, have returned to the East and will reside in this section of the country in future. At present they are visiting with relatives in the Niagara Peninsula. Mr. Arnott states that the farming and market gardening occupations in British Columbia are becoming controlled by Asiatics, and that there is not the same opening in these lines of work now as formerly. He was greatly impressed with Peterborough, and remarked how it had improved during his absence of twelve years. He says it is one of the best set-up cities he has visited in his travels across the continent.

Mrs. William McDonald, accompanied by her daughter Marjorie, King Street, left yesterday for Kingston, called there by the sudden death of her brother, Thomas D. Minnes. The funeral takes place this afternoon. The late Mr. Minnes, whose wife predeceased him last Easter, was spending the Christmas holiday at the home of his son Victor in Ottawa. He had been in his usual health, but after a walk, he suddenly collapsed and died in a short time. He belonged to an old Kingston family, one well-known in that city for a century, and had spent all his life there. For a number of years he had been Chief Accountant at Portsmouth Penitentiary, but retired from that position a few years ago. He was prominent in fraternal circles, and all his life associated with St. Andrew's Church.
